OUT OF THE TOMBS

Mrs. Chadwick Arrives In Custody at Cleveland.

MADE LONG STATEMENT AT NEW YORK

Declared She Would Pay All Debts and Goes Home to Face Creditors and to Free Them—Securities Said to Total $28,000,000.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 14.—The home coming of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick today created more excitement in this city than any event of recent years. A tremendous jam at the depot compelled Chief of Police Kohler to arrange details of officers to restrain the crowd, and United States Marshal Chandler, to whose offices she was taken immediately upon her arrival, stationed a force of deputies around his office to prevent the throng from taking the room by storm.

The prospects are that Mrs. Chadwick will be compelled to go to jail unless she can give bail to the amount of $40,000, and she may be asked to furnish surety as high as $52,500.

It is said that a third indictment had been found against Mrs. Chadwick charging forgery in connection with the $5,000,000 Carnegie note. If so Mr. Keeler, county prosecutor, will ask for a bond of $12,500 in this case also, making the total amount of surety that she will be called upon to furnish $52,500.

In the custody of United States Marshal Henkel Mrs. Chadwick started at 7 o'clock last night from the Grand Central station at New York.

As she was leaving for Cleveland, after having formally waived examination before United States Commissioner Shields, Mrs. Chadwick made a long statement, in which she declared that she will pay all her obligations and that her sole purpose in going back to her home city is to face her creditors and free them.

She asserted that she did not try to run away or evade arrest and that she could have got bail since her arrest, one of the most prominent men in the country having offered to go on her bond.

Turning to her counsel, Philip Carpenter, she said, "Isn't that true, Mr. Carpenter?" He nodded his head in the affirmative.

Mrs. Chadwick steadfastly refused to be catechised by reporters on the mysterious subjects of her alleged identity as Mme. Devere or her alleged connection with Andrew Carnegie.

"I shall not try to get bail in Cleveland for private reasons," she added. "There is no mystery in my case, although it may seem so now. I shall certainly issue a statement, in which everything will be made clear."

Sensation continues to follow sensation in the famous case. It has developed that the total amount of "securities" deposited by Mrs. Chadwick with the Wade Park bank here has been found to approximate $28,000,000. The highest estimate placed on them heretofore has been $15,000,000.

The announcement is made by William M. K. Olcott, a former judge and district attorney of New York, that he, too, was one of Mrs. Chadwick's victims; that he was "a lamb" and for fifteen days had faith in her. At her solicitation he came here in connection with a threatened attachment against her home, she paying a fee of $500 in advance. Later he lent her $1,500, but got it back.

Receiver Nathan Loeser, who was appointed by the United States district court to take charge of the estate of Mrs. Chadwick, attempted last night to take possession of Mrs. Chadwick's home on Euclid avenue. The property has been in charge of a custodian for the Elyria bank of Elyria, O. He refused to admit Mr. Loeser, but opened the door a few inches and peered out at him. The receiver and United States Marshal Chandler will force open the doors of the Chadwick house should such a proceeding be necessary to place Mr. Loeser in possession.

APPLETON, Wis., Dec. 14.—Lawrence university will renounce all claims to the gift of $100,000 provided in the will of William W. Cooper, who lost his life in the Iroquois theater fire in Chicago. Instead of receiving $100,000 the university will receive $100. This amount was due on a note given by Mr. Cooper to the university.

Harold Lull as Private Secretary.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 14.—United States District Judge Royal A. Gunnison, who was appointed recently by President Roosevelt to preside over the First district of Alaska, has announced the appointment of Harold Lull of Ithaca to act as his private secretary and court stenographer at a salary of $3,000 a year.

Dr. Koch Innocent, Says Brooks.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 14.—That the murderer of Dr. Gebhardt of New Ulm is now in Rochester and that Dr. Koch, now under arrest, is innocent is the declaration of Asa P. Brooks, who saw the man crouching near the victim on the night of the murder.

Nigrette Beaten at Oakland.

HARD LABOR FOR LIFE

Sasoneff, Slayer of Czar's Minister, Convicted.

ACCOMPLICE GOT TWENTY YEARS.

Trial Held Behind Fixed Bayonets of Troops, Thus Preventing Threatened Riot—Prisoner Not Allowed a Defense.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 14.—Sasoneff, who threw the bomb which killed Minister of the Interior von Plehve, and Sikorifsky, his accomplice in the crime, were last night found guilty by the criminal court of appeals here. The former was sentenced to imprisonment for life with hard labor and the latter to twenty years' imprisonment. The trial had been expected to last at least two days, but it was rushed to a speedy completion in view of the possibility of revolutionary demonstrations. The trial was held behind closed doors, and all the entrances to the building were locked and guarded, and only persons who could produce summonses were admitted. Even members of the bar were treated as outsiders.

Large police reserves were stationed within the building and in the courtyards of the ordnance factory opposite, while mounted gendarmerie patrolled the front and sides of the building. At the hour set by the proclamation several battalions of infantry as if by accident marched through the adjoining streets, and exactly at 12 a company with a band of music at its head playing, strangely enough, "The Stars and Stripes Forever," swung through a cross street. The grim effect of the fixed bayonets was enough to deter the crowds of students and workmen streaming along the sidewalks, and no vestige of a disturbance occurred.

Sasoneff's defense, or apologia, as it was called, which he was not allowed to present, is declared to be a remarkable document, showing the prisoner to be a man of superior intellect.

Lawson-Greene Controversy.

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—Colonel W. C. Greene did not arrive here in business hours. The large crowd that had assembled in anticipation of the colonel telling Thomas W. Lawson that he was a liar, etc., was severely disappointed. Thomas W. Lawson, author of "Frenzied Finance," made answer to Colonel Greene's attack upon him in the morning papers. He sent out another of his characteristic diatribes, addressed to "Colonel Bill Greene." In it he said that Greene lied, but that he was also "one of the biggest hearted, squarest men he had ever met."

Duel May Be Fatal to Both.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 14.—It is reported here that two Allegheny men are dying as a result of a pistol duel at Sparta. T. A. Moxley and Aquilla Rector had made a cattle trade the day before, and after the trading was over Rector went away and boasted that he had done Moxley. Moxley began drinking and, meeting Rector in Thompson's store, a quarrel was followed by both men commencing to shoot. Rector received four wounds and Moxley one. Moxley will die, but Rector may live.

Boris Sarafoff Again Leads.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 14.—Advices from Sofia state that Bulgarian bands are crossing the Macedonian frontier in large numbers and that others are forming. Boris Sarafoff is directing the movement. Telegrams from Constantinople announce that the Austrian and Russian embassies have called the attention of the porte to the renewed activity of the bands and demanded proper measures to put an end to the existing state of affairs.

Workman Blown to Pieces.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Joseph Pesk was blown to atoms, a Polander, name unknown, was fatally and Patrick Mullin and Hugh Bulger badly injured at the plant of the Electrical Development company, which is constructing a tunnel for the Toronto and Niagara Power company on the Canadian side. Pesk was thawing out dynamite, which exploded. A number of other men were more or less severely injured.

Hit Ex-Chief With an Ax.

BATH, N. Y., Dec. 14.—After he had been struck twice on the head with an ax wielded by Jerry Billington, ex-Chief of Police Avery Carregin, with the assistance of his wife, who came to his rescue, placed Billington under arrest and took him to the city jail. Carregin, who is now a special officer, had gone to Billington's home to arrest him on a charge of assault.

House Charges Florida Judge With High Crimes.

MEMBERS ARE FOR HIS PUNISHMENT

Seven Representatives Will Present Case Before the Senate—Proceedings Are First of the Kind Since 1876.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Sitting as a grand jury, the house of representatives with almost a full membership and after more than five hours' discussion, to the exclusion of all other business, has adopted a resolution providing for the impeachment of Judge Charles Swayne of the northern district of Florida for "high crimes and misdemeanors."

The case against the respondent was clearly set out by Mr. Palmer of Pennsylvania, chairman of the subcommittee of the judiciary committee, which heard the evidence in the case. He carefully dissected the evidence bearing on each of the specifications and said that if it were found that Judge Swayne had done well he should be vindicated, but if he had done ill he should be sent to trial "where his excuses and apologies may or may not receive consideration."

He was followed by Messrs. Clayton of Alabama, Powers of Massachusetts, Henry of Texas and Lamar of Florida, each of whom in most vigorous terms advocated punishment. Messrs. Gillett of California and Littlefield of Maine in speeches opposed their colleagues on all the specifications except the one as to the account rendered to the government by Judge Swayne for traveling expenses.

Throughout the session intense interest was shown by members. Following the adoption of the impeachment resolution provision was made for appointment of five members to notify the senate of the impeachment and for a committee of seven to present the case to the senate.

These proceedings are the first of their kind since the impeachment in 1876 of General W. W. Belknap, who was secretary of war in President Grant's cabinet.

Rhodes Scholars at Oxford.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—A majority of the Rhodes scholars at Oxford will spend the Christmas holidays on the continent. A number who passed through London on the way to various continental capitals stated that they had found college life at Oxford totally different from that in America. The first term was spent mostly in accustoming themselves to English ways and conventionalities, but they had been given all possible aid by the British students, who were universally courteous and kind.

Good Samaritan Rewarded.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 14.—Houston Bond, a clerk in a leading hotel of this city, received a certified check yesterday from Evansville, Ind., for $10,000. Four years ago an old gentleman fell on the sidewalk in front of the hotel and severely injured himself. Mr. Bond went to his assistance, lifted him from the ground and cared for him until he had recovered. The check was the sequel. Mr. Bond would not disclose the name of the man who sent the check.

Woodward Elected President.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Dr. R. S. Woodward, dean of the faculty of pure science at Columbia university, New York city, has been elected president of the Carnegie institution by the board of trustees. He succeeds Dr. D. C. Gilman, the former president of Johns Hopkins university. Dr. Woodward is well known as an educator and scientist and while in this city was connected successively with the coast and geodetic survey and the geological survey.

"Jefferson Bible" In Great Demand.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Judged by the demand upon senators and representatives "the Jefferson Bible" has proved to be one of the most popular books ever published by the government. The present edition of 10,000 copies has been practically exhausted, and its distribution seems merely to have whetted the appetites of the reading public. Senators and members are flooded with requests for the book, with which they are unable to comply.

Water Tank Bursts.

SHELTON, Conn., Dec. 14.—A new tank containing 50,000 gallons of water and located beside the Berkshire division tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad here burst, throwing some of its iron stays fifty feet, overturning two freight cars and causing other damage. The tank was a wooden one, only just completed, for filling locomotive boilers and had been in use only two days. Ice is supposed to have caused the accident.

Revolutionists Triumph in Paraguay.

BUENOS AYRES, Dec. 14.—A treaty of peace between the governments of Paraguay and the revolutionists was signed last night on board the Argentine warship La Plata by President Ezcurra and General Ferreira. The treaty marks the complete triumph of the revolution and is based upon the recognition of President Ezcurra and the election of Senor Gauna, a supporter of the revolution, to the presidency.

Syveton a Suicide.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Although the investigation into the causes of the death of Deputy Syveton has not been completed, facts have leaked out which render it certain that Syveton committed suicide owing to private trouble wholly unconnected with politics.

The frenzied finance duel of words is demonstrating to people how little they do know about the captains of industry and buccaneers of stocks. "When thieves fall out—"

Somerville is hard hit when it resorts to begging. The action of the board of directors of the public library in that place in directing its president to make an appeal to Andrew Carnegie for funds to carry on the work is not creditable to the town.

The stories of inconvenience caused by the Newark bay draw on the Jersey Central are greatly exaggerated according to the average Plainfield commutor. Naturally, however, some delay is encountered now and then but the general service given by the road is better today than it has been in many years. The company is now building one of the finest draws in the country and at the same time is maintaining its regular train schedule and of course there are some inconveniences occasioned by the work. So what's the use of kicking?

CLERKS' ASSOCIATION OUT OF EXISTENCE

THE MEMBERS LOSE INTEREST AFTER ADOPTION OF EARLY CLOSING.

The Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association, at one time a very active local organization, has gone out of existence through lack of interest. The association was formed primarily for the purpose of securing an adoption of the early closing plan, whereby the merchants would agree to close their stores at 6 o'clock the year round, except during holiday seasons. This was accomplished quite generally and after that the members lost interest. For a time the meetings were kept going through various entertainments arranged, but these soon lost their attractive features and the attendance dwindled down to practically nothing and it was finally decided to give up.

One of the clerks who was largely instrumental in effecting the early closing movement, in speaking about the association, said that the work was left to a few, while the others have enjoyed the benefits of the change without making a single effort in its behalf.

A concensus of opinion among the merchants who have continued to close at 6 o'clock is favorable to the plan. They all agree that they would not return to the old method. They estimate a large saving in the matter of light bills and now that the public has become used to the plan of closing early they claim that the same amount of shopping is done during the day. This plan also gives the clerks their evenings, except during the holidays when they are perfectly willing to work to accommodate the shoppers.

IN THE SHOPS.

Paul Overbaugh, of this city, has taken a position in the foundry at the Pond Machine Tool Works.

The Singer factory at Elizabeth, is undergoing one of the busiest spells it has had in a long time. Every department is running on full time and with increased forces.

Neil Loughlin, of East Third street, formerly of the Campbell shop but who has been representing an American machine firm in England, is home on a visit. He expects to return in the spring and may be accompanied by Frank Eick, of the Aluminum plant.

George Shotwell Buried.

William H. Shotwell and W. V. Mundy attended the funeral services of their cousin, George Shotwell, at Port Richmond, S. I., yesterday. Mr. Shotwell died as a result of an operation for appendicitis. The funeral services were in charge of the Masonic order, of which Mr. Shotwell had been a member for years.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Peter Benson, a pupil of the Whittier School, fell and severely strained his leg while descending the school steps yesterday. He was taken home by a few friends, where he will stay for some time.

At a recent meeting of the Holy Name Society, of St. John's Catholic church, it was found that a large surplus was on hand, and the members will be benefitted about the first of January.

The Young Ladies' Card Club met at the home of Miss Nellie Tabb, of New Market, yesterday afternoon. First prize was captured by Miss Tabb and second by Miss Edith Boice.

Clarence Harrison is now digging holes for the new telegraph line which is being erected from the Public Service Corporation from New Market to Plainfield.

Robert Maltbie is still trying to organize a hockey team but without much success, as the local young men do not take much interest in the game.

Eugene Runyon is confined to his home on North avenue, by a severe strain of the leg received in a fall in front of the postoffice yesterday afternoon.

The small woods, which lately stood near the Levering & Garrigues plant, has been entirely cut down and carted to the local brickyard.

A party of young men from here went sleigh-riding last night at 12 o'clock and have not yet returned.

The borough Council has a force of men cleaning off sidewalks and street crossings.

"Shorty" Alberts has been confined to his home for the past few days by a slight illness.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Two runaways in town yesterday enlivened the place from its usual winter solitude. In the morning, Harry Ryno's horse, which had been left untied, became tired of a lack of exercise and started up Park avenue on a run. Sam Pedefious caught the animal near the postoffice. In the afternoon, Louis Morel's horse took a notion of coming home before the day's work was done, so ran from near the station to the barn without a driver. No damage was done by either horse.

Funeral services of the late Mrs. Michael Antonio, who died at her home on Stanbury avenue Sunday morning, after a lingering illness with consumption, were held yesterday morning at 9:30 from St. Mary's church, Plainfield. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery. Mrs. Antonio is survived by a husband and one son.

The Suburban Club held its regular monthly meeting Monday night in the club's parlors. The Suburban has started upon its second year with a most encouraging outlook for the future.

The revival meetings being held in the Methodist church were resumed again last night. Meetings will be held every night this week with the exception of Saturday.

Evangelist Rev. George W. Coon will remain with the M. E. church through this week, holding services every evening except Mondays and Saturdays. From here he goes to Baltimore to conduct evangelistic services. Interest seems to increase in the work, the Baptists closing their Sunday evening service to attend the special services at the M. E. church.

Mrs. High, who has been making her home at The Homestead, sailed several days ago for an extended trip to Europe.

A number of the young people from town will attend the Company K dance to be given in the armory tonight.

The snow storm of Monday interfered but little with traffic on the trolley. So different from the past.

Mrs. William R. Buckely, of South avenue, was the guest yesterday of her aunt, Miss Susie Parse.

Miss Josie Banks, of East Second street, spent Tuesday with Mrs. George L. Dunn.

Miss Hazel Marsh, of Sandford avenue, was the guest yesterday of relatives in town.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

It is the general opinion here that the report of the Newark News regarding the kidnapping of Lillie Mc Donald in the year 1889, while on her way to a kindergarten school in South Plainfield is a mistake. There was not even a kindergarten school here.

The Ladies Aid Society, of the Baptist church, will hold their regular monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. H. Manning.

James H. Jones has broken up housekeeping for the winter and is boarding with his daughter, Mrs. P. C. Johnson.

Three members of the family of P. C. Johnson are confined at home by illness.

AMUSEMENTS.

According to present plans, Mrs. Leslie Carter's first performance of "Adrea" will occur at the Belasco Theatre, Monday, Jan. 9. On the same date David Warfield, who is now appearing on the home stage with great success in "The Music Master," will move to the Bijou Theatre, in order to give him an uninterrupted run in New York through the entire season. It has been Mr. Belasco's custom, until this year, to make the annual production of his new plays in Washington, and after a week there and a week in Baltimore, to take them into New York for a full season's run. The conditions of theatrical booking, however, are such that he finds himself unable to obtain a theatre in Washington this season. Even the popular-priced and vaudeville houses, one of which he tried to secure, are effectually barred to him. Unless, therefore, the unexpected happens, Washington and Baltimore will not see Mrs. Carter's preliminary appearances as "Adrea," but the initial performance will be reserved for the Belasco Theatre and New York. Mrs. Carter is now on her way home from Paris where she went a few weeks ago. She is expected to arrive in New York tomorrow, and will begin rehearsals at the Belasco Theatre with her company Monday morning.

Edna May and "The School Girl" will remain in New York just one month longer. The first two weeks of this time will be spent at the Herald Square Theatre and the other two weeks, the Christmas and New Year's weeks, will be spent at Daly's, where this attraction made its first New York triumph. On Thursday afternoon, December 15, Miss May will give a special Ethel Barrymore professional matinee of "The School Girl" at the Herald Square Theatre. N. C. Goodwin and "The Usurper" have but two weeks more to stay at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, where he is drawing crowded houses. Ethel Barrymore and "Sunday" are one of the most popular triumphs in New York. They are in their second record-breaking month, playing to crowded fashionable houses at the Hudson Theatre. John Drew will remain only two weeks longer at the Empire Theatre, New York. Charles Wyndham and Mary Moore, who are at the beginning of their second month of their New York triumph at the Lyceum Theatre, are presenting the Hubert Henry Davies comedy "Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace" to crowded houses. Annie Russell has scored a great success in her new comedy "Brother Jacques." She is playing to crowded houses and those who go to see the play like it immensely and show their great satisfaction at being able to see the winsome and charming star in a genuine Annie Russell part. As the heroine of the present love story, Miss Russell displays the gentle girlish qualities that have always won favor for her.

CONSPIRACY, SAYS RAND.

State Prosecutor in Nan Patterson Trial Startles the Court.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—"I expect to show that the killing of Caesar Young was a preconcerted plan laid by this defendant and by J. Morgan Smith and his wife. I will prove this by evidence.

"I don't expect to show that Smith was an accomplice in the killing of Caesar Young, but that he was an accomplice to a plan to wrong Young and that the plan went beyond his calculations and Young was killed.

"The theory of the prosecution, which I am compelled now to disclose, is that Caesar Young was a victim of a conspiracy."

These statements, made by Prosecutor Rand just before the closing in the trial of Nan Patterson, created a great sensation in the courtroom. They were made in the presence of the defendant, but the jury had been excused for the day.

Realism reached its most sensational point in the trial when a manikin, dressed with the identical clothes worn by Young on the morning of the tragedy in which he lost his life, was produced in court to the accompaniment of a nervous spell which caused the former "Florodora" girl to cling to her father's hand.

On the manikin's breast, just two inches below the collar bone and in line with the second rib, where, Dr. O'Hanlon had testified, the bullet plowed its way, a small aperture and a faint crimson stain could be seen by the jurors.

As Dr. Phelps, the revolver expert, who was testifying when the weirdly dressed figure was brought into the courtroom, pointed to this stain, Nan Patterson's face took on the expression of a woman in a trance. The faint glow that had survived her prison pallor when she entered the courtroom earlier in the day changed to an ashen white.

Death of Former Cuban Refugee.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Joseph M. Mora, who was connected with the banking house of Charles De Witt & Co. and was well known in Wall street, is dead here of pneumonia. Mr. Mora was born some sixty years ago in Cuba and was a member of a distinguished Cuban family. For espousing the cause of a revolutionary party he was imprisoned by Spain in Havana and then sent to the penal colony at the isle of Fernando Po, off the coast of Africa. He finally escaped to New York. Upon the United States government's recovery from Spain of the Mora property in Cuba he came into considerable wealth.

Miles to Represent Governor Douglas

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—The following statement has been issued by Governor Elect William L. Douglas: "An arrangement in regard to social functions in the coming year has been made between Governor Elect Douglas and Lieutenant Governor Guild. On occasions of civil importance, such as business conventions, which the governor is unable to attend he will be represented by the lieutenant governor. At reviews, parades, military functions or balls and social affairs where the staff is expected Governor Douglas if unable to attend will be represented by General Nelson A. Miles as chief of staff."

Insane Man's Mad Acts.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 14.—Monroe Wells, aged twenty-two years, son of a carpenter at North Birmingham, secured a pistol and fired at his mother, the bullet narrowly missing her. Miss Addie Beale, an aunt, rushed to the rescue of Mrs. Wells, when the young man shot her in the neck, inflicting a fatal wound. He then turned the weapon upon himself and blew out his own brains. Wells but recently had been released from the insane asylum at Tuscaloosa as cured. Miss Beale is expected to die.

Two Engines Wrecked, Five Hurt.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Dec. 14.—The Susquehanna and Western express crashed into a light engine at Franklin Furnace, N. J., owing to a misunderstanding of orders. Both engines were wrecked. Conductor A. H. Corwin and Trainman Frank Lord of this city were cut and bruised. Engineer Lewis Kays, in charge of the light engine, was badly injured about the hips and back. Mrs. W. D. Haggerty and Mrs. Stanaback, passengers, of Sussex, N. J., were injured.

New Armory Destroyed by Fire.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 14.—The handsome new armory on Orange street, erected at a cost of $15,000 by troop A, Connecticut national guard, was totally destroyed by fire last night just as the finishing touches of the painter's brush were to be applied. The fire started in the front of the building, where a large amount of paints and oils was stored. An overheated stove, it is believed, caused the combustion. The loss, it is understood, is covered by insurance.

Oil Wells Injured by Blowouts.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 14.—Reports received from the Humble oil field state that $30,000 damage has been done during the last twelve hours by blowouts or fissures opening in the ground and omitting dense volumes of gas. Practically every rig erected within the past few days has been damaged or destroyed. Several inches of mud has been blown from the fissures and the wells over several acres of ground.

KAISER'S OPERA.

Wilhelm Sat Impassive While Berlin Cheered "Der Roland Von Berlin."

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—The stage of the Royal Opera House was piled with wreaths of laurel as Ruggerio Leoncavallo was recalled for many times last night after the production of "Der Roland von Berlin." Emperor William stood up in his box applauding, and the brilliant international audience cried "Bravo!" The critics, who were there from Paris, Rome, Vienna, London, St. Petersburg and all parts of Germany, think Leoncavallo has equaled his best work.

Although Leoncavallo got all the applause, the emperor sitting impassive, Leoncavallo said his majesty ought to have had at least a quarter, as the emperor's suggestions had been accepted in the construction of every scene.

Emperor William sat with his sister-in-law, Princess Leopold, and Crown Prince Frederick William.

Of the 1,446 seats in the house 1,146 had been reserved by the emperor. The opera was richly staged at the emperor's private expense.

"I do not think many Germans know," said the emperor at a dinner at Count von Bulow's, in talking over the new production, "that I spent last year of my private income $1,000,000 on operas and theaters."

The emperor is commonly supposed to have spent $25,000 on this production.

King Edward to Newfoundlanders.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth. 7 Miles from Newark.
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL, PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

Home Makers and Others. Selfish Christmas Givers

"Funny thing! There seems to be an illusion that all women are home makers," remarked the bachelor as he carefully stroked his mustache.

"Well, if you don't associate woman with the home, what then?" retorted the woman he was talking to.

"Don't get indignant, my dear. It has been the fashion until very recently to idealize women and give them certain attributes whether they possessed them or not. I am simply mentioning the truth. Some women are meant to be home makers, others the very contrary. Under the hands of some women pictures seem to place themselves of their own accord into artistic positions on the wall, the furniture groups itself in a masterly manner, chairs almost invite you to sink into their depths and be comfy, and the very lights are shaded and appealing. A 'homy' woman instinctively knows how to do everything about the house. She puts a touch here, a bit of paint there, and transforms even an attic into a delightful drawing room."

"Oh, of course! Any woman can fix up things nicely if she has the money!"

"Ah, yes, but what I am speaking of is not a question of money. Some of the poorest home makers I know are women who can spend anything they want. And what is the result? Their houses are filled with chilly mahogany pieces, and pictures hung in straight lines on the wall, pictures that mean nothing unless you count the gorgeous frame superior to the subject it incloses. These women could not drape a curtain to save their souls. Bereft of the upholsterer they would let it hang by one hook until he came. They do not even know how to poke up the dead embers of an open fire and draw up a cozy chair invitingly. But it is when this type of woman marries a poor man that she is to be pitied, and the man she marries is still more deserving of a few tears. If she has only three pictures she will put them all on one side of the wall, leaving the others bare. She will go without other pictures because she cannot afford to buy handsome settings for them rather than frame a few prints simply herself and dispose them here and there with taste. She will prefer one silk pillow, even though it be of a soiled, dingy color, to a dozen comfortable ones simply covered with inexpensive cretonne or oriental cotton material. In other words, she has no ingenuity, and her only idea of taste is to put things in her home which are costly or look as if they were."

"If I were a poor man, it seems to me I should hate to marry a woman like that."

And yet there are few men who are aware of these two classes of women.

"People who buy Christmas presents to suit themselves needn't expect any thanks from me," remarked the caustic young woman. "Perhaps you think the adoring young wife is the only one who presents her hubby with a new silk waist for his Christmas present. Not a bit of it. I notice that a good many people buy me just what they admire and think my taste ought to be educated up to it. For instance, there was Mrs. Beaufogle last Christmas. She sent me a most expensive set of Browning all the way from Boston, when she knows perfectly well that I never read anything deeper than the Sunday papers. I distinctly heard her say once it was a pity such a sensible looking young woman should really be so silly. Well, if she wants to do missionary work let her choose some other time than Christmas. That's all! Then I received a workbasket so cleverly disguised that I had wild hopes it contained bonbons—this from my maiden aunt—as a hint perhaps that I ought to mend my stockings. Last, and not least, that pretty little Mrs. Dainty sent me a perfectly heavenly fancy neck piece; but, ye gods, it was pink, just the shade that goes so perfectly with her own lovely complexion, but when you consider that I have freckles and a sallow skin—well!"

"SHE SENT ME A SET OF BROWNING."

D'ri and I

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

She had a curious fad, this hermit baroness of the big woods. She loved nature and was a naturalist of no poor attainments. Wasps and hornets were the special study of this remarkable woman. There were at least a score of their nests on her front portico—big and little and some of them oddly shaped. She hunted them in wood and field. When she found a nest she had it moved carefully after nightfall, under a bit of netting, and fastened somewhere about the gables. Around the Hermitage were many withered boughs and briers holding cones of wrought fiber, each a citadel of these uniformed soldiers of the air and the poisoned arrow. They were assembled in colonies of yellow, white, blue, and black wasps, and white-faced hornets. She had no fear of them, and, indeed, no one of the household was ever stung to my knowledge. I have seen her stand in front of her door and feed them out of a saucer. There were special favorites that would light upon her palm, overrunning its pink hollow and gorging at the honey-drop.

"They will never sting," she would say, "if one does not declare war. To strike, to make any quick motion, it gives them anger. Then, mon cher ami! it is terrible. They cause you to burn, to ache, to make a great noise, and even to lie down upon the ground. If people come to see me, if I get a new servant, I say: 'Make to them no attention, and they will not harm you.'"

In the house I have seen her catch one by the wings on a window and, holding it carefully ask me to watch her captive—sometimes a great dare-devil hornet, lion-maned—as he lay stabbing with his poison-dagger.

"Now," said she, "he is angry; he will remember. If I release him he will sting me when I come near him again. So I do not permit him to live—I kill him."

Then she would impale him and invite me to look at him with the microscope.

One day the baroness went away to town with the young ladies. I was quite alone with the servants. Father Joulin of the chateau came over and sat awhile with me, and told me how he had escaped the Parisian mob, a night in the Reign of Terror. Late in the afternoon I walked awhile in the grove with him. When he left I went slowly down the trail over which I had ridden. My strength was coming fast. I felt like an idle man, shirking the saddle, when I should be serving my country. I must to my horse and make an end to dallying. With thoughts like these for company, I went farther than I intended. Returning over the bushy trail I suddenly came upon—Louison! She was neatly gowned in pink and white.

"Le diable!" said she. "You surprise me. I thought you went another way."

"Or you would have not have taken this one," I said.

"Of course not," said she. "One does not wish to find men if she is hunting for—for—" she hesitated a moment, blushing—"mon Dieu! for bears," she added.

I thought then, as her beautiful eyes looked up at me smiling, that she was incomparable, that I loved her above all others—I felt sure of it.

"And why do you hunt bears?" I inquired.

"I do not know. I think it is because they are so—so beautiful, so amiable!" she answered.

"And such good companions."

"Yes; they never embarrass you," she went on. "You never feel at loss for a word."

"I fear you do not know bears."

"Dieu! better than men. Voila!" she exclaimed, touching me with the end of her parasol. "You are not so terrible. I do not think you would bite."

"No; I have never bitten anything but—but bread and doughnuts, or something of that sort."

"Come, I desire to intimidate you. Won't you please be afraid of me? Indeed, I can be very terrible. See! I have sharp teeth."

She turned with a playful growl, and parting her crimson lips, showed them to me—white and shapely, and as even as if they had been wrought of ivory. She knew they were beautiful, the vixen.

"You terrify me. I have a mind to run," I said, backing off.

"Please do not run," she answered quickly. "I should be afraid that—that——"

She hesitated a moment, stirring the moss with one dainty foot.

"That you might not return," she added, smiling as she looked at me.

"Then—then perhaps it will do as well if I climb a tree."

"No, no; I wish to talk with you."

"Ma'm'selle, you honor me," I said.

"And dishonor myself, I presume, with so much boldness," she went on. "It is only that I have something to say; and you know when a woman has something to—to say—"

"It is a fool that does not listen if she be as fair as you," I put in.

"You are—well, I shall not say what I think of you, for fear—for fear of giving offense," said she, blushing as she spoke. "Do you like the life of a soldier?"

"Very much, and especially when I am wounded, with such excellent care and company."

"But your side—it was horribly torn. I did feel very sorry—indeed I did. You will go again to the war?"

"Unless—unless— Ah, yes, ma'm'selle, I shall go again to the war," I stammered, going to the brink of confession, only to back away from it, as the blood came hot to my cheeks.

She broke a tiny bough and began stripping its leaves.

"Tell me, do you love the baroness?" she inquired as she whipped a swaying bush of brier.

The question amazed me. I laughed nervously.

"I respect, I admire the good woman—she would make an excellent mother," was my answer.

"Well spoken!" she said, clapping her hands. "I thought you were a fool. I did not know whether you were to blame or—or the Creator."

"Or the baroness," I added laughing.

"Well," said she, with a pretty shrug, "is there not a man for every woman? The baroness thinks she is irresistible. She has money. She would like to buy you for a plaything—to marry you. But I say beware. She is more terrible than the keeper of the Bastile. And you—you are too young!"

"My dear girl," said I, in a voice of pleading, "it is terrible. Save me! Save me, I pray you!"

"Pooh! I do not care!"—with a gesture of indifference. "I am trying to save myself, that is all."

"From what?"

"Another relative. Parbleu! I have enough." She stamped her foot impatiently as she spoke. "I should be very terrible to you. I should say the meanest things. I should call you grandpapa and give you a new cane every Christmas."

"And if you gave me also a smile, I should be content."

More than once I was near declaring myself that day, but I had a mighty fear she was playing with me and I held my tongue. There was an odd light in her eyes. I knew not, then, what it meant.

"You are easily satisfied," was her answer.

"I am to leave soon," I said. "May I not see you here to-morow?"

"Alas! I do not think you can," was her answer.

"And why not?"

"Because it would not be proper," said she, smiling as she looked up at me.

"Not proper! I should like to know why."

"It would make me break another engagement," she went on laughing. "I am to go with the baroness to meet the count if he comes—she has commanded. The day after, in the morning, at 10 o'clock, by the cascade—will that do? Good! I must leave you now. I must not return with you. Remember!" she commanded, pointing at me with her tapered forefinger. "Remember—10 o'clock in the morning."

Then she took a bypath and went out of sight. I returned to the mansion as deep in love as a man could be. I went to dinner with the rest that evening. Louison came in after we were all seated.

"You were late, my dear," said the baroness.

"Yes; I went away walking and lost something, and was not able to find it again."

CHAPTER IX.

Next morning the baroness went away in her glittering caleche with Louison. Each shining spoke and golden turret flashed the sunlight back at me as I looked after them at the edge of the wood. The baroness had asked me to go with her, but I thought the journey too long. Louise came out and sat by me awhile as I lay in the hammock. She was all in white. A trifle taller and a bit more slender than her sister, I have sometimes thought her beauty was statelier, also, and more statuesque. The sight of her seemed to kindle in me the spirit of old chivalry. I would have fought and died for her with my best lance and plume. In all my life I had not seen a woman of sweeter graces of speech and manner, and, in truth, I have met some of the best born of her sex.

She had callers presently—the Sieur Michel and his daughter. I went away, then, for a walk, and, after a time, strolled into the north trail. Crossing a mossy glade, in a circle of fragrant cedar, I sat down to rest. The sound of falling water came to my ear through thickets of hazel and shadberry. Suddenly I heard a sweet voice singing a love-song of Provence—the same voice, the same song, I had heard the day I came half fainting on my horse. Somebody was coming near. In a moment I saw Louise before me.

"What, ma'm'selle!" I said; "alone in the woods!"

"Not so," said she. "I knew you were here—somewhere, and—and—well, I thought you might be lonely."

"You are a good angel," I said. "always trying to make others happy."

"Eh bien," said she, sitting beside me, "I was lonely myself. I cannot read or study. I have neglected my lessons; I have insulted the tutor—threw my book at him, and walked away, for he sputtered at me. I do not know what is the matter. I know I am very wicked. Perhaps—ah me! perhaps it is the devil."

"Ma'm'selle, it is appalling!" I said. "You may have injured the poor man. You must be very bad. Let me see your palm."

I held her dainty fingers in mine, that were still hard and brown, peering into the pink hollow of her hand. She looked up curiously.

"A quick temper and a heart of gold," I said. "If the devil has it, he is lucky, and—well, I should like to be in his confidence."

"Ah, m'sieur," said she, seriously, a little tremor on her lips, "I have much trouble—you do not know. I have to fight with myself."

"You have, then, a formidable enemy," I answered.

"But I am not quarrelsome," said she, thoughtfully. "I am only weary of the life here. I should like to go away and be of some use in the world. I suppose it is wicked, for my papa wishes me to stay. And bah! it is a prison—a Hopital de Salpetriere!"

"Ma'm'selle," I exclaimed, "if you talk like that I shall take you on my horse and fly with you. I shall come as your knight, as your deliverer, some day."

RIOT IN PARLIAMENT.

Opposition Members at Budapest Hanged Premier In Effigy.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 14.—Hoping to attract the sympathy of the populace, the members of the Opposition in the house of deputies met at their club early in the morning and at 9 o'clock, headed by Count Apponyi, former Premier Banffy, Francis Kossuth, Count Zichy and other leaders, marched in procession in a drizzling rain to the parliament building. The public, however, displayed scant interest, and only a few idlers cheered them. Acting on instructions, the guards remained mute, but immovable, which so incensed the Opposition deputies that they boxed the ears and spat in the faces of the guards, who conducted themselves with the greatest passivity and forbearance until compelled to act in self defense.

Seven of the guards were injured in the scrimmage before they fled from the chamber.

Having piled a debris of wrecked furniture and books in the middle of the chamber, the rioters crowned their work of destruction by erecting a model of a gallows from broken benches, from which an effgy of Premier Tisza was hanged, the deputies standing around amidst the wreckage smoking cigarettes or pipes, while a crowd of reporters with cameras were busy securing pictures of the memorable scene.

Soon afterward Premier Tisza, with other members of the Hungarian ministry, appeared in the chamber and were greeted with deafening shouts of abuse, "scoundrel" and "rogue" being the mildest terms employed.

Count Apponyi denied that the aim of the movement was to promote the separation of Hungary from Austria, but admitted that it would have a great influence in promoting the object of the Independence party.

SMOOT INQUIRY IN SENATE.

Mormons Testify as to Torture Being Result of Disobedience.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Five witnesses were examined yesterday by the senate committee on privileges and elections in the investigation of protests against Senator Reed Smoot retaining his seat in the senate.

The first witness described the obligations taken by persons who pass through the endowment house and declared that every one agrees to submit to mutilation of the person if he or she reveals what takes place during the ceremony.

Two members of the faculty of the Brigham Young university testified that they have sustained polygamous relations since the manifesto of 1890, and a teacher in the public schools asserted that the church had religion taught in such schools.

Mrs. Margaret Geddes, a Mormon woman, was examined concerning her plural marriage and broke down on the stand.

Massachusetts Elections.

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—Municipal elections were held in this and eighteen other cities of the state. This closes city elections in Massachusetts, with the exception of North Adams, where an election will be held next Tuesday. There was no noteworthy surprise, with the possible exception of Newburyport and Woburn, where there were changes from no license to license. The bitterest fight was in Cambridge, where the Democratic ticket was defeated by the nonpartisan candidate. There was no mayoralty election here, Mayor Patrick A. Collins holding over another year. As usual, the city voted for license. Newton did not choose a mayor and voted no license.

Rose di Pietro on Trial.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Without the presence of her child to comfort her as she faced the twelve men who are trying her for the murder of Michael Rago, Mrs. Rose di Pietro sat in the court of Recorder Goff and listened to the witnesses for the prosecution swear her life away, it seemed. Philip K. Sweet, one of President Roosevelt's rough riders, was the first witness. He was formerly chief of police in Manila and was in front of the Pietro home when the shooting occurred. He said he saw Rago stagger out into the street and fall dead.

Morgan Said to Be a Criminal.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14.—Edward Morgan, the alleged leader of bank robbers and safe blowers, who, with his wife, was arrested here, has been identified as having been seen loitering around Mount Airy, Carroll county, Md., last Thursday, when the attempt was made to blow the safe of the bank at that place. Morgan, whose real name is said to be Edward Johnson, alias Borgan, has served three years in the Moundsville (W. Va.) penitentiary.

Two Favorites Were Beaten.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—Birch Rod and Gas Lighter were the beaten favorites, and, though both were well supported, the losses on the remaining four events on the card brought the books out losers on the day. M. J. Shannon ran Alcom R. up to $600 and bought him at that price.

Minister Fielding Sails For Naples.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 14.—Minister Fielding has sailed by the White Star line steamer Cretic for Naples. He is accompanied by a member of his family, who is to receive surgical treatment at Vienna. The visit abroad, planned some time ago, will occupy at least a month.

Insurance by Compulsion.

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—In the reichstag there has been presented a resolution asking the government to introduce a bill instituting a system of compulsory insurance for artisan workers.

SPORTING NEWS.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club bowlers will roll with the Roselle team in the Central Journal Bowling League tonight at the latter's alleys. The line up of the local pin-hitters has not yet been announced.

The next game on the Suburban's Club's schedule is with the Westfield team at Westfield on December 17. The Suburban team is at present one of the leading bowling aggregations in the vicinity, and come near to outclassing some of the teams in the State League.

Frank Neal, of the Y. M. C. A. bowling team, is one of the steadiest bowlers in this city. Though his scores are not phenomenally high, he may always be counted on for a good average, and his steadiness is a great help to the Y. M. C. A. five, of which he is manager.

BASKET BALL.

In the Juvenile League, the line-ups of the Plainfield High school seconds and the Whitters will be the following. P. H. S. scrub, Doane and Caldwell, forwards, Mackay, Centre; Freeman and Legget guards. Whittier, Briggs and Loughlin, forwards: Alpaugh, center: Woodhull and Fountain, guards.

This afternoon in its game with the Leals school team in the Interscholastic League, the Plainfield High school basket ball team will probably line up as follows: Thompson and Smith, forwards; Freeman, center; Gavett and Stutsman, guards. Leal's will go on the floor in this line-up: Chapman and Jewett, forwards; Smith, center; Strong and Wyckoff, guards.

After its victory over the Mt. Vernon basketball team, the local Y. M. C. A. aggregation will go into the hard game against the Montclair Y. M. C. A. on next Monday night, with more confidence than it otherwise would. The Montclair team, which is coached by George Henckel, a brother of the Plainfield physical director, is one of New Jersey's strongest fives, and the game, which will be played in the local gym, should be an exciting one.

HOCKEY.

The hockey enthusiasts both of the Plainfield High School and the Leal's teams are anxious to get to playing as soon as possible, and all attempts will be made to put the pond into condition. Though the P. H. S. players cleaned off Hyde's pond last week, it snowed immediately after, so they have had no chance yet of practicing. It has been suggested that permission be gained to flood the pond, and if this method proves practicable, it will be done at the earliest possible date.

Local F. O. E. Gets Charter.

Past Worthy President Rudolph Kempf presented Plainfield Aerie, F. O. E., with its charter, last evening. He made an address appropriate to the occasion and afterward a social period was enjoyed. In the regular order of business one candidate was initiated, one elected and two propositions were received. Several members of Plainfield Aerie have accepted an initiation to attend an entertainment to be given by Hoboken Aerie tomorrow evening.

Clark's Application Turned Down.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders yesterday turned down an application made by Alvah A. Clark for the Somerville Water Company to lay mains along Union avenue in Somerville. The committee appointed to investigate the petition reported that nobody seemed to know who composed the "Somerville Water Company."

Borough Exempts Active.

The Borough Exempt Firemen's Association at a meeting last night elected three members and decided to keep "open house" on January 2. Several improvements to the association's building were also ordered.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Saunders, who recently returned from an extended trip abroad, are stopping for the present at Truell Court. A little later they will return to their home in North Plainfield.

There is a notable activity among the society folk of Plainfield and North Plainfield this season, as the many functions during the past few weeks attest. There have been an unusual number of debutantes this winter and more are to follow. These events have been followed by a number of dinners and luncheons which have attracted the leaders of the younger and older society.

Owing to the desire of so many persons to attend the society functions at the Park Club and the limited capacity of the club, the Board of Governors has decided that for the Christmas and Easter dances, invitations for guests shall be limited to non-residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield, while for the informal dances the standing rules of the club relative to the introduction of guests will be enforced as heretofore. Invitations for non-resident guests may be had upon application to the chairman of the entertainment committee, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, 27 Myrtle avenue. Junior members under sixteen will not be expected to attend the Christmas or Easter dances.

FURY OF OIL TANK FIRES.

Danger of Permitting Storage Reservoirs In or Near Cities Is Shown.

Chicago.—Fire underwriters throughout the country are laying much stress on the danger of permitting oil storage tanks to be located in or near a city. They declare that such tanks are a serious menace to life and property and must necessarily affect insurance rates unfavorably.

At Indianapolis a citizens' association is trying to compel the removal of oil tanks beyond the city limits, and a similar movement is on foot in other cities.

It has been proved that the tanks attract lightning as was the case at Findlay, O., not long ago, when a bolt struck a 1,200-barrel tank, causing an explosion which spread the fire to three other huge tanks, thus unloosing a sea of burning oil, and causing an immense amount of damage.

EXPLODING OIL TANKS.

In the fire at Findlay the great tanks furnished almost unlimited food for the flames, says a special to the Journal here. A billow of dense smoke rose from the roaring caldron 1,000 feet straight in the air. It spread as it rose until it hung like an immense balloon, black as midnight in the center, but reddened about the edge and at the bottom with the flames that leaped hundreds of feet in the air. The spectacle was majestic in its awful superiority to anything that man could do.

For an hour the pillar of fire hung over the burning tanks, then the wind rose slightly and the great billows of smoke and flame were swung away and gradually floated with the wind. For a score of miles the dense cloud hung together so that people miles away could read in it as it passed overhead the story of wholesale oil destruction.

To prevent the fire spreading as the burning oil ran out of the tanks the workmen, with horses and plows and with shovels, threw up an embankment about the oil buildings, much like an immense circus ring, so that the oil was held in a pool inside the embankment, and the buildings were saved.

TRINITY'S HOME DEPT. HOLDS ANNUAL SESSION

PLEASING PROGRAMME A FEATURE OF THE MEETING.

It was with considerable gratification that the members of the Home Department of Trinity Reformed church listened to the excellent report of the past year's work, at a social given for them in the lecture-room of the church, last night, and at the same time enjoyed a literary and musical programme arranged by Mrs. George W. Saums, superintendent, assisted by the several visitors in this department. The room was appropriately decorated with Christmastide colors, red and green, a number of small red crepe bells being arranged with good effect, while streamers of red and green crepe paper were artistically used. Here and there were placed parlor lamps, while the electric lights were shaded with the prevailing colors.

After the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," F. E. Smith, superintendent of the church Sunday-school, offered prayer. Mrs. Saums then read the annual report of the department, showing the membership a year ago was 151 and during the year there had been an increase of fifty-nine. Two members were called away by death and Miss Bertha Mellman and Miss Ella Conover were transferred to the main school, while nine moved out of town and seven had other reasons for withdrawal, making the present membership 190. There are seventeen visitors. After the reading of the report, Mrs. Saums called the roll of members. In all over one hundred persons were present.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of the church, was then called upon and made an address in which he congratulated the department and its officers for the excellent showing made during the year. He pointed out briefly the advantages of the department and he hoped that the interest and attendance would steadily increase.

Then followed the musical programme which consisted of soprano solos by Miss Bertha VanNuis Willis, accompanied by Arthur Titsworth on the piano and Mrs. George W. Saums on the violin; trombone and violin solos by Kenneth Stuart, tenor solos by Louis H. Schutt, while a feature were the recitations by Helen Roberts. Her first selection was about the department store and caused much laughter when she concluded that she had received a quart of trading stamps. Mrs. George W. Saums accompanied Mr. Schutt and Mr. Stuart on the piano.

After the programme, which was well received, refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

These committees were in charge: Programme—Mrs. Henry VanName, Miss Anna Garretson, Mrs. Peter B. Hodge, Mrs. Will F. Williams, Mrs. George W. Saums; reception and badges, Mrs. A. L. Force, Mrs. B. Frank Coriell, Mrs. O. W. Dunham, Mrs. Jacob Beckman; decorations, Mrs. L. B. VanCamp, Mrs. Henry VanName, Mrs. Edward J. Cooley, Mrs. William F. Nelson; refreshments, Mrs. Charles E. Ball, Mrs. John Ross, Mrs. G. Q. Dolliver, Mrs. Winfield Schomp, Mrs. Charles Gould, Mrs. E. F. Sheppard, Mrs. Julius Williams.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., will elect officers Monday night.

Stone Square Lodge, No. 38, F. and A. M., installed these officers at the communication held this week: Worshipful master, Eugene Johnson; senior warden, Eugene Cole; junior warden, Joseph Brinkley; treasurer, William Jones; secretary, Randolph Connett.

Presence of Mind Prevents Fire.

What might have been a serious blaze was prevented last evening by Miss Mary Brown's presence of mind. She was coming up the cellar steps of her home, on Washington avenue, when the lamp crashed to the floor, the oil rapidly igniting. By sweeping the flaming mass of oil at her feet onto the cement floor, it was quickly put out by the aid of rugs.

"Bosey" Reiter's Wedding Date.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Edith Burt, of 913 West Seventh street, and H. R. Reiter, which will take place Saturday evening, January 7, at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the bride. Mr. Reiter is a graduate of Princeton and was on the 'Varsity football team. Last season he was the coach of the Wesleyan University eleven.

AGED BELL FOUNDRY

LONDON HAS ONE THAT IS SEVERAL CENTURIES OLD.

Founded in 1570 It Is Still Turning Out Work for Cathedrals and Churches of the British Empire.

London.—This city has a bell foundry in Whitechapel road, founded in 1570 where the big bells are still made. A peal of eight bells for the Rochester cathedral was turned out a few days ago. Two are entirely new, the treble and second bell. Four, which were cast originally in 1635, 1663, 1695, and the fourth having no date, have been made over. Two of the old bells, cast in 1712 and 1834, have been retained. The industry calls for superior workmanship. To be a successful bell founder one requires not only to be a good musician and mechanician, but he must also be a practical metallurgist and possess some of the qualifications of an architect. To be able to cast and tune a bell in consonance with others of the peal one must have a precise musical ear, and as bell metal is a mixture of copper and tin (the latter being somewhat less than a fourth of the whole weight), it would be ruinous if the bellfounder were not an expert.

But the onerous duties of the bell-founder do not end there. He has to make the bell wheels and fittings, and in order to appreciate the strength of the belfry in which the bells are to be hung, he must have a good knowledge of architecture. And still further to insure success he must be a bell-ringer. All these attributes are to be found at the foundry whence the great bell of Westminster, the largest ever cast in London; the great bell of Montreal cathedral, the largest ever shipped; "Great Peter" of York Minster; "Great Tom" of Lincoln cathedral; the clock bells of St Paul's (the hour bell ringing since 1709); "Bow Bells" of Cheapside, and a host of others, had their origin.

The industry is a most interesting one in all its branches. To begin with the casting of large bells, the shape of the bell is a vital factor. It is its soul. Although the shape has not changed perceptibly for hundreds of years, yet to the eye of the expert the advance of science can be seen. The first difficulty is to get the shape true. That done, the tone will be true.

To bring this about an iron mold is made and lined with loam, giving the exact shape of the outside of the bell

POURING THE METAL INTO A MOLD

required. It is mathematically correct, and inside this mold or frame is built a core of brickwork with a lining of loam on the top. The core and lining is so manipulated that space is left for the exact thickness of the bell. The next step is to place the mold in a loam pit. The loam, which is in the vicinity of the furnace in which the metal is mixed and melted, must be absolutely dry. Wet or damp, an explosion will occur. The mold is then buried with the exception of the orifice to which the metal is drawn from the furnace. When the mold is full, a pool of molten metal is left on the top of the pit, so as to obviate the mischance of making an unsound head to the bell. A bell in cooling contracts and the greater thickness of the base draws the metal away from the upper part; hence the necessity for the pool of metal.

When the metal is cooled, the mold is taken from the pit and the extraneous parts cut off from the head. If necessary, if is then tuned. In the case of the Rochester peal, the bells were cast to act in unison with the old or tenor bell, which has been doing duty for some 80 years. If the new bell happens to be too sharp, it is placed on the tuning machine, head downward. This machine works in a circle and cuts metal from the inside of the bell. This process is continued until the correct note has been obtained. A bell can be sharpened only by cutting it down, but this is rarely resorted to.

Next comes the fitting of the tongue or clapper. This is a delicate operation. The staple is first forged, then the clapper and its stem are welded together, and the lot fitted in with mathematical precision. In the forge the steel frames are also made.

The bell is then fitted with a wheel and head stock. The wheels are made in two halves of English oak, and, as in other parts of the foundry, everything is English, a circumstance all the more remarkable when scarcely an Englishman is to be found in the surrounding district.

TWO PLANTS TO BE BUILT

New York Vacum Cleaning Co. and W. H. Rogers Silver Corp. Buy Sites.

IN THE EAST END

David T. Kenney Brings a Concern to This City—Important Realty Deals—Work on the Buildings to be Started in the Spring.

Two important real estate deals have just been closed which will add materially to the valuation of Plainfield's property interests. The first deal is the purchase from the New Jersey Land Improvement Company by the William H. Rogers' Silver Corporation of a strip of land 500x200 located at the corner of Leland and South avenues, upon which will be erected a factory for the manufacture of silverware. The structure will be erected next spring and will be about 40x120, with the idea of adding to it as the business increases.

The second deal is the purchase by David T. Kenney of two large strips of land in the same neighborhood. His first purchase was that of 881 feet of property lying between the Hygeia Ice Company plant and the Netherwood railroad station. This was owned by Dr. O. L. Jenkins. In addition Mr. Kenney has just purchased 600 feet of land adjoining his other property which brings him within three hundred feet of the Netherwood station. It is the intention of the New York Vacum Cleaning Company, of which Mr. Kenney is the principal stockholder, to erect a modern factory on this property where machinery for the cleaning process will be made on a large scale. The additional 600 feet of property was purchased from the New Jersey Land Improvement Company. The deeds in these purchases were passed today.

"Ever since the Rogers' Corporation started the manufacture of silverware here the business has increased to large proportions and the securing better accommodations has become a necessity. The new structure to be erected in the east end of the city will be modern in every respect and will be an acquisition the manufacturing interests of the city.

The New York Vacuum Cleaning Company has been unable to secure a plant in New York that would meet its needs and Mr. Kenney, being a resident here, was largely instrumental in the purchase of the Plainfield property and the adoption of plans for the erection of a factory here.

During the past year there has been a great demand for property in the east end of the city and today it is difficult to secure valuable sites along or near the railroad. The boom in property there is a healthy one and bids fair to be a close rival of the West End in manufacturing industries.

FARMERS FEEDING QUAIL AND RABBITS

UNUSUAL STATE OF AFFAIRS IN THE MOUNTAINS BACK OF THE CITY.

The heavy snowfall of the past week has caused an unusual state of affairs with wild game in the mountains back of Plainfield. Driven almost helpless by hunger and cold, dozens of quail and rabbits gather daily before the farm houses and are being kept alive by the occupants, who feed them buckwheat and apples. The quail, especially, look to the farmers for protection and spend the nights around the buildings. It is unlawful to shoot either while snow is on the ground but it has always been the aim of the valley residents to preserve the birds because of their scarcity.

Near Berkley Heights, several foxes have been driven in and are causing great annoyance through their theft of chickens. They can be seen almost daily and boys in the vicinity have sought hard to catch them but without success.

Borough Taxes.

The citizens of the borough are awakening to the fact that there are only a few days remaining before the evening of the 20th when taxes become delinquent and the collector reports that receipts are increasing daily.—Adv. 12 15 2

NEW TRUANCY LAW TO BE RIGIDLY ENFORCED

PLAINFIELD TO FOLLOW JERSEY CITY IN SENTENCING PARENTS TO JAIL.

Alteration of the State truancy law so that it now permits the authorities to hold the parents responsible and not the child, is being taken advantage of by school officials throughout the State. An arrest of this kind has already been made in Jersey City and it has been found to be effective. The truant is in no way prosecuted but the parents are held on the ground that they are in a position to stop the practice. In the Jersey City instance the father has been sentenced to thirty days in jail, because of his failure to heed repeated warnings.

With reference to the truancy practice locally and the new spirit of the law, Superintendent Maxson said today:

"The law gives the truant officer very strong powers, and the school authorities generally are making a very strong effort to keep every child in school, partly because of the benefit to the child, and partly because the money which the city receives from the State is lessened if the children are not all in regular attendance. In the city schools we have been for some time earnestly trying to enforce the law by mild means. Now that the law has been tested and the power of the school authorities proven, we shall proceed to severe measures like those in Jersey City."

The young people enjoyed the affair throughout and continued in the maze of the waltz and two step until an early hour this morning. Refreshments were served during the usual midnight intermission.

Seeking Manufactinurg Plant.

Mayor O. L. Jenkins has received an inquiry from H. F. Frevert, of 114 118 Liberty street, New York, regarding the possibility of securing a factory in Plainfield for the manufacture of machinery weighing about 1,000 pounds to be used in printing offices. Mr. Frevert makes the inquiry in behalf of a customer who wants to locate in Plainfield. The party would like to lease an equipped factory or one that can easily be equipped for the business he is in. Dr. Jenkins will make inquiries for Mr. Frevert and will endeavor to bring the new concern to this city.

BASEBALL LEAGUE TALK

Proposition to Organize Inter-City Association.

RAMSEY INTERESTED

Report That President of Hudson River League May Finance Local Club.

H. D. Ramsey, president of the Hudson River Baseball League, is interested in the placing of a fast ball team in this city next season, to be one of the six clubs to comprise the proposed New Jersey State Baseball League. The other teams would include Dover, Elizabeth, Paterson, Stroudsburg and Chatham, if the league is formed. Applications for membership have also been received from Orange, Passaic and Perth Amboy. A meeting in the interest of the new league was held a few days ago at Newark and considerable enthusiasm shown in the project.

Mr. Ramsey has just returned from a successful trip with his All-American team in Cuba. He says that several teams in the Hudson River League were unsuccessful last season and he does not propose to continue in that league next year. He has the call on several of the strongest players in this part of the country and will be able to furnish them for both the Paterson and Plainfield team. It is proposed to have Mr. Ramsey finance the Plainfield team and George D. Heckert, formerly manager of the Penn Park, of York, Pa., is talked of for the manager of the local aggregation.

As yet it is not known what will be done by the company which purchased the franchise of the Plainfield A. C. In conversation with Charles Woolston, one of the syndicate, he said that the plans for baseball would not be made known until the first of next year. When asked if the Hoboken team would likely go to Somerville for Saturday games, he said that the team was anxious to arrange to come here and that the syndicate can make such arrangements if it wants to. He denied that the Hobokens had closed a deal with Somerville, adding that Captain Driscoll informed him to the contrary last Saturday.

Mr. Woolston spoke as though a first-class team would be seen on Crescent Oval in the spring, one that would play gilt-edge ball and be able to meet the best aggregations in the semi-professional class. Early in the spring the work of enclosing the oval with a high board fence and improving the grounds will be started and it is believed that the season will be started during the last of April.

"Bosey" Reiter's Popularity.

Howard R. Reiter, the famous football player who coached the Wesleyan team this fall, left today for Plainfield, N. J. Reiter has been a unique figure at Wesleyan. He has coached the football men, given gridiron talks before the college Y. M. C. A. on Sunday mornings, and addressed Christian Endeavor societies Sunday evenings. He has led chapel, chummed with the fellows, hobnobbed with the professors and walked bareheaded about the streets of Middletown, clad in a long raincoat and with hands thrust deep into the pockets. Everybody has liked him and he has gone away holding the respect of every one that has met him.—Hartford, Conn., Courant.

Christmas Dinner for Poor Boys.

In accordance with the usual custom, the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. will give its annual Christmas dinner to the poor boys of the city on December 26. The social committee in charge of the affair is making preparations for seventy dinners, and it is expected that the dinner will surpass former events. It was impossible to give the usual Thanksgiving dinner on account of the Y. M. C. A. fair which occupied most of the time of the Women's Auxiliary.

Sagamores at Y. M. C. A.

The second of the boys' entertainments at the Y. M. C. A. will be given tomorrow night at the Y. M. C. A., and will be of especial interest to local music lovers for the fact that the Sagamore Musical Club, the popular young players of this city, will supply a specially arranged programme. In addition to the musical part of the programme there will be several numbers by Lucius Perry Hill, a humorist and entertainer.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Miss Caroline Fritz, of Somerset street, to William T. Jeffery, Jr., of York, Pa., formerly of this city. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Wednesday, December 28.

COOKE BUILDINGS ARE TO BE COMPLETED

J. D. LOIZEAUX HAS RENEWED WORK ON THE HOUSES.

J. D. Loizeaux, who has charge of four partially completed houses located at the corner of Randolph road and Madison avenue, which were started by Frank C. Cooke, of Philadelphia, who afterwards left the city suddenly, has arranged to finish the structures. Herman Hansen and Senman Williams, the original contractors, will complete their work and I. L. McVoy has been given the contract to do the plumbing work.

Mr. Cooke, after leaving here, sent the deeds for this property to Mr. Loizeaux without any solicitation, and in view of the amount of money which the contractors have already invested, Mr. Loizeaux has decided to complete the properties and sell them. They will be finished by March 1.

The initial attendance was large and indications point still better for tonight. MACHINE PLANT DAMAGED

Fullard Company's Building Suffers Loss by Fire.

CAUSED BY OILY WASTE

Detected by a Policeman—Blaze Gives Department Fight of Hour and a Half.

Evidently originating in oily waste carelessly thrown aside by workmen, fire broke out in the plant of the Fullard Machine and Press Company at East Fourth street and Watchung avenue, late last night, causing damage to the extent of $500. It was one of the hardest fights the local department has had in months, the recall being sounded at 1 o'clock this morning, an hour and a half after the alarm was turned in by Patrolman O'Keefe.

The flames began in a long, narrow pit, running the entire length of the building and situated beneath the first floor. They burned through the flooring and were creeping up the wooden supports to the second floor when stopped. A dense smoke arose all the while and finding but a few small openings penetrated every crack and crevace of the brick structure. When the firemen first arrived it was practically impossible to do anything until the building had been cleared as they were forced back every time an attempt was made to get near the flames. Three lines of hose were laid and one of them was taken directly into the pit by Captain Daley and Hoseman Daniel Force. The damage was practically confined to the building alone as the machinery was not near enough to the flames to become injured.

The building is owned by the Welvant Manufacturing Company which has it insured for $5,000. The Fullard concern has been making preparations to dispose of its business to a firm from Boston and the change was to have been made today.

A peculiar incident in connection with the fire was its discovery by Patrolman O'Keefe. He was standing at North and Park avenues when he detected the smell of smoke. He immediately began an investigation to learn the cause and by degrees traced it as far as the North avenue station from where he could see smoke pouring from the tall stack of the Fullard plant. Knowing this to be an unusual occurrence he hurried over and then saw that the building was on fire. The alarm was turned in from box 21 at Third street and Watchung avenue.

Procrastination Costly.

Street Commissioner Gavett's men have been busy during the past two days cleaning snow from the walks of tardy property-owners. After giving owners plenty of time to remove the snow there were found many who had not complied with the city ordinance and their walks have been cleaned for them. There are some persons who purposely wait and let the city do the work, it being cheaper than hiring someone else to do it. Mr. Gavett is determined to strictly enforce the ordinance this winter and see that all walks are kept in a passable condition.

Coldest Dec. 15 on Record.

Perhaps you don't know it but this is the coldest Dec. 15 on record. Never before on Dec. 15, according to the Government weather statistics, has the mercury dropped so low. Like Amalgamated copper it started to go down slowly, and this morning the mercury was at a premium of four above zero. C. A. Young, the astronomer, was born on this day. Reminds us that others see stars, many people taking hard tumbles. If you are a good citizen you'll clean your icy pavement.

Dined Bachelor Friends.

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., who will be married this afternoon at 5 o'clock to Miss Mabel E. Firstbrook, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Firstbrook, of Grant avenue, tendered a bachelor dinner to a party of friends, last evening. Those in attendance were William Feiring, City Judge William N. Runyon, Philip Jahn, Thomas M. Muir, Bertram C. Firstbrook and Ralph Leighton Morrow. Philip Jahn acted as toastmaster and professional talent furnished the entertainment that followed.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS READY FOR CHRISTMAS

PLANS COMPLETE FOR THE USUAL HOLIDAY EXERCISES.

The pupils who will make the presentation and accepting speeches at the Plainfield High School at the Christmas exercises on December 23, have been chosen by the vote of the school, and will be these: Miss Edith Jarvis, Miss Gertrude Hunter, Martin Stutsman and Chester Briggs. As the representative speakers of the school, these pupils will take the prominent parts in the Christmas celebration, which will include the usual hilarity and good natured fun between the senior and junior classes. It is expected that the usual number of alumni visitors will be present as the occasion is one in which all graduates of the Plainfield High School are interested.

Contrary to the usual custom at the school, the several classes will not make their gifts independently, but a contribution has been received from the members of the school at large, and the money received will be expended for a suitable gift. This gift will be chosen by a committee of two members of each class.

The decision of this committee has not yet been made known, and may be kept a secret from the rest of the school until the date of the presentation. It is for the purpose of presenting and accepting this gift of the school that the above mentioned pupils have been appointed.

DR. SNODGRASS SCORES RAINES' LAW HOTELS

MOVEMENT AMONG MINISTERS TO HAVE STATUTE REVOKED.

An alleged iniquitious Raines hotel law, now in operation in New York city, is the object of a movement started by The New York Globe to secure the enactment of a new law which will remove the present evils. In support of this movement The Globe has secured the general support of clergymen both in New York and suburban towns. Among those who have given their opinion in the matter is Rev. Dr. W. O. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. church, who says:

"Until a new excise law is passed at Albany, New York city cannot expect to throw off the curse of the Raines law hotel. I have watched the increasing boldness of these hotel proprietors with alarm. It is certainly high time to protect the homes of thousands of girls who will certainly be made the victims of the persuasion of evil men if present conditions continue."

Clergymen quite generally are enthusiastic over the prospects of a new law, the substitution of a measure which will curb the evils at present existing in the so-called Raines law hotels. All agree that something should be done immediately to save the young girls who are being constantly enticed from their homes by the habitues of these places, and the clergymen are of the opinion that the only way to remedy matters is to secure the passage of a new excise law which cannot be "abused." In view of this The Globe is seeking the opinions of ministers in and near New York in the hope that the agitation may result in the adoption of a new law.

MAY ASK FOR LICENSE

Local Bottling Company Said to Have Plan in View.

TURNER'S OLD PLACE

Superintendent Westcott Declared to be in Readiness to Make Application.

From present indications the question of granting a liquor license to John Goff for his place on West Front street, near Clinton avenue, will not be the only one in that line that the Common Council will have to contend with next year. Besides the possibility that Mr. Goff will make application for a license, it is learned on good authority that Ellsworth C. Westcott, superintendent of the Eastern Bottling Association, will make application for a saloon license for the place on West Third street, which was conducted recently by one of its representatives.

Last year Edward P. Turner, who was then superintendent of the Eastern Bottling Company, secured a license for this place, and it was afterward taken away from him because of several alleged violations, among which was cited the fact that another man was running the saloon for Mr. Turner and that the name of the man in whose name the license was issued did not appear over the door, also that there was some question as to the signature of one of the signers to the application. These things made quite a stir at the time and it was largely through the efforts of Councilman W. S. Tyler, chairman of the license committee, that the matter was taken up and discussed and the license finally denied.

Mr. Westcott succeeded Mr. Turner, and it is understood that he will at the proper time make application for a retail license. The fact that there is a question as to whether Mr. Goff can get a license, it is said, has given rise to the opinion that the Common Council may be led to compromise by giving Mr. Westcott one. It is also intimate that Mr. Westcott is more in favor with the powers that be than Mr. Goff and that influence will be thrown strongly in is behalf.

However, this may not assure Mr. Westcott of a license for the place, considering the make-up of the Common Council for 1905. There are certain members who are known to be opposed to Mr. Goff's place being licensed and there is every reason to believe that Councilman Tyler will strongly oppose the licensing of a place in West Third street, only a short distance away from Bernard Clark's saloon. He made a strong fight a year ago against another licensed saloon in that neighborhood and it is fair to presume that he will take the same stand this year and that he will have other members to agree with him.

P. H. S. SCRUBS DEFEAT WHITTIERS AT BASKET BALL

20 TO 3 THE SCORE OF A ONE-SIDED GAME IN JUVENILE LEAGUE.

The Plainfield High School second basketball team defeated the Whittier School aggregation in the fourth game in the Juvenile League yesterday afternoon by the score of 20 to 3. The game was played on the local gymnasium floor.

Failure to guard close lost the game for the Whittier School players while Bentley's shooting was a great help for the P. H. S. team. At the end of the first half the score was 9 to 1, and the Whittier five seemed utterly lost. They failed to get together during the entire game and the result was a sad defeat.

This was the line up and detailed score of the game: Plainfield High School scrubs—Doane and Bentley, forwards; Mackay, center; Lambert and Freeman, guards. Whittier School—Briggs and Loughlin, forwards; Alpaugh, center; Woodhull, Fountain and Morris, guards. Goals from the field—Bentley, 6; Freeman, 2; Mackay, Doane. Goals from fouls—Briggs, 3.

Thought Wife Dead; Wedded.

In the Union County Court of Special Sessions held at Elizabeth yesterday, Joseph E. Mott, of Cranford, who was indicted for bigamy and pleaded guilty, retracted this plea by advice of his counsel and pleaded not guilty. His lawyer told the court that Mott had not seen his first wife in seven years and, supposing she was dead, he had innocently married again.

CHARGES HEAPING UP

Cleveland's Financial Puzzle Indicted Seven Times.

MRS. C. L. CHADWICK IN HOME JAIL

Andrew Carnegie States That He Is Willing to Appear Against Alleged Forger, but Is Too Ill at the Present Time.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 15.—Five times indicted by the United States government at the exact minute that her train rolled into the station, Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick came home to Cleveland. She was greeted with jeers, hoots and hisses by the crowds that gathered in the depot when her train arrived, howled at by hundreds gathered in front of the federal building. The last sound that reached her from the outside world as she passed into the stuffy, ill smelling office of Sheriff Barry in the county jail was the hoot of derision from the people massed in front of the doorway. She made no attempt to give bail and after a brief stop in the office of the clerk of the United States court was taken to jail. She is held in cell 14 in the woman's department of the jail, and her palatial residence on Euclid avenue, of which the furnishings alone are valued at $200,000, is occupied by her maid.

Her courage held to the last, but her body failed her, and when she had mounted the three flights of stairs leading to the tier of cells where she is to remain she collapsed utterly and fell in a dead faint. But for the aid of Deputy United States Marshals Kumb and Kelker, who held her up and almost carried her along as she mounted the stairs, she never would have been able to reach her cell. Breathless, pale and staggering, she was barely able to reach a chair as the steel door of the woman's corridor swung open to receive her. She sank feebly into a chair, her head fell backward, and but for the marshals she would have rolled to the floor. Water was quickly brought to her, and in a few seconds she revived and was again a woman of business. Her first request was that her lawyer, Sheldon Q. Kerruish, be sent for, and she was soon engaged in a conference with him concerning her defense. There is small chance that she will be able to leave the jail before her trial. There are now seven indictments against her, five additional charges having been laid against her in the federal court here. It would require surety to the amount of at least $100,000 to give her freedom. She has herself no idea of giving bail and will remain in jail.

When her train finally rolled into the station there was a rush from the farther end of the iron fence that kept the crowd of curious from the tracks. This mob had broken through the police, swarmed over the fence and through the gate upon the tracks, so that when the train came to a standstill there were about a thousand persons about the cars.

Shouts of "Here's the notes!" and "Where's the money?" greeted Mrs. Chadwick upon her appearance, and as the viciousness of the mob dawned upon her she seemed to grow faint and wavered as though about to fall. It seemed that but for the deputy marshals supporting her she must utterly collapse.

The police were forced to drive the crowd away with clubs while they extricated the carriages from the tangle with the coal wagons. During all this added excitement as the crowd was being cleared from the alley eager, peering faces were thrust into the carriage windows and vulgar expressions hurled at the occupants.

Mrs. Chadwick said on arrival here:

"Bearing on my side of the story, all has not been told the people of Ohio. It ought to be sufficient proof to you of my good faith to face my creditors and accusers, I have lived in Cleveland for many years, and outside of negotiating some large loans which have all been paid back in Cleveland and some things that I may have done which may not be considered good business I do not think any one who knows me will attempt to accuse me of any wrong. I ask the people of Ohio to suspend judgment until the case has had a full hearing.

"I believe Dr. Chadwick sailed today from Liverpool on a White Star steamer so that within ten days, if this report be true, he will be by my side. I do not believe the doctor has been correctly quoted by some of his interviewers, but when the time comes people will know exactly what he means.

"The statement that he cabled to people in New York for funds is too ridiculous for utterance. He is plentifully supplied with money."

The home of Mrs. Chadwick on Euclid avenue has been surrendered to Receiver Nathan Loeser, who placed a custodian in charge of the property.

That Andrew Carnegie is willing to appear against Mrs. Chadwick when his health has sufficiently improved was made clear in a statement given out at Mr. Carnegie's New York residence by his secretary.

"Mr. Carnegie's only reason for not going to Cleveland this time has already been given out," said the secretary. "His health will not admit of his taking the trip save at considerable risk, as his physician has already said he is suffering from lumbago."

The federal grand jury returned five indictments against Mrs. Chadwick, President Beckwith and Cashier Spear of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin.

The federal indictments against Mrs. Chadwick are five in number. Three of them charge her with aiding and abetting officers of a national bank to defraud the institution, and two charge her with conspiring against the United States.

The sworn statement of President Beckwith, called the "confession" of Beckwith, sets forth in effect that there were two notes of $500,000 each, both signed in the name of Andrew Carnegie, and that Mrs. Chadwick declared positively, both to him and Cashier Spear, that she personally saw Mr. Carnegie sign his name to both notes. It was also set forth in the statement that a New York attorney who claimed to be a representative of Andrew Carnegie had declared to Beckwith in Oberlin that the notes were genuine.

NAN PATTERSON AT THE BAR.

Mrs. Caesar Young, Widow of Bookmaker, Faces Prisoner.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Young, widow of Caesar Young, was a witness in the criminal branch of the supreme court, where Nan Patterson is on trial before Justice Vernon M. Davis charged with Young's murder. Although she was on the stand only long enough to identify a letter to which another witness had referred, Mrs. Young's presence there developed one of the most intense situations of the trial. As she took the stand Miss Patterson became deathly pale, but watched intently every movement of the witness during her brief examination.

The letter which Mrs. Young identified had been produced by Bernard L. McKean, one of Young's brothers-in-law, who testified that Young had mentioned it in a conversation with Miss Patterson early in May and that Miss Patterson had said the letter was written by her sister, Mrs. J. Morgan Smith.

The letter has not yet been read in evidence.

Another of Young's brothers-in-law, William Luce, told of what occurred between Young and Miss Patterson at their meeting in a saloon the night before Young was killed. Luce testified that the bookmaker was afraid the actress would shoot him when it came to the time of parting.

"When I asked Young," said Mr. Luce, "why he wanted me to go with him when he met her on the night of June 3 Caesar said to me, 'I am afraid if you do not go along with me and be with me when I leave her she will shoot me.'"

The defendant listened to this testimony without a quiver. In fact, an expression that was half a smile and half a sneer crossed her face when Mr. Luce told of Young's fear that he would shoot her.

John Crowley, the hansom cab driver, repeated his story of having seen Young slap the prisoner's face during a quarrel on the street the night before he was killed.

Election Frauds Decision at Denver.

DENVER, Dec. 15.—By deciding to throw out the vote of precinct 7, ward 8, of this city in consequence of frauds committed there at the late election the supreme court established a precedent that may be applied to many other precincts in which, it is alleged, the court's injunction order was violated and thereby vitally affect the results of the late election. Should similar action be taken in other cases to the extent demanded by the Republican lawyers it will result in the election of the entire Republican legislative ticket in this county and give the Republicans control of both branches of the legislature. On the face of the returns the Republicans have a majority in the house and the Democrats in the majority in the senate.

Police Identifying "Yeggmen."

BALTIMORE, Dec. 15.—Secret service men, postoffice inspectors and detectives from a number of cities are in Baltimore assisting the efforts of the local department in identifying members of the band of suspected bank, postoffice, and other robbers commonly known in police vernacular as "yeggmen." United States Postal Inspector H. T. Gregory of Charleston, S. C., has arrived here and positively identified the man arrested on Monday as Johnson, alias Ned, alias Morgan, for whom the United States authorities hold indictments charging him with burglarizing postoffices in the two Carolinas.

Cornell In Mosquito War.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 15.—Cornell university authorities have started a systematic movement to rid the city of mosquitoes, which are said to have caused last summer's epidemic of malaria. The local health department has received reports from 2,000 persons treated for malaria by physicians and also from many who did not summon medical attendance. The university has offered to appropriate one-third of the money needed to spread oil upon swamps in low parts of the city. All malaria patients have been asked to contribute a dollar each.

Dawn of a New Era In Russia.

MOSCOW, Dec. 15.—Professor Timiriazeff, whose article on "Academic Freedom," recently published, was made the occasion of a friendly demonstration by the university students, received a remarkable ovation when he appeared in the lecture hall of the university yesterday. The students cheered and showered him with flowers. In reply to their demonstration Professor Timiriazeff expressed the opinion that they were about to witness the dawn of a new era in Russia.

Rosa di Pietro Acquitted.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Rosa di Pietro, who, in defense of her honor, shot and killed Michael Rago, her brother-in-law, in this city, has been acquitted by a jury. Confident from the first that this would be the verdict she has apparently been but little worried, yet when the decree was announced she burst into tears.

MORMON OBLIGATION

Smoot Inquiry Reveals Saints' Oath to Church.

SACRIFICE, VENGEANCE AND CHASTITY

Witness Lundstrom Said He Found Weak Spot In Utah Religious Belief and So Crawled Out—Foundation Was Not Sound.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Testimony relating to the alleged polygamous marriages of the late Apostle Abram Cannon and Lillian Hamlin and additional testimony concerning the obligations taken by persons who pass through the Mormon endowment house was offered in the investigation of the protests against Senator Reed Smoot before the senate committee on privileges and elections.

August Lundstrom of Salt Lake City, when sworn, said he was born in Sweden and became a Mormon six years before coming to the United States. He has held high positions in the church both in Sweden and Utah. He testified that he went through the temples in Salt Lake City and Logan. He had heard the endowment obligations taken six times, he said, each ceremony consuming from six to eight hours, according to the size of the crowd. He said oaths of sacrifice and of retribution were administered.

The whole proceeding was a series of obligations, said the witness, but he could not remember all of them. The first in order, he said, was the law of sacrifice, which bound each person to give his entire means and talents to the upbuilding of the Mormon church. The next obligation was that of the retribution, in which each person covenanted and promised to "ask God to avenge the blood of Joseph Smith upon this nation" and to teach "our children and our children's children to do the same to the end of the earth." The next obligation was that of chastity.

Mr. Lundstrom said he remained a Mormon until he found many inconsistencies in the beliefs taught. "I found a weak spot in the wall, and when I touched it a hole was made that was big enough to crawl through. The foundation was not sound," he said. The witness had discussed these weaknesses with officials of the church.

Mirsky's Good Work For Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 15.—There is no longer any doubt that the government intends to commit itself to very extensive reforms as the result of the liberal agitation begun when Prince Svietopolk-Mirsky made his advent as minister of the interior. The zemstvoist demands for a direct representative body to make the laws of the nation will not be granted, but some medium in the form of a representative consultative body which can voice the wishes of the people direct to the sovereign now seems the probable outcome. An entirely new law for the liberalization of the press also is apparently certain.

Patti's Farewell In Aid of Russians.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 15.—Mme. Adelina Patti gave a concert here last night for the benefit of the Red Cross society under the auspices of the Grand Duchess Marie Pavlovna. The concert was a brilliant success, netting over $37,000. Seats were sold at fabulous prices. Emperor Nicholas, members of the imperial family and all the wealth and rank of the Russian capital were present. The diplomatic corps was represented by Spencer Eddy, the American charge d'affaires. Mme. Patti received a wonderful ovation and at the conclusion of the concert announced that this was her final farewell to the concert stage.

Failed to Protect Their Lives.

BATH, N. Y., Dec. 15.—After an investigation as to the cause of the death of Jerry Snyder and John Green, who were killed and whose bodies were burned in the Lackawanna train wreck of last Sunday morning between here and Savona, Coroner Rasson last night rendered a verdict finding that the men failed to use fuses furnished by the Lackawanna Railroad company to protect themselves while running on main tracks. The finding further states, "I hold that the cause of the death of Green and Snyder was from their failure to protect themselves as required."

Colonel Priest Declined.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Dec. 15.—Colonel George H. Priest, appointed assistant inspector general on the staff of Governor Elect W. L. Douglas, has mailed his declination because he does not wish to sever his connection with the Sixth Massachusetts regiment.

Paying an Old Score.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 15.—A police officer who tried to search the dormitory of the Polytechnic institute was beaten and kicked downstairs by students, crying, "Remember what you did in the Nevsky prospect on Sunday!"

Secured the Cashier and $2,200.

HIBBING, Minn., Dec. 15.—A lone highwayman has held up the bank of Chisholm and secured $2,200. He forced Cashier Greiser into the vault at the muzzle of a revolver and locked the door. The robber escaped.

Floating Endeavor Societies.

BOSTON, Dec. 15.—New floating societies of Christian Endeavor have been organized on the battleships Ohio and Maine and on the cruisers Newark, Boston and Chicago.

No Pardon For Beetsor.

The Russian general staff announces that it is entirely satisfied with the situation. As they have no choice in the matter, the Czar's officers "just grin and bear it."

In acquitting Rosa di Pietro, that New York jury sets a wholesome example. Not only the unwritten law, but the times demand that a woman should be given the right to take a life when it is necessary in defending her honor.

Don't get careless about your advertising just because you're beginning to feel the benefits of early selling for Christmas. Don't get a notion that you are going to do just about so much business anyhow, and that it isn't going to make any particular difference whether you advertise much or little. Don't think for a minute that what you may call your Christmas ad, run without change from now to Christmas eve, will bring you the business that would come from a daily or every-other day change of copy, for it won't. At no other time in all the year do people welcome good advertising as now.—Ex.

LITERARY.

The contents page of the January Smart Set is the first indication of the excellence which is to mark the magazine for 1905. The Smart Set was long since conceded the title of "the magazine of cleverness," and its plans for the coming year already embrace a list of new contributors whose names stand for the very best in the fiction and verse of the day. With George Barr McCutcheon, Frances Aymar Mathews, William R. Lighton, Emery Pottle, Rupert Hughes, Edward Boltwood and Herbert D. Ward standing out from among twenty-seven other names, most of which are widely known, and especially familiar to Smart Set readers, the January number promises well for the coming year.

The January holiday number of The Metropolitan Magazine is especially strong in short fiction and contains, as well, a number of striking illustrated articles from the pens of well-known writers. One of these papers, entitled "An Artist in Bermuda," is by Charles Livingston Bull, and tells of wondrously beautiful denizens of the tropic waters which encircle that favored island. Mr. Bull has spent much time peering through the clear waters of Bermuda at the fauna and flora that inhabit their depths. He pictures, not only in words, but with clever drawings, the life of the Bermuda seas.

Miss Elizabeth Gibson, of Chatham street, is entertaining her sister, Miss Gertrude Gibson, of New York.

G. Harwood Frost, who has been in London during the past six years, is now on his way to this country, expecting to arrive on the Baltic on Thursday, December 22. He will become a resident of Plainfield.

LEAL'S TEAM SNATCHES VICTORY FROM DEFEAT

BRILLIANT WORK IN SECOND HALF WINS AGAINST P. H. S. AT BASKET BALL.

While the rooters of both schools shouted themselves hoarse on opposite sides of the gallery at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, yesterday afternoon, the Plainfield High School and the Leal's teams battled hard for two twenty-minute halves of hot basketball, which finally ended in a brilliant victory for the latter. The score was 33 to 25.

It was one of the most enthusiastic games ever played on the Y. M. C. A. floor, being the first meeting between the two schools in the Interscholastic League. School spirit was in evidence everywhere in the large crowd which more than filled the spectators' gallery, and while volley after volley of school yells were exchanged between the two cheering cohorts, a game in which every point was hotly contested was being fought on the floor below.

Chapman, the captain of the Leal's team, was ever prominent, twenty-one of Leal's points being scored by his throws. It was in the second half that he got in his good work, and it was in the second half that the Leal's team ran away with the P. H. S., and Chapman's guard permitted the fast little player to land eight baskets. Hard playing with plenty of grit and spirit won the game, and Leal's showed it in every play. They were superior in the second half, and the ball was in their possession most of the time.

The line up and detailed score follows: Leal's—Chapman and Jewett, forwards; Strong, center Manning and Lyman, guards. P. H. S.—Thompson and Smith, forwards; Freeman, center; Gavett and Strong, guards. Goals from the field—Chapman, 9; Thompson, 8; Strong, 3; Freeman, 3; Manning. Goals from fouls—Chapman, 3; Gavett, 4. Referee—Henckle. Umpire—Robbie.

AMUSEMENTS.

The first play presented will be "The House of Burnside," which was written by Georges Mitchell and originally presented with great success in Paris. The translation by Louis N. Parker, who wrote "The Sorceress" for Mrs. Patrick Campbell, ran more than a year in London, is a charming play of the type made familiar in America by the Empire Theatre Co. Mr. Terry's sale of seats begins Monday, Dec. 19, and there is every reason to expect that it will be exceedingly large.

Lakewood's Recreation.

Polo is one of the most interesting features of the season at Lakewood. During tournament play George Jay Gould who has arranged the most perfect polo course in the country upon his private estate, throws open to the public the privileges of the grounds. Trap-shooting, tennis, cycling, golf, horse-back riding, boating and occasionally ice-boating serve to round out a very attractive list of diversions that are generally enjoyed, and to these are often added bowling tournaments and skating on the fine ice of Lake Carasaljo. It is on account of its exceptional location in the healthful pine belt of New Jersey, at a distance of only sixty miles from New York, which has made Lakewood so popular. There is no other winter resort within anything like its distance from the Metropolis, which can offer so mild a climate or so wide a range of out-door recreations and social pleasures. The hotels afford accommodations on every scale from the most magnificent to the most modest. The Lakewood Booklet will be of particular interest to anyone seeking an ideal spot for a fall or winter vacation. This booklet may be had free upon application to C. M. Burt, G. P. A., Central Railroad of New Jersey, 143 Liberty street, New York city.

—F. C. Laughorne and family will soon move to their home on East Front street, formerly occupied by Rev. W. R. Richards.

CUBA IS HOME OF BANANA

Tropical Fruit Used in Every Known Form by Natives of the Island.

The Cuban children like bananas as well as Americans do. Their mothers bake green bananas in the oven. If you should prick the skin of a banana with a fork and bake it 40 minutes, I think you would like the mas well as the little Cubans.

If bananas could talk, this is what they would say:

I came from Cuba. While I was living near the top of a tall tree with its great, broad leaves, I saw a banana farm planted near us in the swampy woods. The trees were left standing to shade the men from the hot sun while they cut away the brush. They measured the farm with long ropes six yards apart. This rope was stretched along the ground, and small shoots from banana trees were planted at every red tape. Next week the men came and cut down the forest trees. The shoots were left to grow for six months, then the grass and weeds were cut down with machetes. A machete has a long steel blade with a bone handle. Soon the sprouts were grown trees and at the end of one year big bunches of bananas were cut from them. They were railroad tracks on this banana farm, and in two days all the great bunches of bananas were packed into cars and sent to the New York boats waiting at the wharves.

The man who owned the farm only got 30 cents for a large bunch and 15 cents for small ones. When the boat reached New York, the best bunches were sold for five dollars. There are as many kinds of bananas as there are varieties of apples.

If you should ask any boy or girl which kind they liked best, ten to one he or she would answer: "The biggest kind."

NEW WORDS PASS QUICKLY

"Odd," Remarks Wall Street Man, "How Soon They Are Hurled Aside."

"It's odd," remarked the Wall street man to a New York World reporter, "how seldom a foreign phrase hits New York, and how pitilessly it is overworked when it does land, and how ruthlessly it is hurled aside and forgotten even before its successor arrives. It takes a war, as a rule, to bring some foreign word to popular notice here. Take the expression 'Banzai!' for instance. Not one New Yorker in ten thousand had ever heard that word until the Jap-Russ war started. Yet nowadays from vaudeville stage to department store, you hear Gothamites mouthing it as though it were a choice bit of slang. A very few years ago a certain German American episode in connection with the Spanish war gave us the 'Hoch' habit. Schoolboys yelled 'hoch' at each other. Youths pledged each other with 'hoch!' over foaming steins, and 'hoc' was incorporated into popular songs. You seldom hear it now. Then, during the first days of our war with Spain, the expression 'Manana' was imported. Scornfully, amusedly, jocosely, it was uttered everywhere. Newspapers took it up, and employers slipped it into lectures to their clerks on laziness. Yet who says 'manana' in this country? Up to the 'manana' period the French phrase 'fin de siecle' was all the rage. Clothes were named for it, and people wrote to the papers asking how to pronounce it. Never before or since has a foreign expression had such a vogue. Yet to-day it is as dead as the late lamented J. Caesar. What will be next? And what preceded 'fin de siecle?' Why knows? I don't for one."

Telegraphing in Japanese.

The Japanese, like the Chinese, have no alphabet in the ordinary sense, every word in their written language being represented by a separate character, says Cassier's Magazine. In telegraphing in these languages, therefore, about 10,000 words are selected, and figures ranging from one up to 9,999 are allotted to each word. Each word of a message to be transmitted by telegraph in these languages is then first given its proper number by the telegraph clerk, by means of a dictionary which has been prepared under the authority of the government. These numbers are then transmitted by the Morse alphabet, and when received the message is translated back into the Chinese or Japanese characters by reference to a corresponding dictionary.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 18.

Topic.—"Whatever he would like to have me do."—Matt. vi, 10; John xv, 10-16.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

The Christian Endeavor pledge is a most comprehensive one, although it is remarkably brief. It possesses a devotional side—"I will make it the rule of my life to pray and to read the Bible every day." It also has an ecclesiastical phase—"I will * * * support my own church in every way." Furthermore, it contains a practical clause—"I will strive to do whatever He would like to have me do." This phase of the pledge has always been emphasized, and it always should be. Christianity is eminently practical. Devotion is not the goal of Christianity. It must lead to development. The church exists not as an end in itself, but as a means to an end, and that end is the perfecting of Christian character. The supreme test of our Christianity is not devotion or church affiliation, but the doing of the will of God in Christ. "Not every one that saith unto Me, Lord, Lord, shall inherit the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of My Father which is in heaven." "By their fruits ye shall know them," and true Christian fruitage is doing whatever He would like to have us do.

To surrender our wills absolutely to the will of another is a stupendously serious step. It could only be done in one case—a surrender to the will of God. Such a surrender in Christ, God demands. Nothing short of it would be satisfactory or just. Christ must occupy the supreme place or none. Christ taught us to pray that God's will should be done on earth as it is in heaven. To the apostle He said, "Ye are my disciples if ye do whatever I command you." "Thy will, not mine, be done," should be the motto of every Christian life. "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" should be the uppermost thought in our hearts and question upon our lips.

"Whatever" is all inclusive. It leaves nothing to our discretion. No disciple of Christ can obey in one particular and disobey in another. "Whatever" includes every act of life. There can be no "mental reservations" in becoming a Christian. Let us practice as well as sing, "I surrender all; I surrender all, all to Jesus I surrender; I surrender all."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. i, 1-3; Eccl. ix, 10; Matt. vii, 12; xii, 50; John xvi, 23; Rom. xiv, 23; I Cor. x, 31; Phil. iv, 8, 9; Col. iii, 17; Gal. vi, 9, 10.

A Welcome Hymn.

One of the most genuine poets in all Australia is a long time and most hearty Christian Endeavorer, Rev. William Allen of Sydney. He has written many verses that have had wide acceptance, among them a beautiful and stirring Australian national anthem. Below is a welcome hymn that he wrote for the great national Australian convention held in Sydney in 1903:

By our pledge of high endeavor,
By our kinship in the Lord,
By the honor of His service,
By our fealty to His word,
By the happy thoughts that linger
Round the days that are no more,
By the happy hopes that brighten
All the days that are before—

We greet you, Christian comrades true,
In Jesus' holy name;
Our life in Him, our boundless hope,
Our fellowship the same.

You whose brother love constraining
Bridged the separating sea,
With the sister states Australian
Equal in our hearts shall be.
Leagues of ocean cannot sever
Those whom Christ has bound in one,
And eternity shall perfect
What the work of time begun.

When "the general assembly
And the firstborn church" shall meet,
We shall join the host triumphant
Round the Saviour's pierced feet;
There shall breathe no sigh at parting
When we reach that sinless shore,
For the pillars of God's temple
Shall go out from thence no more.

A Junior Worker of Note.

One of the most widely known and most successful state Junior superintendents is Miss Grace L. Jones, who has served the New York state union for three years and has but recently been elected for another two years. Thoroughly posted in all the details of Junior work, a convention speaker of interest and ability and withal a lady who brings to the office a genuine love of the work, Miss Jones is making her influence markedly felt in the Empire State. Her home is in Rochester.

MISS GRACE L. JONES.

In Guatemala.

During the last few weeks sixteen new members have been received into the Endeavor society in Guatemala city, and others are asking for admission.

Melissa Fitch, the corresponding secretary of this society, writing of its work, says, "The rainy season is now on, and although many of our people are unable to provide themselves with rain wraps we do not forget the assembling of ourselves together to read and to hear and to sing 'the wonderful words of life.'"

Power In Christian Endeavor.

In Christian Endeavor the days that have gone are a preparation for this day.

Christian Endeavor has harnessed unusual forces and set them at work for Jesus Christ.—Rev. Edwin Forrest Hallenbeck, D. D.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Dec. 18: "The New Testament Standard of Experience and Life"—Pledge Meeting—Matt. vi, 10; John xv, 10-16.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES.

We should keep our pledge constantly before our eyes that it may be in mind and determine our purpose.

"I will earnestly seek for myself and do what I can to help others attain the highest New Testament standard of experience and life."

This is the gist of the whole 'eague life. We are to be earnest seekers; not merely easy going moralists, but determined strivers after good, after the best. We are to seek for ourselves first of all, but we are not to stop with self. We are to get and use all good, but our brother is to share in our good things. We may have wine and oil and beast and money and be able to secure speed, safety and comfort, but we may not act the Levite or priest in passing our needy fellow man by. We will use our wine to wash his wounds, our oil for dressing them, our beast for his riding and our money for his needs. We will seek life and help him to seek it equally with ourselves.

That is praying the prayer "Thy kingdom come." We are to help its incoming.

The right intention steadily ker is the prime essential in all this. But it is not all. There is more to our pledge that follows from this first part. Of necess there are abstinence and participation, shunning the evil and practicing the good.

"I will abstain from all those forms of worldly amusement forbidden by the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal church, and I will attend, so far as possible, the religious meetings of the chapter and the church and take some active part in them."

Our attitude need not be misunderstood and should not be misinterpreted. We do not say that others are not Christians if they indulge in some of the popular forms of worldly amusement. We will not prevent others doing as seems best to them. We will use no harsh accusations. But for ourselves we are convinced that we can best serve God, ourselves and our fellow men by abstaining from the use of these questionable things. They tend to dissipate religious impressions and encourage temptations to worldliness and carnality. They are not helpful and often are positively injurious to spirituality. We will let them alone.

Now we have said this, let us actually do it, and do it gladly and earnestly and sweetly. Have done with all hankering after what we have abandoned. Cut loose forever and let it go, and we push ahead in the other direction.

Become absorbed in the work of the church and the society of its members. Use the means of grace, that we may grow in grace.

Too many pledge and break it. Too many will not pledge lest they break it.

Both are wrong.

Pledge and keep it.

That means, God helping me, I will help Him and myself and you.

Will you do it?

If you will, then do it now.

Abiding In Christ.

We know how unworthy we are, and so we are ill at ease, nervous, troubled, when we think of Jesus being near. A great deal of our early training is responsible for this. We were taught that God was watching us, angry with us, ready to punish us, and that He had little sympathy with our pleasures and desires. That is all false. Christ is our dear friend. He is not a spy or a severe master, but a brother, and if we only cease thinking so much about ourselves and our sins and our mistakes and simply love Him this awkwardness of our religion will disappear. Beyond the love of your dearest friend, beyond the beauty of the most beautiful thing you have ever seen, beyond the gentleness of your own mother, is the loving nature of Jesus. Just love Him and tell Him that you love Him and you will "abide in Him."—Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, S. T. D.

Prayer In the Morning.

The morning is the gate of the day and should be well guarded with prayer. It is one of the threads on which the day's actions are strung and should be well knotted with devotion. If we felt more the majesty of life we should be more careful of its mornings. He who rushes from his bed to his business and waiteth not to worship is as foolish as though he had not put on his clothes or cleansed his face and as unwise as though he dashed into battle without arms or armor. Be it ours to bathe in the softly flowing river of communion with God before the heat of the wilderness and the burden of the way begin to oppress us.—Charles H. Spurgeon.

The Duty For the Moment.

The duty for the moment is always clear, and that is as far as we need concern ourselves, for when we do the little that is clear we will carry the light on and it will shine upon the next moment's step.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

The Light of God's Love.

Live with the light of God's love shining into your common day. Take old gifts and joys continued as though they were fresh gifts. So we can sing a new song unto the Lord every day.—Maltbie D. Babcock, D. D.

Charity.

God blessed me the penny you gave to me, brother,
For you gave with a smile, as a friend to another.
God cursed me the dollar you gave, for you chid,
And you made me to know what it was that you did.
With charity for me you gave me the first,
But with charity to me the second you cursed.

—Edmund Vance Cook in Century.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth. 7 Miles from Newark.
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL, PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 1,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

NOTABLE WOMEN.

Achievements of Mrs. Crane and Other Public Spirited Ladies.

The attention of state boards of health throughout the Union has been drawn to the Michigan slaughter house and butchers' meat inspection law, which has done so much good. It has abolished to a great degree the unhealthful and horribly offensive conditions that exist in the neighborhood of so many private slaughter houses. The law was the work of one public spirited woman, Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane, pastor of the People's church, Kalamazoo, Mich. Mrs. Crane drafted with her own hands the inspection law.

Mrs. Crane also organized the Kalamazoo Civic Improvement league for the moral and physical cleaning up of the city and making it beautiful. Attached to the league was a junior department whose members were the school children. A badge was given to each member of this youthful band, and upon it were the words, "I will help Kalamazoo."

The boys and girls pledged themselves to help keep the streets and sidewalks clean by not throwing torn paper or fruit skins upon them and by not spitting upon them; second, they promised to protect and care for the wild birds, and third, to learn to grow flowers. Prizes for the finest flower beds were given to the children of each ward school.

Mrs. Crane knows that no home can be happy or healthy unless the women of the household know how to cook and to keep it, as well as the members of the family, in good sanitary condition. So as chairman of the department of household economics in the Michigan Federation of Women's Clubs she outlined for women a printed scheme of "Studies In Housekeeping." The scheme includes scientific plumbing, heating and ventilation. The famous woman preacher and sociologist is now working to have a trained nurse on duty in all the state poorhouses.

In the largest cities of the Union women are beginning to be employed by the municipal authorities as probationary officers. In New York they serve as such in both the police and school departments. Several of them rank among the most efficient of such officers in the whole city. The feminine probationary officers work especially among women and children. First offenders are often released by courts and put in charge of the probation officer.

Mrs. A. R. Ramsey, senior probation officer of the New York juvenile court, has made some interesting and most instructive child studies among the youthful thieves and school truants that come under her care.

One of her contributions to child knowledge throws strong light on how criminals are built. She has found in her experience that a child has no natural ideas of the property rights of others. If he sees something he wants he just takes it without knowing or thinking whether he has any right to do so or not. She has conversed with clergymen on this subject, and many of them confessed that when they were little, at the dawning of their first recollection, they took on the sly small articles they wanted.

Apparently children naturally steal things to eat and small objects that seem desirable to them. They know no better. If, as they grow older, the sense of justice, of right and wrong, is not carefully drilled into them by appeals to their awakening moral nature they many a time become the adult thieves, burglars and embezzlers of the social organization. Mrs. Ramsey concludes that petty larceny is an instinct in children and that it requires high and pure moral training on the part of teacher and parent to educate this animal survival out of them.

These intelligent women probationary officers are looking into the causes of things. Miss Alice Smith is connected with one of New York's police courts. Her mission lies largely with neglected young girls. Her conclusion is that most of all are needed in this case working girls' hotels where those earning from $4 to $6 a week can be sheltered and fed comfortably in a house that is inviting to their sense of beauty. To the end that at least one such hotel shall be constructed in her district Miss Smith is devoting her spare time. The hotel can be erected for $300,000, and half of this Miss Smith has already secured.

Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth is busy with her philanthropic work of helping convicts and their families. Twelve years ago Mrs. Booth began the work which now fills her life. Through her aid and sympathy thousands of ex-convicts have become good and useful men. It is her aim to close the book of the past altogether and have released convicts become lost in the great army of respectable workingmen.

CAROLINE A[illegible]

D'ri and I

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

"Alas!" said she, with a sign, "you would find me very heavy. One has nothing to do here but grow lazy and —ciel!—fat."

If my meeting with her sister had not made it impossible and absurd, I should have offered my heart to this fair young lady then and there. Now I could not make it seem the part of honor and decency. I could not help adoring her simplicity, her frankness, her beautiful form and face.

"It is no prison for me," I said. "I do not long for deliverance. I cannot tell you how happy I have been to stay —how unhappy I shall be to leave."

"Captain," she said quickly, "you are not strong; you are no soldier yet."

"Yes; I must be off to the wars."

"And that suggests an idea," said she, thoughtfully, her chin upon her hand.

"Which is?"

"That wealth is my ill fortune," she went on, with a sigh. "Men and women are fighting and toiling and bleeding to make the world better, and I —I am just a lady, fussing, primping, peering into a looking glass! I should like to do something, but they think I am too good—too holy."

"But it is a hard business—the labors and quarrels of the great world," I suggested.

"Well—it is God's business," she continued. "And am I not one of his children, and 'wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?' It was not too good for the man who said that."

"But what would you do?"

"I do not know. I suppose I can do nothing because—alas! because my father has bought my obedience with a million francs. Do you not see that I am in bondage?"

"Be patient; the life of a rich demoiselle is not barren of opportunity."

"To be gay—oh! one might as well be a peacock; to say pretty things, one might better be a well trained parrot; to grace the court or the salon, I had as soon be a statue in the corner —it has more comfort, more security; to be admired, to hear fine compliments —well, you know that is the part of a pet poodle. I say, captain, to be happy one must be free to do."

I looked into her big eyes, that were full of their new discovery.

"I should like to be among the wounded soldiers," said she, her face brightening. "It did make me very happy to sit by your bedside and do for you."

There was a very tender look in her eyes then.

She started to rise. A brier, stirring in the breeze, had fallen across her hair. She let me loose the thorns, and, doing so, I kissed her forehead—I could not help it.

"M'sieur!" she exclaimed in a whisper. Then she turned quickly away and stood tearing a leaf in her fingers.

"Forgive me!" I pleaded, for I saw that she was crying. "It was the impulse of a moment. Pray forgive me!"

She stood motionless and made no answer. I never felt such a stir in me, for I had a fear, a terrible fear, that I had lost what I might never have again.

"It was honorable admiration," I continued, rising to my full height beside her. "Tell me, ma'm'selle, have I hurt you?"

"No," said she in a voice that trembled. "I am thinking—I am thinking of somebody-else."

The words, spoken so slowly, so sweetly, seemed, nevertheless, to fly at me. "Of somebody else!" Whom could she mean? Had her sister told her? Did she know of my meeting with Louison? I was about to confess how deeply, how tenderly, I loved her. I had spoken the first word when this thought flashed upon me, and I halted. I could not go on.

"Ma'm'selle," I said. "I—I—if it is I of whom you are thinking, give me only your pity, and I can be content. Sometime, perhaps, I may deserve more. If I can be of any service to you, send for me—command me. You shall see that I am not ungrateful. Ah, ma'm'selle," I continued, as I stood to my full height, and felt a mighty uplift in my heart that seemed to toss the words out of me, "I have a strong arm and a good sword, and the love of honor and fair women."

She wiped her eyes, and turned and looked up at me. I was no longer a sick soldier.

"It is like a beautiful story," she said thoughtfully; "and you—you are like a knight of old. We must go home. It is long past luncheon hour. We must hurry."

She gave me her arm up the hill, and we walked without speaking.

"I am very well to-day," I remarked as we came to the road. "If you will will wait here until I get to the big birch, I shall go around to see if I can beat you to the door."

"It is not necessary," said she, smiling, "and—and, m'sieur, I am not ashamed of you or of what I have done."

The baroness and Louison had not yet returned. M. Pidgeon was at luncheon with us in the big dining room, and had much to say of the mighty Napoleon and the coalition he was then fighting.

The great monsieur stayed through the afternoon, as the baroness had planned a big houseparty for the night, in celebration of the count's return. My best clothes had come by messenger from the harbor, and I could put myself in good fettle. The baroness and the count and Louison came early, and we sat long together under the trees.

The dinner was at seven. There were more than a dozen guests, among whom were a number I had seen at the chateau—Mr. David Parish of Ogdensburg, who arived late in a big, two-wheel cart drawn by four horses that came galloping to the door, and Gen. Wilkinson, our new commander in the north, a stout, smooth-faced man, who came with Mr. Parish in citizen's dress.

At the dinner the count had much to say of the scenes of excitement in Albany, where he had lately been. The baroness and her wards were resplendent in old lace and sparkling jewels. Great haunches of venison were served from a long sideboard; there was a free flow of old Madeira and Burgundy and champagne and cognac. Mr. Parish and the count and the general and Moss Kent and M. Pidgeon sat long at the table, with cigars and coffee, after the rest of us had gone to the parlors, and the big room rang with their laughter. The young Marquis de Gonvello and Mr. Marc Isambert Brunel of the Compagnie, who afterward founded the great machine shops of the royal navy yard at Portsmouth and became engineer of the Thames tunnel, and Pierre Chassinis, Jr., and I waltzed with the ladies. Presently I sat down near the baroness, who was talking in French with Therese Le Ray, the count's daughter.

"Pardon my using French," said the baroness, turning to me, "for I believe you do not use it, and, my friend, it is a misfortune, for you miss knowing what good company is the Ma'm'selle Le Ray."

"And I miss much pleasure and mayhap a duel with the marquis," I said, laughing; "but I beg you to proceed with your talk. I have learned many words since I came here, and I love the sound of it."

"We saw British soldiers to-day," she continued to Ma'm'selle Le Ray, in French. "They crossed the road near us on their horses."

Louison came over and sat by them.

"They were not in uniform," the baroness continued, "but I knew they were English; you cannot mistake them."

"And what do you think?" said Louison, eagerly. "One of them threatened to kiss me."

"Indeed, that was terrible," said Ma'm'selle Le Ray. "You must have been afraid."

"Yes," said she, smiling, "afraid he would n't. They were a good-looking lot."

"I do not think he was speaking of you at all," said the baroness. "He was looking at me when—"

"Ciel!" exclaimed Louison, laughing. "That is why they turned suddenly and fled into the fields."

I fled, too—perhaps as suddenly as the Britishers—to save myself the disgrace of laughter.

The great clock in the hall above-stairs tolled the hour of two. The ladies had all gone to bed save the baroness. The butler had started upstairs, a candelabrum in his hand. Following him were the count and Mr. Parish, supporting the general between them. The able soldier had overrated his capacity. All had risen to go to their rooms. Of a sudden we were startled by a loud rap on the front door. A servant opened it, and immediately I heard the familiar voice of D'ri.

"Is there anybody here by the name o' Mister Bell?" he asked.

I ran to the door, and there stood D'ri, his clothes wet, his boots muddy, for it had been raining. Before he could speak I had my arms around him, and he sank to his knees in my embrace. He was breathing heavily.

"Tired out—thet 's whut 's the matter," he muttered, leaning over on one hand. "Come through the woods 't save yer life, I did, an' they was tight up t' me all the way."

"Poor fellow!" said the baroness, who stood at the door. "Help him in at once and give him a sip of brandy."

"Tuk me prisoner over there 'n the woods thet day," said he, sinking into a chair and leaning forward, his head on his hands. "They tuk 'n' they toted me over t' Canady, an' I tuk 'n' got away, 'n' they efter me. Killed one on 'em thet was chasin' uv me over 'n the Beaver medders on the bog trail. Hoss got t' wallerin' so he hed t' come down. Riz up out o' the grass 'n' ketched holt uv 'im 'fore he c'u'd pull a weepon. Tuk this out uv his pocket, an' I tried to git the hoss out o' the mire, but did n't hev time."

He sat erect and proudly handed me a sheet of paper. I opened it, and read as follows:

To Capt. Elias Wilkins, Royal Fusiliers:

My Dear Captain: You will proceed at once across the river with a detail of five men mounted and three days' rations, and, if possible, capture the prisoner who escaped early this morning, making a thorough search of the woods in Jefferson county. He has information of value to the enemy, and I regard his death or capture of high and immediate importance. I am informed that the young desperado who murdered my Lord of Pickford in the forest below Clayton June 29, escaping, although badly wounded, is lying at the country-seat of the Baroness de Ferre, a Frenchwoman, at Leraysville, Jefferson county, N. Y. It would gratify me if you could accomplish one or both captures. With respect, I am, your obedient servant,

R. SHEAFFER.

"They 'll be here," said D'ri. "They 'll be here jest es sure es God—'fore daylight, mebbe. But I can't fight er dew nothin' till I 've hed some vittles."

"You shall have supper," said the baroness, who, without delay, went to the kitchen herself with a servant to look after it. The butler brought a pair of slippers and a dry coat while I drew off the boots of my good friend. Then I gave him my arm as he limped to the kitchen beside me. The baroness and I sat near him as he ate.

"Go upstairs and call the gentlemen," said she to the butler. "Do not make any disturbance, but say I should like to speak with them in the dining room."

"Is thet air hired man o' yours a Britisher?" D'ri inquired as soon as the butler was gone.

"He is—from Liverpool," said she.

"Thet 's the hole 'n the fence," said he. "Thet 's where the goose got away."

"The goose! The geese!" said the baroness, thoughtfully. "I do not understand you."

"Went 'n' blabbed, thet 's whut he done," said D'ri. "Mebbe wrote 'em a letter, sol-dum his pictur'."

THE ALHAMBRA IN DANGER

Beautiful and Historic Spanish Structure May Collapse at Any Time.

Granada, Spain.—It was no mere alarmist report which was sent out from this country a few days ago regarding the condition of the world-famous Alhambra. The cracks which have appeared in the walls are serious and it will not be surprising if the historic building is overtaken by the same fate which befell the Campanile at Venice. It might easily be saved by prompt action on the part of the Spanish government, but there is little hope that such action will be taken.

Officialdom for years has neglected the Alhambra in a fashion which would have outraged Washington Irving, and the present condition of the wonderful monument of Moorish elegance and grandeur is merely the natural result. For several centuries the greed and indifference of successive Spanish governors permitted the wonderful pile to be pillaged and defaced. The superb entrance arch, called by the Moors the "gate of the law," with its impressive inscription in Arabic, "There is no conqueror but God," was irreparably mutilated to make way for a wooden image of the virgin.

In 1812 the French under Sebastiani blew up eight of the towers, and other buildings narrowly escaped a similar fate. In 1821 the ancient pile was shattered by an earthquake. That so much of it has survived so many vicissitudes is striking evidence of the consummate mastery with which the old Moorish builders combined grace with strength. Enough of its original lavish splendor is still to be seen to make it easily understood whence arose the popular belief that its great founder, Ibn-l-ahmar, dealt in magic. It was not until 1862 that the work of restoring the Alhambra to something like its original condition was seriously begun, but the progress made has been small owing to lack of funds. Spain has few millionaires of her own and the work is not of a character that appeals to the practical-minded American variety. There is little hope of official action.

PORT ARTHUR SIEGE

Japanese Gunners Fire Arsenal and Torpedo Depot.

DESTROYERS ARE AFTER SEVASTOPOL

Tokyo Reports One of Her Ships Disabled, but Towed Out of Range. Russian Soldiers Comfortable at Mukden.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Japanese legation has received the following cablegram from Tokyo:

"The commander of the Japanese naval artillery forces before Port Arthur reports that the bombardment is now principally aimed at the arsenal and torpedo depot at the Tiger Tail forts and at steamboats in its vicinity. The torpedo depot was ablaze in an hour after the firing started. Three ships have been destroyed, and one was sunk and buildings greatly damaged by the shells. Indirect bombardment upon the battleship Sevastopol at anchor outside of the harbor was suspended owing to bad weather, which prevented correct observations. Admiral Togo reports that the torpedo boat flotilla had attacked the Sevastopol on the night of the 12th and thrice on the night of the 13th. Each time they met the enemy's fierce fire, and one Japanese torpedo boat was disabled, but was towed back, while three destroyers received one shot each. The total Japanese casualties were only three men wounded.

The Sevastopol continues to anchor outside of the harbor during the day, possibly returning at night. She anchors usually inside the outer boom, which protects her against torpedo attacks. The whereabout of the Russian torpedo boat destroyers continued to be doubtful, and it is thought they have taken shelter outside the harbor."

Advices from the Russian headquarters at Mukden say that during the lull in serious fighting the soldiers enjoy engaging in daring feats and exploits. Several volunteers went to a wooded knoll guarded with wire entanglements, which the Japanese usually occupy in the daytime, and cut down wood and carried it to the Russian positions. Frequently volunteers creep up to the Japanese lines and carry off a hundred feet or more of barbed wire.

The dugouts along the front, which in reality are underground barracks, are splendidly constructed and are even furnished with bathrooms. General Linevitch is beloved of all the army on account of his constant solicitude for the welfare of the men. Whenever he finds a soldier without warm clothing he insists upon an investigation on the spot. He is a great believer in the Siberian troops, whom he considers superior to Europeans.

The stories printed abroad picturing the army as cold and hungry are without foundation. Food is abundant and of excellent quality.

Late news received from Port Arthur declares that the situation there is by no means as desperate as it is represented by foreign dispatches. The line of main defense forts is unbroken, and there is plenty of ammunition and food.

Must Not Embarrass America.

HONOLULU, Dec. 15.—The Japanese of Kauai island are drilling preparatory to returning to Japan for the purpose of participating in the war. Governor Carter has ordered an investigation. Japanese Consul Miki Saito has issued a proclamation urging his countrymen to take special care not to violate the laws of neutrality and to avoid the possibility of embarrassing America.

Russian Ships at Aden.

CANEA, Island of Crete, Dec. 14.—Three cruisers of the Russian second Pacific squadron, on the voyage to the far east, have arrived at Aden. The vessels of the squadron which preceded these cruisers are still at Jibuti awaiting the arrival of the latter.

Czar's Warships at Angrapaquena.

SWAKOPMUND, Southwest Africa, Dec. 15.—Part of the warships of the Russian second Pacific squadron have arrived at Angrapaquena and have coaled from colliers.

Russian Deserters For America.

VIENNA, Dec. 15.—The Nova Reforma of Lemberg says a steady stream of Russian deserters continues to arrive there, of whom the majority are going to America.

"Violence In Labor Conflicts."

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The forthcoming number of the Outlook will contain an article by Slason Thompson on "Violence In Labor Conflicts," which presents some statistics on the loss of life and physical injuries due to this cause. He gives a table by states showing that during the period between Jan. 1, 1902, and June 30, 1904, there were killed in strikes 180 persons, injured 1,651 and arrested 5,333.

Succeeded Her Father as Court Clerk

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 15.—Judge H. M. Swan has appointed Miss Carrie Davison clerk of the United States district court here to succeed her father, the late D. J. Davison, who held the position for many years. Miss Davison, who is believed to be the only woman clerk of a United States district court in the country, was assistant to her father for several years.

RED LETTER SALE

This sale will be a memorable event in the history of Plainfield. Extol the glad tidings to your friends. Goods will not be sold—they will be given away, three-fourths as a CHRISTMAS PRESENT and one-fourth cash. How Can We Do It? Please read this document and see: Many merchants have failed because they held on to their goods from one season to the other 'till they got old and shop-worn, and consequently became worthless. Wouldn't they have been better off if they had sold their goods late in the season? Even at 25c on the dollar they would have brought them more than they received by holding on to their goods. This Fatal Mistake We Don't Make. At the beginning of the season we bought a tremendous stock expecting to have a big season, but for some reason or other business didn't turn out as expected. Now we have a big stock on hand. As our established rule is not to hold over goods from one season to the other, therefore we placed our entire stock on Bargain Tables For Sale. Price is no object. The entire stock must be sold regardless of any monetary consideration. Every Season New Goods. This Winter's Goods Must Go! Go!! Go!!! We don't claim that our line of goods is the finest in the world, because goods something like ours may be found in New York fine stores. What we do claim is that this sale cannot justly be called a sale. A liberal Christmas distribution would be a more fitting name for this sale. Whether You Buy or Not You Are Welcome at This Great Sale.

Your Money Back For All Unsatisfactory Purchases. Every article in the store at this sale is marked in plain figures. The most critical buyers are invited to this sale. Your money back for all unsatisfactory purchases. Don't let this great saving event pass you by. If you do you will repeat. SPORTING NEWS.

BASKET BALL.

In their game with the Sagamore basketball team, of New Brunswick, tomorrow evening, the Hope Y. M. A. team will line up as follows: Porter and Emmons, guards; Blimm, center; Duckworth and Roseberry, forwards.

Tomorrow will mark one of the greatest basketball days which the Plainfield High School has known. The team, accompanied by the scrub, will go to Newark, where they will play the Newark High School five. The latter team has the reputation of being one of the strongest scholastic basketball aggregations in the State, and a victory for the local team would be a great thing. Both the first and second teams will play tomorrow a game having been arranged with the Newark High School. In their games yesterday afternoon at the local gym, the teams got the best of practice for this important struggle, and they will go into the game determined to win. Principal Travell, of the Plainfield High School, announced in chapel exercises this morning that the idea of running a special trolley to Newark tomorrow would have to be abandoned. It was thought that the importance of the basket ball game between Newark and City High schools would draw a sufficiently large crowd to warrant a special trolley car to carry the rooters from here. As it is the chartering of such a car would be a financial loss to the athletic association and it was thought best not to run the car.

Colored Cadets Drill.

Though the commanding officers were present the other members of Company D, of the United Colored Cadets, of Montclair, which was to compete with Company E, of this city, failed to put in an appearance at the T. A. B. Hall last night, and as far as the competition was concerned, the affair was a failure. An informal entertainment took place, followed by a drill by Company E, of the Plainfield Colored Cadets. Second Lieutenant H. B. Kitchell, of Company K, and Quartermaster Jerome Cline, of the Plainfield High School cadets, were inspectors at the drill, which went off in a creditable manner. Following the drill, a dance took place, which lasted until late in the evening.

The organ at Grace church is one of the best in the State and aided Mr. Neidlinger in his work.

Assisting the artist were Arthur Chamberlain, William Tallamy and Mrs. Theodore Mantu, all of this city, who contributed vocal numbers.

ENGLISH LACK IN EMOTION

Instances Which Demonstrate That Anglo-Saxons Have Little Sense of the Ludicrous.

Anglo-Saxons are apt to pride themselves upon being undemonstrative, declares a London exchange. Max Adler tells a tale of a boy who was sent out by his father to bring in some wood. The boy took the opportunity of disappearing and did not show his face again beneath the parental roof for over 20 years. Then one evening a smiling, well-dressed stranger entered to the old couple and announced himself as their long-lost child.

"Well, you haven't hurried yourself," grumbled the old man, "and blarm me if now you haven't forgotten the wood."

I was lunching with an Englishman in a London restaurant one day. A man entered and took his seat at a table near by, and, glancing round and meeting my friend's eye, smiled and nodded.

"Excuse me a minute," said my friend; "I must speak to my brother; haven't seen him for over five years."

He finished his soup and leisurely wiped his mustach before strolling across and shaking hands. They talked for awhile, then my friend returned to me.

"Never thought to see him again," observed my friend; "he was one of the garrison at that place in Africa—what's the name of it?—that the madhi attacked. Only three of them escaped. Always was a lucky beggar, Jim."

"But wouldn't you like to talk to him some more?" I suggested. "I can see you any time about this little business of ours."

"Oh, that's all right," he answered; "we have just fixed it up—shall be dining with him to-morrow."

YOUNG LAWYER MARRIES

Miss Firstbrook Becomes Wife of W. L. Hetfield, Jr.

QUIET CEREMONY

Performed by Rev. Lawrence Riggs Howard at Home of Bride's Mother on Grant Avenue.

In the presence of a small gathering of relatives and intimate friends, Miss Mabel Elizabeth Firstbrook, daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Firstbrook, of Grant avenue, was yesterday made the wife of Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. The ceremony was performed at 5:30 in the afternoon at the home of the bride's mother on Grant avenue by Rev. Lawrence Riggs Howard, pastor of Hope chapel. The only attendant was

Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. (Nee Firstbrook.)

Miss Marie Duvier, who acted as maid of honor. City Judge William N. Runyon played the wedding march.

The parlor and dining room were tastefully decorated, palms, plants and Christmas greens being used for the purpose. Evergreen roping was festooned about the chandeliers and the hallway was a bower of holly and palms. The young people pledged their vows while standing in a corner of the parlor beneath a floral festoon. Miss Firstbrook's gown was of brown panne velvet while Miss Duvier wore green liberty silk.

Following the ceremony a reception was held during which Mr. and Mrs. Hetfield were the recipients of numerous congratulations. A wedding supper was served and early in the evening the bride and groom departed for a wedding trip through the New England States. It will last two weeks and at its conclusion they will make their home at 302 Grant avenue.

Among the numerous gifts bestowed was a beautiful china closet, the present of four of the groom's nearest friends, Philip Jahn, William N. Runyon, Thomas M. Muir and William Feiring. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond and pearl ring and the bride's to her attendant, a topaz ring.

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

The groom is the junior member of the law firm of Hetfield & Hetfield and is one of the best known and most popular of the city's young legal lights. He is connected with numerous clubs and fraternal organizations, among the latter being Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, Camp Plainfield, Woodmen of the World, and Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M. He was admitted to the bar soon after becoming of age and was taken into partnership by his father, former Councilman Walter L. Hetfield. His bride has always been a resident of Plainfield and enjoys a wide acquaintanceship. She is a member and one of the most active workers in Hope Memorial church and its Sunday-school.

VOCAL FEAST AT CASINO

Talented New York Artists Render a Fine Programme.

ALL WELL RECEIVED

Quartette Consists of Mrs. Pennington Haughey, Miss Grace Munson, Paul Default and Dr. C. E. Dufft.

Music lovers had a rich treat in the second Miller concert which was given at the Casino, last evening, by well-known vocal artists from New York. A quartette comprising Mrs. Pennington Haughey, soprano; Miss Grace Munson, contralto; Paul Default, tenor, and Dr. Carl E. Dufft, baritone, with Frank J. Smith as accompanist, presented a programme of exceptional merit and winning much praise for their efforts. The honors were evenly divided in the share of applause. All were in good voice and the selections given were such as to call forth commendation from all.

The programme opened with two selections by the quartette, "Love and Summer," by West, and "As Torrents in Summer," by Elgars. This was followed with the singing of "La Diesa," "La Gioconda" by Miss Munson and she at once won favor. Her deep rich voice with its wide range was heard to the best advantage. She was obliged to respond to an encore, as were each of the artists afterward. Later she sang "Awake," with an encore and "The Passage Birds' Farewell," a duett with Mr. Default.

Mr. Default proved a great favorite. Seldom has a tenor of such excellence been heard here. His first selection was recitative and aria—"Joseph," by Mehul, with an encore and in part second he gave "Mother O Mine," "Stances" and "Because," with an encore.

The work of Mrs. Haughey also came in for a large share of commendation. She has a soprano voice of exceptional richness, and perfect control. In part first she sang "Bel Raggio Lusinghier," Rossini, responding to an encore, which was the occasion for the presentation of a handsome bouquet of roses. In part second she sang "Night Has a Thousand Eyes," "Flower Fancy" and "Birthday Song," after which she generously gave another encore.

Dr. Carl E. Dufft, ever a favorite here where he has delighted so many audiences, received a great ovation. He sang "Love Me or Not," with an encore in part first and in part second he gave "Turn Ye to Me," and the well-known "Vulcan's Song." These selections were just suited to his fine voice, reminding many of the former days when he appeared as soloist at the concerts given by the Plainfield Choral Society. He was recalled several times and always responded.

Mr. Smith, who accompanied the vocalists, received a generous share of praise. His work, so well-known here, was just as pleasing as ever and added materially to the success of the concert.

MR. ACKERMAN HONORED BY CEMENT COMBINATION

PLAINFIELDER TREASURER OF AMERICAN MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION.

Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Eighth street, president of the Lawrence Cement Co., was elected treasurer of the organization at the second annual convention of the Association of American Portland Cement Manufacturers held yesterday at the Hotel Astor, New York. This association has fifty members, representing an aggregate capital of $100,000,000, invested in the cement industry, and controls the production of more than ninety per cent. of the total output of the United States.

The association agreed upon an advance in prices to take effect next spring. The consensus of opinion was that the price should not be less than $1 per barrel at the mill at the opening of the season, and that prices should be further altered from time to time with the advance of the season.

A committee was deputed to petition Congress to make reciprocity treaties which would aid in the development of the export end of this industry. A number of technical matters were also discussed, and a committee reported that uniform specifications for testing cement had been adopted by practically all of the engineering societies of the country.

TOLD ANECDOTES OF FAMOUS CHARACTERS

REV. GEORGE H. WHITNEY TALKED ABOUT PROMINENT ACQUAINTANCES.

Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney delivered an entertaining address at the meeting of the Men's Club, of the First Presbyterian church last night, his subject being "Great Men Whom I Have Known."

A former resident of the city of Washington, Rev. Dr. Whitney has known in his life many characters famous in United States history, including statesmen, politicians, writers, and generals. It was with vivid portrayal and brightness that Rev. Dr. Whitney told of his relations with such men as Webster, Clay, Sumner and Grant, and combined with the most interesting facts of their lives, a beautiful tribute to the character of each.

At the conclusion of Dr. Whitney's address, a social hour was spent, and refreshments were served.

LAWYERS ASK COURT TO SET JURY TRIAL DAYS

PETITION JUDGE ATWATER OF ELIZABETH DISTRICT COURT.

Owing to the fact that several small cases were delayed and necessarily postponed at the Elizabeth District Court, yesterday morning, on account of two jury trials which took up most of the morning, a petition was presented to Judge Atwater requesting that one day be set for the trial of jury cases, and the other day be reserved for cases before the court.

This petition was signed by nearly all the lawyers in Elizabeth, and by several local barristers. It is now under the judge's consideration, and it is probable that he will grant the request. Among those which were adjourned yesterday for two weeks, was the contract case of John Monroe against John Vardon, in which William DeMeza represents the plaintiff, and Francis J. Blatz is the lawyer for the defense.

It is the desire of all the lawyers who are connected with cases at the District court, to have this petition go through, in order that either Monday or Thursday will be reserved for the longer and more complicated cases, and the judge's decision will be eagerly awaited.

Publishing Concern Begins Suits.

The Publishing Company of New York has commenced action in Justice Mattison's court through Francis J. Blatz against a large number of borough people who recently procured books from it. The concern published a history of Somerset County and took contracts for the books while gathering data.

PYTHIAN DIST. MEETING

David Bowden is Chosen District Deputy

GRAND OFFICERS THERE

Excellent Reports of Perseverance and Unity Lodges Presented at the Session.

More than 150 members of the order of the Knights of Pythias, representing Perseverance and Unity lodges, gathered in the latter's castle hall last evening for the annual district meeting and visitation of Grand Lodge officers. The affair was presided over by Chancellor Commander Harry Werner, of Unity lodge, and the proceedings evidenced the strength and growth of Pythianism in Plainfield. Reports from both lodges were presented and showed that the members have been unusually active.

Perseverance's was read by Charles McGinley, keeper of records and seal, and gave its membership as 306, one of the largest of any fraternal organizations in the city. Its receipts for the past twelve months have been nearly $8,000 and it has expended over $1,200 in sick and death benefits. Frank Putnam read the report for Unity lodge, stating that its membership is ninety-five and that it has enjoyed a prosperous year in every way. Following their acceptance David Bowden, of Perseverance lodge, was appointed district deputy to succeed the president incumbent, Jere VanWinkle, Jr., who is to retire at the beginning of the year.

Among the Grand Lodge officers who were present and who afterward made addresses were Past Grand Chancellor P. Frank Shanley, of Jersey City, who has been nominated as supreme representative; Grand Vice Chancellor Cowgill, of Mount Holly; Grand Keeper of Records and Seal Elmer E. Margerum, of Trenton; Grand Prelate Wilson, of Lambertville; Grand Inner Guard Abram Kleners, of Newark, and Grand Outer Guard John I. Main, of Paterson. Chancellor Commander Philip Jahn and Past Chancellor William N. Runyon, of Perseverance, and Chancellor Commander Harry Werner, of Unity, also spoke briefly.

At the close of the business session, refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed.

PINK TEA DRAWS 300 LOCAL SOCIETY PEOPLE

SOCIAL FUNCTION AT HOME OF MRS. ALFRED T. SLAUSON.

One of the most charming social affairs of the week took place yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alfred T. Slauson, of East Ninth street, in the form of a pink tea. It lasted from 4 until 7 o'clock and was attended by fully 300 members of city and borough social circles.

While pink was used in the decorations almost entirely, it was combined at times with green, producing a decidedly striking effect. Bride roses, carnations and other cut flowers were seen in endless profusion in the parlor and dining rooms, while the chandeliers were almost hidden by smilax. In the library the red and green of holly was quite prominent. A feature of the display in the dining room were several large bouquets of violets and roses, the gift of Marion S. Ackerman.

Mrs. Slauson was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Percy Stewart, Mrs. John Deal Miller, Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Mrs. William A. Garrigues and Mrs. C. E. Perkins, the last named of Cornwall, N. Y. In the library, receiving were Mrs. William L. Patton and Mrs. Thomas G. Slauson, of Boston. Mrs. Dorsey W. Hyde, Mrs. Augustus VanDeventer, Mrs. Daniel T. Ginna and Miss Florence Marsh presided in the dining room while the young women assisting were the Misses Elsie Burke, Elsie Harman, Mary Anderson Reinhart, Helen Phillips, Mary Goddard, Wilhelmina Patton, Marion Bowen, Martha Robert and Josephine Lapsley.

JAMES A. SMITH'S WIFE DIED THIS MORNING

MRS. AUGUSTA W. SMITH PASSED AWAY AT MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL.

Mrs. Augusta W. Smith, wife of James A. Smith, of 315 Central avenue, died at Muhlenberg Hospital at 7 o'clock this morning from a complication of diseases following an operation performed over a week ago. The operation was considered successful, but the complications which followed made recovery impossible. Mrs. Smith was taken to the hospital about ten days ago for treatment and the operation.

Mrs. Smith was the daughter of Aaron Berkaw, who live on East Third street for many years. She was a sister to Miss Mary Berkaw, who lived with her and John V. Berkaw, of North Plainfield, and they are the only two members of the Berkaw family now living. She was married about twenty years ago to Mr. Smith and continued to live here afterward. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church, and a regular attendant. Her rare womanly qualities were greatly admired.

The funeral services will be held from the late home Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock and interment will be in the family plot at Bound Brook on Monday.

VALUABLE STEED KILLED ON RAILROAD

MR WEBSTER'S IMPORTED HORSE FOUND DEAD YESTERDAY.

Through the efforts of the local police department, William A. Webster, of Truell Inn, learned last night what became of a beautiful imported horse which ran away from him Monday night, as told in yesterday's Daily Press. The animal was found dead on the tracks of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at Ashley Crossing, the first station east of Oak Tree, having been struck by a train. Section hands had removed the remains and not knowing where the horse had come from were unable to inform the owner.

Webster has had the animal in the city for some time and it was greatly admired by horsemen. Wishing to go sleigh riding Monday evening he hired a cutter from Adam Blair's stable and started southward with two other young men. Near Oak Tree the cutter was overturned in a drift and the three were thrown out. The animal continued on and the cutter was found later near the Oak Tree station reduced to kindling wood. All trace of the horse was lost and nothing more was heard from it until Chief Kiely secured the information last night.

SCARLET FEVER SCARE MAY CLOSE SCHOOLS

FEAR OF EPIDEMIC IN SOUTH PLAINFIELD PUZZLING SCHOOL BOARD.

As the result of several serious cases of scarlet fever, an epidemic of that disease is feared in South Plainfield, and there is every probability that the public schools will be closed.

So far no action has been taken by the school board, but a meeting will be held. The three latest cases of the disease are Thomas Bohl's children, all of whom were taken ill Wednesday. It is not known from exactly where these particular cases were contracted, and it is on account of the fact that the Bohl children may have left germs of the contagious disease in school, that the authorities are in favor of closing the institution.

Maid-of-Honor at a Wedding.

Miss Kittie Bodine, of the borough, was maid-of-honor at the wedding of her cousin, Miss Mabel Rohde, of Greenville, and Charles Allaire, of Bayonne, which was celebrated Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Linden Avenue M. P. O. BILL DRAGS ALONG Congress' Policy of Economy May Stave Off Action.

SENATOR KEAN AT WORK

He Will Use Every Endeavor to Secure Appropriation for Federal Building Here.

Senator Kean introduced a bill making an appropriation of $100,000 for a postoffice at Plainfield, in the U. S. Senate last spring, but the bill may suffer the fate of a lot of other public buildings bills if the economy programme is adhered to this year. This is according to a dispatch from Washington. However, the introduction of the bill is a start and ultimately Plainfield may get a postoffice building. It often takes several Congresses to get a bill of this sort through.

Senator Kean has informed some of his close personal friends in this city that he will use every endeavor to secure the appropriation for the proposed Federal building here during the present session of Congress. He believes that the need for a suitable postoffice building is apparent and will try to convince his colleagues that the bill be introduced during the last session of Congress requires attention.

Representative Fowler has introduced bills to increase the pensions of William Shannon and David A. Maple.

Nelson K. Peterson has been appointed a rural carrier at Plainfield, with Andrew N. Olsen as substitute on route No. 2.

TEACHERS' ANNUITY FUND IS ALL RIGHT

MISS HUMPSTON GETS A SERIOUS CHARGE DENIED.

In a letter received by Miss Millicent Humpston, principal of the Washington School, Miss Elizabeth A. Allen, of Hoboken, secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Retirement Fund of the State of New Jersey, makes emphatic denial of the report that the fund is unable to pay twenty-one applicants their annuities. The story was first sent broadcast after the meeting of the executive committee of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association at Trenton, where the statement was said to have been made.

Miss Allen declares there is not a bit of foundation for the story and assures Miss Humpston that the teachers need not be alarmed. She declares that the retirement fund was not mentioned at the Teachers' Association meeting and also that it is not true that twenty-one applicants cannot be paid. There are but thirteen on file and of these only six are eligible and can be met easily as the fund has a large surplus.

Miss Allen also adds that apparently there are a few men in the State who are determined to kill the fund and periodically resort to anonymous attacks.

Driver Dragged; Sleigh Smashed.

Frightened by the overturning of its sleigh through catching in street car tracks, a horse belonging to C. O. Smith and driven by Harry Acken, ran away at Fourth street and Spooner avenue, this morning. Acken was thrown out and dragged a considerable distance, but escaped serious injury. The horse was caught soon after but not quick enough to prevent the total wrecking of the sleigh.

Plans are progressing favorably for the dinner to the poor boys of the city, which will be given by the Y. M. C. A. boys' department on Christmas night at the association rooms. Working in co-operation with this committee will be a committee composed of the active workers of the boys' department, which will assist in preparing and serving the repast. Those who will compose this committee are Walter Caldwell, president of the department, Harold Robins, Frend Smith, Russell Morris, Ray Woodhull and Norman Loughlin.

MISS EDITH DOUGLAS, RALPH BULLMAN'S BRIDE

DR. SCHENCK PERFORMS CEREMONY AT HOME OF MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS.

Miss Edith Louise Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Douglas, of 803 West Front street, and Ralph Bullman, son of Mrs. Caroline Bullman, of 19 Craig place, were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of fifty relatives and friends from Elizabeth, Newark, Rahway, Fanwood and Plainfield. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, performed the ceremony. An uncle of the bride played the wedding march.

The home was decorated with smilax, holly, potted plants and palms, the green and flowers being used in the parlor, dining room and reception hall. In the parlor there was a bower of palms and beneath it the ceremony was performed. Neither the bride or groom was attended. The bride wore a gown of creme white, trimmed with lace and satin ribbons and carrried a bouquet of bride roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and supper was served. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Bullman went to their new home, No. 93 Grandview avenue. The guests planned to give them a sendoff, but the couple escaped the pranks in clever fashion.

Mr. Bullman is a carpenter and contractor. He and his wife are well known. They are both active members of the Brethren, a religious society which meets in East Front street.

The bride was generously remembered with useful and pretty gifts from relatives and friends.

HILLSIDE CLUB'S NAME LIKELY TO BE CHANGED

MEETING TO CONSIDER TITLE OF PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB.

For the purpose of giving the club a name that has a more definite meaning, the members of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will meet on Thursday night, December 22, to change the name to The Plainfield Country Club. This question has been under consideration for some time, and as there is such a sentiment in favor of it that there is no doubt but that it will go through. In changing the name a new and up-to-date constitution will also be adopted to take the place of one that does not meet the requirements of the club.

Another change that will be adopted with the new constitution will be the raising of the dues so as to give the club about $2,500 addition to make extensive improvements to the golf course and to engage a clerk for the clubhouse, one who will live there and take full charge the same as at any country club. With these changes the club by another season, will compare favorably with any of the kind to be found in the metropolitan district and they are sure to make the club more of a success than ever.

Borough Taxes.

The citizens of the borough are awakening to the fact that there are only a few days remaining before the evening of the 20th when taxes become delinquent and the collector reports that receipts are increasing daily.

RED LETTER SALE!!

This sale will be a memorable event in the history of Plainfield. Extol the glad tidings to your friends. Goods will not be sold—they will be given away, three-fourths as a CHRISTMAS PRESENT and one-fourth cash. How Can We Do It? Please read this document and see: Many merchants have failed because they held on to their goods from one season to the other 'till they got old and shop-worn, and consequently became worthless. Wouldn't they have been better off if they had sold their goods late in the season? Even at 25c on the dollar they would have brought them more than they received by holding on to their goods. This Fatal Mistake We Don't Make. At the beginning of the season we bought a tremendous stock expecting to have a big season, but for some reason or other business didn't turn out as expected. Now we have a big stock on hand. As our established rule is not to hold over goods from one season to the other, therefore we placed our entire stock on Bargain Tables For Sale. Price is no object. The entire stock must be sold regardless of any monetary consideration. Every Season New Goods. This Winter's Goods Must Go! Go!! Go!!! We don't claim that our line of goods is the finest in the world, because goods something like ours may be found in New York fine stores. What we do claim is that this sale cannot justly be called a sale. A liberal Christmas distribution would be a more fitting name for this sale. Whether You Buy or Not You Are Welcome at This Great Sale.

Your Money Back For All Unsatisfactory Purchases. Every article in the store at this sale is marked in plain figures. The most critical buyers are invited to this sale. Your money back for all unsatisfactory purchases. Don't let this great saving event pass you by. If you do you will repent. POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

READY REFERENCES FOR THE LOCAL ARGAIN SEEKERS.

T. H. Lanry has the best reputation as a contractor and all work given to him will be carefully looked after and executed right.

The Keely Coal Company, of South avenue, is selling a superior quality of coal at low prices. Give the company an order and you will never regret it.

Burd's millinery store in East Front street is headquarters for women's head-gear. All the latest styles in women's hats will be found here made of the best material and at low prices.

Tier's ice cream, how good it sounds just to have it talked about. While the subject is being discussed, better send in that order for Sunday's dinner. The depot is at the foot of Bank place.

For the holiday trade, M. C. Dobbins has neat boxes of all his best brands of cigars, pipes and smokers' outfits. Dobbins' store is open evenings and it is "no trouble to show goods."

The attention of the ordinary crowd is attracted by a display of electric light. Why not have your store or show windows brilliantly shining during the holidays? Allen B. Laing is fully equipped to do the wiring at a low rate.

There still remains a little over a week to get the rest of your Christmas gifts. You will save yourself a great deal of trouble if you go to Peck's and get a few suggestions from his large stock of useful and serviceable articles.

Henry Windham, proprietor of the Hotel Waldorf, extends the season's greetings to all, at the same time adding that the improvements at his hostelry have made it one of the most complete and up-to-date establishments in the country.

There is a handsome display of fur cloaks, muffs and collars at the Paris Cloak and Fur Store on West Front street, making suitable gifts for the holiday season. Mr. Fass also has a large stock of women's suits, cloth jackets and shirt waists.

If you expect to get money for Christmas presents, as many young men do, the best thing you can do is to deposit it in the Plainfield Trust Company. All wise men will advise you to save money, and the place to do it is the Trust Company.

It's the oldest that's the most reliable. When looking for an expressman why not consider Hoagland. He does all kinds of trucking and express business, and has been established long enough to know how to handle the largest trade in the city.

Reasonable in price, convenient to procure, and healthy, the Plainfield Spring Water is of inestimatable value to those who do not like hard water. If your health demands a specially prepared spring water, the Watchung Water is what you want.

The greatest reductions which they have ever made are now on at the Surprise Store. They are even surprising themselves at the low prices at which they find it possible to sell the best quality of clothes. Better get your share of this great sale before it is all gone.

Levy Brothers, the West Front street dry goods merchants, ask for a share of your patronage, believing that they can give you bargains equal to any to be found in New York. The stock of dry goods is large and complete while in dress goods the stock cannot be excelled.

L. Moraller & Son, the Park avenue jewelers, suggest that all purchases in their line intended for Christmas presents, be made at this time, if engraving is to be added. It requires at least several days for the latter and in the holiday rush it is often delayed beyond the time wanted.

While planning surprises for the folks at Christmas time, did you ever notice that you intend buying more than you have money for? It is a common occurrence but one that can be overcome by a proper system of saving. The City National Bank, which does a general business in money matters, is ready at all times to open new accounts.

MIRTH AND MELODY WIN APPLAUSE AT Y.M.C.A.

THOMAS CONCERT COMPANY GIVES EXCELLENT PROGRAMME.

Mirth and melody combined at the Y. M. C. A. last night in offering to the public one of the best star course entertainments which have yet been given. The performers, the John Thomas Concert Company, were John Thomas, humorist; Miss Annie Webster Thomas, violin virtuoso, and Miss Adelaide Louise Wood, pianist.

Mr. Thomas, in four numbers descriptive of "peculiar people," kept the audience, which was a fairly large one, in roars of laughter. Mr. Thomas has the funniest manner, and is a humorist who compels a laugh by his appearance alone. The fours numbers dealth with peculiar people at home, in trouble, in debate, and in general.

As a violin player, Miss Thomas is unexcelled. Her two numbers were well received, and both encored. Miss Wood's piano selections were equally good, making the entire entertainment one of the best which has ever been given in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

Runyon while others in the cast are William Schorb, Bertram C. Firstbrook, Elmer D. Cutting, George B. Cose, V. W. Nash, Jr., M. D. Sweeney, Alexander Muir, Thomas M. Muir and William Schorb, Jr.

Following its presentation vocal and instrumental music will predominate while cigars are being enjoyed.

"IN A BAD WAY."

Many a Plainfield Reader Will Feel Grateful for This Information.

When your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
Your kidneys are "in a bad way."
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.

Here is local evidence to prove it:

Mrs. M. A. Hall, of 219 Prescott place, says: "For several years I had a dull aching pain across my back, at times extending to my hips. I was compelled to lie in just one position all night and stooping, lifting or bending forward aggravated the pains. Although I used different remedies that were recommended to me I obtained little if any relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly endorsed in our daily papers and procured a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It was not long before I felt great relief and I was surprised how quickly the pain in my back disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

LITERARY.

A new detective story, by Anna Katharine Green, which opens with a ball, a murder, and a lost diamond, begins in Leslie's Monthly Magazine for January, and from these first chapters it looks as if Mrs. Green's latest story was her best. An article on Grand Opera in America by Heinrich Conreid, director of the Metropolitan Opera House, tells of some of the trials of an impresario in this country and an essay on "Does It Pay to Be a Teacher?" gives an excellent idea of the work, opportunities and rewards of that most important career. The last of the articles on the Theatrical Syndicate is a summing up of the conditions and prospects of the theatrical business and an account of some of the results of syndicate methods.

Pearson's Magazine for January presents a remarkable collection of interesting special articles and clever short stories, numbering in all eighteen. The leading article is a clear, concise, exhaustive narrative, handsomely illustrated and describing in a popular way the dangers, the difficulties and the magnitude of that most recent marvel of engineering, the New York "Subway." "Skin Sculpture, the Modern Taxidermy," and "A Seventy - five - Thousand - Pound Meteorite" are articles that will please those of a scientific turn of mind. "The Making of Incandescent Lamps," "The Life Story of a Wild Bear" and "Pneumonia, an Unsolved Problem," are articles that will appeal to those interested respectively in industry, in animals and in problems of health; while "Scoring the Best" is a stirring, stirring article consisting of adventures of those daring, resourceful fellows, the New York newspaper reporters.

The American Boy for Christmas will delight the boy's heart from its front cover design representing a young hunter, his dog, gun and game, clear through to the last page. As especially appropriate to the Christmas season are: "Father Lanuite's Prize," by Lillian V. Lambert; "Kersey," by Evelyn M. Wood Lovejoy; "Uncle Sam's Santa Claus" and "Distributing Christmas Presents in the Navy." Other stories and leading articles are "The Pathway to Success," being an interview with ex-Senator T. W. Palmer of Detroit; "A Message to American Boys," by Governor Montague of Virginia; the first two chapters of Kirk Munroe's new story, "For the Mikado;" "James McGregor Billings' Moose Hunt," by Curwood, and other stories.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—A cablegram has been received by Miss Smith, of Somerville, superintendent of the Duke estate there, to the effect that James B. Duke and his bride have arrived safely in London. The cablegram also set forth that they are both well and had a pleasant voyage.

—Rev. Dr. Rufus W. Miller, chairman of the Executive Board of the Pocono Pines Assembly and Summer School, says: "The Georgia Jubilee Singers gave an entertainment with acceptance. * * * Our guests were delighted with it. Everything was in the best of taste. The singing was of a high order and the recitals excellent. We should be glad to welcome them back." The Jubilee Singers will give an entertainment under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday evening, Dec. 17, at 8 p. m.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mrs. Fiske's first appearance in a new play and role in two years will be marked on Monday evening, when at the Manhattan Theatre, she was seen with the strong Manhattan Company, including several noted actors who have not appeared in her support this season, in C. M. S. McLellan's powerul new drama, "Leah Kleschna." The time of the play is the present, and its scenes are laid in Paris and Neustadt, Austria. In the title part Mrs. Fiske is seen as a girl who is the daughter of a peasant woman and a noted Austrian criminal, a man of great originality and courage, who has trained her to his lawless life from childhood. As the play begins, the father and daughter, living in Paris lodgings, are about to engage in a startling adventure of crime in which the daughter is to take the chief part. To this point in her career Leah has proceeded unresistingly, a simple tool in the hands of her father, whose qualities of force and self-reliance she inherits with an ardent, wholesome and admirable nature. Through circumstances a glimmering of moral truth comes to her, although it has lain dormant as a consequence of her environment. She is suddenly confronted with the enormity of the life and is able at last to understand the degradation. In the course of the criminal adventure she meets a man who exerts over her a redeeming influence, and she determines to abandon her ways. She is beset by difficulties in this determination, and passes through trying and dramatic scenes, but at last triumphs. The end of the play is happy and logical.

SPORTING NEWS.

BASKET BALL.

There will be no scholastic basketball games at the Y. M. C. A. on December 28. None of the schools will play during the Christmas holidays.

The next game between the Leal's and P. H. S. team in the Interscholastic League will take place on January 18. In the event of a tie in the series, the rubber will be played off on February 8.

Jewett, the right forward of the Leal's School basketball team, played a good game in the P. H. S. contest Wednesday afternoon. With a little more speed, he would make one of the best scholastic forwards.

For today two basket ball games are scheduled. The Plainfield High School first and second teams are in Newark this afternoon playing the two teams of the Newark High school, and tonight the Hope Y. M. A. team will play a game with the Sagamores of New Brunswick. This is the squad which went to Newark today representing the Plainfield High school, Thompson, Smith, Collier, Gavett, S. Freeman, Stutsman, Vail, Bentley, Caldwell, Doane, H. Freeman, Mckay, Lambert, Leggett, and Bently.

A surprise to every one, including the majority of Leal's School pupils, the game between the Plainfield High School and the Leal's basketball teams Wednesday afternoon, was one of the most remarkable recoveries from defeat, and the most astonishing exhibition of over confidence that has ever been seen at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. With the exception of Captain Thompson, who did his best to keep the team together, the entire bunch went up in the air in the second half, and were apparently indifferent as to their eventual descent. In one way the defeat was a good thing for the P. H. S. They will never again feel confident of victory when the score is well in their favor.

He is apparently as well and strong as ever. This was the second accident of the kind for "Jim" and Chief Deane hopes it will be the last.

MR. WESTCOTT'S POSITION.

Superintendent of Bottling Concern Not to Ask for License.

Ellsworth C. Westcott, superintendent of the Eastern Bottling Company on West Second street, denies that he intends making an application for a liquor license for a saloon on West Third street. He declares emphatically that he never had any idea of asking for such a license, and that he will remain in his present.

Mr. Westcott also states that neither the Eastern Bottling Company or the Ballentine Company are interested in any saloon in Plainfield and that there is no intention of identifying either in such business. He knows nothing of any effort to secure a license for a place on West Third street or anywhere else in the city.

RUSH RHEES, THE GUEST OF HONOR AT A DINNER

FORMER PLAINFIELDER ENTERTAINED AT THE WALDORF.

In honor of Rush Rhees, formerly of this city, who is now president of Rochester University, a dinner was given at the Waldorf, New York, Tuesday night, by Mr. and Mrs. Willis S. Paine, of New York. Among the guests present were former Mayor and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street.

President Rhees was graduated from the Plainfield High School and spent his younger days here. He studied for the ministry and became pastor of the Baptist church at Newton Centre, Mass., at which place he was also a professor on the Baptist Seminary. He was afterward chosen president of Rochester University, where he has attracted considerable attention by his brilliant work in educational matters. Recently he was elected president of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools. His ability as one of the foremost educators of the day is constantly being recognized. He has contributed valuable articles to some of the standard publications.

President Rhees is a nephew of Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, and on several occasions he has occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church here.

Chester Decker, of West End avenue, is detained at home the result of a severe injury to his knee by a fall on the ice.

TAXES ARE POURING IN

Time is Up Tuesday and $100,000 is Yet to be Paid.

CORPORATIONS SLOW

Collector Lee's Office is Open Evenings to Accommodate Citizens Out of Town During the Day.

Tax Collector Robert L. Lee is not having as much trouble as he was inclined to anticipate when he took his new office. He says that thus far there have been very few kickers and the rule of taxpayers has been to give up their money cheerfully. Mr. Lee has collected over $100,000 up to this morning, which is not quite half the amount assessed. There is over $100,000 yet to be received and of this there is included most of the corporation tax. The Plainfield Water Supply Company has paid its tax, about $3,000, but there is still due about $5,000 from the Public Service Corporation, as well as the tax from the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company and the twenty-five cents from the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company. This company is about the smallest taxpayer in the city.

Mr. Lee has been keeping his office open every evening until 9 o'clock and that the people appreciate this is shown by the amount of tax received in the evening. The office will be open this evening, as well as Monday and Tuesday evenings. The time limit is up Tuesday and Mr. Lee says that it will be absolutely impossible for him to receive any taxes after 9 o'clock that evening. It will then necessitate his remaining up until early the next morning taking care of the money that will be received that day.

The rush hours at the office are between 10:30 and 12 o'clock in the morning and from 2:30 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. In the afternoon those who call are mostly women. Of the amount yet to be received no doubt a considerable sum will be placed on the delinquent list to be collected with the added interest. It has been learned that many persons wait until the last minute to settle, not wishing to break the interest they are drawing on their money until they are obliged to do so.

INSPECTOR COMPLAINED, LETTER-CARRIER DECLARES

PATRICK REVILLE SAYS IT WAS NOT NETHERWOOD RESIDENTS.

Letter-carrier Patrick Reville, whose case is being considered by the postal authorities, as stated in yesterday's Daily Press, states that it was the inspector for the rural free delivery service that noticed the condition of his horse and mail gig while standing near the postoffice and reported the same to the authorities, and not residents along his route. He says that the day the inspector saw his rig, the gig had been hit with an automobile in the Netherwood district and one wheel was damaged. He had not yet had time to have the wheel properly repaired. He denies that his horse is anything but all right.

It was soon after the report reached the postal authorities that Mr. Reville was laid off and his case has not yet been settled, although one of the postoffice inspectors has been in town two days working on it.

Tax Collector's Strong Box.

Tax Collector Robert L. Lee has had a strong box placed in the vault in his office. The combination lock on this box is even more intricate than the one on the big safe. It is intended to hold large sums of money when it is not always convenient to bank it. During the past few days Mr. Lee has been more than busy receiving taxes. The time-limit for the payment of taxes without the added interest will be up on Monday and no doubt there will be a great many who will rush in at the last minute to settle.

Local Talent to Present Opera.

William Holmes, of this city, who has been successful in giving the comic operas, "Patience" and "The Pirates of Pensance," has decided to give the "Mikado," probably at the Casino, on April 27. Rehearsals will begin on January 11. The opera will be given entirly by local talent.

CONDUCTED SALE FOR SUPPORT OF CITY NURSE

CHEERFUL WORKERS' CIRCLE'S AFFAIR LARGELY ATTENDED.

Under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Circle, King's Daughters, composed of young women interested in the support of the trained nurse employed by the City Union, King's Daughters, an eminently successful sale was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John F. Harman on West Eighth street. This circle was organized about ten years ago, and it pledges a certain amount of money each year toward the support of the city nurse. So generous is the patronage at the various sales that there is never any trouble in raising the sum.

Yesterday there was a sale of fancy articles and home-made candies and before the affair terminated everything was disposed of at good prices. The attendance was large and besides the sale there were pleasant social features.

Some of the members in charge were Miss Elsie Harman, Miss Helen Harman, Miss Ursula Rowland, Miss Grace Kaufman, Miss Gladys Kaufman, Miss Margaret Leal, Miss Jean Douglass, Miss Florence Curtis, Miss Matie Wadsworth, Miss Dorothy Fleming, Miss Abi Sykes, Miss Mamie Day and Miss Margaret Mead.

SAGAMORES MAKE HIT AT BOYS' ENTERTAINMENT

LOCAL MUSICAL CLUB AND CLEVER IMITATOR RENDERED PROGRAMME.

The second of the boys' entertainments at the Y. M. C. A., last night, was a great success. The entertainers were the Sagamore Musical Club and Edward Avis, a clever bird imitator, whistling soloist and violinist. The club of popular young musicians rendered several well played selections, while Mr. Avis won much applause by his bird imitations. He is one of the best in the profession and his imitations were decidedly real.

They were illustrated by one hundred stereopticon views of birds, and their surroundings. As a violinist Mr. Avis was also good, his tricks on the instrumenat being remarkable. In his interpretation of some of the best composers, Mr. Avis displayed a depth of feeling and a musical technique which marks him as a finished player.

The Sagamore Club was given its usual reception, and responded generously to the encores, which were accorded them. The selections which they played were the "Egyptian Dance," Waldemire, and "A Day In a Cotton Field." Those who play in the club are Chester H. Briggs, leader, Monroe Long, Theodore Gavett, mandotine; William Briggs and Gurth Williams, banjos; Herbert Smith and William Gaston, violins. The pianist was Irving Martin.

Gave Party for Children.

Mrs. Francis deLacy Hyde, of Mountain avenue, gave a delightful party yesterday afternoon for her three children, Francis, Jr., Edward and Carolyn. There were about thirty little tots present as guests ranging in age from three to seven years and a merry time they had during the afternoon. Mrs. Hyde engaged a professional entertainer from New York and he kept the children in high glee while he performed clever tricks of all kinds. He held the attention of the children for nearly an hour, after which they played their own favorite games. Before the boys and girls departed for their homes, refreshments were served.

Criminal Case Postponed.

Charged with chicken stealing, Richard Cottis, alias "Carpender," was not tried in Justice Hand's court Thursday afternoon on account of the illness of the complainant, Mrs. Catherine VanNostrand. Though Fred J. Huff, the attorney for the State, and the defendant were present ready to try the case. Mrs. VanNostrand alleges that Cottis stole five hens and a rooster from the chicken yard.

YOUNG DESPERADO ELUDED THE POLICE

"DUTCH" IDES, A WELL-KNOWN CROOK, ESCAPES AFTER A HARD FIGHT.

The Elizabeth police had a lively encounter yesterday afternoon with Frank, alias "Dutch," Ides, a young outlaw, who escaped last August from the New Jersey State Reformatory at Rahway. Since he has been at large he has committed several robberies in Union and Middlesex counties, it is suspected.

Ides is twenty-three years old. His mother and family live at No. 425 Broadway, Elizabethport. Police Captain O'Leary heard that Ides was at his mother's and determined to capture him. The captain, with five of his most powerful men, marched to the house and surrounded it.

Then Captain O'Leary entered the place. Mrs. Ides told him her son was in a room in the upper part of the house, but the door was locked. Captain O'Leary threw himself against it and broke the door in, although a bedstead had been placed against it as a barricade.

"Jack" McMillan, of Staten Island, a companion of Ides, was found inside, and quickly over powered but the outlaw had disappeared. Captain O'Leary then discovered a winding stair that led to the ground floor and cellar. As he started to go to the cellar he heard a noise, and the next thing he saw Ides was rushing through the backyard. One of the policemen guarding the house fired at him.

The desperado returned the fire. Then followed a fusillade of shots, but the fugitive scaled a fence at the end of the yard and soon was out of sight.

Ides wrote his mother on Thursday that he would go back to the reformatory voluntarily, but would not be taken there.

McMillan will be committed to jail for vagrancy. He is nineteen years old.

FIRST-CLASS BALL TEAM PROMISED BY WOOLSTON

AND GAMES WILL BE SCHEDULED WITH CRACK NINES ONLY.

Charles Woolston, representing the syndicate that purchased the Plainfield A. C. franchise, in the fall, states that a first-class baseball team will be seen on Crescent Oval next season, and that only the best teams will be brought here, including Trenton, Orange, Dover, Chatham and some of the college teams possibly for Wednesday games. The company has not been asleep as some persons believed and when the season opens every position will be filled with a strong player.

As announced early in the fall the oval will be enclosed with a high board fence, the lumber now being on the way here for that purpose. There will also be improvements in the extreme left field which was innundated several times by water, last season, and future trouble of this kind will be prevented.

At the proper time announcement will be made of the lineup and there are sure to be some surprises. Charles Woolston will probably be the manager of the team, controlling the players and arranging for dates. The faults of a year ago will be eliminated as far as possible, that is it will be one of the chief objects to play the same team throughout the entire season and do away with frequent changes, which proved so disastrous to the team last year. One of the best semi-professional twirlers will be engaged and a strong man will be at the receiving end.

A Musical Treat Coming.

The Wesleyan University Glee and Mandolin Clubs will give an entertainment in the First M. E. church on January 2, New Year's night. This organization is one of the best of its kind in the East and has made a favorable impression in Plainfield through previous appearances.

NORTH BRANCH RESIDENT MURDEROUSLY ASSAULTED

STRUCK HIS WIFE AND IRATE BROTHER ATTACKS HIM WITH BRASS KNUCKLES.

Frank Cramer, a well known resident of North Branch and who has relatives in this city, lies at his home at the point of death through a murderous assault committed upon him by his brother-in-law, Jacob Flummerfelt. In the attack Flummerfelt declares he used only a pair of brass knuckles but physicians who are attending Cramer say a knife must have been used. One of the victim's eyes was gouged out, an ear was severed from the head, his nose was broken and his face pounded almost to a jelly. Flummerfelt was arrested soon after the assault and is being held in the Somerville jail.

The trouble was brought about through Cramer's excessive drinking and abuse of his wife, who is Flummerfelt's sister. She appealed to the brother for protection and Flummerfelt took up his residence at the Cramer home. The husband came in heavily intoxicated Thursday night and without provocation struck his wife, knocking her down, and dealt his daughter a stinging blow in the face. Flummerfelt interfered and the assault followed. Cramer is a brother of former Assemblyman Cramer, of Somerset County.

REVISION OF DATES IN BASKET BALL LEAGUES

THE JUVENILE AND INTERSCHOLASTIC TEAMS NOT TO PLAY OVER HOLIDAYS.

Since the beginning of the Interscholastic and Juvenile Basket Ball Leagues, it has been necessary to make several changes in the schedule as it was first published. They do not effect the plans of the various schools, to any extent. The schools have decided not to play any games during the Christmas holidays, as many of the players will be out of town, and it would be difficult to arouse interest in the game at that time.

The Interscholastic League, which is a triangular one between the Leals' School and Plainfield High School and the North Plainfield High School, will play a two game league. That is, each team will meet the other twice. Two games have been played so far, and according to the corrected schedule, these games remain to take place: December 12, N. P. H. S. vs. Leal's; January 11, N. P. H. S. vs. P. H. S.; January 18, Leal's vs. P. H. S.; January 25, Leal's vs. N. P. H. S.; February 8, reserved for tie game.

In the Junior League, this is the schedule beginning with next Wednesday: December 21, Leal's vs. Y. M. C. A.; January 4, P. H. S. vs. Leal's; January 11, Y. M. C. A. vs. Whittier; January 18, Whittier vs. Leal's; January 25, Y. M. C. A. vs. P. H. S.; February 8, Leal's and Y. M. C. A.

It is quite likely that this league will continue after the other one has finished. The winner of the latter contest will receive the Schwed Brothers' silver loving cup.

DANIEL FOR TOLLES PLACE

The Choice of Councilmanic Caucus for President.

DECIDED LAST NIGHT

Third Ward Will Get Some Plums in Make Up of Common Council Committees.

Leslie M. Daniel, member of the Common Council from the Third ward, was the unanimous choice of the other members for president for 1905, at a caucus held last night. Since election there has been considerable talk about a change in the presidency, but the many friends of Councilman Tolles hoped that he would continue to preside over the sessions next year. At a private caucus of some of the members for the purpose of ascertaining the strength of Mr. Daniel for the presidency he was favored by a sufficient number to elect him.

Last night's caucus was held chiefly for the purpose of selecting a president. There were no nominations, simply the suggestion being made that the members proceed to make a choice. The election was by paper ballots and Mr. Daniel received the majority of the votes. The selection was afterward made unanimous and to all appearances the most harmonious feeling prevailed.

Mr. Daniel's aspirations for the presidency were due to the fact that this will probably be his last year in the Common Council, and he would like the honor before retiring. Mr. Tolles presented similar claims a year ago, but it turned out that he received a renomination this year and was elected to succeed himself. He was one of the first to congratulate Mr. Daniel last night after the choice was made.

There was no talk as to the make-up of the committees for next year, that matter being left entirely to the judgment of Mr. Daniel. It seems to be the opinion that the Second and Third wards will receive proper recognition as to the most important committees.

After the selection of a president the rest of the evening was devoted to a discussion of general matters that will likely come up early in the new year. This discussion was more for the purpose of getting these matters in shape for presentation. There were no special matters introduced.

PYTHIAN ENTERTAINMENT POSTPONED ONE WEEK

ILLNESS OF JUDGE RUNYON PREVENTS PRESENTATION OF "IRISH JUSTICE"

Through the illness of City Judge William N. Runyon, who had been assigned the leading part, the presentation of "Irish Justice" by members of Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., was postponed last evening. It will now be given the coming Friday providing the "star" is able to return to the cast. His sickness was brought about through a severe cold and is thought to be but temporary.

In place of the scheduled affair, the members of the lodge presented another programme. It consisted of vocal solos and imitations by Elmer D. Cutting; a sketch by M. D. Sweeney and B. C. Firstbrook; vocal selections by Alexander Muir, and an address by David Bowden. Cigars were passed and an hour was spent informally.

The committee which had the arrangements in charge consisted of William Schorb, chairman, Philip Jahn and Asa D. Pope.

LOCAL ELKS ARE FLEECED

Accept Worthless Checks From a "Brother."

SAME OLD GAME

George O. Stevens, A. D. Findley and Thomas Timbo Victims of a Stranger.

Following out almost the same plan as that pursued by James McCabe, alias "O'Brien," who was caught trying to fleece local members of the Knights of Columbus, a smooth talking young man has left town suddenly after separating several prominent Elks from some of their money. By means of checks and a glib tongue which never lost an opportunity to tell how he was one of the foremost members of an Ohio lodge of Elks, he succeeded in getting $50, most of it from George O. Stevens, Thomas Timbo and A. D. Findlay. The matter was reported to the police.

The swindler first made his appearance in town about two weeks ago and visited Timbo's place frequently for meals. Learning that the proprietor was an Elk, he exhibited a travelling card from a lodge of the order in Ohio. He posed as a travelling man.

By degrees he ingratiated himself with other members of Plainfield lodge and then the old familiar check game was worked. There were several of them and they were on a Hoboken bank. The largest was for $35 and the others were for various small amounts, so that the losses were distributed.

Swindler McCabe, who was arrested in Plainfield last month, had a plan somewhat similar, only he posed as a Knight of Columbus.

The committee on the arrangements for the inauguration reports that the expense will be from six to seven dollars including transportation, badge, etc. A special train will start at Elizabeth, and stop at all points between that city and Plainfield to receive passengers. The tickets will permit the bearers to return by any train. An Elizabeth band will accompany the delegation.

PEACE OF THE WORLD

Arbitration Advocates Gather at New York.

INVOKE AID OF PRESIDENT AND SENATE

Mass Meeting Favored Extension by Government of International Amity Principle to Vexed Questions Between All Peoples.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The arbitration meeting at Carnegie hall last night, presided over by Mayor McClellan and attended by many prominent men connected with the movement for international efforts in behalf of peace, offered the following resolutions:

"Whereas, The method of settling international disputes and difficulties by arbitration rather than by force is in accord with the highest precepts of reason and humanity; and

"Whereas, The civilized nations of the world have, by jointly establishing the permanent court at The Hague, recognized the moral obligation which rests upon them to avoid the horrors of war by the submission of their controversies to judicial determination; and

"Whereas, The government of the United States, which for the past half century has been foremost in the actual resort to arbitration, has negotiated and is negotiating treaties with various powers making compulsory upon the contracting nations the reference of disputes of a certain nature to the international court at The Hague; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the citizens of New York in mass meeting assembled, favor the extension by the government of the United States of the principle of international arbitration to all questions which cannot otherwise be brought to a pacific determination; and it is further

"Resolved, That, since the proposed treaties extend the operation of arbitration in accord with the moral, political and economic interests of this country and of the world, we earnestly request our representatives in the United States senate to exert their influence in behalf of such treaties and of their prompt consideration and approval by the senate; and it is further

"Resolved, That the president and secretary of this meeting be and are hereby directed to forthwith forward copies of these resolutions to the president of the United States, the senators from the state of New York, to the president of the senate and the chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations."

The mayor, opening the meeting, said in part:

"I am exceedingly honored to have been asked to preside over you this evening. The purpose of this meeting is to give expression to the sentiment of our city in favor of the treaties of arbitration now before or about to be submitted to the United States senate. It is fitting that as the chief magistrate of 4,000,000 of God fearing, peace loving Americans I should be here to testify to the faith that is in me in behalf of the cause you represent.

"The principle of international arbitration is not a new one in this country, for, to the eternal glory of the United States, be it said that during 107 years we took part in forty-seven arbitrations, and during that time we were a party to more than half of the arbitrations negotiated in the entire world."

Letters of regret from ex-President Cleveland, John Mitchell and Carl Schurz were read, and speeches in support of the resolutions were made by Oscar S. Straus and Archbishop Ireland.

Melba Welcomed Back.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Mme. Melba, after an absence of four years from the Metropolitan Opera House, was given an enthusiastic welcome back to the American grand opera stage last night, when she appeared as Mimi in "La Boheme." She was supported by a fine cast, including Caruso and Scotti. The opera, music by Puccini, adaptation by Guissepi Giacosa and Luigi Illica, was favored with much applause from first to last scene. Melba's portrayal of Mimi from the vivacious until the death scene won commendation, shared by Caruso as Rudolfo and the others of the cast.

Life Sentence For Wife Murder.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Joseph Ferrone, an Italian, who killed his wife last summer and was convicted of murder in the second degree, was sentenced to life imprisonment. His brother, Lawrence, whose trial on a burglary charge was going on at the same time was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, having been convicted of the charge. The mother of the two men was a constant attendant at the trials of her sons and spent her time running from one courtroom to the other.

A Conference of Rulers.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—A Copenhagen report says that the emperor of Austria will visit Copenhagen next spring to take part in an international conference of monarchs on the subject of peace. There is reason to believe, the correspondent adds, that Emperor Nicholas and King Edward have already agreed to attend, and Emperor William also is expected.

POLICE READY TO STOP BLOODSHED

Trouble Over Consolidated Copper Had Caused the Words Liar, Scoundrel and Swindler to Be Used, but Operators Shook Hands.

BOSTON, Dec. 17.—Colonel William C. Greene of New York, who recently accused Thomas W. Lawson of this city of being responsible for the recent break in copper shares, was met at the Hotel Touraine by Mr. Lawson. The nature of the statements issued by both Colonel Greene and Mr. Lawson, but particularly by Colonel Greene, who considered that Mr. Lawson was to blame for the raid upon the stock of the Greene Consolidated Copper company, together with the recent market developments, all had combined to suggest the possibility of a clash between the two operators. So far as became known, however, nothing of the kind occurred. The men shook hands and entered on business dealing in an apparently friendly mood. Added interest was lent to the incident through the presence of police headquarters inspectors, headed by Chief Inspector William Watts, as trouble had been expected by the rather sudden manner in which Colonel Greene and Mr. Lawson met at the hotel.

Mr. Lawson seemed constrained, but Colonel Greene smiled warmly, uttered a cordial salutation and, extending his hand, which Mr. Lawson seized, invited the Boston operator to go upstairs. Colonel Greene's manner seemed very happy, but Mr. Lawson was apparently very much reserved. The men entered an elevator and were taken to Colonel Greene's room. For almost seven hours the conference went on, while all outsiders and all messages of every kind were barred. Meantime the police had arrived and virtually taken possession of the hotel, three officers in citizens' clothes patrolling the corridor upon which Colonel Greene's rooms were located, while Chief Inspector Watts and other detectives remained on guard in the lobby. At the end of the conference Mr. Lawson and Colonel Greene both made a hurried exit from the hotel, the latter being driven at once to the railroad station.

The only real ripple of excitement of the day came at the very moment that Colonel Greene was entering his carriage, and this was caused by a sudden flash of flame from the sidewalk, which in the darkness served to create a commotion among the spectators, but which proved merely to be the explosion of a chemical used by a photographer in taking a view of the colonel as he was starting for New York.

Mr. Lawson issued a statement last night confirming the report of a mutual agreement made by him and Colonel Greene, adding that the episode was ended.

CHARGES AGAINST HOOKER.

Arthur C. Wade Addressed Bar Association on His Behalf.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 17.—For nearly six hours the grievance committee of the New York State Bar association in executive session in the courtroom of the appellate division in this city considered the report of its subcommittee upon the accusations against Warren B. Hooker of Fredonia, a justice of the supreme court in the Eighth judicial district.

Assemblyman Arthur C. Wade of Jamestown, who has represented Justice Hooker hitherto before the subcommittee, and former Assistant United States District Attorney William B. Hoyt of Buffalo for nearly three hours addressed the committee in Justice Hooker's behalf.

At the conclusion of the meeting the only announcement which was made was that the committee would make "a report" to the State Bar association at its meeting here in January. All further information was withheld, and Chairman Huffcut would not say even whether the report would include recommendations looking to any action by the Bar association.

Boston and Albany Car Destroyed.

ROCHDALE, Mass., Dec. 17.—By the explosion of a kerosene lamp in a baggage car on the Boston and Albany division while passing through here the car was destroyed, and the Adams Express company, which occupied it with general merchandise and four safes filled with valuables estimated to be worth $100,000, chiefly jewelry, will lose not less than $10,000, according to estimates of the company's officials.

Patrolman Took Poison.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 17.—Despondent over being reduced in the city police department, Delbert B. Way committed suicide here by taking potassium cyanide. He was reduced from sergeant to patrolman for disobeying an order to assist patrolmen in clearing the streets late at night of unruly students. Mr. Way was a veteran of the civil war and was president of the Tompkins Veterans' association.

Rochester Fire Cost $50,000.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 17.—Fire broke out in the furniture store of Bickford, Schantz & Co. here. The damage to building and stock is estimated at $50,000. Other buildings were in danger, including Cook's theater, and a general alarm was sent in.

Fire In Silver Lake Mine.

SILVERTON, Colo., Dec. 17.—Fire destroyed the "midway terminal" of the Silver Lake mine, cutting off the supply of ore from three mines to the mill and throwing 200 men out of employment. The loss is $100,000.

ACQUITTAL DENIED.

Nan Patterson's Case Must Go to the Jury.

PRISONER MAY TESTIFY MONDAY.

Defense Counsel Not Decided as Yet Whether They Will Make Any Defense, but Simply Ask a Verdict of Not Guilty.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Without hearing argument by the prosecution, which had rested its case, Justice Vernon M. Davis, in the criminal branch of the supreme court, denied the motion of Nan Patterson's counsel to acquit her of the charge of murdering Caesar Young and adjourned the trial until Monday at the request of the defense.

Mr. Levy, representing Miss Patterson, said he had not yet decided whether he would make any defense or simply let the case go to the jury as it was. The question of the admissibility of evidence concerning J. Morgan Smith and his wife was again raised, and Justice Davis decided to admit the evidence.

John Mellin, Young's racing partner, was recalled and identified several letters written by Young to Miss Patterson. Only two other witnesses were called, the greater part of the session being taken up by argument of counsel.

After adjournment Abraham Levy, chief of defendant's counsel, would neither affirm nor deny that there was to be a defense, but from another source it was learned that witnesses will be questioned on Monday by counsel for Nan Patterson.

In all probability the defendant herself will then testify. This she has been anxious all along to be permitted to do, although her counsel have argued against such a course. They have feared she might break down under the ordeal, but she declares she has no fear of such a result if allowed to give evidence in her own behalf. Abraham Levy said:

"It is very embarrassing for counsel for the defendant to have proofs of evidence in his possession that the prisoner at the bar is not guilty and be fully confident that the state has not made out a case against her and yet be in a quandary as to whether or not a defense in her behalf should be offered.

"We will not make any declaration as yet as to our probable action when court opens on Monday. We will have several conferences between now and that time and will not make known our decision before then."

HEARING MONDAY.

Mrs. Chadwick to Appear In Cleveland Court and Answer Charges.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 17.—Mrs. Chadwick will be arraigned in the federal court here Monday. This has been determined, although the court will sit in Toledo the remainder of the week to take testimony for the purpose of identifying her as Mme. Devere.

Mrs. Chadwick will from now until the time of her trial or arraignment in court be rigidly excluded from all visitors, and even her son and nurse will be denied permission to see her except on the written order of United States Marshal Chandler.

This action is in direct opposition to an order of United States Marshal Chandler, in which he directed that Emil Hoover, the son of Mrs. Chadwick, and the nurse should be admitted at any time to see Mrs. Chadwick.

When told by a reporter that the promised statement she was to make was anxiously awaited by the people in Cleveland and other parts of the country Mrs. Chadwick manifested a spirit of resentment against everybody, and especially the newspapers for printing the interview with President Beckwith. Finally Mrs. Chadwick said:

"I have made my last statement; I will have nothing further to say."

During the conversation Freda, her maid, stroked the prisoner's hands, trying to soothe the enraged woman.

Cause of Big Gun Explosion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—General Crozier, chief of ordnance, has received a report saying the recent premature discharge of a ten inch disappearing gun at Fort Wetherill, Jamestown, R. I., which knocked over and seriously endangered the lives of the gun crew, was due to the premature explosion of a primer, in which a slight change had been made and without the knowledge of the officers at the fort.

Dowie's Standing Doubtful.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—The finances of Dr. John Alexander Dowie are a subject of renewed interest here. An unsuccessful attempt was made to verify a statement credited to Dowie's representative, Deacon Barnard, that the final payment had been made on the indebtedness, which some time ago resulted in the turning over of Dowie's business affairs temporarily to a committee of creditors.

Glove Manufacturer Dropped Dead.

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 17.—John M. Dougall, a prominent glove manufacturer and the first school commissioner of Fulton county, dropped dead here from heart disease, aged seventy-three years.

Murderer Admitted His Guilt.

BOISE, Ida., Dec. 17.—James Connors, the murderer of Deputy Sheriff Sweet at Blackfoot, was executed here. Connors, although he admitted his guilt, refused to make any statement.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 17, 1904

Col. W. C. Greene is a brave man—at long range

Commuters complain of cold cars. The Jersey Central should give this matter attention.

And now they talk of having Lawson indicted in New York. Another chance for Spectacular Jerome to make a gallery play.

When acting as president of the Senate, John Kean is a credit to the State he represents. It is said in Washington that he is one of the best posted men on parliamentary law now in Congress and his rulings are invariably correct.

The rebuke that Elizabeth and Plainfield gave him at the polls for his absenteeism does not seem to have had much effect on Representative Charles N. Fowler. A lengthy debate on a proposed currency measure occupied the attention of the House on Thursday but the chairman of the banking and currency committee did not participate in it. He was absent again.

Bank advertising is of comparatively recent development, but it is making rapid strides. Many banking institutions have already learned the value of imparting a seasonable turn to their "ads," and several in the West are calling attention, through the newspapers, to the desirability of giving young people a newly-started bank account as a Christmas present. The time will come when the bank which fails to advertise will be on the same footing with the merchant who neglects publicity.—Ex.

Senator Grady, a Tammany man, proposes to introduce an anti-cartoon measure at the coming session of the New York Legislature, not, we suppose, in the interest of the people but to help shield the rascals who enrich themselves unlawfully while holding public office. But if the New York newspapers have half the fearlessness displayed by the Philadelphia North American and other progressive Pennsylvania dailies, the proposed law, if enacted, will count for naught. The Quay machine, which has been built up in the Keystone State through downright robbery and bare-faced corruption, succeeded in having an anti-cartoon law passed in the Legislature and signed by the Governor but the newspapers are undaunted. The North American publishes cartoons showing up the rascals who rule and ruin the State. Prosecution was and is openly invited, that paper wishing to have an opportunity to spread on the court records the story of political rottenness. A picture is a most effective means of exposing the crookedness of public officials and the cartoons published in Pennsylvania papers have been a powerful weapon of the reform element in that State. The same situation is presented in New York and it is to be expected that the metropolitan papers will follow the example of those in Pennsylvania if the proposed bill becomes a law.

Thought Jackson Building Afire.

The men at fire headquarters received a telephone call from Rev. T. Logan Murphy at 1:30 this morning to the effect that he believed a fire was smoldering in the Jackson building, of which he is an occupant. Chief Deane and No. 2 hose wagon responding found the clergyman's fears to be groundless. An empty crate had been set on fire in front of the new Madison flats and the smoke drifted across Front street into the Jackson building. The crate fire was extinguished by burying it in snow.

An Early Morning Call.

The borough firemen were routed from their slumbers at 3 o'clock this morning by two taps on the house gongs. Electrician F. Mortimer Slater was called and discovered the trouble to be in the battery room through the breaking of a jar.

Miss Madie Hyde, of Netherwood, has returned from Wellesley College to spend the holiday season.

Captain Addison Logan, of Philadelphia, has returned home after a short visit with frinds here.

P. H. S. BASKET BALL TEAM DEFEATED BY NEWARK H. S.

PLAINFIELD BOYS ARE OUTCLASSED, THE SCORE BEING 63 TO 10.

Playing on a slippery dance floor did not agree with the Plainfield High School basketball team yesterday, and it was beaten by the Newark High School five to the tune of 63 to 10. It was more football than basketball, as a cage game was played, and the home team fouled throughout the entire contest. The scrub team was also defeated though the score was not so bad, being 33 to 13.

There were no side lines on the floor where the game was played, and the baskets were not fixed at regulation height. Thompson put up a strong game, as did also Gavett, but the superior weight and football tactics practiced by the Newark High School had their effect, and there was no time in the game when the local players had any show.

This was the line up of the first team—Thompson and Smith, forwards; Freeman, center; Gavett and Stutsman, guards. Goals from the field—Gavett, Thompson and Smith. Goals from fouls—Thompson, 4. The second team went on the floor as follows: Caldwell and Deane, forwards; Mackey, center; Fremean and Leggett, guards.

MR. LOOMIS' NEW BOOK.

Well-Known Humorist and Author Presents "More Cheerful Americans."

Under the caption, "More Cheerful Americans," Charles Battell Loomis, the well known humorist and author who resides at Fanwood, has had eighteen of his most humorous tales issued in holiday book form. They are in the vein of the author's popular "Cheerful Americans" and are illustrated with twelve equally humorous pictures, six of them by Florence Scovel Shinn. To these is appended a delightful satirical paper on "How to Write a Novel for the Masses."

In these stories Mr. Loomis again displays his kindly satire and often a vein of deeper feeling. The locale of two savors very much of the pretty borough in which the author resides and makes the entire series of especial interest to Plainfielders. The book is put out by Henry Holt & Co., of New York.

—Miss Nettie Krietling, of West Front street, has taken a position as typewriter and stenographer in the law offices of Frederick Huff, Esq.

—The contract case of A. M. Griffen against Joseph B Loughead which was brought up at Justice Smalley's court yesterday is continued until a day is agreed upon by council. Frederick J. Huff represents the defendant.

Miss Florence Cumming, of Putnam avenue, is confined to her home with illness.

NEWS FROM PORT ARTHUR.

Sinking of Russian Ships Confirmed. Fortress Can Hold Out.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—A Chefu report says that seven Russians in civilian garb, but with a military training obvious in their bearing, have arrived there in an open sailboat carrying dispatches.

General Stoessel, the Russian military commander at Port Arthur, according to a dispatch this morning, has again been wounded, this time by a rifle bullet. The wound is said not to be serious.

A short time ago General Stoessel was wounded in the head by a splinter from a shell while he was personally directing the repulse of a Japanese attack.

They were unwilling to talk and went immediately to the Russian consulate. A high wind enabled them to make a quick passage from Port Arthur.

Passengers who arrived there from the Kwangtung peninsula confirm Japanese reports of the sinking of Russian warships at Port Arthur.

Three steamers in the last fortnight laden with ammunition and provisions ran the blockade of Port Arthur, and there are high hopes that the fortress will hold out for many months.

Advices from Russian headquarters at Mukden say that there is considerable desultory firing on both sides. The Japanese made an advance, but it proved to be only a demonstration.

Night sorties continue. A curious melee resulted from a simultaneous advance of both Russians and Japanese. Two columns of Japanese, taking advantage of the darkness, advanced on Russian positions, and at the same time a Russian column set out for the village of Nanganza. The Russian column heard the Japanese firing in the direction of their base and thought they had been discovered, but held Nanganza while sappers mined and then retired. The Japanese re-entered the village, where they were greeted with a tremendous explosion, which killed many of them. In the meantime two Japanese columns operating in the direction of the Russians heard the explosion and thought they had been outflanked, whereupon they retired. The Japanese and Russians met as each side was returning. Both were utterly surprised. A hand to hand scuffle in the darkness ensued, but as it was impossible to distinguish friend from foe probably little damage was done on either side. The Russian loss was only one.

Fourteen Russian scouts penetrated to the village of Fanshen, where they destroyed a Japanese signal tower and carried off an old bell which had been used by the Japanese soldiers to signal with.

PHILIPPINE BILL PASSED.

Senate Exempts All Bonds of Colonies From Taxation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The senate by a vote of 44 to 23 has passed the Philippine civil government bill. The final vote was preceded by the presentation of many amendments and a general discussion of them as well as of the provisions of the bill.

The most notable change made during the day was the lowering of the rate of interest on railroad bonds to be guaranteed by the Philippine government from 5 to 4 per cent.

The bill as passed exempts from taxation all bonds issued by the Philippine and Porto Rican governments; authorizes municipalities in the Philippines to incur a bonded indebtedness amounting to 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of their property at 5 per cent interest; authorizes the Philippine government to incur a bonded indebtedness of $5,000,000 for improvements at 4½ per cent interest; authorizes the Philippine government to guarantee the payment of interest on railroad bonds at the rate of 4 per cent per annum; provides for the administration of the immigration laws by the Philippine authorities; establishes a system for the location and patenting of mineral, coal and saline lands; fixes the metric system for the islands and gives the civil governor the title of governor general.

During the day Mr. Beveridge from the committee on territories reported the statehood bill, and he will make a motion on the first day that the senate convenes in January that the consideration of the bill shall be entered on at once.

Eva Booth's Life Work.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17. — Miss Eva Booth, the new commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, at a ratification meeting attended by 3,000 people outlined her policy. She said: "America's commercial questions, its industrial problems and its educational endeavors, will claim my deep and sincere interest, but the ingathering of the people; the uplifting of its downtrodden; the feeding of its hungry and the sheltering of its outcasts; the leading of the guilty and the sinners into the stream of pardon will claim my life."

South to Welcome Roosevelt.

DANVILLE, Va., Dec. 17.—The board of aldermen last night passed the following resolution: "Whereas, we learn with great pleasure that during the spring of 1905 that President Roosevelt contemplates visiting the south; therefore, be it resolved, that President Roosevelt be invited to visit the city of Danville during his tour and that the mayor of the city be requested to extend every courtesy to his excellency."

Cost of Revenue Collection.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Secretary Shaw has transmitted to the house a detailed estimate of the cost of collecting the internal revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906. The aggregate amount is $9,235,018.

PAUL KRUGER BURIED.

Boer and Briton Honor Remains of Ex-President.

PRETORIA, Transvaal, Dec. 17.—Thousands of burghers attended the impressive religious service prior to the burial of the body of Paul Kruger, ex-president of the South African republic. Several ministers of the Dutch churches spoke, all eulogizing the ex-president for his exemplary religious life and as a lover of his people and exhorting the Boers, while remaining loyal to the British flag, never to forget the principles of their late leader or their own language.

An immense crowd of both Britons and Boers filled the square opposite the hall to which the remains were removed after the church services. Many Boers had trekked long distances to attend the obsequies of their former leader, but Britons met men of the veldt and mingled on the friendliest terms. The Afrikander party was officially represented by deputations from Cape Colony, Orange River and Natal. At the hall speeches of eulogy were delivered by Generals Louis Botha, Schalkburger and Christian De Wet. General Botha read a letter from Mr. Kruger exhorting them to preserve the Boer national spirit. The reading of this letter created a profound impression.

Flags were half masted, bells were tolled, and under orders from King Edward minute guns were fired at the military depot. Around the grave where Mr. Kruger's body was laid beside his wife were gathered near relatives, Boer leaders and many prominent personages, including Sir Richard Solomon, representing the British government.

NEW YORK SENATORSHIP.

Governor Odell Striving to Preserve Harmony.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—"The United States senatorship has not been settled. There will be more conferences. I am striving to preserve harmony in the party and am testing the sentiment in the state."

This was all that Governor Odell would say regarding the New York senatorship and the conference of Republican leaders at the Republican club. In effect the governor's statement refutes the reports that he has at last come out openly for ex-Governor Frank S. Black as against Senator Depew.

Nevertheless, the preponderance of testimony is that Mr. Black has the inside track at the present time and will be elected.

WHAT IS WORN.

A New Model For the Walking Skirt. Some Pretty Fur Hats.

A new cloth walking skirt is cut circular, has a seam up the front and back and fits beautifully smooth over the hips. It is very wide at the feet and swings out in a graceful, easy fashion at the bottom, which makes walking in such a skirt a positive pleasure. It is, as are all the skirts of the season, unlined.

All materials used this season are souple, and many of them are silky in surface, whether in cloth, panne velvet, cashmere or silk.

Fur hats to be worn en suite with boa and muff are often a combination of fur and lace. The lace making the brim is edged with a band of fur, the crown being of the skin. At one side are arranged numberless little claws and tails, put up high and held in place by a tiny fur head or two.

A new fancy of the season is to hang the miniature, lorgnette or pendant on an inch wide piece of moire ribbon instead of from a plain or jeweled chain. The ribbon is either tied in the back in a bow or fastened with a gold clasp.

The exquisite wrap illustrated is of Persian lamb, built on the lines of the dolman. Bretelles of handsome braid caught with Persian ornaments are the shoulder trimmings. At the waist the braid forms a girdle with long pendants. The muff and neck piece are of beautifully marked chinchilla.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

TO REMODEL SLEEVES.

The Clever Woman May Have New Ones With Little Trouble.

Women with lots of last year's sleeves on their hands, the kind that puff in an exaggerated fashion at the wrist, need not despair, for these very bouffant affairs may be brought up to date by turning them in a deft way upside down. The process is an easy one. Simply rip up the sleeve, and if the fullness at the top will admit of being transformed into a cuff lay the extra material into tucks up to the elbow.

If a sleeve has an equal amount of fullness down its entire length a smart way of fixing it over is to shirr it into puffs at intervals to the wrist. Where braid or ribbon trims the waist or gown to which the sleeves belong the effect is very good to tie a band fastened with a bow between each puff.

Another satisfactory way is to shirr a full sleeve up the middle in several lines until a few inches from the top, where the material is allowed to fall loose in butterfly effect.

Evening elbow length sleeves in a certain style of frock may be fashioned after the watteau models by making them tight fitting to the elbow and there finishing them with a fall of lace which should widen out at the elbow.

The illustration shows a waist adapted to meet the winter's sleeve requirements. It is made of chestnut brown silk, the yoke tucked in sun ray effect and finished about the shoulder with a band of corded silk. Above this is a stitched band of the material, which also trims one side of the front. Brown lace and a row of tiny gold buttons make a pretty neck finish. The sleeve is plaited in at the arm's eye and gathered into a corded cuff.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

The New Woman

What She Is Saying, Thinking and Doing

Among the few flashes of light through the darkness of the war in the orient is the work of Mme. Varia Stoessel at Port Arthur. When her husband was ordered to the command of the fortress which he said would be his tomb Mme. Stoessel went too. Civilians at length left; women and children were ordered to go too. The commander's wife remained to help the wounded, sick and suffering common soldiers in the Russian stronghold. Of her own free will she took charge of the ambulance service, directing the disposition of all who were conveyed to the hospitals. She even went to the exposed portions of the forts and tended with her own hands those who were wounded. When she was doing this one day a fragment of shell struck the Port Arthur angel, injuring her in the shoulder. Then she herself had to be lifted tenderly into one of those ambulances whose journeys about the forts she had so often superintended, and she was conveyed, hurt and bleeding, to an army hospital. No misfortune that had overtaken the fortress in all the dreary months of the siege spread through it such grief and gloom as the wounding of Mme. Stoessel. Mme. Stoessel upon her couch in the hospital was told of this despondency and sorrow among the common soldiers. It touched her to the heart, and it also inspired her to do a braver act than any she had yet done. In five days after the shell had struck her shoulder she rose from her bed and caused herself to be dressed in her usual garments and taken from post to post through the fortress. The men, seeing her once more, cheered and wept, while many of them kissed her garments.

A strange study in psychology is that California girl who declares herself a born tomboy. She is uncommonly intelligent and has a high school education, yet naturally detests and loathes the indoor trifles girls are usually trained to, naming particularly "fancy work and piano practice." On the other hand, all the athletic sports and active outdoor employments of boys were the breath of life to her. Swimming and horse breaking were two of her specialties. At length, when seventeen, she cut her hair short, dressed herself as a boy and ran away from home to seek her fortune. She readily found employment as a cabin boy on a steamer, as cowboy and broncho breaker and finally as a muleteer in Mexico. She dressed as a boy because thus she could in safety and without annoyance do the things she craved to do and exploit her ideals, such as they were.

The Japs present the finest example today of willing, thinking and doing. They have the confidence that they can do anything they desire to do, which is at least two-thirds of the battle. Why should not woman in her way follow their example? If a girl must earn her bread, let her stir her thinkers and devise new ways to get a living or to improve on old ways. This she can always do. To the woman who wills and uses her brains success is sure.

Experience, observation, books — these three in this order of importance are our sources of knowledge.

Who is the old woman? Only the woman who cannot learn things—she who settles down like a cat upon a cushion and dozes through the years. One who is always learning can never grow old.

Train yourself to keep your troubles to yourself. Don't pour them out upon acquaintances or strangers. It isn't their fault if you have troubles, and they don't want to hear of yours because they have so many of their own. And, besides, here is a point to consider—if you insist on telling other people of your grievances they will at length come to dislike and shun you, because thereby you prevent them from telling their troubles.

A man asks this question in a newspaper: "Is a woman as able to hang on to a car strap as a tired man returning from business?" What do you think?

A pleasant incident happened lately at an English educational conference. The president of the conference was Rev. H. B. Gray of Bradfield college. Mr. Gray said in his address that the British had much to learn from the Americans in regard to coeducation of the sexes. He himself had carefully examined the system in America and found its effects, both moral and social, very gratifying.

At the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Columbia university, New York, there was dedicated to the use of Columbia's girl students for the next century a women's gymnasium that cost $400,000. Its purpose is the physical education of the feminine sex, primarily of teachers of physical culture, but incidentally of all who seek its advantages. It is owing to physical culture that American women have, as is conceded, the most nearly perfect figures of any of their sex.

D'ri and I

"Oh, I perceive! I understand," said she; "and I send him away to-morrow."

"Neck's broke with hunger," said D'ri. "Never threw no vittles 'n my basket with sech a splendid taste tew 'em es these hev."

The baroness looked at him with some show of worry.

"I beg your pardon," said she, "did you say the neck of you was broken?"

I explained the idiom.

"Ain't hed nothin' t' eat sin' 'fore yistiddy," said D'ri. "Jedes Priest! I 'm all et up with hunger."

With old Burgundy and biscuit and venison and hot coffee he was rapidly reviving.

"I 'm wondering where I will hide you both," said the baroness, thoughtfully.

"Hed n't orter hev no rumpus here, 'n' go t' shootin' 'n' mebbe spile yer house 'n' furnicher," said D'ri. "'T ain't decent er 't ain't nice. We'd better mek tracks an' put a mile er tew 'twixt us 'n' here 'fore we hev any trouble. 'T ain't a-goin' t' be no Sunday school. Ef they can, they 're a-goin' t' tek us dead er 'live. Ef they ever tuk us we would n't be wuth shucks, nuther on us, efter court-martial."

"I shall not permit you to go," said the baroness. "They may be here now, about the house in the dark. They would shoot you, they would stab you, they would cause you to die as you went. No, I shall permit you not to go. There are four of them? Very well; we shall fight here, we shall conquer. We have a general, a count, a millionaire, a marquis, a lawyer, an astronomer, a scout and," she added, patting me on the shoulder, "le brave capitaine! I have four guns and three pistols, and M'sieur Bell has arms also. We shall conquer. We shall make them bite the dust."

"Guns, did ye say? Jerushy Jane! Le' 's hev 'em," said D'ri.

"What did he call me? Mon Dieu! Jerushy Jane! It is not I," said the baroness.

Again I explained the difficulty.

"Ain't very proper-spoke," said D'ri, apologetically. "Jest wan' t' say et them air guns er likely t' come handy here 'most any minute. Give us guns, 'n' we 'll sock it to 'em."

"We shall sock it to them, we shall indeed," said she, hurrying out of the room. "We shall make them to run for their lives."

They were all in the dining room—the men of the party—save the general, who could not be awakened. Guns and pistols were loaded. I made a novel plan of defense that was unanimously approved. I posted a watch at every window. A little after dawn the baroness, from behind a curtain, saw a squad of horsemen coming through the grove.

"Ici! they have come!" said she, in a loud whisper. "There are not four; there are many."

I took my detail of six men above-stairs. Each had a strip of lumber we had found in the shop, and each carefully raised a window, waiting the signal. I knew my peril, but I was never so cool in my life. If I had been wiser, possibly I should have felt it the more. The horsemen promptly deployed, covering every side of the mansion. They stood close, mounted, pistol and saber ready. Suddenly I gave the signal. Then each of us thrust out the strip of lumber stealthily, prodding the big drab cones on every side. Hornets and wasps, a great swarm of them, sprang thick as seeds from the hand of a sower. It was my part to unhouse a colony of the long, white-faced hornets. Goaded by the ruin of their nests, they saw the nodding heads below them, and darted at man and horse like a flight of arrows. They put their hot spurs into flank and face and neck. I saw them strike and fall; they do hit hard, those big-winged Vespae. It was terrible, the swift charge of that winged battalion of the air. I heard howls of pain below me, and the thunder of rushing feet. The horses were rearing and plunging, the men striking with their hats.

I heard D'ri shouting and laughing at his window.

"Give 'em hell, ye little blue devils!" he yelled; and there was all evidence that they understood him.

Then, again, every man of us opened his window and fired a volley at the scurrying mass.

One horse, rearing and leaping on his hind legs, came down across the back of another, and the two fell heavily in a rolling, convulsive heap. One, as if blinded, bumped a tree, going over on his withers, all fours flashing in the air. Some tore off in the thickets, as unmanageable as the wild horse. More than half threw their riders. Not a man of them pulled a trigger; they were busy enough, God knows. Not one of them could have hit the sky with any certainty. I never saw such a torrent of horsehair and red caps.

"Whut! Been on the back o' one o' 'em hosses?" said D'ri, telling of it a long time after. "'D ruther o' been shet up 'n a barrel with a lot o' cats 'n' rolled down hill. Good deal better fer my health, an' I 'd 'a' luked more like a human bein' when I come out. Them fellers—they did n't luk fit t' 'sociate with nuthin' er nobody when we led 'em up t' the house—nut one on 'em."

Only one Britisher was brought down by our bullets, and he had been the mark of D'ri; with him a rifle was never a plaything. Five others lay writhing in the grass, bereft of horse, deserted by their comrades. The smudges were ready, and the nets. D'ri and I put on the latter and ran out, placing a smudge row on every side of the Hermitage. The winged fighters were quickly driven away. Of the helpless enemy one had staggered off in the brush; the others lay groaning, their faces lumpy and one-sided. A big sergeant had a nose of the look and diameter of a goose-egg; one carried a cheek as large and protuberant as the jowl of a porker's head; and one had ears that stuck out like a puffed bladder. They were helpless. We disarmed and brought them in, doing all we could for their comfort with blue clay and bruised plantain. It was hard on them, I have often thought, but it saved an ugly fight among ladies, and, no doubt, many lives. I know, if they had taken us, D'ri and I would never have got back.

I have saved myself many a time by strategy, but chose the sword always if there were an even chance. And, God knows, if one had ever a look at our bare bodies, he would see no sign of shirking on either D'ri or me.

CHAPTER X.

The shooting and shouting and the tramp of horse and man had roused everybody in the big house. Even the general came down to know what was the matter. The young ladies came, pale and frightened, but in faultless attire. I put an armed guard by the prisoners at the door, under command of D'ri. Then I had them bare the feet of the four Britishers, knowing they could not run bootless in the brush. We organized a convoy—the general and I—and prepared to start for the garrison. We kept the smudges going, for now and then we could hear the small thunder of hornet-wings above us. There is a mighty menace in it, I can tell you, if they are angry.

"Jerushy Jane Pepper!" said D'ri, as he sat, rifle on his knee, looking at his prisoners. "Never thought nobody c'u'd luk s' joemightyful cur-us. Does mek a man humly t' hev any trouble with them air willy-come-bobs." He meant wasps.

I had had no opportunity for more than a word with the young ladies. I hoped it might come when I went in for a hasty breakfast with the baroness, the count, the general and Mr. Parish. As we were eating, Louison came in hurriedly. She showed some agitation.

"What is the trouble, my dear?" said the baroness, in French.

"Eh bien, only this," said she. "I have dropped my ring in the brook. It is my emerald. I cannot reach it."

"Too bad! She has dropped her ring in the brook," said the baroness, in English, turning to me.

"If she will have the kindness to take me there," I said to the hostess, rising as I spoke, "I shall try to get it for her."

"M'sieur le Capitaine, you are very obliging," said she. Then, turning to Louison, she added in French: "Go with him. He will recover it for you."

It pleased and flattered me, the strategy of this wonderful young creature. She led me, with dainty steps, through a dewy garden walk into the trail.

"Parbleu!" she whispered, "is it not a shame to take you from your meat? But I could not help it. I had to see you; there is something I wish to say."

"A pretty girl is better than meat," I answered quickly. "I am indebted to you."

"My! but you have a ready tongue," said she. "It is with me a pleasure to listen. You are going away? You shall not return—perhaps?"

She was trying to look very gay and indifferent, but in her voice I could detect a note of trouble. The flame of passion, quenched for a little time by the return of peril and the smoke of gunpowder, flashed up in me.

"It is this," she went on: "I may wish you to do me a favor. May I have your address?"

"And you may command me," I said as I gave it to her.

"Have a care!" she said, laughing. "I may ask you to do desperate things—you may need all your valor. The count and the baroness—they may send us back to France."

"Which will please you," I remarked.

"Perhaps," she said, quickly. "Mon Dieu! I do not know what I want! I am a fool. Take this. Wear it when you are gone. Not that I care—but—it will make you remember."

She held in her fingers a flashing emerald on a tiny circlet of gold. Before I could answer she had laid it in my hard palm and shut my hand upon it.

"Dieu!" she exclaimed, whispering, "I must return—I must hurry. Remember, we did not find the ring."

I felt a great impulse to embrace her and confess my love. But I was not quick enough. Before I could speak she had turned away and was running. I called to her, but she did not turn or seem to hear me. She and my opportunity were gone.

We stowed the prisoners in the big coach of the baroness, behind a lively team of four. Then my horse and one for D'ri were brought up.

"Do not forget," said the baroness, holding my hand, "you are always welcome in my house. I hope, ma foi! that you will never find happiness until you return."

The young ladies came not to the step where we were, but stood by the count waving adieux. Louison had a merry smile and a pretty word of French for me; Louise only a sober look that made me sad, if it did not speak for the same feeling in her. The count was to remain at the Hermitage, having sent to the chateau for a squad of his armed retainers. They were to defend the house, if, by chance, the British should renew their attack. Mr. Parish and his footman and the general went with us, the former driving. D'ri and I rode on behind as the coach went off at a gallop.

He was a great whip, that man David Parish, who had built a big mansion at Ogdensburg and owned so much of the north country those days. He was a gentleman when the founders of the proud families of to-day were dickering in small merchandise. Indeed, one might look in vain for such an establishment as his north of Virginia. This side the Atlantic there was no stable of horses to be compared with that he had—splendid English thoroughbreds, the blood of which is now in every great family of American horses. And, my faith! he did love to put them over the road. He went tearing up hill and down at a swift gallop, and the roads were none too smooth in that early day. Before leaving home he had sent relays ahead to await his coming every 15 miles of the journey; he always did that if he had far to go. This time he had posted them clear to the harbor. The teams were quickly shifted; then we were off again with a crack of the whip and a toot of the long horn. He held up in the swamps, but where footing was fair, the high-mettled horses had their heads and little need of urging. We halted at an inn for a sip of something and a bite to eat.

"Parish," said the general, rising on stiffened legs, "I like your company and I like your wine, but your driving is a punishment."

D'ri was worn out with lack of sleep and rest, but he had hung doggedly to his saddle.

"How do you feel?" I asked him as we drew up on each side of the coach.

"Split t' the collar," said he, soberly, as he rested an elbow on his pommel.

We got to headquarters at five, and turned over the prisoners. We had never a warmer welcome than that of the colonel.

"I congratulate you both," he said as he brought the rum-bottle after we had made our report. "You 've got more fight in you than a wolverene. Down with your rum and off to your beds, and report here at reveille. I have a tough job for you to-morrow."

ASTARITA WON FEATURE.

J. W. O'Neill the Only Beaten Favorite at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 17.—J. W. O'Neill was the only beaten favorite, and the fact that the colt showed soreness going to the post and that Gannon took him through the worst of the going accounted satisfactorily for his defeat. J. W. Schorr bought Lady Fonso from W. Martin at private sale for $1,000. Lady Fonso was run up to $600 and Aladdin to $300 after their races. A. Mathews, who was suspended on the last day of the local racing season in 1903-04, has been reinstated. The suspension was for ill advised remarks concerning racing officials. Summary:

First Race.—King's Trophy, first; Ranger, second; Tom Shelly, third.

Second Race.—Marco, first; Chamblee, second; Miladi Love, third.

Third Race.—Aladdin, first; Homestead, second; Barklemore, third.

Fourth Race.—Astarita, first; Highwind, second; Jake Greenberg, third.

Fifth Race.—Lady Fonso, first; George Vivian, second; Semper Vivix, third.

Sixth Race.—Janeta, first; Kitty Platt, second; Fruit, third.

W. R. Condon Won.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—Dry weather and a strong wind greatly improved the going at Oakland. Favorites did not fare well, but most of the winners received strong support. The upset came in the five furlong race, for which Glendenning was at odds on favorite. He raced with Pickaway for a time and then fell out of the running. W. R. Condon, at 10 to 1, closed fast and beat Pickaway by a neck.

Surprises at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 17.—The card at Ascot was full of surprises. Descuento, at 20 to 1; Dutiful, at 10 to 1, and Mart Gentry, at 15 to 1, causing a series of shocks to the betting public by winning their respective races. The other three events went to favorites. There were sixteen books doing business, and the crowd was large.

Football Games For Three Years.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 17.—At a conference in Charlottesville it was decided that the annual Thanksgiving day football game between the Universities of Virginia and North Carolina shall be played in Richmond for the next three years and after that shall be played alternately in Richmond and Norfolk.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Activity In Manufactures.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Manufacturing activity steadily increases, testifying to the general confidence in a heavy demand next year, and trading branches of business report seasonable conditions. Holiday goods sell more freely than staples, but all classes of merchandise are going into larger consumption, while it is the exception when there is complaint regarding mercantile collections. The proportion of idle machinery is growing smaller and the number of unemployed less, few labor disputes of significant dimensions existing outside of Fall River. Iron and steel plants are gaining steadily, footwear forwardings are running close to the large figures of last year, and irregular raw materials supply the only serious element of uncertainty in the textile industries. Farm staples are returning large profits to producers, and foreign trade returns for November showed a very small loss in exports considering the abnormal figures last year.

Receipts of 5,582,897 bushels of wheat compared with 5,691,269 for the same week a year ago, and exports from the United States, flour included, aggregated 1,390,055 bushels against 3,180,341 last year. Arrivals of corn at western cities were 6,923,708 bushels for the week against only 2,411,102 bushels in 1903, while Atlantic coast exports of 655,909 bushels compare with 503,212 bushels a year ago.

Failures for the week numbered 276 in the United States against 329 last year and 25 in Canada compared with 20 a year ago.

Princeton's President Under Knife.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17. — Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university, was operated upon yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital by Dr. Andrew J. McCosh of 16 East Fifty-fourth street. Dr. Fisher, superintendent of the hospital, said the operation was not of a serious nature, but that as Mr. Wilson was a private patient he could not speak more definitely. He said that it was successful.

BASKET BALL.

Bentley, who played Wednesday on the second team in the P. H. S. game against Whittier, is one of the most promising candidates for a position on the first team of the school. There are rumors that there is a vacancy in the position of forward and guard.

Gavett, the right guard of the P. H. S. team did his best in the game with Leal's on Wednesday to make the score higher for his team. Those fouls which he was given a chance to throw, went in with unerring accuracy. Three in succession in the first half is not a bad record.

Collier, the crack forward of the Plainfield High School basket ball team, was not in the game yesterday when they played the Newark High School. He has practically given up the game on account of his studies, though when interviewed on the subject he said that he still hoped to play.

The Business Men's team, of the Y. M. C. A., have no game arranged for Monday evening, though the first team will buck up against the strong Montclair aggregation. The Montclair team is a Y. M. C. A., and has the reputation of being one of the strongest teams in the State. In order to win this game the local players will have no room for High School confidence. They will have to be on their feet all the time.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Fanwood bowling team of the Suburban A. C. will bowl a game at Westfield tonight against the team representing that town. The two teams have rolled against each other before and are evenly matched.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Georgia Jubilee Singers will entertain with plantation and jubilee melodies, southern stories and elocution, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. this evening. A silver offering will be received.

Owing to the small attendance at the Young People's Association meeting at the First Baptist church, last night, it was impossible to hold the regular business meeting as announced, and the report of the treasurer, Harry Woodland, was the only one presented. This was read by N. Douglass Drake, president of the association, who was in charge of the meeting. There was a balance of $16 reported in the treasury.

LEAL'S SCHOOL DEFEATED BY NEWARK ACADEMY TEAM

26 TO 10 THE SCORE IN HOTLY CONTESTED BASKET BALL GAME.

Though they put up a hard fight against weight and speed, the Leal's School basketball team was defeated by the team of the Newark Academy at Newark yesterday afternoon by the score by 26 to 10. The game was a good one in spite of its one-sidedness and the local players were not by any means out of the contest. In the first half the score was 10 to 6 in the home team's favor, and it was in the second part of the game that the academy got on the run and made the greatest lead.

Jewett was the star of the contest as far as the local players were concerned. He landed six out of the ten points which the Leal team was able to get. For the Newark Academy team, McCormick was all over the floor, and put up a high exhibition of good basketball.

The following was the line up and detailed score in the contest: Leal's—Chapman and Jewett, forwards; Strong, center; Manning and Lyman, guards. Newark—McCormick and Eisele, forwards; Gordon, center; Horr and Englehard, guards. Umpire—Stiles, of Leal's. Referee—Heerdt, of Newark. Time of halves—Twenty and fifteen minutes.

DEMOCRATS ELECT.

County and City Committees Named in Two of the Four Wards.

In two of the city's four wards, local Democrats conducted primary meetings, last evening, for the purpose of electing members to the Union County Executive Commmittee and the Plainfield Democratic City Committee for 1905. Each district is entitled to one county and one city committeeman.

Quorums were not available in either the Second or Third wards and in the others the elections were as follows: First ward, First district, county committee, Joseph C. Blimm; city committee, Vincent L. France; Second district, county committee, Walter L. Hetfield; city committee, Richard Kearns; Fourth ward, for the three districts, county committee, M. R. Flynn, John F. Casey, Clinton A. Shannon; city committee, Clarence Walden, James J. Kane and John Kinlery.

P. M. General Inconsistent.

While the home of Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Morton in Washington is the scene of a brilliant gathering when women interested in the Co-operative Sewing Society are holding their Christmas bazaar, selling and raffling pretty things made for the event, among which are two dainty dolls dressed in sailor suits, one representing a boy and one a girl, given by Mrs. Roosevelt, the postoffice department is busy notifying the postmaster that he must refuse admission through the mails to the Plainfield papers if they allow another notice of a raffle for "turkeys, chickens, ducks, pigs," etc., to be inserted in their columns. We judge from this that it is all right to hold a raffle but you must not advertise the fact through the newspapers.—Dunellen Call.

Death of John O'Neill.

John O'Neill died at his home on Monroe avenue, yesterday. He was in his sixty-eighth year and leaves several sons and daughters. Funeral services will be held from his late residence Monday morning and from St. Ann's church, Hampton Junction, later.

JOB FOR FRELINGHUYSEN

Thompson Faction Man to be Governor's Personal Aide.

THE SLATE IS FIXED

Former Assemblyman Lewis to be Clerk of Chancery—Newspaper Man for Private Secretary.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Raritan, chairman of the Somerset County Republican Committee, is slated for the position of personal aide to Edward C. Stokes, when he takes office as Governor of New Jersey.

Mr. Frelinghuysen is a nephew of Frederick T. Frelinghuysen, who was United States Senator from this State from 1866 to 1869, and from 1871 to 1877. Later he became secretary of State in the cabinet of President Arthur. Joseph Frelinghuysen is the chairman of the Somerset Republican County Committee. He has had several years' experience in military matters as an officer both in the National Guard and the Spanish War.

According to the slate figured out these selections are sure:

Edward W. Gray, formerly of Newark, but now of Trenton, for private secretary; Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Raritan, Somerset County, for personal aide, and former Assemblyman Vivian M. Lewis, of Passaic, for the chancery clerkship.

Mr. Gray is a newspaper writer and for several years business manager of the Newark Advertiser. He was in charge of the literary department of the Republican State committee during the last campaign. When the last Legislature authorized the Governor to appoint a commission to inquire into the housing of the poor in the State and to recommend whatever legislation they might deem necessary on the subject, Mr. Gray was made one of the commissioners. Then when the Legislature, on the commissioner's report, passed the present tenement house law, he was appointed by Governor Murphy one of the board, created by the act of which he is still a member.

Mr. Lewis is one of Paterson's leading lawyers. He was a member of the Assemblies of 1899, 1900 and 1901, and was one of the leaders of his party in the Legislature. It is said that he has the endersement of former Governor John W. Griggs, and that his appointment would be satisfactory to the leaders of Passaic County.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION

TRINITY REFORMED MEMBERS ALSO HEAR GOOD REPORTS.

At a meeting of the leaders of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, last evening, the following officers were elected for the coming year: Superintendent, F. E. Smith; assistant, Horace J. Martin; secretary, Elias H. Bird; assistant, Chauncey F. Colthar; treasurer, H. E. Gayle; librarian, H. C. VanEmburgh; assistants, Will F. Williams, James Love, Charles Zimmer and Fred Dunavan; pianist, Miss Lillian A. Force; superintendent of primary department, Mrs. J. H. Tier; superintendent of junior department, Mrs. Sobofield; superintendent Home Department, Mrs. George Baums. The sub-committees were also appointed.

In the absence of F. E. Smith, Horace J. Martin presided and heard the reports for the past year. They were given by the secretary, treasurer and others and showed a decided gain in all departments.

Miss Mabel Wilson, who recently attended the State Sunday-school convention at Burlington as a delegate, made an address on the proceedings. She spoke in particular of the graded school system as it was spoken there and as a result a committee was appointed to investigate the matter thoroughly with a view to introducing it locally.

C. E. Anniversary.

In place of the regular service at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, this morning, the hour was given up to the observance of the twelfth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society, which included reports, special music and other interesting exercises. Charles Nagle, as secretary of the Senior Society, read the reports for the senior, junior and intermediate departments. Rev. Mr. Shaw conducted a Bible reading on the subject of "Baptism."

EXPRESS COMPANY'S BIG HOLIDAY RUSH

MANAGER MILLS' CORPS WORKING OVERTIME JUST NOW.

The holiday rush is now in full swing at the local office of the United States Express Company, and Manager E. W. Mills and his large corps of assistants is kept busy from early morning until late at night receiving and delivering the large shipments that are received on nearly every local train. In addition a special express car is received here early every morning and just now this car is taxed to the limit of its capacity.

Mr. Mills has a force of eighteen men, including some extra help for the holiday season, and eight express wagons. Besides he has arranged to engage two large vans from William Hand & Sons, of East Second street, to get the express matter out on time. Mr. Mills states that after Monady night he will keep his office open until after the holidays. Persons who have packages to be sent away should leave them at the express office as early as possible to ensure delivery on time. The company is furnishing neat little pasters for use on holiday packages, sent away as gifts. These pasters inform the recipient not to open the package until Christmas.

The express business at the local office is far ahead of that of last year, the reciepts being much larger. In addition to working night and day it will be necessary for the entire force to work on Sundays, especially a week from tomorrow, Christmas Day, Mr. Mills hopes that by another year he will be able to introduce the automobile express service here and thus give patrons even quicker delivery than at present.

Three Barn Lodgers Captured.

In a raid made by Marshals Smalley and Flack, Thursday night, Charles Williams, Oscar Vaughn and John Traynor were taken from the barn on the French property, which shiftless characters use as a lodging house during the winter. When arraigned before Recorder Doud, last night, Williams was warned to stay on the city side of the brook, Vaughn was "chased" to Newark, where he came from, and Traynor was given ten days. The barn has been a congregating place for drunks and the borough police propose to break up the practice.

Settle Contract Case.

The legal dispute existing between William H. Kirch, the contractor, and Mrs. Catherine Totten, over a contract, which was not executed, was finally settled yesterday, when Mrs. Totten transferred to Mr. Kirch the deeds to land on Randolph road, 50x140, given in consideration of $500, which Mr. Kirch claims was his loss on the contract which he was not permitted to execute.

PRELIMINARY STEPS TO FORM A MEN'S CLUB

CALL EXTENDED BY FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH COMMITTEE.

For the purpose of uniting and interesting the men of the First Baptist church a preliminary meeting for men will be held in the Sunday-school room of the church this evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. James A. Francis, formerly of Boston, has promised to be present and address the meeting.

It is the desire of Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the church, that a men's organization be formed for the purpose of promoting friendly relations among the members and to assist in the church work. The call for tonight's meeting has been sent out by Charles W. McCutchen, George A. Chapman, Dr. Norman H. Probasco, John G. McLaughlin and J. Herbert Case, as a committee on organization.

During the past year or so many of the local churches have organized men's associations and they have been very successful, having a tendency to hold and interest the men in the work of the church. At times prominent men are secured to address these organizations and then there are social gatherings. At the meeting in the First Baptist church tonight an outline of the organization will be presented and steps towards completing the same taken.

CRESCENT CO., U. R., K. OF P., TO GO TO PORT CHESTER

LOCAL KNIGHTS TO INSTALL NEW COMPANY ON JANUARY 7.

At a special meeting of the officers Saturday, Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K., of P., formally accepted an invitation from Port Chester Lodge, No. 33, of Port Chester, N. Y., to install a new uniformed rank in that city on Saturday evening, January 7. The Plainfield organization will have entire charge of the initiatory work and rehearsals are to commence at once in order to be thoroughly proficient in every part.

The event will be a noteworthy one in the history of Port Chester Lodge, which has visited this city on numerous occasions, and it has invited uniformed companies from all along the Hudson river to be in attendance. A parade will take place in the early part of the evening and a banquet will follow the installation.

David Bowden, Councilman J. Stephen Higham and John P. Hall comprise the committee to complete arrangements on the local end and they have planned to have every Crescent Company member in attendance.

JUBILEE SINGERS.

Southern Troupe Entertained Large Audience at Y. M. C. A. Saturday Night.

Southern songs, recitations and plantation and jubilee melodies, by the Georgia Jubilee Singers entertained a large audience at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night.

The programme consisted of five plantation songs, sung by the entire company, together with a number of solos, quartettes and recitations. All of the performers were finished and artistic in style, and their voices blended well. Especially commendable was the quartette in the comic song sketch, "The Manager In Trouble." The sketch portrayed vividly the troubles of a stage manager in trying to secure a soprano singer. There were several other musical sketches all of which were well rendered. The same artists furnished music at the men's Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon and sang two sacred selections in a pleasing manner.

A Possible Fracture.

Mrs. Mary O'Reilly, of Pearl street, is detained at home with a very severe injury to her left wrist the result of a fall on some snow and ice nearly opposite her home. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, who is in attendance, is inclined to believe that the bone is fractured.

ASSAULTED MAN IS DEAD

F. D. Cramer Succumbs to Attack of Brother-in-Law.

ASSAILANT IS GONE

Jacob Flomefelt Defends His Sister, Who Was Brutally Treated.

Frank D. Cramer, who was attacked by his brother-in-law, Jacob Flomerfelt, at his home at North Branch three days ago, died yesterday from his injuries. Frank Cramer was the brother of former Assemblyman George Cramer. He was until recently a prosperous business man who conducted a large coal and lumber business and a creamery at North Branch.

The assault, which was the culmination of the domestic troubles of the Cramer family, occurred in the kitchen of the Cramer homestead at an early hour in the morning. Cramer was present at a sportsmen's dinner at a prominent hotel the night before the fracas. He arrived at North Branch on an early morning train. He was quarrelsome at the breakfast table and abused his wife.

Seated at the table was his brother-in-law, Jacob Flomerfelt, whose presence in the Cramer family had been a mystery to the residents of North Branch. Flomerfelt, who is sixty-five years old, was formerly a prosperous farmer in Bedminster township. He left his farm and took up his residence at the Cramer homestead, where he performed the work of a common farm hand about the place. It was rumored that he had made this sacrifice to protect his sister from cruel treatment.

When Flomerfelt left the breakfast table and went to the barn, Cramer was still in an ugly mood. According to Flomerfelt's statement of what happened after the scene at the breakfast table, he was startled by hearing his sister's cries for help as she ran toward the barn. He ran to her assistance. Flomerfelt says that he was aware that Cramer always carried a set of brass knuckles and a revolver, and he had frequently threatened to kill any man who interfered in his domestic affairs.

He had provided himself with a set of brass knuckles with a sharp blade about an inch long. As he entered the house he put on the brass knuckles. He found Cramer and his daughter circling around the kitchen table.

Cramer attacked him, he says, as he entered. Mrs. Cramer and her daughter fled from the house and left the men fighting in the kitchen. Cramer was a powerful man, and Flomerfelt, who was twenty years his senior, was not a physical match for his big antagonist.

He fought frantically with his brass knuckles, which were effective weapons. He continued to fight until Cramer was stretched almost lifeless on the floor, with one of his eyes cut out and twenty-seven wounds about his head and face.

Then the elder man left his victim and journeyed four miles to the county seat and gave himself up to the authorities. He made a straightforward statement of the whole affair to County Prosecutor Griggs and told him of the domestic troubles of the Cramers. Flomerfelt wanted to return to his sister to render her any assistance that he could to her in her trouble.

He was released for this purpose, with the understanding that he would return and give himself up when wanted. Flomerfelt returned to the Cramer residence and worked about the place until noon yesterday, when Cramer's condition became critical.

Flomerfelt has disappeared. Dr. William Long, County Coroner, went to the Cramer residence today and began an inquest. He impanelled a jury of six men selected from the village, who viewed Cramer's body. The affair has caused no animosity between the Cramer and Flomerfelt families. It is the wish of the family of the dead man to keep the case out of the courts.

Van Ness Case to Go Over.

The city's case against "Count" J. K. VanNess was called in the city court this morning but he failed to respond. His counsel, W. S. Angleman, declared he is detained at home by illness and the matter will be formally adjourned by Mayor Jenkins this afternoon.

The citizens of the borough are awakening to the fact that there are only a few days remaining before the evening of the 20th when taxes become delinquent and the collector reports that receipts are increasing daily.

FIRE AT WASHINGTONVILLE.

Horse Kicks a Lamp Causing a $7,000 Loss.

Philip Acker, of Somerset street, lost his farm house and barn and two wagon houses as well as a hog pen at Washingtonville by fire early yesterday morning. A horse kicked a lantern held by Mrs. J. S. Higgins, wife of the tenant, and a blaze started. The flames spread rapidly and two horses, two cows, four hogs and over 100 chickens perished.

The farm wagons and all implements as well as the feed were entirely destroyed. The farm house was soon enveloped in flames and nothing was saved. The entire loss was $5,000 on the house and barn, and the insurance amounts to $2,100. The stock and furniture was valued at $2,000 and it was not insured.

'PLAINS BAPTISTS' CALL

Rev. Moore Smith to Succeed Rev. Gideon M. Shott.

CAME FROM SCOTLAND

New Minister to Enter Upon His Duties on January 1—His Career.

The members of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, at a congregational meeting held yesterday after the morning service, voted unanimously to ratify the action of the church meeting two weeks ago when a call was extended to Rev. Moore Smith, of Glasgow, Scotland, to become the regular pastor of the church. A. D. Beeken acted as chairman of the meeting.

Rev. Dr. McBride, of the Home Missionary Society, who recommended Rev. Moore Smith to the pastorate of the church, was present and he said that he believed the church would always feel under obligations to him for making it possible to secure such an able minister and pastor, one who is peculiarly qualified for the position. It is believed that Mr. Smith will accept the call and will enter upon his new charge January 1.

Rev. Dr. McBride gave a brief sketch of Mr. Smith and his work. He said that for several years he had been assistant to Rev. Dr. John Robinson in Scotland and had been a resident of this country about a year. During that time he had filled various pulpits with satisfaction. He also read a letter of farewell and recommendation from the North of Ireland Baptist Association, where Mr. Smith had worked for many years.

Mr. Smith came here originally to give a series of lectures, being particularly brilliant on the subject of Irish poetry. He liked this country so well that he decided to remain here.

DR. WHITNEY'S SISTER DIES IN HER 85TH YEAR

SCHOLARLY WOMAN PASSES AWAY AFTER SIX WEEKS ILLNESS.

Following an illness of about six weeks, Miss Sarah M. Whitney passed away this morning at the home of her brother, Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, of First place. She was in her eighty-fifth year and was quite well known in Plainfield, having lived with her brother from the time that he first came to the city.

Miss Whitney was an accomplished student and a noted linguist. At one time she was connected with Hackettstown Collegiate Institute when Dr. Whitney was president, and had entire charge of the French, Spanish and Japanese students. Most of her life was spent in Washington, D. C., but during the entire Civil War she was at Mobile, Ala., and she encountered many varied experiences through military operations at the place. For the past few years she had been an invalid but her trials were borne uncomplainingly and at all times she exhibited her depth of Christian feeling.

The funeral services and interment will be at the convenience of the family.

Miss Colton is Dead.

Miss Lydia Colton, for many years a resident of 69 Grove street, died this morning at the home of her brother at LeRoy, Pa., where she had been living for three months. She had been ill for several years. Miss Colton was a niece of the late Mrs. Mitchell, of the borough. She was an active member of the Holy Cross church. The body will be brought here, arriving at South Plainfield tomorrow night. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

In Honor of His Natal Day.

Gerardan Green, of West Fourth street, acted as host for twenty-four of his young friends Saturday afternoon in honor of his birthday. The children played appropriate games and concluded their enjoyment by taking part in a supper.

SAD HOMECOMING AWAITS FATHER OF DARLING BOY

NOT YET AWARE OF HALLOWE'EN FATALITY.

It will not be a merry Christmas this year for Henry P. Darling, of Westfield, who is now on a steamship returning from South Africa that is expected to arrive at New York on Friday of next week. He is the father of fifteen-year-old Jack Darling, who was shot and instantly killed by Harold M. Wilcox, a wealthy manufacturer, on October 31 last while participating in a Hallowe'en prank on the latter's lawn. Mr. Darling is unaware of his son's fate, it having been learned that the letters sent to him failed to reach him.

The father of the dead boy is in the employ of a New York firm of cotton brokers, and sailed for South Africa several weeks before his son was killed. He made preparations to be at home in time for the holidays, expecting to enjoy Christmas with his wife and boy. Mrs. Darling has arranged to have the news broken to her husband by a friend of the family. The father took great pride in his son, and was anticipating a bright future for him. The boy with several companions was playing on the Wilcox lawn when Wilcox fired a shot at the group. Darling fell dead with a bullet in his neck. Wilcox is under bail on a charge of manslaughter.

DR. CHAMBLISS EXPRESSES AN IMPRESSIVE THOUGHT

PEOPLE CEASE TO LIVE WHEN THEIR USEFULNESS IS OVER.

An impressive thought expressed by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss in his sermon at the First Baptist church, yesterday morning, was that when a person ceases to be of some use in this world that person ceases to live. The pastor was referring to the fact that oftentimes when persons grow old and appear to be of little use and they are laid aside, so to speak, it is wondered why they continue to live. The pastor said that Christ has no shelf upon which to lay his instruments, because he is never through with them.

"He does not always want his people to be in the thick of the battle," said Dr. Chambliss, "but sometimes he wants them to be heroes in suffering, yet they are none the less His soldiers. History pays little attention to the individual. How many of our names will be written or spoken of fifty years from now. The next generation will treat this one exactly as this generation has treated the last one, yet the noble deeds and exemplary Christian lives of those now living will always exert their influence. There are so many persons willing to contribute to this or that object provided their names are mentioned, but to be nothing for the sake of the many is Christianity, and this does not mean to have ones name emblazoned on a memorial window. Not the world for me, but myself for the world is the true Christian spirit."

SENATE CAUCUS.

Joseph Cross to be Named for President.

Tonight's caucus of the Republican members of the State Senate, which will be held at Trenton, is not likely to be overly lively, because the principal officers have been agreed upon and the others will be left to the steering committee. Joseph Cross, of Elizabeth, will be nominated for president, and Senator William J. Bradley, of Camden, will be made chairman of the caucus and party leader on the floor.

Howard Tyler, of Cumberland, who was the assistant secretary of the last Senate under Senator Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic City, is slated for promotion to the secretaryship.

EXPIRES IN HIS SADDLE

Huntsman Falls Dead Near Hillside Golf Course.

WAS GOING TO CHASE

Victim Was W. D. Phillips, Head of Big Chemical Concern and Popular New York Clubman.

Through a blood clot forming on his brain, William D. Phillips, of Glen Brook, near Stamford, Conn., president of the Phillips Chemical Company, and a popular New York clubman, died in his saddle, Saturday afternoon, as he and several other members of the Watchung Hunt Club were passing near the Hillside Golf grounds on the way to Oak Tree. He was chatting with one of the party when the reins dropped from his hands and he fell from his horse into the road. His prostrate form was picked up and carried to the old Mellick farm house nearby and Dr. Carman was summoned. The physician declared after an examination that death had been instantaneous and that it had occurred before he reached the ground.

Mr. Phillips was forty-three years old and was one of the original members of the club though he had never before participated in any of its weekly cross country gallops. The run Saturday was to have started from Oak Tree and the party was on the way to join other members when the fatality occurred. He was to all appearances in unusually good health and spirits and the only cause advanced for the clot is that excitement over the impending case led to the bursting of a blood vessel. He left his New York office at noon in company with a near friend, Mr. White, who was behind him when he fell. The latter took charge of the body and had it removed to A. M. Runyon & Son's parlors.

In addition to being president of the Phillips Chemical Company, he was one of its directors. The concern has offices and works in Glen Brook and also offices in New York on Pearl street. He was unmarried and belonged to a large number of New York's best known clubs, among them being the New York Athletic, the Manhattan, the Reform and the Underwriters, also the American Geographical and the American Chemical Societies and the Board of Trade and Transportation.

Outside the metropolis, he held membership in the Weeburn and Hillandale Golf Clubs and the Suburban Clubs. He leaves but one brother, Dr. Alfred N. Phillips, one of the best known physicians in New York city.

BRIDGE LUMBER FOUND HIDDEN IN ITALIANS' BARN

FREEHOLDER FINDS MISSING PROPERTY AFTER LONG SEARCH.

Performing a little "detective" work on his own account, Freeholder William Demler, of Somerset County, last week discovered what had become of all the old lumber and planking taken from the Mountain avenue bridge over Green brook, torn down to make way for a new structure. It had been piled up on one side of the road awaiting to be disposed of at auction but when prospective buyers called to look it over, it had disappeared.

Freeholder Demler instituted search and at last discovered the missing boards hidden away in a stable at the Italian colony on Hunter avenue. All the residents denied putting it here and as yet the thief or thieves have not come forward. It is understood that the culprit has been seeking through friends to make a settlement at a price far beyond the value of the lumber. Nearby residents who have suffered greatly from the depredations of the colony believe that an arrest in this matter would be preferable to a settlement.

Burned by Steam.

By the bursting of a steam pipe at his home Saturday morning, Isaac Houston, of West Front street, was badly burned about the face and head. He was repairing a slight leak in the pipe and was directly over it when the scalding vapor enveloped him.

Narrowly Escaped Pneumonia.

City Judge William N. Runyon, who was taken suddenly ill last Friday, has been recovering steadily and expects to be out tomorrow. His sickness was caused by a severe cold and his physician declares he had a narrow escape from pneumonia.

STOESSEL TO CZAR

Russian Commandant of Port Arthur Undaunted Still.

JAPAN PAID DEAR FOR METER HILL

"We Threw Back Japanese at Point of Bayonet Many Times," Says the Report, "but Enemy Have Gained Crest of Visokai."

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Advices from St Petersburg give General Stoessel's latest report to the emperor. He says:

"I beg to inform your majesty that after an increased bombardment the Japanese, in spite of great losses, have effected by their perseverance a passage between two forts on the northeastern front of Port Arthur.

"On Nov. 23 the Japanese suddenly hurled themselves against several works on this front and seized a portion of the trenches, but they were thrown back by the reserves after a fierce bayonet struggle. They returned to the assault at midnight and again occupied a part of the trenches, but were annihilated by our bayonets. At 2 o'clock in the morning all was over, and your majesty's heroic troops were able to rest and start repairing the damage caused by the bombardment.

"From the 20th to the 24th the Japanese lost more than 2,000 men. All our troops behaved as heroes. The following especially distinguished themselves: Generals Kondratenko, Nikitin and Gorbatowsky and Lieutenant Colonel Naoumenko.

"On the 26th the Japanese began to bombard and attack fiercely the forts on the northeastern front and the advanced trenches. The trenches repeatedly changed hands. Nevertheless, on the night of 26th we threw back the Japanese at the point of the bayonet. The enemy succeeded in blowing up the parapet of one of the forts and began building parallels there. At another fort on the same night they laid sacks along the rampart, but our artillery dispersed them. Toward 10 o'clock in the evening the Japanese attacked a battery on our left flank in considerable strength and at first obtained possession of a portion of the works, but our heroes brought bayonets into use, and the Japanese retired, leaving a heap of their slain. The Japanese reopened a violent fire against the interior of the fortress on the morning of Nov. 27.

"The help which God sent us on the birthday of our mother, the czarina, gave us further victory.

"Since Nov. 27 the Japanese have been carrying on a violent bombardment and making incessant assaults in considerable force against Visokai (Two Hundred and Three Meter) hill.

"The twelve days' assault, which commenced on Nov. 20, was definitely repulsed on Dec. 12. I am happy to say that your majesty's heroic troops alone could have been capable of doing this. There has never been such a fierce assault.

"At 7 o'clock in the morning the Japanese, having concentrated all their forces, began an assault of Visokai (Two Hundred and Three Meter) hill, bombarding it simultaneously with eleven inch and sixteen inch shells. A fierce fight raged all day. We repelled three assaults.

"Toward evening the Japanese succeeded in obtaining possession of the crest of the hill and immediately got two machine guns into position thereon.

"Among the wounded are General Tserpinsky and Lieutenant Colonel Boutonssoff of the frontier guards. Colonel Irrmann performed prodigies of valor.

"Since the capture of Visokai hill our ships in the harbor have been suffering from eleven inch Japanese shells.

"General Tserpinsky has succumbed to his wounds.

"The spirits of the troops are excellent."

A Chefu dispatch says that Commander Mizzeneoff, executive officer of the battleship Poltava up to the time the vessel was disarmed and who, as already told, headed the party of seven Russians who left Port Arthur in a sailboat on Dec. 15 and after extreme suffering while crossing in a driving snowstorm arrived here, bearing dispatches, when interviewed said:

"Since the Japanese began their attack on High hill, which they call Two Hundred and Three Meter hill, the fighting has been continuous. The steep and sandy slopes of the hill were streaked and dotted with snow when the Japanese began the battle which was destined to furnish so many deeds of heroism that they became commonplace. There was so much slaughter that even Port Arthur's war hardened veterans shuddered at the sight.

"Japanese were compelled to clamber up the slopes of the hill in many cases without firing in the face of one of the most murderous deluges ever poured from rifles and machine guns. I was there, and it seemed to me that flesh and blood would be unable to stand our fire for a minute.

"The enemy went down in squads and companies, but there were always others grimly coming forward. Their bravery was beyond praise, as was that of our own men. Sometimes the fighting was hand to hand, with the muzzles of the rifles at the breasts of the contestants, the bayonets being used as swords.

"The sides of the hill were strewn with bodies, and the snow was crimsoned with the blood of the wounded, some of whom had crawled into it, seeking in its coldness surcease for their dying agonies.

"Eventually, as in similar instances which were to follow, we retired, leaving the work of driving the enemy from the summit to the resistless guns of the neighboring forts, notably those of Liaoti mountain.

"One incident of this assault will remain forever impressed on my mind. When a Japanese standard bearer reached the summit and planted his flag a gigantic Russian corporal left his retreating comrades and, rushing back, seized the flag, which he was tearing with his hands and with his teeth when he fell pierced with several bullets.

"When the Japanese retired under an artillery fire the Russians reoccupied the summit.

"The second and third assaults were replicas of the first, although the second was the most ferocious, being nearly all hand to hand fighting, in which mercy was neither asked nor given.

"The Japanese have adopted a curious expedient which assisted them greatly in the assaults. They had prepared huge piles of wood, coal and cornstalks, which they ignited, the wind being in the faces of the Russians. The resultant fire was immense, and the flames and smoke compelled the Russians to retire.

"The red glare from this fire disclosed a ghastly picture more infernal than ever dreamed by Dante."

May Land In Japan.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 19.—It is reported here that Commander Pelem of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Rastoropny, which was recently sunk at Chefu, with others of that vessel's crew, have sailed for Vladivostok on the British steamer Nigretia. It is said that the Japanese will attempt to effect their capture.

American Hay For Russia.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—A secret order for several thousand tons of hay for export shipment has been placed with one of the leading feed firms of this city during the past few days, and circumstances point to the Russian government as the purchaser.

A CARBONDALE MAFIA.

Two Italians Arrested at Scranton For Shooting and Graft.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 19.—Two arrests were made by the police of alleged leaders of the Carbondale Mafia. One of them is John Costa of New York, who has been making monthly visits to the Italian colony and who is said to be the go between for the New York headquarters and the Carbondale branch of the Mafia, was caught after a roundup of the colony. He was found hiding under a bed in the home of a man said to be a Mafia member.

The warrant for Costa's arrest specifically charges him with shooting Pasquale Cerretti Nov. 11 last. Cerretti was a member of the organization who made threats to disclose its secrets after he had had a rupture with the officers of the body. The other man arrested is Frank Mazurka, who is accused of levying tribute on Carmen Pretro under threats to cut him and burn his house. Both prisoners are in jail.

Nuns Burned Saving Children.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 19.—Four persons were injured during a fire that caused $20,000 damage to the St. Vincent de Paul Infant asylum, a four story brick structure on Regent street, here. Through a splendid exhibition of bravery on the part of the sisters who conduct the asylum, firemen, police and volunteer life-savers every one of the 150 children in the home was rescued uninjured. Some of the rescuers, however, were severely burned. The most seriously burned were Sisters Luitgard, Mary Paul and Zacharia and Watchman John M. Henderson. All will recover. The children as soon as they were taken out were conveyed to other hospitals and neighboring residences.

Gas Tanks In Danger by Fire.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—The sash and door factory of Philip Rinn & Co., here, was destroyed by a fire that for a time threatened to spread to two large gas supply tanks of the People's Light and Coke company. Both of the tanks were full of illuminating gas, and it was only by the hardest kind of work that the firemen kept the flames from overheating the gas tanks and causing an explosion that would have brought death to hundreds of persons and destroyed every building in the vicinity. The loss is $100,000.

A Strong Strategic Point.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 19.—As a result of the selection of Port Simpson as the terminal of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, army officers in this city state that the United States government will without doubt construct a fortification opposite Port Simpson, just across the international boundary line. With a railway terminal Port Simpson would be, it is said in army circles, a wonderfully strong strategic point for Great Britain and one that cannot be overlooked by this government.

Mason Guilty of Manslaughter.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 19.—After being out sixteen hours the jury in the case of Frederick L. Mason, who has been on trial in the supreme court for a couple of weeks for killing his father-in-law, David Wilson, at the latter's home near Amber, brought in a verdict of manslaughter in the first degree yesterday morning. It being Sunday, Justice Andrews simply received the verdict and discharged the jury. Mason's defense was on the grounds of insanity, self defense and no intent.

Judge Acquitted of Drunkenness.

LAWTON, Okla., Dec. 19.—Judge E. M. Payne of Chickasha, United States commissioner, has been acquitted in the federal court at this place of the charge of drunkenness and permitting the sale of liquor in the Indian Territory. The charges were made public some time ago.

BLIZZARD ON COAST

Newport Traffic at Standstill. Worst Storm In Years.

MANY VESSELS DRIVEN ASHORE.

City Impassable on Account of Snowdrifts—Railways, Trolley Cars and Steamers Held Up by Fierce Winter Winds.

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 19.—As a result of the worst blizzard that has visited this city in many years all local traffic is practically at a standstill. The streets are impassable on account of drifts, and the fire department is unable to move its apparatus. The storm began at midnight, and from that hour until 7 o'clock in the morning the snow fell steadily.

On a level the snow is more than two feet in depth, while a strong northeast wind has piled up great drifts that block the streets. No milkmen from the country reached the city until last night.

Communication by trolley between this city and Bristol Ferry was not opened until noon, while the line between Newport and Fall River had not been opened at 9 o'clock last night.

The Fall River line steamer from New York was caught in the storm and reached here at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, five hours late.

The storm was so severe along the beach that the captain of the Brentons Reef life saving station doubled his patrols, but later, because of their suffering, was obliged to recall them. At daylight the life savers saw three barges go ashore with a tug that had tried to save them. The barges went ashore at a point just outside Seal rock, where the shore is rocky and dangerous.

Boston Reports Blizzard.

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—The storm was of blizzard severity along the southern New England coast. All wires on Cape Cod were prostrated, and there has been no communication south of Wareham by land lines. The wind blew a hurricane at Newport, R. I. The only wreck reported was at Fishers island, where the crews of a tug and three barges that had gone ashore were saved.

Fifteen Vessels Ashore.

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Dec. 19.—The tug Susie D., from Vineyard Haven, has reported that a heavy storm drove fifteen schooners anchored in the harbor on shore, while others were damaged through collisions. The damage was the heaviest since the November gale of 1898. As far as could be learned no lives were lost.

Destroyer Gregory Not Returned.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Dec. 19.—The Nixon torpedo boat Gregory started on her trial trip on Saturday. She was not back at dark, but was expected to return yesterday. She went down the Raritan bay toward Sandy Hook.

Kaiser's Opera For America.

BERLIN, Dec. 19. — Leoncavallo's New York offer for "Der Roland von Berlin," the opera which had its first presentation last week at the Royal Opera House, is from C. B. Dillingham, who has engaged Fritizi Scheff for one of the principal roles should the arrangement be concluded. Leoncavallo would like to see "Der Roland von Berlin" produced in America, but under his agreement with Sonzogno, the Milan music publisher and owner of the rights of reproduction, Mr. Dillingham's offer has had to be referred to him.

Northern Securities Lawyer Dead.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 19.—Marcus D. Grover, general counsel of the Great Northern railway, is dead at his home in this city, aged sixty-two. He was admitted to the bar and practiced law in New York, coming to St. Paul in 1887. Mr. Grover drew up the articles of incorporation of the Northern Securities company, which was designed to take over the control of the Great Northern Pacific railways, and since the institution of the antimerger litigation had given his entire attention to that case.

Life Sentence For Millard.

BALLSTON, N. Y., Dec. 19.—A verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree was returned by the jury in the Millard murder trial, and Victor Millard was sentenced to life imprisonment in Dannemora. Millard was charged with killing his wife and child at Saratoga Springs and then setting fire to his home.

Will Hold Cotton For 10 Cents.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 19.—Farmers of Twiggs, Wilkinson, Laurens and Pulaski counties, Ga., at a monster mass meeting, have decided to hold 10,000 bales of cotton, which they now have in hand, until it will bring 10 cents per pound in the market.

Students Riot at Moscow.

MOSCOW, Dec. 19.—The police and Cossacks dispersed a demonstration of 3,000 students who had assembled in the principal streets and in front of the governor's palace. Three hundred of the students were arrested, and sixty were injured.

Jansen Iron Plant to Move.

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 19.—At a meeting of the Jansen Iron company at Columbia it was decided to move the company's plant at Oxford, N. J., employing 800 hands, to Columbia. The company now has a plant at Columbia.

Clean the pavements.

When President Roosevelt crushes the system of watered stocks, life preservers will be in big demand in Wall street.

Roosevelt is said to have remarked on election day evening that he was no longer "an accident." The Democratic party will not take issue on that statement.

Do your Christmas shopping in Plainfield. If the merchant does not have exactly what you want tell him to get it for you. Save your carfare and help increase local trade.

We always thought that Dr. Lyman Abbott was a friend of the newspapers, but just think what an affliction he will cause by his utterances of yesterday—columns of space to be devoted to religious controversy.

It will be hard work to get a jury to send to the gallows the North Branch man who killed his brother-in-law, since the fatal assault was provoked by the brutal treatment of his own sister at the hands of her husband.

THE FORUM.

Cars Are Cold.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The temperature in car No. 630 the other night on Plainfield express leaving New York at 5:30 was more befitting a saw-mill than a public conveyance. Thirteen of the ventilating windows overhead were open and as the freezing air poured down on luckless passengers while the train sped along at a mile-a-minute rate made everybody in the car chilly and very uncomfortable.

High Class Wines.

In a general way my patrons know that I carry a large stock of high class wines and liquors. But even my patrons don't fully comprehend the high character of my stock. I sincerely believe that I have the most perfect collection of high class wines and liquors in America. My stock is too extensive and varied to admit at even an attempt at individual description. I don't carry any low grade of goods in stock, so that people who wish to purchase cheap, trashy stuff will save themselves disappointment and embarrassment by not calling on me. Every now and then I am asked for goods that I would not touch with a forty-rod pole. Frank Lanke.—Adv.

Campaign Expenses $2,521.

For the purpose of disposing of bills and the final business of the campaign, the Republican City Executive Committee met Saturday evening. The expenses amounted to $2,521. This was a decidedly decrease in expenses over the Presidential campaign of 1896 when the cost was nearly $4,500.

John Jensen, a former member of Pond's erecting gang, quit his position last week and has gone to Chicago to remain permanently.

Owing to a rush of orders, the usual holiday granted the employes of the Singer Company at Elizabethport, may be shortened this year to one week.

The over time at the Pond shop will continue this week. Another evidence of the "rush" was the addition of five men to the lathe department last week.

Sidney Smith, of West Second street, an employe in the Pond factory, was painfully injured Saturday, through a weight falling upon his foot. Two toes were crushed and the others were painfully bruised. He was sent to his home in a cab after the wounds had been temporarily dressed by Robert Gow.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

On account of being rushed with work at the Levering & Garrigues plant the usual half holiday on Saturday has been abandoned indefinitely and the employes will leave at 5 o'clock on Saturdays instead of 12, as formerly was the custom.

At the evening service in the Presbyterian church yesterday the lately elected officers of both the Young People's Senior and the Junior Christian Endeavor were installed by Rev. W. W. Castleberry.

Terry Ronayne, who has been lately transferred from the depot to the new signal tower, will be put back into the station today and Harry Clawman, of Bound Brook, will have full charge of the tower.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The three weeks' revival meetings which have been held by Rev. George W. Coons, of Boston, in the Methodist church, were brought to a close last night. The work, which has no doubt been hampered somewhat by the weather, has been a most successful one, for several years the village has been without any special awakening in the work of the churches. Rev. Mr. Coons, who is the father of the pastor, the Rev. Warren D. Coons, has preached short but pointed heart to heart sermons to his audience, doing away with the old style protracted meetings. Special music was introduced at the services and this was another pleasant feature of the meetings. A number have been converted and will shortly be taken into the church. Mr. Coons during his stay here made many friends, who sincerely regret his departure, to carry on the work in other fields.

Rev. Dr. McBride, district secretary of the Baptist Home Missionary Society, occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church Sunday morning. Dr. McBride, who is a forceful as well as interesting speaker, preached a masterly sermon, choosing for his text, "What are we to do with the foreigner in America?" During his remarks told of the work being done at home to Christianize the foreign element who arrive daily at the American shore, many among them being so illiterate, that they do not even know there is such a thing as the Bible. The Doctor said if America did not Christianize this element it would soon demoralize the country. At the close of the sermon the annual collection for the work was taken.

Gray Brothers, the local breeders of fancy poultry, lost one of their Inter-State Fair and Herald Square prize winning bantams several days ago. The laurels the little fellow had won made him believe he was the only bird in the yard. One of the older birds disputed his authority and the bantam was injured so badly that it had to be killed.

The Suburban bowling team, accompanied by a large following of rooters, went to Westfield Saturday night and defeated the Saturday Night Bowling team three straight games. This makes the second time this season the locals has defeated the Saturday Night team.

The pleasant weather yesterday brought every owner of a fast stepper and sleigh in town. The fall of snow Saturday afternoon and night helped to make the sleighing all that could be desired.

Conrad Peltz held the winning number in the drawing for a horse Saturday night. The animal was later sold to David Dunn.

The snow storm Saturday afternoon prevented the member of the Gun Club from indulging in their weekly clay bird shoot.

The Baptist Sunday-school has changed the time of its Christmas exercises from Thursday night to Saturday night.

The weekly Epworth League meeting was held last night at the Methodist church.

Harry Flannery has returned from a visit with friends at Elizabeth.

John Rickerson spent Saturday with Elizabeth friends.

Mrs. C. H. Cougar is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Grenisger, of New Market.

W. D. Clawson has entertained his cousin, William Manning, from the South.

The gross receipts from the recent fair held in the parish house of the Church of the Holy Cross amounted to about $475.

All of the evangelical churches will observe the week of prayer, the first week in January. Similar services will also be held at the Y. M. C. A. Many of the churches will use the subjects suggested by the Evangelical Alliance.

The Sunday-school at Faith chapel on East Third street, is making extensive preparations for its Christmas celebration. On Sunday afternoon the school will unite with the First Baptist church in its celebration, but a special service will be held at the chapel in the evening.

The Christmas festival for the children of the Holy Cross church Sunday-school will be held in the parish house on Tuesday evening, December 27. There will be a preliminary service in the church at 8 o'clock, where the children will sing Christmas carols, after which the Sunday-school and congregation will assemble in the parish house, where the usual distribution of gifts will take place. The offering to be taken at the services will be for the Children's Home.

Won His Christmas Dinner.

Henry Vosseler won the twenty-five pound turkey at the shoot held in Co. K armory on Saturday night. The scores returned are out of a possible fifty. They were as follows: Henry Vosseler, 46; Robert Goldsack, 44; Frank Neal, 41; T. A. Weaver, 39; Phillip Jahn, 39; Judson Giles, 35; Elwood Sebring, 32; William Bond, 23; William McCarthy, 23; Leslie Lambert, 16; Nate Lambert, 14. Government Inspector's Charge.

Postmaster Elias H. Bird, informed a reporter for The Daily Press today that it was a regular Government postoffice inspector, and not an inspector for the rural free delivery service, that made the charge to the postal authorities regarding Letter-carrier Patrick Reville. He says that the official recently visited the local office and inspected everything therein, including the free city delivery service.

MORMON DEFIANCE.

Editor Penrose Received Special Amnesty—Will Not Produce Records.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The power of the senate of the United States has been defied at the Senator Reed Smoot investigation by a Mormon witness, John Nicholson, chief recorder of the Salt Lake City temple, who stated that he would refuse to produce certain records even if put in jail for it.

Charles W. Penrose, an editor, who was elected one of the twelve apostles of the Mormon church last July, was sworn. He said he was a polygamist, with two plural wives living. He has children by his first plural wife, but none born since the manifesto.

"Did you receive special amnesty at the hands of President Cleveland in which one of the conditions was that you should thereafter obey the laws relating to living in polygamy?" asked Mr. Taylor.

"Yes, sir."

"And have you lived up to that amnesty?"

"No, sir."

Chairman Burrows said he wanted to have it made clear whether Apostle Smoot was present at the conference which elected Mr. Penrose as apostle. Not receiving a direct answer, Mr. Worthington, counsel for Senator Smoot, said that they would admit that Mr. Smoot had been present.

NO CRUELTY IN KONGO.

Natives Are Treated With Kindness. King Leopold Maligned.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Mrs. M. French Sheldon, African explorer and author, who has just returned from a tour of the Kongo Free State, says that her assertion that she had witnessed more atrocities in London streets than she had seen in the Kongo should apply to the rubber country as well as to the rest of the state. She has, she says, traveled in every part of the country, King Leopold having accorded her complete freedom, and she was convinced that the allegations of maladministration were groundless and that it was quite false to say that King Leopold had sanctioned cruelty. Wherever she went, she says, she found the natives treated with kindness and consideration, while the improvements in the condition of the land and its inhabitants were almost incredible.

Mrs. Sheldon endured great hardships in traveling and was often up to her waist in water. She is still suffering from an accident, but is determined to return to the Kongo Free State when she recovers.

Slavery In Our Time.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 19.—A negro here seeks release from a condition of servitude under one of his own race. In Clark county Robert Christopher, colored, through his attorney, has sworn out a warrant before United States Commissioner Kinnebrew charging his half brother, George Christopher, with compelling him to work for the latter without any legal rights to do so, and he seeks the aid of the federal court in procuring his release. The committment trial of the accused negro is awaited with unusual interest.

Infirmary Destroyed by Fire.

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 19.—The Inge-Bondurant infirmary has been destroyed by fire. Thirty-seven patients, of whom the majority were unable to assist themselves, were removed before the fire drove the doctors and nurses from the building. One patient, who had undergone an operation for appendicitis, died during the removal. Captain Thomas A. Doyle of the fire department was hurt by falling woodwork. The loss will be about $30,000, the principal item being valuable surgical and electrical instruments.

Ezell Guilty of Murder.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 19.—J. W. Ezell, a telegraph operator, charged with the murder of Yardmaster W. G. Porter of Newell, has been found guilty of murder in the first degree. When Ezell reported for duty on the day of the crime he was manifestly unfit for service and on being told by the yardmaster that he could not go to work attacked him with a razor.

Crew Saved With Breeches Buoy.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 19.—A schooner said to be the Lizzie H. Brayton, from Baltimore for Providence, R. I., is ashore off Bayhead life saving station. The Bayhead life savers rescued the crew of the stranded vessel, bringing them ashore in the breeches buoy. The stern post of the vessel is said to be working its way up through the vessel.

WITTE FOR REFORMS.

Ministers Scheme For Revision of Laws Indorsed by the Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 19.—M. Witte, president of the ministerial council, to whom, as chairman of the special committee appointed in 1902 to investigate the question of the betterment of the conditions of rural enterprise and general revision of the peasant laws, was confided the task of sifting the enormous mass of evidence collected, including the opinions of 11,000 of the best qualified peasants, landlords, merchants and manufacturers, which filled several thousand volumes, has completed the gigantic task.

His conclusions, which have just been published, are in line with the most enlightened opinion for ameliorating the peasants' condition. These conclusions, which are understood to have the indorsement of Emperor Nicholas and Minister of the Interior Svietopolk-Mirsky, are expected to be adopted by the commission as the basis of new laws.

The press hails the memorandum not only as a signal victory in the direction of real national progress, but as marking a definite shelving of the plan developed by the late Minister of the Interior Von Plehve for extending the powers of local officials over the peasants and increasing rather than decreasing the tutelage exercised over them. Von Plehve's purpose was to rush through a law before the commission could complete its labors.

ELECTION DECISIONS.

By Supreme Court's Order Democrats Lose Three Senators.

DENVER, Dec. 19.—Alva Adams, Democratic candidate for governor in the last election has lost 1,182 of his plurality of 5,275 in this county by the action of the supreme court in ordering the election commission to eliminate five precincts from the returns. His plurality in the state, however, still stands at about 10,000.

By the supreme court's orders the Democrats lose three senators, who were apparently elected in this city, and the Republicans gain control of both branches of the legislature, with a majority of thirty on joint ballot. They are planning to submit to the legislature evidence of frauds in Denver and ask that body to declare Governor Peabody elected.

BANKRUPTCY HEARING TODAY.

Mrs. Chadwick Has a Companion In Cleveland Jail.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 19.—The examination of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick on the bankruptcy proceedings against her is set for today before Referee Remington in bankruptcy, but it is considered certain that she will not testify, if present at the hearing. Her attorney, J. P. Dawley, has not yet had time to investigate the bankruptcy or any other phase of the case and declines to allow her to give any testimony.

Mrs. Chadwick spent her first Sunday in the Cleveland jail with a young woman who is detained for examination as to her sanity. The woman seemed much interested in Mrs. Chadwick, and the two conversed quite freely.

Died of Hydrophobia.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 19.—Horace Hoffman, son of a wealthy citizen of Burke county, is dead at his home, six miles from Morganton, of hydrophobia. Hoffman and his brother both were bitten on Nov. 8. They went to Baltimore and were given three weeks at the Pasteur institute, returning home a few days ago. On Saturday the symptoms of rabies developed in the younger brother, and death in a violent form ensued. The elder brother as yet has manifested no signs of the disease.

Coolness Saved Hospital Patients.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Dec. 19.—The Middletown State hospital narrowly escaped destruction when fire was discovered in Ward 19 of Pavilion 2. The coolness of the attendants and the excellence of the fire drill averted a panic among the patients, and the fire was got under control after three floors had been flooded with water, causing a large amount of damage.

Dodge Off For New York.

GALVESTON, Tex., Dec. 19.—C. F. Dodge, who has been wanted in New York to answer sensational charges and over the extradition of whom there has been much litigation and numberless entanglements, has left for New York. He went on board the Mallory line steamer in charge of United States Marshal Hanson and three deputies.

Pittsburg Auto Factory Burned.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 19.—A fire broke out in the Gerber Carriage and Automobile factory, corner of Beatty street and Penn avenue, and for a time threatened a whole block. In addition to the carriage factory, the White Express company, Moore's livery stable and three private residences were damaged. There were several narrow escapes from loss of life.

Dr. Chadwick Has Not Sailed.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—Dr. L. S. Chadwick of Cleveland, O., is still here. He resents further inquiries concerning the case of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick or his connection with it. He spends much time at the French branch of the Young Men's Christian association for the purpose of following the case in the American papers.

Oil Laden Vessel Burned.

POINT PLEASANT, N. J., Dec. 19.—A large barge, bound south and evidently oil laden, was burned about a mile off Squan Beach. The tug which had the barge in tow was seen to run alongside and apparently take off the crew just after the fire started, after which she proceeded.

What Would You Do?

The Satisfaction of Being Supported

In a tiny cottage in the great state of Somewhere lives a woman with her father and mother. She has been married, but her husband was a "no account white trash" specimen, and she had to leave him or stay and be beaten black and blue at stated intervals on the one hand or on the other face slower extinction by starvation. So she took her small son by the hand one day when hubby was absent and trudged home to pa and ma.

Pa was and is of the so called noble old type which just before election every year is told it constitutes the backbone of this republic. That feeds its vanity enough to last another year, and it goes home and proceeds in many cases to test the quality of its backbone upon the women folk of its own household.

Oldhunks told his daughter, Barbary Ann, that he (Oldhunks) would "support" her and her child if she did all the household work and a good part of the outdoor work for him and a big lazy bachelor son. Barbary Ann's mother was there, too, but she, poor woman, had nothing to say in the matter. Oldhunks proved his backbone by bossing everything on that ranch to the last egg laid by the last hen.

Barbary Ann was made to feel constantly that she and her child were sheltered there on sufferance. She toiled like a slave from morning till night. The only sight of money she ever had from year's end to year's end was when now and then she did a day's work of house cleaning or laundering for a neighbor woman. Was not she, was not her boy also, "supported" out of the charity of Oldhunks? Though she worked up to the last drop of blood in her body, what was that in comparison with the immeasurable boon of being "supported?"

For all her dreary life Barbary Ann had a little strain of the aesthetic in her nature. She loved flowers. So did her poor mother. On the sunny railing of the porch in front of the cottage she placed some scarlet geraniums, nasturtiums and trailing ivy in boxes. The old man did not apparently notice them till they had attained something of splendid brightness. Then one day he deliberately destroyed every one of them—quenched the only glimmer of beauty there was about that wretched shanty. He did it, too, out of pure malice. He said he wouldn't have such trash around his premises.

Barbary Ann and her mother reared annually a considerable number of fowls, so that there was a little income from the sale of eggs and chickens; likewise was there poultry for the Oldhunks' table.

One day a neighbor woman wanted a sitting of eggs of another strain than her own. She sent a messenger to Barbary Ann with a basket and the money to pay for the eggs. The women folk counted out the nice fresh eggs, handling them carefully that they might not be injured and rendered useless for hatching. Just as they had been deposited in the neighbor's basket Oldhunks came in. He poked his old nose into the neighbor's basket and demanded to know all about the transaction. The poor, overslaughed women told him. Thereupon he laid his paw upon the neighbor's basket and gave command:

"I want them eggs to take to town."

The strange part of it is that his wife actually did lift the eggs out and put them away again, giving back the money to the messenger. Oldhunks took the eggs to the village and with the money they brought purchased tobacco or other luxuries for himself.

The strange part of the affair again is that the women let him do it. How any creature in feminine form can be so spiritless and so slavelike in this land of college women is beyond ordinary comprehension. In the very smallest detail, even of those women's poor calico dresses and sunbonnets, that coarse old tyrant "bosses" them like a Turk. Barbary Ann believes she must submit to it for the sake of "support" for herself and son.

What would you do?

CHAPTER XI.

It was, indeed, tougher business than we had yet known—a dash into the enemy's country, where my poor head was in excellent demand. D'ri and I were to cross the lake with a band of raiders, a troop of 40, under my command. We were to rescue some prisoners in a lockup on the other side. They were to be shot in the morning, and our mission therefore admitted of no delay. Our horses had been put aboard a brig at midnight, and soon after the noon mess we dropped down the lake, going into a deep, wooded cove south of the Grenadier Island. There we lay waiting for nightfall. A big wind was howling over the woods at sunset, and the dark came on its wings an hour ahead of time. The night was black and the lake noisy when we got under way, bound for a flatboat ferry. Our skipper, it turned out, had little knowledge of those waters. He had shortened sail, and said he was not afraid of the weather. The wind, out of the southeast, came harder as it drove us on. Before we knew it, the whole kit and boodle of us were in a devil of a shakeup there in the broad water. D'ri and I were down among the horses and near being trampled under in the roll. We tried to put about then, but the great gusts of wind made us lower sail and drop anchor in a hurry. Soon the horses were all in a tumble and one on top of the other. We had to jump from back to back to save ourselves. It was no pretty business, I can tell you, to get to the stairway. D'ri was stripped of a boot-leg, and I was cut in the chin by a front hoof, going ten feet or so to the upper deck. To the man who was never hit in the chin by a horse's hoof let me say there is no such remedy for a proud spirit. Bullets are much easier to put up with and keep a civil tongue in one's head. That lower deck was a kind of horses' hell. We had to let them alone. They got astraddle of one another's necks, and were cut from ear to fetlock—those that lived, for some of them, I could see, were being trampled to death. How many I never knew, for suddenly we hit a reef there in the storm and the black night. I knew we had drifted to the north shore, and as the sea began to wash over us it was every man for himself. The brig went up and down like a sledge-hammer, and at every blow her sides were cracking and caving. She keeled over suddenly, and was emptied of horse and man. A big wave flung me far among the floundering horses. My fingers caught in a wet mane; I clung desperately between crowding flanks. Then a big wave went over us. I hung on, coming up astride my capture. He swam vigorously, his nose high, blowing like a trumpet. I thought we were in for a time of it, and had very little hope for any landing, save in kingdom come. Every minute I was head under in the wash, and the roaring filled me with that mighty terror of the windfall. But, on my word, there is no captain like a good horse in bad water. Suddenly I felt him hit the bottom and go forward on his knees. Then he reared up, and began to jump in the sand. A big wave washed him down again. He fell on his side in a shallow, but rose and ran wearily over a soft beach. In the blackness around me I could see nothing. A branch whipped me in the face, and I ducked. I was not quick enough; it was like fencing in the dark. A big bough hit me, raking the withers of my horse, and I rolled off headlong in a lot of bushes. The horse went on, out of hearing, but I was glad enough to lie still, for I had begun to know of my bruises. In a few minutes I took off my boots and emptied them and wrung my blouse, and lay back, cursing my ill luck.

STUCK THE STAKE IN FRONT OF ME TO STEADY MYSELF AND STOOD STIFF AS ANY SCARECROW IN CANADA.

But that year of 1813 had the kick of ill fortune in it for every mother's son of us there in the north country. I have ever noticed that war goes in waves of success or failure. If we had had Brown or Scott to lead us that year, instead of Wilkinson, I believe it had had a better history. Here was I in the enemy's country. God knew where, or how, or when I should come out of it. I thought of D'ri and how it had gone with him in that hell of waters. I knew it would be hard to drown him. We were so near shore if he had missed the rocks I felt sure he would come out safely. I thought of Louison and Louise, and wondered if ever I should see them again. Their faces shone upon me there in the windy darkness, and one as brightly as the other. Afterwhiles I drew my wet blouse over me and went to sleep, shivering.

A familiar sound woke me—that of the reveille. The sun was shining, the sky clear, the wind had gone down. A crow sat calling in the tree above my head. I lay in a strip of timber, thin and narrow, on the lake shore. Through the bushes I could see the masts of the brig slanting out of water some rods away. Beyond the timber was a field of corn, climbing a side-hill that sloped off to a level, grassy plain. Beyond the hill-top, reveille was still sounding. A military camp was near me, and although I made no move, my mind was up and busy as a cat at a mouse-hole, looking down at my uniform, not, indeed, the most healthful sort of dress for that country. All at once I caught sight of a scarecrow in the corn. I laughed at the odd grotesquery of the thing—an old frock coat and trousers of olive-green, faded and torn and fat with straw. A stake driven through its collar into the earth, and crowned with an ancient, tall hat of beaver, gave it a backbone. An idea came to me. I would rob the scarecrow and hide my uniform. I ran out and hauled it over and pulled the stuffing out of it. The coat and trousers were made for a stouter man. I drew on the latter, fattening my figure with straw to fit them. That done, I quickly donned the coat. Each sleeve-end fell to my finger-tips, and its girth would have circled a flour barrel and buttoned with room to spare. But with my stuffing of straw it came around me as snug at the belt as the coat of a bear. I took alarm as I closed the buttons. For half a minute I had heard a drum-tap coming nearer. It was the measured tap! tap! tap-tap-tap! so familiar to me. Now I could hear the tread of feet coming with it back of the hill. How soon they would heave in sight I was unable to reckon, but I dared not run for cover. So I thrust my scabbard deep in the soft earth, pulled down the big beaver hat over my face, muffled my neck with straw, stuck the stake in front of me to steady myself, and stood stiff as any scarecrow in Canada. Before I was done a column, scarlet-coated, came out in the level beyond the hillside. Through a hole in the beaver I could see them clearly. They came on, rank after rank. They deployed, forming an open square, scarlet-sided, on the green turf, the gap toward me. Then came three, walking stiffly in black coats, a squad leading them. The thing I had taken for a white visor was a blindfold. Their heads were bare. I could see now, they were in shackles, their arms behind them. They were coming to their death—some of my unlucky comrades. God pity them! A spy might as well make his peace with heaven, if he were caught those days, and be done with hope. Suspicion was enough to convict on either side of the water that year. As my feet sank deeper in the soft earth I felt as if I were going down to my grave. The soldiers led them into the gap, standing them close together, backs to me. The squad drew off. The prisoners stood erect, their faces turning up a little, as if they were looking into the clear, blue sky. I could see them waver as they stood waiting. The sharp-shooters advanced, halting as they raised their rifles. To my horror, I saw the prisoners were directly between me and them. Great God! was I also of that little company about to die? But I dared not move a step. I stood still, watching, trembling. An officer in a shining helmet was speaking to the riflemen. His helmet seemed to jump and quiver as he moved away. Those doomed figures began to reel and sway as they waited. The shiny barrels lifted a little, their muzzles pointing at them and at me. The corn seemed to duck and tremble as it waited the volley. A great black ball shot across the sky in a long curve, and began to fall. Then came the word, a flash of fire, a cloud of smoke, a roar of rifles that made me jump in my tracks. I heard bullets cuffing the corn, I felt the dirt fly up and scatter over me, but was unhurt, a rigid, motionless man of straw. I saw my countrymen reel, their legs go limp as rags, their bodies fall silently forward. The soldiers stood a moment, then a squad went after the dead with litters. Forming in fours, they marched away as they had come, their steps measured by that regular rap! rap! rap-rap-rap! of the drum. The last rank went out of sight. I moved a little and pulled the stake, and quickly stuck it again, for there were voices near. I stood waiting as stiff as a poker. Some men were running along the beach; two others were coming through the corn. They passed within a few feet of me on each side. I heard them talking with much animation. They spoke of the wreck. When they were all by me I faced about, watching them. They went away in the timber, down to a rocky point, where I knew the wreck was visible.

They were no sooner out of sight than I pulled the stake and saber, and shoved the latter under my big coat. Then I lifted the beaver and looked about me. There was not a soul in sight. From that level plain the field ran far to a thick wood mounting over the hill. I moved cautiously that way, for I was in the path of people who would be coming to see the wreck. I got near the edge of the distant wood, and hearing a noise, halted, and stuck my stake, and drew my hands back in the sleeves, and stood like a scarecrow, peering through my hat. Near me, in the woods, I could hear the cracking of sticks and a low voice. Shortly two Irishmen stuck their heads out of a bush. My heart gave a leap in me. "Holy Mother!" said one, as they broke through the bush, running for their lives. I knew not their names, but I called them as loudly as I dared. They went on, never slacking pace. It was a bad go, for I was burning for news of D'ri and the rest of them. Now I could hear some heavy animal bounding in the brush as if their running had startled him. I went back to the corn for another stand. Suddenly a horse came up near me, cropping the brush. I saw he was one off the boat, for he had bridle and saddle, a rein hanging in two strings, and was badly cut. My friend! the sight of a horse did warm me to the toes. He got a taste of the tender corn presently, and came toward me as he ate. In a moment I jumped to the saddle, and he went away leaping like a wild deer. He could not have been more frightened if I had dropped on him out of the sky. I never saw such energy in flesh and blood before. He took a mighty fright as my hand went to his withers, but the other had a grip on the pommel, and I made the stirrups. I leaned for the strings of the reign, but his neck was long, and I could not reach them. Before I knew it we were tearing over a hill at a merry pace, I can tell you. I was never so put to it for the right thing to do, but I clung on. The big hat shook down upon my collar. In all my life I had never saw a hat so big. Through the break in it I could see a farmhouse. In a jiffy the horse had cleared a fence, and was running, with the feet of terror, in a dusty road. I grew angry at myself as we tore along—I knew not why. It was a rage of discomfort, I fancy, for somehow, I never felt so bounded and cluttered, so up in the air and out of place in my body The saber was working loose and hammering my knee; the big hat was rubbing my nose, the straw chafing my chin. I had something under my arm that would sway and whack the side of the horse every leap he made. I bore upon it hard, as if it were the jewel of my soul. I wondered why, and what it might be. In a moment the big hole of my hat came into conjunction with my right eye. On my word, it was the stake! How it came there I have never known, but, for some reason I held to it. I looked neither to right nor left, but sat erect, one hand on the hilt of my saber, the other in the mane of the horse, knowing full well I was the most hideous-looking creature in the world. If I had come to the gate of heaven I believe St. Peter would have dropped his keys. The straw worked up, and a great wad of it hung under my chin like a bushy beard. I would have given anything for a sight of myself, and laughed to think of it, although facing a deadly peril, as I knew. But I was young and had no fear in me those days. Would that a man could have his youth on his death-bed! It was a leap in the dark, but I was ready to take my chances.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

A SOUND DISASTER

Steamer Glen Island Burned Near Execution Rock.

MANY SUFFOCATED IN THEIR BERTHS

Starin Liner, on Her Way From New York to New Haven, Caught Fire in Early Morning—Crew Behaved Like Heroes.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 19.—The steamboat Glen Island of the Starin line, on her way from New York to New Haven, caught fire when but a short distance past Execution rock, in Long Island sound, early in the morning, and in the rapid spread of the flames two passengers and seven men of the crew were cut off from help or escape. They undoubtedly perished and only by the prompt and heroic action of Captain Charles E. MacAllaster and the remaining members of the crew were the sleeping passengers aroused and saved. In their nightclothes they hastily boarded two lifeboats and for an hour awaited the help of succoring vessels, all the while suffering from the intense cold. First picked up by the tug Bully, they were transferred to the Erastus Corning, a freight boat of the Starin line, and brought to this city at daylight.

The dead are: Mrs. Rosa Silken, fifty-five years old, 206 Hamilton street, New Haven; unidentified man, supposed to reside in New Haven; Peter Benson, deck hand; Otto Burgh, deck hand; John Burke, fireman; Frank Bush, fireman; W. E. Hendrickson, assistant engineer; Luman Miller, fireman, and Ole Olafren, fireman.

When the Glen Island left the Starin pier at 9 o'clock at night there were ten passengers and a crew of twenty-one persons, including Captain David Marcus, who was to take command of the boat on her next trip. The main deck of the steamboat was filled with merchandise consigned to stores in the Connecticut city, nearly all of an inflammable nature and roughly valued at $200,000. The boat, built twenty-four years ago of the flimsy construction peculiar to excursion craft, represented a value of $125,000, according to the Starins, and all was covered with insurance to the full amount of injury.

Frank B. Street, a wholesale grocer in New Haven, with his wife and two daughters, Miss Emeline Street, a student in Vassar college, and Miss Grace Street, together with Arthur Wallace, son of R. Wallace, a silver manufacturer in Wallingford, Conn., were the first cabin passengers. Traveling second class were Mrs. Rosa Silken, who perished; Nathan Dubin, a clothing manufacturer of 252 Cedar street, New Haven; three Hebrew men, one of whom was lost, and an Italian.

Comparing the disaster with the terrible fatality and fire that destroyed the General Slocum, the heroism of the handful of men that comprised the crew of the Glen Island rang along the water front when the facts became known. From Captain MacAllaster down to the humblest deck hand there was not one who shirked duty or showed a sign of cowardice, and that the work of rescue was carried on only by the light of the raging flames increased the praise.

Hendrickson, the assistant engineer, was on duty and would not leave his post. Miller and Burke, firemen, stayed by him until they were cut off by the rapid spread of the fire and there was no help. All the others lost, it is believed, were suffocated in their berths except the woman, who, dragged from danger by Sarah Smoot, a negro stewardess, returned to her room in an endeavor to save her jewels.

For himself Captain MacAllaster told a modest story of the rescues from the burning boat and gave great credit to the officers under him. They in turn praise the venerable skipper, who, nearly sixty-eight years old, has for twenty-three years been a master along the Atlantic coast. The fire, the captain believed, started from defective insulation of electric light wires in the main companionway from the main deck to the stateroom deck above.

Fatal Collision of Trolley Cars.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Dec. 19.—One person was killed, one fatally injured and several others received serious injuries in a collision between two trolley cars on the Slatington line of the Lehigh Valley Traction company. The accident occurred at the iron bridge in this city and was due to the signals failing to work. William Zink, an electrician in the employ of the traction company, was caught beneath one of the cars and was so badly crushed that he died a short time later.

Ithaca Ball Player Dropped Dead.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 19.—John Clapp, formerly a National league baseball player, dropped dead at midnight Saturday while in the discharge of his duty as night sergeant of the city police department. He had just assisted a patrolman in making an arrest when he was stricken with apoplexy. Delevan B. Way, Clapp's predecessor as sergeant, committed suicide on Friday night.

New Bedford Cars Tied Up.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Dec. 19.—This city is deep with snow. No electric cars on the local lines were operated until noon, and none of the suburban cars got away until last night. It was 8 o'clock before the New Bedford and Onset line reported a clear track. A gale of wind piled drifts ten feet high in exposed places.

Central Chair Factory Burned.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 19.—Fire in the factory of the Central Chair company has caused a loss estimated at $50,000.

3 per cent paid on both checking and savings accounts.

PREACHED ON ST. PAUL.

Rev. John W. Musson's Address at Faith Chapel Last Night.

Rev. John W. Musson preached last evening at Faith chapel on the subject "An Old Time Conversion." The speaker took for his Biblical illustrations portions of the life of St. Paul, dwelling particularly upon the work of conversion which was accomplished by St. Paul and Silas. He followed in outline part of the preaching tours on which these great apostles devoted their lives, and dwelt at some length upon their methods and steadfast faith.

Rev. Mr. Musson, in reviewing the lives of St. Paul and Silas, referred repeatedly to their undying faith, which permitted them even though imprisoned, to continue their worship and prayer and conversion. Whenever they appeared lost through their many adventures, the speaker said, still they looked to God for their guide and light. Making a practical application of the lives of St. Paul and Silas, to the lives of Christians at the present time, the speaker said that there is no better human example to follow, both as a model of faith and of strength, than the life of St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Chargois, of Elmwood place, are the parents of a daughter who came to their home on Friday morning.

PERSONAL.

Alden Moore, of Williams College, is home for the holiday vacation.

George L. Babcock, of Alfred University, will come home this week for the holiday season.

Gifts for Poor Only.

Mrs. J. E. Kimball, as chairman of the Christmas committee at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, has announced that the annual festival will be held in the Sunday-school room of the church on Tuesday evening, December 27, with exercises by the various classes. Instead of the Sunday-school receiving, gifts, as usual, the gifts will be made to the poor children. There will be a tree and the members of the primary department will, as in former years, receive presents. An appropriate Christmas service will be held at the church Saturday morning.

Death of Miss Duvernoy.

The death of Miss Marie C. Duvernoy, daughter of Mrs. L. A. Rheaume, of Webster place, occurred at the latter's home this morning, after a long illness. Funeral services will be held from Mrs. Rheaume's residence Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Montclair Y. M. C. A. Snows Under Local Association.

RAHWAY TEAM WINS

Business Men's Aggregation No Match for Visitors—Locals Defeats Its Alumni.

The Montclair basketball team proved to be the fastest aggregation which has ever played on the local Y. M. C. A. floor, and the way it defeated the local team last night by the score of 72 to 4, made the latter look like infants. In fact they were infants at the hands of the Montclair Y. M. C. A. players, whose passing and shooting was far superior to anything that has been witnessed in this city. Hand landed a basket in the first half and in the second Smith managed to score two points.

This was the line up and detailed score: Plainfield—Smith, Hand and Usinger, forwards; Collins, center; Neal and Scull, guards. Montclair—J. Calder and Rohn, forwards; L. Calder, center; Trembley and Millo, guards. Goals from the field—J. Calder, 11; Millo, 12; Rohn, 7; Trembley, 2; L. Calder, Hand and Smith. Goals from fouls—J. Calder, 4; L. Calder, 2. Referee—Morse. Umpire—George Henckel, of Montclair.

The Business Men's team of the Y. M. C. A. suffered defeat last night at the hands of the Rahway team, the score being 27 to 17. The game was played on the local Y. M. C. A. floor and was an interesting one. At the close of the first half the score was 21 to 15 in favor of the visitors, who were superior man for man to the local players.

This was the line up and summary of game: Business Men—Heicher and Miner, forwards; Spicer, center; Letson and Browning, guards. Rahway—Randolph and Trembly, forwards; Cunningham, center; Orr and Russell, guards. Goals from the field—Spicer, 2; Miner, 2; Heicher, 4; Randolph, 3; Trembley, 2; Orr, 2; Russell, 5. Goals from fouls—Spicer, Orr, 2

The alumni of Leal's, and to a great extent the same players than composed Leal's regular basketball team last year, were defeated yesterday afternoon in a practice game by this year's five. It was a hard fought game, which at times tended to be a rough one. The two teams were very evenly matched and each point was hotly contested.

The score was tied, 6 to 6, at the end of the first half, and it was either team's game up to the last two minutes of play. Jewett again proved the star of the Leal's players, and put up a splendid article of basketball.

This was the summary: Leal's first team — Chapman and Jewett, forwards; Strong, center; Lyman and Manning, guards. Leal's alumni—J. Haughey and Abbott, forwards; Mellick, center, Robbie and L. Haughey, guards. Goals from the field—Jewett, 2; Chapman, Strong, Manning, J. Haughey, Mellick, L. Haughey. Goals from fouls—Jewett, 3; Manning, Mellick, 3; Abbott.

MISS CARRIE BETTMAN, FANWOOD'S POSTMISTRESS

YOUNG WOMAN TAKES PLACE OF H. O. ROBINSON WHO DECLINED TO SERVE.

Miss Carrie Bettman, who, for a number of years has been in charge of the postoffice at Fanwood Borough, although the postmaster was John P. Stevens, has just been appointed postmistress by President Roosevelt and has qualified for the position.

Mr. Stevens removed to this city several months ago and it was necessary to appoint some one in his place. Much to his surprise Harry O. Robinson was appointed. He had not sought the honor and found it impossible to accept. As soon as he failed to qualify, the friends of Miss Bettman interested themselves in her behalf by presenting a petition to Congressman Fowler. Two or three days ago she received the appointment and yesterday the bonds were approved so that Miss Bettman is now the regular representative of the postal department at Fanwood Borough.

CONTROLLED GOODS COVERED BY ATTACHMENTS

SUITS TO THE AMOUNT OF $230 CONFRONT JAMAICA GROCER.

After procuring a bill of sale for an amount of goods, Jacob S. Dubroff, who owns a grocery store in Jamaica, L. I., found himself confronted with four writs of attachment when he came to this city on last Tuesday to remove the groceries to his Long Island store. Dubroff first obtained the bill of sale in payment from Emanuel Lifschultz, upon whose property, No. 107 West Front street, he held a chattel mortgage. The goods were transferred from the local store to the store-rooms of Hand & Son, and were subsequently called for by Dubroff, and were found with four writs of attachments to hold them down.

The first was for the sum of $40, which was owed to the landlord, and which the latter brought through his lawyer, William Newcorn. The others were brought by dealers in groceries, and were from different sources. Through their lawyer, I. P. Runyon, Hearst & Company, wholesale dealers of Elizabeth, brought in a writ of attachment for the amount of $54, which was owed to them on goods delivered.

The transaction took place before Justice Mosher. At Justice Huff's court, at about the same time, Brown & Company, other dealers, sued for the amount of $34. To complete the number of attachments, Potts & Kaufman secured Reed & Codington to bring in a writ for $112.

This makes the total amount of attachments $380. The groceries have not been removed, but Dubroff has secured Francis J. Blatz, Esq., as his counsel and will dispute the right of the various companies to issue writs of attachment. The date of the trial has not yet been determined upon.

BRASS KNUCKLES ON CRAMER, HE SAYS

FLOMERFELT, WHO KILLED BROTHER-IN-LAW, IS LOCKED UP.

Jacob Flomerfelt, who is alleged to have inflicted injuries upon his brother-in-law, Frank D. Cramer, last Friday that resulted in his death, was arrested yesterday by County Detective Totten at Larger Crossroads, where he formerly resided. He was taken to Somerville and lodged in jail there.

Flomerfelt is sixty five years old. Cramer was forty-five. Flomerfelt says that Cramer had repeatedly threatened to kill any one who interfered in his domestic affairs, and that fearing that some day he would have to fight Cramer he provided himself with brass knuckles, which he used on the man at the time of the assault. Flomerfelt says that Cramer was armed and also wore brass knuckles.

REV. DR. SNODGRASS TO GO

If Conference Approves, Will Accept Call to Perth Amboy.

BISHOP FAVORABLE

Rev. S. K. Doolittle to Leave Dunellen—New Pastor for Grace M. E.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, who is now serving his eighth year as pastor of the First M. E. church, has received a call to the pastorate of the M. E. church at Perth Amboy, has signified his desire to accept the same and has received the approval of the Bishop and now awaits the action of the Newark Conference which will meet in Halsey Street M. E. church, Newark, on April 5. Bishop Berry, of Buffalo, will preside.

Dr. Snodgrass received the call to Perth Amboy about five weeks ago and he has taken plenty of time to decide the matter. Who his successor will be here is not know at present, as the standing committee on pulpit supplies has taken no action.

The church to which Dr. Snodgrass will go is about the same size as the one he is now pastor of, although conditions are vastly different, owing to the fact that Perth Amboy is more of a manufacturing town. Dr. Snodgrass has remained at the First M. E. church twice as long as any other pastor. Rev. Dr. Barnes and Rev. Dr. Mitchell, who succeeded him, each served four years. During his pastorate he has had great success, being instrumental in increasing the membership and interest and effecting a number of improvements.

There will be more than the usual number of changes at the coming conference, but none that will greatly effect Plainfield, except at the First M. E. church. Rev. George Mooney will remain at the Monroe Avenue church and a pastor will be sent to Grace M. E. church to succeed Rev. Dr. E. L. Karp, who went to Syracuse University.

Among the other important changes will be at St. James M. E. church, Elizabeth, the present pastor, Rev. Herbert F. Randolph, who was formerly at Grace M. E. church, going to the First M. E. church, Hoboken, to succeed Rev. Mr. Mead. Mr. Mead will go to the Centenary M. E. church, Newark, to succeed Rev. Dr. Spellmeyer, who was made a Bishop. Other changes will be made at Trinity church, Paterson, and the M. E. church at Montclair.

Rev. S. K. Doolittle, who is now serving his fifth year at Dunellen, will leave that church, but he does not know at present where he will go or who will succeed him.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Co. K to Elect Civil Officers and Committees January 9.

The annual meeting of Company K will be held on January 9. This will be the next meeting of the company as no drills will be held on the holidays. At the annual meeting the civil officers of the company will be elected and new committees appointed.

It was announced at the drill last evening that there would be no drill on Christmas and New Year's. There was a good attendance at the drill last night and the drill went off in good style. Tomorrow night one of the largest shoots of the season will be held at the armory. There are already twenty entries for the shoot, which will be for a turkey.

Seven hundred persons attended the dinner. Dr. Patton was formerly pastor of the Congregational church at Westfield and gave that up charge to accept a pastorate in Duluth, Minn.

ENFORCING TRUANCY LAW

Boy's Parent to be Held Responsible in Borough.

IN JUSTICE'S COURT

Action is to be Taken Against Howard Carver Before Justice Mattison.

The recent Jersey City truancy case in which a father was sent to jail for allowing his son to absent himself from school, is likely to be repeated locally through the practical defiance of the North Plainfield Board of Education by Howard Carver, of Harrison avenue. Twice brought before a justice on a charge of this nature, the last time only two weeks ago, Carver has continued to allow his eight-year-old son to remain at home during school hours and the Board has determined to adopt more drastic measures than a simple quoting of the law.

Chairman Honeyman, of the truancy committee, stated that Carver seemed to pay no attention to the warnings.

When first arrested he declared his wife was at fault for the boy's truancy and two weeks ago when arraigned before Justice Mattison again, he offered the same excuse.

When Chairman Honeyman was spoken to about the closed conference this morning, he said Carver would be arraigned before Justice Mattison as soon as the latter recovered from his illness and that the Board would recommend the sentence.

FIRST BAPTIST MEN ARE ORGANIZING A CLUB

AT ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING, COMMITTEES ARE APPOINTED.

Under most favorable circumstances steps toward the formation of a men's association were taken at a preliminary meeting held in the Sunday-school room of the First Baptist church, last night. In response to invitations sent out between fifty and sixty men were present and much enthusiasm was shown in the matter. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the church, who was instrumental in bringing the matter about, was in charge of the meeting at the start. He read appropriate Scripture selections, and after a prayer by George A. Chapman, Charles W. McCutchen, chairman of the temporary committee on organization, was asked to state the objects of the men's association.

Mr. McCutchen presented his views on the matter, stating that in such a large church the value of a men's association to assist in various ways and to help the pastor, could not be estimated. He said that it was a question of deep concern to him that while all other organizations will fade away, "the Church of the Living God" will exist forever.

When Mr. McCutchen concluded his remarks, Dr. Chambliss said that before any action was taken he would like to introduce Rev. James A. Francis, who he was sure would give much inspiration and encouragement to the project. Mr. Francis was formerly pastor of the Clarendon Street Baptist church, of Boston, and has had considerable experience in men's associations. He gave a talk of much interest.

Mr. McCutchen was then requested to assume the chairmanship of the meeting and John G. MacLaughlin was made secretary pro tem. Remarks of encouragement were made by Dr. Chambliss, Kenneth Robbie, boys' secretary at the Y. M. C. A., F. E. Kinsman and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan. All present then gave their names for membership and in response to a suggestion by J. Herbert Case, Mr. McCutchen appointed J. Herbert Case, Dr. Norman H. Probasco, S. B. Joseph, J. Henry Crane and Alfred Day a committee to draft a constitution and by-laws, and George A. Chapman, Samuel Case, Harold Serrell, Gifford Cooley and Kenneth Robbie a committee on nomination of officers. These committees will be ready to report at a meeting to be held the first week in January, when the organization will be completed.

As stated by Mr. McCutchen, the association will be formed chiefly for church work, while the occasional stated meetings will be devoted to talks by some prominent person, an evening of music or the discussion of some subject of major importance.

HOW HARDING WAS KILLED

Details of Plainfielder's Death in Colorado Received Today.

CRUSHED UNDER CAR

Had Gone Out in Charge of Wrecking Crew to Clear a Track When Accident Occurred.

Through a copy of the Leadville, Colo., Herald Democrat, received in this city today, local relatives of Richard Harding, the former well known Plainfielder who was killed last week, learned for the first time the exact manner in which he met his death. The account reads as follows:

"Conductor Richard Harding was instantly killed and Conductor Joseph S. Patton and Car Foreman James J. Neville were injured in a wreck and an accident which followed the wreck on the Blue River branch of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad yesterday morning.

"Conductor Patton is in charge of the crew of the regular mixed train which goes out over the Blue River branch every morning. The train is composed of one passenger coach and baggage and freight cars. The train left here yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

"One mile west of Fremont pass and fourteen miles from this city, the train struck a broken rail. One freight car and the passenger coach left the rails and fell into the ditch. Conductor Patton, who weighs over 300 pounds, was thrown heavily from his seat in the passenger coach when the car fell from the track. He was bruised about the body, but not seriously injured.

"A wrecking crew was sent out from the Denver and Rio Grande yards here in charge of Conductor Harding. Car Foreman Neville accompanied the wrecking train.

"While the wrecking crew was endeavoring to replace the derailed cars upon the track, the accident occurred which caused the death of Conductor Harding and the injury of Mr. Neville.

"Jacks had been placed under the passenger coach and a block and tackle rigged up to lift the heavy car upon the track. The tackle appeared to be all right and Mr. Harding gave the signal to hoist the car.

"When the weight of the car was lifted, something broke. The tackle collapsed and the jacks under the coach gave way. The car toppled and fell back against the bank, catching Conductor Harding under it.

"His life was crushed out almost instantly. He was caught across the breast and when taken from under the coach it was found that every bone in the upper part of his body had been crushed and broken. His face was a mass of bruises, but was not greatly disfigured.

"Mr. Neville, who was helping the wreck-crew was close to Harding when the crash came, but succeeded in getting from under the falling coach. He was struck on the right side by the falling car and severely bruised. The physicians do not think his ribs are broken. His left wrist was sprained very badly and it is feared that one of the bones in it is broken or dislocated.

"Mr. Neville was brought to this city when the body of Conductor Harding was brought in. Mr. Neville was taken to his home at 1315 Poplar street.

"The body of Conductor Harding was taken to Buxton's undertaking parlors.

"Harding was about thirty-seven years of age and unmarried. He had been in the employ of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad for eight years in this district. He was a member of the Order of Railroad Conductors and that order will take charge of the arrangements for the funeral."

SCHOOL PHYSICIAN MAKES GOOD REPORT

GENERAL HEALTH CONDITIONS IN BOROUGH SAID TO BE EXCELLENT.

In the regular order of business at the North Plainfield Board of Education meeting, last evening, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, the school physician, presented an interesting semi-annual report. In it he informed the Board that he had examined to date 804 pupils and that the general health conditions are excellent. There is but very little defective eyesight, where five years ago it was prevalent, and the children have in every way benefitted by the improved sanitary conditions brought about by the appointment of a school physician.

Dr. Buchanan offered several suggestions for continued betterment of the school surroundings, principal among them being the purchase of formaldehyde lamps for disenfectant purposes and the alteration of floors in the kindergarten departments. The report was accepted and referred to Dr. Cooley for action.

Through Superintendent Wightman, J. Edmond Skiff, teacher of music in the borough schools, solicited the aid of the Board in producing a musical cantata by school pupils the latter part of January. It will be an elaborate production and as the proceeds are to go toward school funds he asked that the Board co-operate with him in securing an outside hall large enough to accommodate a chorus of 120. President Overton and Mr. Townsend were made a committee to confer with Mr. Skiff. Dr. Cooley was granted permission to make a few slight alterations in the first floor on the new school building in order to add more space to the teachers' room.

ASSEMBLYMAN COYNE FOR COUNTY CHAIRMAN

LIKELY THAT HE WILL SUCCEED HAMILTON F. KEAN.

It is quite likely that Edward S. Coyne, of Elizabeth, will succeed Hamilton F. Kean as chairman of the Union County Republican Committee. Mr. Kean's term expires on January 1 and the boom for Assemblyman Coyne was launched yesterday.

Political wiseacres admit that Mr. Coyne is the strongest man who could be named for the place. There is no opposition to him in this city, the seat of the Republican turmoil last fall, and it is reported that he is favored by the present chairman and his brother, Senator John Kean.

TEACHERS' OFFICE TENURE

North Plainfield Board's Move for Permanent Pedagogues.

IT WILL PASS

Three Years Experience and a Majority Vote of Board Necessary to Place Teacher on List.

Preliminary steps toward the establishment of permanent tenure of office for its teachers, were taken by the North Plainfield Board of Education at its meeting last evening. The matter has been investigated by a committee and it submitted a report which was formally adopted after a two hour discussion, Mr. Townsend alone voting against it. At the next regular meeting the matter will be formally acted upon.

The members of the Board who have had the matter in hand, inquired into the method in vogue at Jersey City, Newark, Bloomfield and many other places, and from these prepared a set of rules to be adopted and govern locally. They declare that a teacher shall be placed on the permanent list after three years' experience and fulfilling all other requirements, upon a majority vote of the Board of Education. The second clause tells for what reason they can be removed and Mr. Townsend objected to it on the ground that the Board bound itself to the teacher but despite all "ifs" and "ands" if the teacher wanted to leave, he or she could do it and there was nothing to prevent. He declared that the school authorities were going into the matter with their hands tied and that too much care could not be taken.

Superintendent Wightman and members of the Board expressed the belief that North Plainfield would derive great benefit from permanent engagements rather than the annual re-engagement, as at present, as it would relieve the teachers from the uncertainty of appointment all the time, and knowing that there were regularly engaged would do much better work. In past years there have been instances where good teachers would leave just before an election, fearing the personnel of the Board would be changed and that new men coming in might see fit to remove them and put friends in their places. Another fact brought out in favor of the plan was that being placed on the permanent list would be a great recommendation for teachers and they would strive to remain on it for future betterment.

The greater part of Mr. Townsend's opposition was based on the supposition that a teacher might be doing good work in school, but that his or her conduct outside might be anything but exemplary, and the rules contained nothing under which removal could be made. It was clearly ascertained that matters of this kind would be taken care of by the State laws. It was nearly 10 o'clock when the form prepared by the committee was amply modified and put to vote, passing with eight in favor and one against.

SCHUMAN-HEINK, BISPHAM AND CAMPANARI AT CASINO?

W. H. MILLER TO MAKE EFFORT TO BRING GREAT ARTISTS HERE.

W. H. Miller, who is giving a series of concerts at the Casino, is much encouraged by the response of representative people. It has been his desire to present in this city some of the world's great artists and if proper support is given to the enterprise Mr. Miller is ready to go ahead.

The present series ends with the appearance of the celebrated Kaltenborn String Quartette and the season being about half over, a supplementary course could be given. Mr. Miller is considering the plan to have Gadsi, Schuman-Heink, Maconda and David Bispham, Campanari, vocalists, and the Kneisel String Quartette, also Rafael Joseffy, the great pianist.

UNCOMMON WISDOM.

Some Plainfield People Profit by Neighbors' Experience.

It's a wise man who profits by the experience of his friends and neighbors. Here is a chance to do it and every man, woman or child in Plainfield who knows the misery of a bad back, the nervousness and restlessness caused by kidney complaints will show uncommon wisdom to profit by this citizen's advice.

S. J. Conklin, traveling salesman for a New York confectionery house, 134 West Front street, says: "I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. I took three boxes altogether and was wonderfully improved. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplish all that is claimed for them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

THE CENTURY'S ART FEATURES.

A Number of Agreeable Surprises in the Field of Colored Work Promised Soon.

During the past months many pictures in color have appeared in the pages of The Century, notably: Maxfield Parrish's exquisite paintings for the articles on "Italian Villas and Their Gardens;" Miss Betts's charming pictures of the days of our fathers; the paintings by Frederick W. Stokes illustrating remarkable sky effects; Charles R. Knight's animal studies; Miss Violet Oakley's imaginative studies; Mr. Tobin's portrait of Pope Pius X; reproductions of J. Wells Champney's pastels; Miss Ellen Bernard Thompson's studies of children; reproductions of paintings by George de Forest Brush, William M. Chase, Laura C. Hills, and others. It is the aim of The Century to confine is experiments in the field of color work to subjects which have uniqueness and an important reason for color treatment. Miss Betts will contribute several other groups typical of the same period, among them "The Duet," "Christmas Callers," "St Valentine's Day," and "The Serenadera." Mr. Parrish has made a beautiful illustration for a story "The Princess and the Boy;" and the coming year of The Century will contain a number of agreeable surprises in the field of color work.

The Century will continue to print beautiful and representative examples of work by American painters and sculptors. It will have also articles on men who are coming to the front in art abroad, including Mucha, Zuloaga, and the German secessionists. An article on "Children's Costumes in the Nineteenth Century" will have exquisite illustrations by Maurice Boutet de Monvel. The late J. L. Gerome will be the subject of reminiscences which will be accompanied by interesting illustrative material. A paper on the Art Influence of Philadelphia by Harrison S. Morris will soon appear.

For twenty years Timothy Cole, the acknowledged master of wood-engraving of the world, has been in Europe for The Century reproducing the masterpieces of art for the pages of the magazine. Here have appeared the greatest works of the masters of the Italian, Flemish, Dutch and English schools. Mr. Cole is now engaged in reproducing the work of the Spanish masters, and superb examples of their art will appear from time to time. The artists whose work will appear in The Century during 1905 include all the notable illustrators of the present day.

NAN DENIES MURDER

Girl Testified "I Would Give My Life For His."

STORY OF CAESAR YOUNG'S DEATH

Prisoner Insisted on Going on Witness Stand In Her Own Behalf and Repelled Charge of Causing Bookmaker's Death.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—While every eye in the crowded courtroom was fastened on her and every ear was strained to catch the smallest word, Nan Patterson, former "Florodora" girl, yesterday afternoon told her story of the shooting of Caesar Young in the cab in which she was riding with him to a pier, where he was about to sail for Europe. It was a thrilling recital and full of dramatic interest, and the actress made a splendid impression on the jury and spectators.

"There was a flash—the end!"

Thus, in a voice low and tragic with emotion, did Nan Patterson conclude her story of the death of Caesar Young, the bookmaker, who either killed himself or was killed by the girl on trial for murder during that fatal ride in the cab.

The courtroom was as still as a tomb, though there were crowds there. Throughout the early part of her tale the girl had spoken in a low, even voice, impassive, unemotional. So low were her tones that even those near the witness stand were obliged to listen intently to catch what she said.

As she told of the ride in the cab and the tragedy there her voice was still low, but the tones more tense, until it was almost a cry as she finished.

"I did not kill Caesar Young," she said in answer to a direct question by Mr. Levy. "I would give my own life to have him back again. I never saw the revolver with which he was shot."

Judge, jury, the prosecutor with his inflexible and stern face, witnesses and the whole courtroom full of spectators listened breathlessly. It was the dramatic climax of the accused woman fighting her own battle and telling her own story of the ride with death. The slightest sound in the whole room would have sounded like a thunderclap, but there was no sound except the low, quivering voice of the girl as the tragedy unfolded itself.

Regarding the struggle in the cab on the night of the tragedy the witness said:

"He looked at me awhile, and then he grabbed me by my hand nearest to him and pulled me over toward him. He hurt me so that I tried to pull away, but I could not get away from him. I put my other hand up, and he grabbed me in that way," imitating. "Somehow or other I got away from him. I told him that he hurt me.

"He said: 'If you don't come over there and I have to wait until the Saratoga meeting I may never see you again. My horses have gone back on me. I've lost all that money. Now I'm losing my little girl. Do you mean that?'

"He grabbed me and hurt me so badly that the tears came to my eyes. I tried to struggle away from him again and had to bend away over.

"There was a flash—the end."

"You heard a report?"

"Yes."

"Was the pistol in Young's hands?"

"I had not seen the pistol. Mr. Young fell over my lap, got halfway up, fell again, and I thought he was having a spasm. He kept twitching and twitching. I called to him and tried to make him answer, but he wouldn't. I believe I put my hand up and told the cabman to drive to the druggist. I don't know whether I did. That was my idea, and it seemed, oh, ages before I could get any one to pay any attention to me and help me.

"A policeman got in the cab, and I felt so relieved. I knew he would take care of Mr. Young. I seemed to be dazed in my memory after that."

The witness then denied that she shot Young in the language above quoted.

NORTH SEA INQUIRY

World's Great Naval Powers Represented at Paris.

WHY DID FLEET FIRE ON TRAWLERS?

Rear Admiral Davis Represents United States on Commission—Fishermen and Sailors Give Picturesque Stage Setting.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—The opening this morning of the sessions of the international commission which is to inquire into the North sea incident will bring together some of the leading naval and legal figures of the five foremost maritime powers of the world.

Instead of the gorgeous hall of the ambassadors the commission will be installed at the palace on the Quai d'Orsay. The meeting room is a beautiful apartment in white and gold, with Louis XV. decorations, mirrors and rich frescoes.

There the commission will first meet informally and privately, as the proceedings will be private until it is formally decided to make them public. At the Russian embassy it has been stated that the sessions will remain private throughout.

Rear Admiral Davis came via Dover and Calais, arriving in Paris yesterday. He was met by Lieutenant Commander Smith, the American naval attache, who will be attached to his staff. Quarters have been engaged at the Hotel Brighton overlooking the Tuileries gardens.

The various delegations include a number of interesting personages. The Russian party included Admiral Kaznakoff, the Russian member of the commission; Lieutenant Colonel Stenger, Baron Taube, the Russian judicial adviser; Captain Clado and Lieutenants Ellis, Ott and Schremtchenko.

The British party is made up of Rear Admiral Sir Lewis A. Beaumont, Great Britain's representative on the commission; Sir Edward Fry, counsel, and Hugh O'Beirn, agent. Mr. O'Beirn is well known in Washington, where formerly he was secretary of the British embassy and a crack cross country rider of the Chevy Chase club. Sir Edward Fry, who is past seventy years of age, is one of the ablest jurists of England. He will be pitted against Baron Taube, an equally eminent Russian jurist.

Admiral Fournier, the French member of the commission, made many American friends in connection with the visit of the Rochambeau mission, of which he was a member.

Besides the main personages the witnesses may include fishermen and sailors, thus giving a truly picturesque stage setting.

Besides the Anglo-Russian controversy which the commission will decide it is expected that the meeting will establish a number of precedents affecting international naval conditions and the rights and responsibilities of belligerents and neutrals in time of war.

It is understood that the British side of the case is practically made up. It is the expectation that Sir Edward Fry will bear the burden of presenting and proving the case for Great Britain.

Rumors concerning the commission's decision are already in circulation. One report says that three admirals out of the four are already in favor of the British contention, thus insuring an ultimate decision favorable to Great Britain.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The leading steel manufacturers at their meeting in Jersey City reaffirmed the present price of $21 per ton for steel billets. It is believed, however, that an advance of $2 per ton will be made in this product soon after the new year. Following the meeting of the billet manufacturers members of the structural steel combination met in this city and, according to the best information, reaffirmed the present price for their products.

JOHNSBURY, Vt., Dec. 20.—Two large industrial establishments in the village of Passumpsic, practically the only ones there, were burned, involving a financial loss estimated at from $70,000 to $75,000. TOO ILL TO APPEAR

Mrs. Chadwick to Be Heard Later In Bankruptcy Court.

EXPERT TESTIMONY AS TO FORGERIES

Maid Freda Examined In Search For Jewels and Securities—Deed of Trust and Carnegie Note Spurious.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 20.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was too ill to appear before Referee Remington in the bankruptcy court, and Mr. Grossman, representing the creditors, stated that he would later in the day confer with Mr. Dawley, counsel for Mrs. Chadwick, to decide as to when her hearing will take place.

The examination of Freda Swanstrom, Mrs. Chadwick's maid, was then begun by Mr. Grossman, with a view of securing information as to the whereabouts of valuable jewels and papers belonging to her employer.

Miss Swanstrom said she had been in Mrs. Chadwick's employ for six months and accompanied her on all of her trips. These numbered six or seven, she said, and were from Cleveland to New York and once to Boston. She was not the confidant of Mrs. Chadwick, she said, and could not tell the purpose of the trips to New York. Asked concerning the Boston visit the witness said she remained at the hotel while Mrs. Chadwick went visiting.

The witness said she never looked after Mrs. Chadwick's jewels. Mrs. Chadwick took care of them herself. She had seen the jewels several times, but did not know where they were.

Mr. Grossman questioned the witness concerning a trunk and a satchel which were removed from the Holland House at New York prior to Mrs. Chadwick's arrest. She could give no satisfaction as to where the baggage was sent nor could she state where any other property the receiver desires to find might be located. Mrs. Chadwick's son Emil was then called. He told of first hearing of his mother's trouble and of her telling him not to believe certain things printed in the newspapers about her. He could not tell the present whereabouts of the trunk or satchel which were removed from the Holland House. The manager of the hotel, the witness said, had told his mother that it would be better that the baggage be removed, as it was understood a levy was to be made upon it. His mother did not tell him where the property was taken.

Hoover said he had a talk with Freda Saturday night. They discussed Mrs. Chadwick's affairs, and Hoover said the maid had given him the impression that the missing satchel contained diamonds sought by the receiver. Young Hoover told of a visit he made to Cleveland before his mother's arrest. She had sent him here to obtain a package deposited with a local trust company and which she said was very important. He said he was not curious as to what it contained, although his mother had him make a special trip for it, but he thought there were valuable papers in the parcel. Mrs. Chadwick, he said, had requested him to call on a lawyer and a relative to obtain the package, and he did so.

"Mother seemed greatly worried about the matter," he testified. "I did not ask her anything about it and thought she would explain it in time."

That both the $10,000,000 "deed of trust" and $5,000,000 "Carnegie" note are forgeries written by the same person is the statement of H. D. Gould, who has been retained by the state to analyze the Chadwick "securities" and support the technical side of the prosecution at the trial of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick.

DIAMOND SMUGGLING.

Secret Service Officials May Unearth Case Against Mrs. Chadwick.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Secret service officials are working on a clew which would seem to indicate that Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was involved in a smuggling case in which $200,000 worth of diamonds were brought into this country free of duty. Investigations have several times followed the return of Mrs. Chadwick to this country, but nothing has yet come of the inquiries.

The report is that Mrs. Chadwick took ten young women from well known families in Cleveland society on a tour of Europe, the whole party traveling under the auspices of a well known excursion agency. She paid $10,000 for the tickets for the whole party, and the young people were her guests.

In France and Holland she is said to have made purchases of diamonds, the value of which was at least $200,000. She had not carried so much money with her and cabled through the excursion agency for the amount. In due time a draft was sent to her.

The person in New York who raised the $200,000 is understood to have made a noncommittal statement to the government officials which affords a basis for further investigation. The inquiry is being further prosecuted not only in New York and Cleveland, but also in Paris and The Hague.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 20, 1904

Governor Franklin Murphy was presented with a volume containing the military record of his administration at a dinner given in his honor last night. It would have been unkind to have included his entire record while in office.

Assemblyman Edward S. Coyne will prove a happy selection if he is chosen to succeed Hamilton F. Kean as chairman of the Union County Republican Committee. He is popular with the rank and file of the party and there is no reason to suspect that the committee will not be unanimous in electing him, but he will have a difficult time in discharging his duties as satisfactorily as the present incumbent.

Official statistics show that the consumption of oats in the United States has increased fourfold in forty years, and that since 1850 the consumption of wheat has increased from 4.30 to 6.28 bushels per capita, says the Philadelphia Record. This is not because the present generation requires more food than did the last, but because it has been educated, largely by breakfast food concerns, to eat more cereals. The bill of fare of the country has been amended by newspaper advertising.

The plan of the North Plainfield Board of Education to establish a permanent tenure of office for teachers is commendable to say the least. After three years' trial, the Board should be perfectably able to judge whether a teacher fulfills the requirements and if she does, there is no reason why she should not receive the assurance that she will be retained permanently. The present method is anything but satisfactory and the Board is to be congratulated in bringing about the needed reform.

BRITT THE FAVORITE.

San Francisco Sporting Men Think He Can Whip Nelson.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—California people still believe in their favorite pugilistic son, notwithstanding the fact that the memory of the Gans fiasco is fresh in the public mind. Partly for that reason and partly because it is believed here that Britt is a better man than Battling Nelson, the California boy is favorite for the fight tonight between the youngsters.

It is not the easiest contest in which to form an estimate of the pair on past results. A different element enters into this battle. Both of the youngsters are strong and plucky, and each is confident of his own personal ability.

That fact may lead one of them, or both for that matter, to a display of overrashness in the ring and with it the loss of the fight. There is not the slightest question about the condition of both principals. Two boys better fitted to take part in a ring contest never trained for an important event in this state. Neither of them appears to have been bothered much by the weight question, and when they face each other tonight there will be as fine a physical display as California pugilistic enthusiasts have had an opportunity to see in many a day.

Nelson is confident that he can stand all the punishment which Britt may administer to him and return it with interest.

Results at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 20.—Two out of six favorites won at Ascot yesterday, the other races going to second choices or well played outsiders. Kenilworth showed a sudden recovery of form in the third race and led his field a merry chase from start to finish, covering the six furlongs in 1:13¾. The weather was clear and the track fast.

THREE VESSELS WRECKED.

Gale on New England Coast Also Damaged Sixteen Others.

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Dec. 20.—The gale off the southeastern New England coast left in its wake, according to reports thus far received, three vessels totally wrecked, sixteen damaged and five with lost anchors. No known fatality has been reported, but it is feared that the entire crew of the New Jersey schooner Richard S. Leaming, wrecked on Long shoal, Nantucket sound, has been lost. The crew probably numbered ten men.

On land the only serious effect of the storm was the almost complete prostration of telegraph and telephone lines on Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard.

For the first time since the storm broke telegraphic communication between this port and Boston has been established. East and south of here the wires are still down. The list of totally wrecked craft is as follows: Schooners Richard S. Leaming of Dennisville, N. J., on Long shoal, Nantucket sound; George B. Ferguson of Belfast, Me., on Nantucket island, and the barge Albertus of New York, on Fishers island.

Probing Oregon Land Frauds.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 20.—Every land office in the district of Oregon, and there are six, will receive the attention of the United States grand jury, which has convened here. Twelve quarter sections of fine timber land in the Roseburg land office district near the famous Bohemia mining district are said to be the subject of the investigation of the grand jury. Within the past year this land was gone over by A. W. Barber, who made the investigations in township 11 south, range 7 west, which resulted in the conviction of Horace G. McKinley, S. A. D. Puter, Mrs. Emma L. Watson and D. W. Tarpley. All of the land now being investigated is in forest reserves.

Government Land Withdrawn.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The general land office has ordered the temporary withdrawal of 17,920 acres of public lands in the Vancouver (Wash.) land district from all forms of disposal except under the mineral laws. Another order directs the withdrawal from all forms of disposal of a strip of public land one mile wide on each side of the Verde river in the Prescott (Ariz.) land district, the strip to extend through eight townships. This is on account of the Salt river irrigation project.

Hearty at 101 Years of Age!

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 20.—Mrs. Hannah Sturdevant of Bergen, Genesee county, was 101 years old yesterday. She was born in Fabius, N. Y., and lived in Onondaga county for many years. Her grandfather fought in the Revolutionary war. She has excellent health and can read without glasses. Her mind is still clear.

Egyptian Exhibit Sold.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20.—At the sale of the Egyptian anthropological exhibit at the world's fair John Wanamaker of Philadelphia purchased half of the exhibit, which included an ancient sarcophagus and a mummy (200 B. C.) for the Philadelphia museum. The price paid for the exhibits aggregated about $70,000.

Forty Cases of Scarlet Fever.

AMESBURY, Mass., Dec. 20.—There is a scarlet fever epidemic here, forty cases being under treatment. There have been no deaths. Dr. C. E. Morse of the state board of health is here to investigate the town's milk supply, but has not made public his conclusions.

Greene-Gaynor Decision Delayed.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Owing to the Christmas holidays the announcement of the decision in the Greene-Gaynor case is likely to be delayed. At the office of the privy council it is admitted that possibly there will be no decision before February.

NO BALL IN CAPITOL.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The house of representatives emphatically disapproved the proposition to hold the inaugural ball in the capitol building. The committee having the matter in charge had substituted for the pension building, as provided for by senate resolution, the Congressional Library, but Mr. Morrell (Pa.), who called the matter up, announced that the opposition to the latter building was so great the committee had concluded to substitute the capitol building.

A storm of protests came from both sides of the chamber. The resolution offered by Mr. Morrell was voted down, the result being to delay action until the next District of Columbia day in January. The house also voted down a resolution making a special order on Jan. 5 the bill to restore to the Naval academy three cadets who were dismissed for hazing.

The senate committee on privileges and elections developed nothing sensational in the Senator Smoot investigation. Interest was evinced by members of the committee in statements by A. C. Nelson, superintendent of public instruction for Utah, concerning the use of school buildings for the teaching of the Mormon religion.

Apostle John Henry Smith was on the stand for two hours. Other witnesses were Isaac Birdsall, a Mormon, who said that his daughter was excommunicated because she would not obey a decision of a bishop's court which had deprived her of a piece of property to which she held the lawful title, and William Balderson, editor of the Boise (Ida.) Statesman, who testified to political affairs in his state.

CZAR'S FETE DAY.

No Disturbance In St. Petersburg, but Rioting In Moscow.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 20.—The emperor's fete day passed without any untoward demonstrations in St. Petersburg, but was marked by a continuation of the Moscow disorders, though they were not so serious as on Sunday.

The feature of the Moscow demonstration was the distribution of a violent proclamation of the Social Democratic Labor party, describing the whole country as being in a state of mourning and tears for the sacrifice of life in the far east for the aggrandizement of the Romanoff, picturing the government as driving the people to starvation and calling upon workingmen to enter ceaselessly upon a war for overthrowing the tyrants.

Other demonstrations are reported from various localities.

In consequence of the character of the current agitation the advisers of Emperor Nicholas have dissuaded him from his contemplated trip to the south of Russia to bid farewell to troops being dispatched to the far east.

Conservatives are afraid that the ill advised course of Extremists will drive the government to adopt repressive measures just when a distinct victory over the reactionaries had been won and a Liberal regime has been inaugurated. The renewed activity in revolutionary circles already has caused many arrests.

Had Two Funerals.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Dec. 20.—Lorenzo Dow McKinney, aged eighty-eight years, who had his funeral sermon preached in 1896, has just died here. Ten thousand people attended the funeral services which were held eight years ago in a grove near here.

CHRISTMAS IDEAS.

Some Holiday Schemes Carried Out by Clever Hostesses.

Although Christmas is in every sense a family holiday, yet in many cases several families combine and have their children's tree together. This sort of Christmas afternoon party for children is becoming quite the vogue.

An original hostess planned a novel substitute for the ordinary tree. Out of excelsior stuffed into unbleached muslin sacking she contrived a figure of Santa Claus. She painted the face after the fashion of a rag doll, and she made the clothes out of cheap red and green flannel. The figure, which was life size, she fastened securely against the dining room wall. Tied to its trusty right rag arm was a little Christmas tree, on which were fixed the smallest gifts, while about the portly person of the good saint and in his pack were concealed the more substantial proofs of his generosity. Spruce boughs and cotton wool snow were disposed around his feet, with a most realistic effect, while the background was draped in green burlap and ornamented with spruce boughs, also covered with cotton wool snow. In fact, it looked as if Santa had just stepped into the dining room. Of course all the lights were out, and the sole decoration of the room consisted of little colored glass bulbs throwing their prismatic glow among ropes of evergreen. As the children crowded around the jovial saint, extracting presents from his pockets, his cap, and even, of all improbable places, his whiskers, the scene was one of uproarious merriment, and very little was left of him but a pile of excelsior when the youngsters had finished their search. Most of the presents bore comic remarks. Some of them were "April fool" gifts. On the whole, the novelty of the thing made it a great success.

At a Christmas week luncheon the piece de resistance appeared to be a huge plum pudding, and while the guests were wondering why this rather indigestible dainty was served at a lunch the hostess pulled a red ribbon tied to the sprig of holly in it, when, behold, the pudding opened in sections, revealing little souvenirs in the shape of Santa Claus bonbon boxes.

A FRENCH DRAWING ROOM.

Simple and Dainty Effects Gained With Little Furniture.

The picture illustrates a French drawing room done in green and white. The woodwork, of course, is white, the walls being wainscoted and the frieze of green tapestry. The windows are of French design, swinging outward. The small panes are joined by silvered fretwork. The tables are of mahogany, and the chairs are covered with green brocade. The outer drapery of the large window is green, and the inner is of white muslin with a pale green figure. The floors are of hardwood polished. From the ceiling hangs an ornate silver lamp with a green silk fringe.

Green and white form an ideal color scheme for a lightly furnished bedroom. Green is being used more and more in interior decoration. Ironwork is even tinted to match. This can easily be done by the amateur, for it only requires a thin wash of turpentine and green paint, which settles in the hollows and gives the artistic effect.

D'ri and I

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

Evidently I was nearing a village. Groups of men were in the shady thoroughfare; children thronged the dooryards. There was every sign of a holiday. As we neared them I caught my saber under my knee, and drew my hands into the long sleeves and waved them wildly, whooping like an Indian. They ran back to the fences with a start of fear. As I passed them they cheered loudly, waving their hats and roaring with laughter. An old horse, standing before an inn, broke his halter and crashed over a fence. A scared dog ran for his life in front of me, yelping as he leaped over a stone wall. Geese and turkeys flew in the air as I neared them. The people had seemed to take me for some village youth on a masquerade. We flashed into the open country before the sound of cheering had died away. On we went over a long stretch of hard soil, between fields, and on in the shade of a thick forest. My horse began to tire. I tried to calm him by gentle words, but I could give him no confidence in me. He kept on, laboring hard and breathing heavily, as if I were a ton's weight. We came to another clearing and fields of corn. A little out of the woods, and near the road, was a log house white-washed from earth to eaves. By the gate my horse went down. I tumbled heavily in the road, and turning, caught him by the bits. The big hat had shot off my head; the straw had fallen away. A woman came running out of the open door. She had bare feet, a plump and cheery face.

"Tonnerre!" said she. "Qu'est ce que cela?"

"My countrywoman," said I, in French, feeling in my under-trousers for a bit of silver, and tossing it to her, "I am hungry."

"And I have no food to sell," said she, tossing it back. "You should know I am of France and not of England. Come, you shall have enough, and for no price but the eating. You have a tired horse. Take him to the stable, and I will make you a meal."

I led my horse to the stable, scraped him of lather and dirt, give him a swallow of water, and took the same myself, for I had a mighty thirst in me. When I came in, she had eggs and potatoes and bacon over the fire, and was filling the tea-kettle.

"On my soul," said she, frankly, "you are the oddest-looking man I ever saw. Tell me, why do you carry that long club?"

I looked down. There it was under my arm. It surprised me more than anything I ever found myself doing.

"Madame, it is because I am a fool," I said as I flung it out of the door.

"It is strange," said she. "Your clothes—they are not your own; they are as if they were hung up to dry. And you have a saber and spurs."

"Of that the less said the better," I answered, pulling out the saber. "Unless—unless, madame, you would like me to die young."

"Mon Dieu!" she whispered. "A Yankee soldier?"

"With good French blood in him," I added, "who was never so hungry in all his life."

I went out of the door as I spoke, and shoved my saber under the house.

"I have a daughter on the other side of the lake," said she, "married to a Yankee, and her husband is fighting the British with the rest of you."

"God help him!" said I.

"Amen!" said she, bringing my food to the table. "The great Napoleon he will teach them a lesson."

She was a widow, as she told me, living there alone with two young daughters who were off at a picnic in the near town. We were talking quietly when a familiar voice brought me standing.

"Judas Priest!" it said. D'ri stood in the doorway, hatless and one boot missing—a sorry figure of a man.

"Hidin' over 'n th' woods yender," he went on as I took his hand. "See thet air brown hoss go by. Knew 'im soon es I sot eyes on 'im—use' t' ride 'im myself. Hed an idee 't wus you 'n the saddle—sot s' kind o' easy. But them air joemightyful clo's! Jerushy Jane! would n't be fit t' skin a skunk in them clo's, would it?"

"Got 'em off a scarecrow," I said.

"'Nough t' mek a painter ketch 'is breath, they wus."

The good woman bade him have a chair at the table, and brought more food.

"Neck 'is broke with hunger, 't is sartin," said he, as he began to eat. "Hev t' light out o' here purty middlin' soon. T' ain' no safe place t' be. 'T won' never dew fer us t' be ketched."

We ate hurriedly and when we had finished the good woman gave us each an outfit of apparel left by her dead husband. It was rather snug for D'ri, and gave him an odd look. She went out of doors while we were dressing. Suddenly she came back to the door.

"Go into the cellar," she whispered. "They are coming!"

CHAPTER XII.

I found the door, and D'ri flung our "duds" into the darkness that lay beyond it. Then he made down the ladder and I after him. It was pitch-dark in the cellar—a deep, dank place with a rank odor of rotting potatoes. We groped our way to a corner and stood listening. We heard the clink of spurs on the stone step.

"Ah, my good woman," said a man with a marked English accent, "have you seen any Yankees? Woods are full of them around here. No? Well, by Jove, you're a good-looking woman. Will you give me a kiss?"

He crossed the floor above us, and she was backing away.

"Come, come, don't be so shy, my pretty woman," said he, and then we could hear her struggling up and down the floor. I was climbing the ladder, in the midst of it, my face burning with anger, and D'ri was at my heels. As the door opened I saw she had fallen. The trooper was bending to kiss her. I had him by the collar and had hauled him down before he discovered us. In a twinkling D'ri had stripped him of sword and pistol. But it was one of the most hopeless situations in all my life. Many muzzles were pointing at us through the door and window. Another hostile move from either would have ended our history then and there. I let go and stood back. The man got to his feet—a handsome soldier in the full uniform of a British captain.

"Ah, there's a fine pair!" he said coolly, whipping a leg of his trousers with his glove. "I 'll teach you better manners, my young fellow. Some o' those shipwrecked Yankees," he added, turning to his men. "If they move without an order, pin 'em up to the wall."

He picked up his hat leisurely, stepping in front of D'ri.

"Now, my obliging friend," said he, holding out his hand, "I 'll trouble you for my sword and pistol."

D'ri glanced over at me, an ugly look in his eye. He would have fought to his death then and there if I had given him the word. He was game to the core when his blood was up, the same old D'ri.

"Don't fight," I said.

He had cocked the pistol and stood braced, the sword in his right hand. I noticed a little quiver in the great sinews of his wrist. I expected to see that point of steel shoot, with a quick stab, into the scarlet blouse before me.

"Shoot 'n' be damned!" said D'ri. "'Fore I die ye 'll hev a hole er tew 'n thet air karkiss o' yourn. Shan't give up no weepon tell ye've gin me yer word ye 'll let thet air woman alone."

I expected a volley then. A very serious look came over the face of the captain. He wiped his brow with a handkerchief. I could see that he had been drinking.

"Ah, I see! You have an interest in her. Well, my man, I want no share in your treasures. I accept the condition."

Evil as was the flavor of this poor concession, D'ri made the best of it.

"She 's an honest woman for all I know," said he, handing over the weapons. "Ain't a-goin' t' see no ledy mishused—nut ef I can help it."

We gave ourselves up hand and foot to the enemy; there was no way out of it. I have read in the story-books how men of great nerve and skill have slaughtered five to one, escaping with no great loss of blood. Well, of a brave man I like to believe good things. My own eyes have seen what has made me slow to doubt a story of prowess that has even the merit of possibility. But when there are only two of you, and one without arms, and you are in a corner, and there are 10 pistols pointing at you a few feet away, and as many sabers ready to be drawn, I say no power less remarkable than that of God or a novelist can bring you out of your difficulty. You have your choice of two evils—surrender or be cut to pieces. We had neither of us any longing to be slashed with steel and bored with bullets, and to no end but a good epitaph.

They searched the cellar and found our clothes, and wrapped them in a bundle. Then they tied our hands behind us and took us along the road on which I had lately ridden. A crowd came jeering to the highway as we passed the little village. It was my great fear that somebody would recognize either one or both of us.

Four of our men were sitting in a guard-house at the British camp. After noon mess a teamster drove up with a big wagon. Guards came and shackled us in pairs, D'ri being wrist to wrist with me. They put a chain and ball on D'ri's leg also. I wondered why, for no other was treated with like respect. Then they bundled us all into the wagon, now surrounded by impatient cavalry. They put a blindfold over the eyes of each prisoner, and went away at a lively pace. We rode a long time, as it seemed to me, and by and by I knew we had come to a city, for I could hear the passing of many wagons and the murmur of a crowd. Some were shouting, "Shoot the d——d Yankees!" and now and then a missile struck among us. There is nothing so heartless and unthinking as a crowd, the world over. I could tell presently, by the creak of the evener and the stroke of the hoofs, that we were climbing a long hill. We stopped shortly; then they began helping us out. They led us forward a few paces, the chain rattling on a stone pavement. When we heard the bang of an iron door behind us, they unlocked the heavy fetter. This done, they led us along a gravel walk and over a sounding stretch of boards—a bridge, I have always thought—through another heavy door and down a winding flight of stone steps. They led us on through dark passages, over stone paving, and halted us, after a long walk, letting our eyes free. We were in black darkness. There were two guards before and two behind us bearing candles. They unshackled us, and opened a lattice door of heavy iron, bidding us enter. I knew then that we were going into a dungeon, deep under the walls of a British fort somewhere on the frontier. A thought stung me as D'ri and I entered this black hole and sat upon a heap of straw. Was this to be the end of our fighting and of us?

"You can have a candle a day," said a guard as he blew out the one he carried, laying it, with a tinder-box, on a

HE LIGHTED THE CANDLE AND WENT ABOUT POURING ITS GLOW ON EVERY WALL AND CORNER OF OUR CELL.

Then they filed out, and the narrow door shut with a loud bang. We peered through at the fading flicker of the candles. They threw wavering, ghostly shadows on every wall of the dark passage, and suddenly went out of sight. We both stood listening a moment.

"Curse the luck!" I whispered presently.

"Jest es helpless es if we was hung up by the heels," said D'ri, groping his way to the straw pile. "Ain' no use gittin' wrathy."

"What 'll we do?" I whispered.

"Dunno," said he: "an' when ye dunno whut t' dew, don' dew nuthin. Jest stan' still; thet's whut I b'lieve in."

He lighted the candle and went about, pouring its glow upon every wall and into every crack and corner of our cell—a small chamber set firm in masonry, with a ceiling so far above our heads we could see it but dimly, the candle lifted arm's-length.

"Judas Priest!" said D'ri, as he stopped the light with thumb and finger. "I'm goin' t' set here 'n th' straw luk an ol' hen 'n' ile up m' thinker 'n' set 'er goin'. One o' them kind hes t' keep 'is mouth shet er he can't never dew no thinkin'. Bymby, likes es not, I 'll have suthin' t' say et 'll 'mount t' suthin'."

We lay back on the straw in silence. I did a lot of thinking that brought me little hope. Thoughts of Louison and Louise soon led me out of prison. After a little time I went philandering in the groves of the baroness with the two incomparable young ladies. I would willingly have stood for another bullet if I could have had another month of their company. The next thought of my troubles came with the opening of the iron door. I had been sound asleep. A guard came in with water and a pot of stewed beef and potatoes.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE DAPINDU.

Togo Reports Port Arthur Fleet Totally Disabled.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—A special from Mukden says that the village of Dapindu has been occupied after a sharp fight by a detachment of Russian infantry, Cossacks and borderers under Belinske.

Japanese suffering from frostbites of the hands and feet have voluntarily surrendered to the Russians.

The Japanese, like the Russian troops, are living in dugouts, six men in a house. They have apparently a large supply of clothing, principally Chinese padded garments. Many of them are wearing Russian boots.

Cossacks recently captured a Japanese officer dressed in a Russian uniform as he was quietly riding along the Russian frontal positions. He saluted as he passed the Cossacks, speaking perfect Russian, but the Cossacks, suspecting something wrong, tried to stop him. He bolted, but afterward was captured.

It is reported that a new form of sickness has broken out among the Japanese at Hunchun resembling the bubonic plague.

A Japanese observation balloon was seen there reconnoitering the Russian front.

Vice Admiral Togo has reported to Tokyo that there is no room left to doubt that the enemy's ships in the harbor of Port Arthur are totally unfit for service. He believes that the battleship Sevastopol has been disabled by torpedo attacks, but no definite data on which to pass final judgment has yet been obtained. It is certain that at least six Russian torpedo boat destroyers remain intact in the harbor.

A Tokyo report says that the Japanese army besieging Port Arthur has stormed and captured North fort, on East Keekwan mountain, after exploding a mine under the fortifications.

General Semeamiam, commanding the supports, advanced to the casemates at sundown and, encouraging his men, threw his supports into the fighting line in a last brave charge.

At 11:50 o'clock at night the troops completely occupied the fort and immediately engaged in the construction of defensive works. The occupation then became firmly assured.

Before retiring the Russians exploded four mines in the neighborhood of the neck of the fort.

Five nine-centimeter field guns were captured and two machine guns, as well as a lot of ammunition.

The Russians left forty or fifty dead.

TEN BOATMEN POISONED.

They Drank Wood Alcohol and All Died Together.

ASHLAND, Ky., Dec. 20.—Ten men are dead and two others are reported dying from the effects of wood alcohol poisoning at the mouth of Beaver river, at Big Sandy. Three others of the party are missing.

Three pushboats, with a crew of seventeen men, were en route to Pikeville, the boats being loaded with freight. At the mouth of Beaver river, five miles above Prestonsburg, two of the boats sank, and the men swam and waded ashore with much of the freight. A jug of wood alcohol was one of the articles saved. It was dark, and the men were chilled and wet. Fires were built and supper started.

A man came along and sold them four bottles of "moonshine" whisky. They drank the whisky and wanted more. One man said, "Let's drink the alcohol." Another said: "It will kill us. See the poison label?" One of the crew began mixing drinks and said: "Come on. Let's have our Christmas now. If it's poison, we will all die together." They drank the stuff, and while at supper they became violently ill. Two doctors were called, but could not relieve them.

The next game of the Plainfield High School basketball team in the Interscholastic League, will be on January 11 against the High School team of the borough. 60 to 10 was the score of the last game between these two teams, and the North Plainfield team will make a hard fight to revenge the former defeat.

Several of the players on the Leal's alumni team which played the regular Leal's School five yesterday afternoon, have been playing thus far during their college career on their class teams. The Haughey brothers have been playing on the 1908 team at Princeton, and Robert Abbott has figured in Yale basketball circles.

Phillips, the popular New York business man, who died from a clot of blood on the brain while attending the chase of the Watchung Hunt Club last week, there will be no chase Saturday as had formerly been arranged. The Christmas Day hunt, however, which will be of especial attraction, will be held on Monday, December 26.

TAX RECEIPTS $175,000

Collector Lee's Office Beseiged by Taxpayers This Week.

FEW DELINQUENTS

P. S. C. Pays a Large Amount—Monday and Tuesday's Receipts $70,000.

Tax Collector Robert L. Lee, and his assistant, David Pope, were at the office until after 11 o'clock last night taking care of the tax money that was coming in. As usual there is a great rush to get the money in before the time-limit is up, and in consequence the Collector cannot tabulate the various amounts within the prescribed time. Mr. Lee stated previously that he would be unable to receive taxes after 9 o'clock last night, but he had to break this rule to some extent. This morning there was a large quantity of mail, containing tax money which Mr. Lee was unable to reach during the early hours.

Approximately there has been received in taxes up to this morning about $175,000 and this compares favorably with the collections of other years. It now looks as though the delinquent list would be much smaller than usual. One of the big days at the office was on Monday when over $40,000 was received. This included some of the corporation tax from the Public Service Corporation. All of the corporations owing the city taxes have paid up.

Yesterday, the last day for the payment of taxes without the added interest, did not show such a large mount, there being about $30,000 received. This amount came in smaller sums than the day before, when the Public Service Corporation's one payment of $2,599 83 was made. The total corporation tax here amounts to over $3,500, and it is seen that the Public Service Corporation pays over two-thirds of this.

Mr. Lee says he will be unable to give out exact figures of the taxes received before tomorrow. By that time he will have the various amounts totaled.

SALAAM TEMPLE'S CONDITION EXCELLENT

H. W. MARSHALL CHOSEN GUIDE AT ANNUAL MEETING.

Salaam Temple, Ancient and Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine, held the first annual business meeting in Newark, last night, when encouraging reports were received and officers elected for the coming year. A year ago this temple was instituted with 309 members and there was an indebtedness of $5,000. Now the membership is 642 and during the year the indebtedness was reduced to $1,300 and there is $2,600 in the treasury, making it possible to entirely wipe out the debt, if desired. H. W. Marshall was the only Plainfielder at the meeting and the only one elected to an office.

The principal officers chosen were as follows: Potentate, George W. Wiedenmayer; chief ribban, O. H. Richardson; assistant ribban, W. Edward Becker; high priest, Palmer Charlock; oriental guide, H. W. Marshall; treasurer, John C. Groel; recorder, G. C. Ward.

Arrangements were made for the Shriners to attend the Imperial Council session to be held at Saratoga in June and plans were formulated for the important meeting of the temple on Tuesday night, January 31, when over one hundred candidates will be initiated.

Praise for Cross.

Another judge is asked for the District of New Jersey in a bill introduced by Senator Kean last week as the result of the congestion of business in the Federal Court in New Jersey. For some time it has been felt that the volume of business passing through the United States District Court at Trenton justifies the creation of a second court in this State. In the event of Senator Kean's bill becoming a law it is broadly hinted that the new Judgeship will be tendered to Senator Cross, of Union County, to whom a judicial appointment would not prove uncongenial, it is said. Senator Cross, who is a lawyer of excellent reputation and ability, would fill the new place upon the Federal bench most satisfactorily.—From the Mount Holly Mirror.

HILLSIDE T. AND G. CLUB HOLDS MEETING TONIGHT

PLAN TO CHANGE ITS NAME AND TAKE OTHER IMPORTANT STEPS.

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will hold a meeting tomorrow night, the purpose being to change the name of the club to the Plainfield Country Club and to raise the dues sufficiently to raise revenue for the improvement of the course and to engage a clerk permanently for the clubhouse.

For some time the members have felt that the present name is not a representative one.

During the past season improvement have been made at the clubhouse including sleeping quarters. It is expected that Mrs. Lena Hellstrom, the stewardess, will be continued another year. Her work has been quite satisfactory.

Last season more time was devoted to the game of tennis and more than the usual number of tournaments were arranged. It is proposed to maintain this interest next season by having a more attractive schedule than ever. In doing this the golf schedule will not be slighted, the plan being to provide a strong list of tournaments. More attention will also be given to team matches than during the past season. The annual meeting of the club will be held in February.

Y. M. C. A. CIRCUS LIKELY TO BE A BIG SUCCESS

MEMBERS OF GYMNASIUM ARE NOW TRAINING FOR UNIQUE EVENT.

The plan of presenting a circus in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium has met with almost universal favor, and the arrangements are progressing rapidly. Many of the members of the department are interested in the affair, and those who are to take important parts in the production are training nearly every evening.

Among the features of the circus will be the usual grotesque and comic attractions, exhibition tumbling, tight rope walking, flying rings and high bar exhibitions, minstrel and other unique forms of entertainment. Bert Hansen, one of the best tumblers in the city, is intending to perform and he will be assisted in this feature by Wilbur Bentliff. The latter will also do the flying ring work. On the high bar, Caboone and Neal will do stunts, while Charles Sebring will probably act in the capacity of a clown. Frank Shephard, who is well known in this city as a tight wire walker, will also have a prominent place on the programme.

In addition to the gymnastic features there will be pryamid work, on which ten of the members of the department are training, and combination tumbling by Messrs. Bentliff and Hansen. Fancy dancing and singing will have a prominent part on the programme, and there will be several "rube" comedians. The date for this performance has not yet been set, but it is expected that it will take place in the latter part of January.

NOT TO MOLEST P. S. C.

Cars Will Not be Stopped Unless Bill is Paid to Borough.

There is absolutely no truth in the story that the North Plainfield authorities contemplate stopping the P. S. C. from running its trolley cars in the borough unless a bill for street repairing is paid by the company. Mayor Smalley and Corporation Counsel Reed both said this morning that no such move had even been considered. Both declared that the hitch over the bill rendered is something that occurs annually and that the claim for $197 will be paid in the regular course of business by the P. S. C.

Should there be such a thing as a refusal to honor the bill, a civil action will be brought in the courts to enforce its payment and nothing more, according to Senator Reed. The claim in question arises from the fact that under an agreement, the trolley company pays one-third of the annual cost of repairs on Somerset street.

Changes in Postal Routes.

After the first of the year it is expected that several changes will be made in the routes of the letter-carriers. At present Letter carrier George Apgar is in charge of the route formerly carried by Thomas Burns, who has left the service, and Carrier Robert Goldsack has the route formerly carried by Patrick Reville, but some changes are anticipated soon after January 1 in re-adjusting the routes.

RICHARD A. OSMUN WORSHIPFUL MASTER

JERUSALEM LODGE, NO. 26, F. AND A. M., HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., held a regular communication last night and elected these officers for the ensuing year: Worshipful master, Richard A. Osmun; senior warden, George Caskie; junior warden, Robert Rief; treasurer, Clarence Goss; secretary, Garret T. Dunham; representative to Masonic Hall Association, James F. Buckle. The officers will be installed Tuesday evening, January 3.

Richard A. Osmun.

Jerusalem Lodge is just closing a most successful year under the supervision of the old officers and Fred'k J. Pope, the retiring worshipful master, has every reason to feel proud of the lodge work which will undoubtedly be continued by the newly-elected officers.

COMMON COUNCIL MEETS ON FRIDAY NIGHTS

TWO ADJOURNED SESSIONS BEFORE THE NEW YEAR.

Routine matters will occupy most of the time of the Common Council at its adjourned meeting on Friday night. Although another adjourned meeting will be held on Friday night, December 30. At the last meeting there will be presented the annual reports of the city judge, city treasurer, collector and all the various committees, including that of Street Commissioner Gavett, Chief of Police Kiely, Overseer of the Poor Alex Ayers and Chief of the Fire Department T. O. Doane.

One of the most important matters to be presented to the new Common Council will be the message of Mayor-elect James F. Buckle in which he is expected to set forth in a measure his policy for the coming year. All of the new officers will take their seats at 1 o'clock noon on Sunday, January 1, but on account of the day the Common Council will not meet until Monday night, January 2.

CLASS REUNION.

Members of P. H. S. 1904 to Hold Annual Event During Holidays.

Notification has been sent out by the class president, Lucius T. Koons, to the members of the class of 1904, Plainfield High School, appointing a date for a preliminary meeting, to consider the subject of the first annual class reunion.

In accordance with the usual custom of the classes graduating from the school, the class of 1904 will hold a meeting sometime during the Christmas holidays. It will probably take place in the High School building, though the preliminary meeting will be held at the home of one of the members of the class. With a few exceptions all the members of the class of 1904 will be in this city during the next two weeks, and the class reunion promises to be one of the successes which has characterized the class' career.

A $100 Chicken House Fire.

Catching fire from a smoke house nearby, a large chicken house belonging to W. S. Sandford, of West Dunellen, was totally destroyed Saturday, entailing a loss of $100. A small number of chickens and ducks in the structure were burned to death. The Dunellen fire department was summoned but owing to the heavy roads reached the spot too late to be of any service.

BOROUGH GETS $50,000

Last Year's Record for Tax Receipts is Surpassed.

ITS APPORTIONMENT

County to Get $15,551.84; State School Tax $4,292.85 and Special School Tax $22,985.

During all yesterday and today, Borough Collector George F. Brown's office has been one of the busiest places in North Plainfield through the rush of taxpayers to settle accounts before the ten per cent. for non-payment is added. The total receipts so far have been $50,000, exceeding last year's record by at least $5,000 and enabling the collector to make prompt payments of the county tax amounting to $15,551.84, the State school tax, $4,292 85, and the special school tax, $22,985, an aggregate of $42,929.69.

Under the new school law, the special school tax must be paid to the school custodian at once and not as collected in former years. The prompt settlement of the borough people has permitted this to be done without any convenience and leave a good balance in the treasury beside. Heretofore it has been necessary to borrow in anticipation of the taxes.

Collector Brown today expressed himself as greatly pleased with the collections as they make a new record for his office. He anticipates getting another $5,000 before January 1 despite the holiday season when people are pressed more than ever for money. This will leave $10,000 still to be collected and he expects to have the greater part of it before February 1. The rush at the office yesterday and today was the greatest the borough has undergone but Collector Brown and his assistants made rapid work of the long line of waiting citizens.

IMPATIENT HORSE TRIES TO ENTER THE POSTOFFICE

SMASHED PANE OF GLASS IN EFFORT TO FIND MISTRESS.

Evidently wanting to know what was detaining its mistress, a horse belonging to Mrs. A. B. David, of Belvidere avenue, attempted to go into the local postoffice yesterday afternoon, and find out. It might have succeeded but for the fact that it made the mistake of trying to pass through the glass of one of the doors. The big pane was smashed to pieces, causing a mild panic among the crowds of people who were inside intent on getting off Christmas packages.

The noise also frightened the horse and it danced around in a lively manner in trying to get back to the street. It was caught by Money Order Clerk William Sharp before any further damage resulted. To all appearances the equine was not hurt by its strange experience.

YOUNG SCHOONMAKER, CRACK HOCKEY PLAYER

PLAINFELDER MAKING A RECORD ON COLUMBIA TEAM.

Ralph Schoonmaker, of this city, who is a junior at Columbia University, has been doing exceptionally good work on the college hockey team this winter. He is one of the strongest members of the team, and his excellent passing had much to do in aiding his team to win the recent game with the strong Seventh Regiment team, of New York.

Schoonmaker began his hockey career on the Leal's School team in 1899, when he was one of the fastest players which the school has ever turned out. It was in the following season that the Leal's team made their best scholastic hockey record, and Ralph and Will Schoonmaker were the strong points of the aggregation.

In Columbia Mr. Schoonmaker has figured prominently in football and hockey for two years on the 'varsity teams, and in his freshmen year on the class teams.

NEW BOWLING CLUB MAY BE ORGANIZED

MEMBERS OF Y. M. C. A. TEAM ARE CONSIDERING AN INDEPENDENT CLUB.

In order to play off a few remaining games in their schedule with outside teams the Y. M. C. A. bowling team will probably hire the alleys of the Fanwood Club for a few weeks and conduct their matches there. For a long time they have been intending to rent local alleys independent of the Y. M. C. A. and though they will still continue to be known by that name, they will no longer be strictly representative of the local association.

In addition to the bowlers on the team, there are several others who are interested in the local rollers, and the formation of an independent bowling club is quite favorably considered. The team will have good financial backing, and if the organization of a club is attempted, it will undoubtedly be a success.

Negotiations have been made with Manager Mase Edwards, of the Casino, and though not officially announced it is possible that the newly formed club may use the alleys at the Casino. A number of the team, and one interested in the organization of a club, independent of the Y. M. C. A., recently remarked to a reporter of The Daily Press that even if the remainder of the bowling season is completed under the present organization, next year the plan of a new club will meet with general approval, and will undoubtedly go into effect.

Monday afternoon, from 3 to 5, is the time fixed for the celebration. YOUNG WOMEN MINSTRELS MAY REPEAT PERFORMANCE

LINCOLN MISSES GREATLY ELATED AT SUCCESS OF THEIR VENTURE.

Elated by the success which attended their first attempt, the young women of Lincoln who gave a genuine, black-face minstrel show in the Sunday-school building last Friday, are discussing the advisability of repeating the performance. It was largely attended and applauded at every turn and the financial results were well over what was expected. The money was added to the fund for the Sunday-school's annual Christmas festival which is to be held Friday evening.

The show was one of the most unique yet given in this vicinity and the participants have since been continuously congratulated. Not a male resident of Mayor Drake's town took part and the predictions of the young men that it would be a fizzle were disproved. The young women composed their own songs, arranged their jokes and had their costumes made by one of the Sunday-school leaders, female of course. Their identity was so completely hidden behind burnt cork that it has not yet been learned and for that reason they feel safe in planning a second attempt at this form of entertainment.

OUTLOOK FOR TROLLEY TO SOUTH PLAINFIELD

CONFERENCE BETWEEN P. S. C. OFFICIALS ATD LEADING CITIZENS.

The residents of South Plainfield have not yet given up all hope of having their town connected with the outside world by trolley, and every effort will be made to secure this improvement within a year. A number of leading citizens of South Plainfield recently had a conference with the officials of the Public Service Corporation and received much encouragement. It is realized that the will town not grow to any extent unless quick and convenient transportation is afforded between that place and Plainfield.

It has been known for some time that the Public Service Corporation has been figuring on a line to Metuchen from this city, but for the reason that the corporation believes this would not pay at present, the matter has been allowed to wait. It is the hope of the South Plainfield residents that the town can be on one side of a belt line that would take in Plainfield, Dunellen and New Market. This would give the trolley company considerable territory and a fair amount of patronage. For years the facilities for reaching New Market and South Plainfield as well as the intervening territory and that lying outside of it, has been poor. Stage lines have been established only to be given up because of poor service and slow method of travel. With an up-to-date trolley service this outlying territory would have such a boom that mechanics of all kind would receive the benefit.

Badgley Signs With Washington.

Badgley, the Lehigh University baseball pitcher, who twirled several games for the Plainfield A. C., last season, notably the twelve inning 1 to 0 with Acolian, and who pitched the remainder of the season for the nine at Washington, N. J., has signed to play with the same team for next season. This team will be in the North Jersey Baseball League.

Railroad Merger.

C. E. Society on Straw Ride.

Eighteen members of the Junior C. E. Society, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, enjoyed a straw ride last night between this city and Westfield. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Wheaton Lowry and Mrs. H. C. Runyon and was all the success that a congenial crowd and a perfect night could afford.

Chief Doane Recovering.

Chief Doane, of the fire department, has nearly recovered from a bad cold which threatened to bring on pneumonia. He expects to be about in a few days.

DOUD ON HEALTH BOARD

Rev. Mr. Honeyman to be Ousted by Mayor Smalley.

NEW INSPECTOR TOO

Borough Administration Forces Will Obtain Control of the Board of Health Soon.

When the North Plainfield Common Council meets on Friday night, January 6, Mayor Newton B. Smalley will ask that Thomas Doud be appointed a member of the Board of Health to succeed Rev. W. E. Honeyman. When seen by a reporter for The Daily Press today, the Mayor would neither deny nor confirm the report that Rev. Mr. Honeyman is to be ousted and that Recorder Doud is slated to fill the place he vacates, but the report comes from good authority and can be depended upon.

Rev. Mr. Honeyman, who is secretary of the Board, has always been antagonistic to the mayor and his friends and for this reason the first opportunity is taken by the administration to put him out of office. When this is accomplished the administration will get control of the Board, which has fought it for several years.

The present members of the Board are Andrew Love, Sr., Dr. D. C. Adams, John McLaughlin, Rev. Dr. Honeyman and J. O. Osgood. Dr. Adams and Mr. Osgood are classed as friends of the administration and when Mr. Doud is appointed, the trio will form a majority. Inspector William Pangborn will be surprised to learn that he must go. That's already decided. He is said to have trained with the anti-administration forces too much and his head must be chopped off. It cannot be learned at this time who will be appointed in his place for the Board of Health will make the appointment.

FANWOOD BOROUGH WILL HAVE ITS OWN JAIL

TIRED OF HAVING TO SEND ITS PRISONERS ELSEWHERE.

Keeping pace with the progressive spirit shown by municipalities all around it, Fanwood borough, heretofore holding the reputation of being the only place of its size without a jail, is soon to have a "cooler" of its own, modern and up-to-date in every way. The Borough Council has appointed Collector Charles Sheelen a committee of one to procure a suitable building in which to erect two steel cages or cells; duplicates of the ones now in use at Scotch Plains. He will have the work hurried along and within a few weeks Fanwood's jail will be awaiting lawbreakers.

The want of such a place has led to many difficulties in the borough during the past few years and the matter was becoming a serious problem. The place boasts of a police force, but every time an arrest was made the prisoner would have to be taken to Scotch Plains or Plainfield for safe keeping, or else released in his own recognizance. This entailed an endless amount of red tape and expense, yet whenever the subject of a jail was broached, opposition would down it. The matter was at last gotten before the Council and at its last meeting the instructions were given Collector Sheelen who is also borough recorder.

A Plant That Blooms.

Charles E. Ball, superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company, has a plant called a "Giant Cyclamen," which is attracting unusual attention from lovers of flowers. Mr. Ball purchased the plant from Chas. L. Stanley, the North avenue florist, who guaranteed that it would produce over one hundred flowers before Christmas. This it has done and more too, far exceeding the assurances of Mr. Stanley and the expectation of Mr. Ball.

A TRYING ORDEAL.

Nan Patterson Under District Attorney's Crossfire.

"FEARED WIFE WOULD KILL BOTH"

"Caesar Gave Me as Much as $40,000 to $50,000," Testified the Prisoner—Her Main Story Was Unshaken.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Under a relentless fire of cross examination by Assistant District Attorney Rand, Nan Patterson, who is on trial for the murder of Caesar Young, the bookmaker, spent a harrowing two hours on the witness stand at the early session of the trial. Many times she hesitated, faltered and contradicted herself in some details as the prosecutor took her over the ground she had traversed blithely under the suave questioning of her counsel, Abraham Levy. Again she told the story of how Young died, re-enacting, with a subpoena server taking the part of the bookmaker who was shot, the happenings in the hansom cab at the time of the shooting. She told of Young catching hold of her and how she wrenched herself clear of him twice. Then came the shot. She had seen no revolver. Young's left hand, she admitted, was underneath him at the time.

One piece of testimony that stirred the courtroom was the declaration of the witness that Young had told her that he feared his wife would kill him or both of them.

Then she admitted that in her opinion Young had no such fear.

In some of her testimony she contradicted details of her former story and excused herself by saying that she was very nervous then. Throughout her examination her answers were given in a careless, listless way, and her voice was scarcely audible ten yards away from where she sat. When asked if she was a truthful and honest woman she replied that she was "with one exception." The prosecutor took her back to her first meeting with Young, whom she said she met on a train, and she told of various large sums of money that he had given her. She could not estimate the total amount within $15,000.

Questioned by Mr. Rand, she said:

"Caesar gave me $2,800 in California. The next highest sum he gave me at one time was $2,500. Sometimes he gave me $1,500 and $1,800 at a time. I do not know if he gave me altogether as much as $40,000 or $50,000.

"I was not sitting facing Caesar in the cab when the shot was fired. I did not see the pistol. When I first heard the report I thought it might have been in the street. When the shot was fired I do not know where his hands were.

"I never knew my sister, Mrs. Smith, wrote a letter to Caesar telling him about an operation I was said to have undergone. I went through no operation. I never talked to Caesar about such a thing.

"When I got into the cab with Caesar I did not know where he was taking me. I never gave it a thought, or if I did I supposed he would leave me somewhere near the steamship pier."

Although the defendant contradicted herself in some details, it was the opinion of those in the courtroom that in the main facts her story remained unshaken. Her lawyers declared that she had made out a good case for herself.

With the conclusion of her testimony and the calling of a witness to set the time at which Nan Patterson returned from the race track on the afternoon before the shooting the defense rested.

Mr. Rand called Mrs. Young, the widow, among his witnesses, in rebuttal. She contradicted Nan Patterson's story about the hat that Young wore on the early morning of the day he was shot. With the rebuttal testimony the prosecution closed.

When both sides had rested Justice Davis asked Mr. Levy if he was desirous of beginning his address. The lawyer replied that he was not physically able to begin. In that case, the court said, he would order an adjournment until this morning. Justice Davis added that he wanted to have the case go to the jury today.

Ford Elected Mayor.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Dec. 21.—The municipal election has resulted in the defeat of Mayor Frank D. Stafford, the Republican candidate, for a third term, Marshall R. Ford, the Democratic candidate, being elected by a margin of only thirty votes. The Republicans, however, elected five of the seven candidates for the common council. The city voted for license by a majority of 353. The Lucs joint caucus act was repealed by an overwhelming vote. The city adopted the firemen's pension act.

Big Storm on Portuguese Coast.

LISBON, Dec. 21.—A disastrous storm, which suddenly burst on the northern coast of Portugal, has caused a great loss of life. Eighteen fishermen were drowned at Figueira da Foz, and 600 others have been rendered destitute. A ferryboat plying at the mouth of the Mondego river was capsized, and fourteen persons were drowned. In the Leixoes basin, near Oporto, five boats were sunk and five persons drowned.

Huge Wave Killed Mate.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 21.—The Danish vessel Greda has arrived here, her captain injured and her mate dead as the result of her experiences in the fierce tornado that is now sweeping the coast. A heavy sea struck the ship, throwing the mate through the cabin door and breaking his neck and legs. The wheel was broken and the Greda's deck gear and sails were carried away.

JAPAN RINGS WITH SAMEJIMA'S NAME

Capture of Keekwan Fort Under Veteran Warrior One of Brilliancy and Daring—Seven Mines Exploded Before Assault.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Dispatches from Tokyo say that the Japanese protected cruiser Tsushima has seized the British steamer Nigretia, bound for Vladivostok, off Ulsan, Korea. An examination of the Nigretia's cargo showed she had a large quantity of contraband of war on board.

It is reported that the Nigretia had on board officers and men of Russian torpedo boat destroyers who had escaped from internment at Shanghai and were attempting to regain the Russian lines.

The British steamer King Arthur was also captured by the Japanese guardship Asagiri while attempting to leave Port Arthur on Monday. It is understood the King Arthur took supplies there.

She had on board Russian naval officers who were attempting to join the Russian second Pacific squadron. Both ships were taken to Sasebo.

All Japan is today ringing the praises of General Samejima as the hero of the assault on Keekwan mountain fort. It is conceded that his heroism inspired his men and turned a threatened disaster into a splendid victory.

The capture of the North Keekwan mountain fort was a brilliant feat. For weeks the Japanese had been tunneling two shafts forty feet in length, with four branches, where they laid seven mines, which were exploded previous to the attack.

The two attacking parties were composed of volunteers, and those participating in the first attempt vowed to capture the fort or die.

The soldiers of the first force were distinguished by a red badge. They remained in the moat during the explosion of the mines, having charged prematurely, and many were killed by the debris.

The second body of assaulters, distinguished by white badges, was in the saps during the explosion and was prevented from charging immediately, the mouths of the saps having been filled with debris.

The explosion made two huge rents in the north walls, through which the assaulters charged the enemy, winning the trenches in front of the wall and killing the remainder of the garrison in the rear of the fort.

Hongkong reports confirm the news that a powerful Japanese squadron of eight battleships and armored cruisers has proceeded south of Formosa, accompanied by fifteen colliers and transports, to attack the Russian Baltic squadron.

A Cape Town dispatch says that the Russian hospital ship Orel has sailed from that port for the far east.

Captain Pershing For Far East.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Captain John J. Pershing, Fifteenth cavalry, has been selected by the war department as military attache at Tokyo, Japan, to succeed Lieutenant Colonel Wood, whose term of foreign duty has expired.

To Send Potatoes to Ireland.

GREELEY, Colo., Dec. 21.—Mayor H. C. Watson has issued a call for a mass meeting on Saturday next to consider a proposition to donate a large quantity of potatoes to the starving poor of Ireland. Similar meetings will be held at Longmont and Fort Collins. It is believed the farmers of northern Colorado will contribute several hundred carloads of potatoes if transportation can be arranged for. The government will be asked to furnish a transport to carry the potatoes from Galveston to Ireland.

Seven Perished on Long Shoal.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Dec. 21.—Death in the sea was the probable fate of Captain Nelson F. Mills and the six men who comprised the crew of the schooner Richard S. Leaming, which was driven ashore on Long shoal during the severe blizzard last Sunday. Both of the schooner's yawl boats were found aboard her yesterday, one of them having been smashed to splinters. It is supposed that the crew took to the rigging, and when it was carried away they fell with it into the ocean.

Yeggmen on Trial.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 21.—Ten of the alleged yeggmen arrested here a week ago were given hearings before Police Magistrate Ochs. Three of them were turned over to the United States authorities and committed to jail for further hearings by United States Commissioner Rogers, six were held for the action of the authorities of Charles and Carroll counties, and one, William Rowe, was dismissed.

Buzzards Bay Lines Blown Down.

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—Telegraphic and telephonic communication between Boston and various points in Cape Cod, which has been cut off since Sunday on account of the storm of that day, has been resumed. Over a hundred poles were blown over below Buzzards Bay and a mass of wires carried down.

Texan Suspect Discharged.

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—Harry Van Cliff, a Texas cattleman, held on suspicion of being responsible for the death of Vincenzo di Pietro here early this month, has been discharged after a hearing in the municipal court. The medical examiner testified that Di Pietro died from natural causes.

EIGHT LIVES LOST.

Minneapolis Hotel Residents Crushed In Their Beds.

HIGH WALL IN FIRE RUINS FELL.

Strong Wind Sent Tons of Brick and Stone Crashing Through Three Story Roof—It Was Carried Down to Basement.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 21.—Eight persons have lost their lives in the Crocker hotel, on Fifth street, through the falling of the high east wall of the O. H. Peck building, which was damaged by fire last Tuesday night.

The high wind loosened the wall, and tons of brick and stone crashed down upon the roof of the three story hotel next door. The roof was forced through to the basement, carrying death and injury before it. Fire added horror to the scene, but was soon quenched.

There was no warning of the disaster, and the fourteen persons who were sleeping in the various apartments were caught in the crushed structure.

Those killed included Hans Anderson, James Hamilton, C. M. Kenyon, William Lillyblade, Mrs. Jennie Murray, William Emmermon, William Bray and Joseph Violet.

The injured were Mrs. Carrie Boyce, cut about face and body bruised; W. J. Crocker, badly bruised; Mrs. Evelyn Williams, face cut and badly bruised, and Mrs. Anna McNevins, face cut and badly bruised.

Some of those injured were in the Belmont hotel, adjoining the Crocker hotel, and were hurt by debris forced through the wall separating the two buildings.

Mrs. Anna McNevins had a remarkable escape. She was on the second floor in bed when the crash came. The firemen took her out of her bed in the basement. The debris had arched over so as to preserve her entirely from injury.

W. J. Crocker, the proprietor, was found pinioned beneath a radiator and was taken out fainting, but will recover.

J. G. Houghton, city building inspector, made an inspection of the standing walls Monday, but gave no orders. He had earlier ordered the demolition of other walls that seemed likely to fall.

C. L. Smith's premonition of trouble saved his life. He roomed in the Crocker building and was nervous and could not sleep. Twice he arose, dressed and went outside to see what the wind was doing. The second time he told a policeman he thought the wall unsafe. The officer laughed at the idea, but his laughter had not ceased before the wall fell.

DEATH OF BISHOP PHELAN.

Pittsburg Prelate Passed Away After Three Years' Illness.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 21.—Right Rev. Richard Phelan, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Pittsburg, is dead after an illness covering three years.

Bishop Phelan was born in the townland of Stralee, near Ballyragget, County Kilkenny, Ireland, Jan. 1, 1828. After graduating from St. Kieran's college, Kilkenny, he came to Pittsburg. He continued his studies at the seminary of St. Michael here and at St. Mary's seminary in Baltimore. On May 4, 1854, he was ordained a priest. He became bishop of the Pittsburg diocese in 1889. On May 4 last the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood was celebrated with a golden jubilee.

A little over a year ago the Right Rev. Regis Canevin was appointed as coadjutor bishop. The elder official then sought the quiet retreat of St. Paul's Orphan asylum at Idlewood, where he died.

Bishop Phelan was a brother of Canon Phelan of Ireland.

Colonel Ames Pardoned.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 21. — The state board of pardons has granted a pardon to Colonel Frederick Ames, brother of former Mayor A. A. Ames of Minneapolis. Colonel Ames was chief of police and was convicted of "graft" during his brother's administration. His pardon is due to the untiring efforts of his wife, who has collected evidence tending to show that her husband was the victim of designing officials under him.

Mayor of Camden, N. J., Resigns.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 21.—Mayor Joseph E. Nowrey last night handed his resignation as mayor of Camden to the president of the city council, to take effect immediately. No reason is given for his stepping out of office, but it is believed he took this action rather than sign the $90,000 bond issue authorized by the city council for the purchase of land for park purposes.

Supposed Millionaire Bankrupt.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 21.—Charles M. Reed of Erie, supposed to be a millionaire, has been declared to be a bankrupt by Judge Joseph Buffington in the United States district court. Reed's liabilities are nearly $1,000,000, about $300,000 of which is secured by mortgages in railroad and mining property in Baker county, Ore.

Machine Factory Burned.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 21, 1904

The New Brunswick Home News decries the fact that "the newspapers do not give the people enough valuable news and current thought." Say, did you ever see a copy of the New Brunswick Home News?

If H. H. Rogers' proposed suit against Thomas W. Lawson ever comes to trial, the dear public may learn even more shocking things about frenzied finance, but don't get anxious. They will never wash the Wall Street linen before public eyes.

We call the attention of the Common Council to the fact that its instructions regarding the city flag counts for nothing. The new flag purchased by its order recently has been received, but no attention is given to the order that it be unfurled each day on the city flag staff. Officials shrug their shoulders when asked why the instructions are not obeyed.

Don't make the mistake of letting your Christmas shopping go until the last moment for if you do the assortment from which you will make your selection will be very small. The woman who will do her shopping on Saturday is apt to remark, "I can never get anything I want here." Plainfield merchants keep large stocks and if there is anything you want that they do not have they will be glad to get it for you. Why in the name of common sense do some women do their shopping in New York on the plea that they can't get suited in this city. Don't they know that the supply is regulated by demand and if there is any call for a given article the merchants will find it profitable to keep it in stock.

POLITICAL CHAT.

Senator Kean has received a petition from the New Jersey Woman's Suffrage Association in favor of equal suffrage in the new States. The Senator thinks that there is no prospect of the bill for a bridge from Bayonne to Elizabethport being passed at this session of Congress. The bill is now in the hands of the Senate Committee on Commerce.

It is determined that there will be no military display at the inauguration of Governor-elect Stokes. This means to the State the saving of about $30,000, which, with the lopping off of considerable patronage to the Legislature, gives assurance that the "economy administration" promised by Mr. Stokes is to be a fact. Notwithstanding the absence of the soldier boys the inauguration will be an imposing affair. There will be marching clubs from all parts of the State, and the usual ceremonies will be held at the Taylor Opera House and at the Capitol. Fully 100,000 people are expected to go to Trenton for the inauguration. The inaugural ball will be omitted, as it has proved in the past to be the source of much trouble and discord. The new governor promises to give the State a business-like administration. He will spend part of each week day in his office at the Capitol and in this way make a radical departure from the ways of his predecessors, who have been spending only one day a week in Trenton, except during the time the Legislature is in session.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will meet tomorrow night and entertain the Grand Lodge officers on the occasion of their annual official visitation to this lodge. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

There was a big time at the meeting of Azure Lodge, F. and A. M., at Masonic Hall at Cranford Monday evening. Guests were present from Washington, D. C., Elizabeth, Plainfield and other places, among them being Past District Deputy Sheppard, of Elizabeth, and Past Master Vreeland, of Amity Lodge, of Jersey City.

A committee consisting of Messrs. W. H. Stanbury, W. A. Westphal and Samuel Hollingsworth and Wm. E. Collins, have secured applications for membership in Fanwood Council, No. 744, Royal Arcanum, located at Scotch Plains, from Thos. A. Moore, M. J. Kennedy, W. H. Fulton, F. L. Newman, Eric N. Erickson and Wm. K. Gaston.

The efforts of some of the fraternal orders to have State Legislatures adopt a uniform bill for their government promises to be successful. For several years the orders have been trying to get such a measure through, but it remained for the National Fraternal Congress and the associated fraternities to bring about the result. Not long ago the insurance commissioners' convention declare its friendliness toward the orders and expressed its desire to protect them from unjust legislation. It has approved of the uniform bill, which makes the actuaries' table of mortality the standard for computing rates and reserves. Last year the Ohio Legislature adopted the bill, thus making the mortality table a law to be binding upon all fraternities stated after the bill had been adopted.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

It is said that some of the members of the Brookside Gun Club have begun daily practice, shooting at barns or any other small stationary targets, getting themselves in condition for the Christmas Monday shoot of the club, when the principal event of the day will be the shoot for the championship of the club. The event will be open to members only, but there will be plenty of other events that will be open to those who enjoy trap shooting. Shooting will commence at 1:30 and continue until darkness puts an end to the sport.

The appointment of Miss Carrie Bettman as postmistress for the borough, meet with the approval of all. Her experience of several years as the assistant to the regular postmaster, has made her familiar with the work and the appointment is but a just reward for her faithful services in the past.

In the match game on Lee's alleys, Friday night between the Jolly Five Bowling Club, of Plainfield, and the Saturday Night Club, of Westfield, the highest score of the alleys, 215, which was made several weeks ago by "Billy" Lee, was tied by Radin, of the Plainfield team.

P. S. C. MEN STRIKE FOR HIGHER WAGES

DOZEN EMPLOYES QUIT WORK AT CLINTON AVENUE.

As the result of a request for more money, which was not granted, about a dozen groundmen and linemen employed as a temporary gang by the Public Service Corporation for construction work in this city, gave up their jobs yesterday and are now out of work. The groundmen were receiving $1.50 per day and wanted $1.75, while the linemen were receiving $2.75, fifty cents more than the Union rate, and they wanted $3. As the gang was being employed temporarily on construction work in Clinton avenue, the Public Service Corporation did not care to grant the request, especially as it considered the men were receiving fair wages. As a result of the men quitting, the work of the electric department is not interfered with in the slightest degree, in fact, the recent snow storm has partially caused a cessation of construction work for the time being. It will be continued later on by the regular gang.

A report was in circulation that the men quit because B. J. Chisholm, a new man engaged as foreman, had been discharged, but the real reason was that the gang wanted an increase in wages. Mr. Chisholm was considered a competent workman, but the corporation came to the conclusion that it had no further use for him and let him go.

It is the opinion of those who know the facts that the men sought a poor time to quit work so far as they are concerned, for a little later on there would probably have been plenty of work for them.

Nearly all religious sects, as their figures of growth for last year are announced, show a larger percentage of increase than in previous years. In several denominations the ratio of growth exceeds the usual ratio of increase in the population. This is notably the case in the Episcopal church, which last year gained three per cent. on its membership of the previous year, while the population growth is estimated at two per cent. The Episcopal church had added 25,015 to its membership, making its present figures 807,351. In the Presbyterian church the increase in membership last year was at the rate of two and one-half per cent., the gain in members being 27,481, and the total number 1,094,908. Last year's gain was two and one-fifth per cent. The Southern Presbyterian church, a much smaller body than the northern, having but 239,888 members, gained two per cent. last year. The ratio of gain by the Methodist membership is not so large as in the other bodies named, but was one and four-fifths per cent., or almost as much as the estimated ratio of population growth. For the previous year the Methodist ratio was only one per cent. The body has now 3,064,785 members, of whom about 200,000 are connected with foreign conferences and missions.

SNAP SHOTS.

The career of Captain W. B. Martin, of Company K, during his twenty years of service in the National Guards of New Jersey, makes an interesting story. His experience is not only in the National Guards, but during the Spanish-American war, were those which many an older soldier would envy, and his record as a rifleman is a decidedly remarkable one. Two years ago, on November 5, Captain Martin was appointed to the command of the local company, succeeding W. K. Browning, after almost continual service since December 16, 1884, when he enlisted as a private in Company C, of the Third Regiment. Subsequent to his enlistment, Captain W. B. Martin's military career is as follows: 1886, corporal Co. C; 1889, sergeant Co. C; 1891, re-enlisted private Co. C; 1896, commissary-sergeant, Third Regiment; 1899, re-enlisted, private Co. I; 1899, first lieutenant Co. I; 1901, captain, Co. I; 1901, re-enlisted Co. B, Third Regiment; 1902, first lieutenant and battalion adjutant; 1903, captain and inspector of rifle practice; 1902, captain of Co. K. Between the dates of May 14, 1898 and February 11, 1899, Captain Martin served in the Spanish-American war. He entered as first lieutenant and battalion adjutant of the Third Regiment of New Jersey Volunteers. With one exception, Captain Martin has served the longest period of time of any of the members on the State Rifle team. During his career as a rifleman, which began in 1899, he won the 1000-yards championship of the United States in 1901, captured the Wimbleton trophy, shot on the first New Jersey team which won the Hilton trophy, taken part in two international shoots on the American team, and represented the State in all shoots since 1899.

AMUSEMENTS.

John and James Russell, the celebrated comedians who, as the Russell Brothers have attained the highest rank in vaudeville, have left that field this season, and will appear at the Grand Opera House this week at the head of their own company in a new and stirring melodrama, written for them by Charles A. Taylor. "The Female Detective," as the new play is known, is the most sensational piece that has ever been offered on the stage. It deals with a story that will stir New York to the depths, but at the same time there is a current of fun throughout the piece that makes it a strong combination of thrills and humor. The whole gamut of crime is run in "The Female Detective"—kleptomania, shoplifting, forgery, blackmailing, as well as nearly every crime known on the calendar, bring about the thrilling features of this marvelous melodrama. These terrible things are lightened, however, by the beautiful love story that is developed and by this bubbling fun of the Russell Brothers. Sensational to the limit, the play leaves a clean taste in the mouth, and because of its great human interest it appeals to all classes.

FIGHT AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Jimmy Britt and Battling Nelson In Sharp Conflict.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—A $35,000 audience was jammed into Mechanics' pavilion last night when Jimmy Britt of this city and Battling Nelson of Chicago fought in what was virtually conceded to be a contest for the world's lightweight championship. The belief that Joe Gans, the colored pugilist, who recently retained the title by securing a decision over Britt on a foul is probably unable to reduce to the lightweight limit accentuates the fact that the winner of last night's battle is looked upon as the legitimate champion of the lightweight division.

Never were two athletes more perfectly conditioned than Britt and Nelson when they ceased their long and arduous course of training, and each was the personification of confidence when Referee Billy Roche beckoned them to their corners and the bell summoned them to action.

No fight since the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons affair was decided has brought so many strangers to town. From far away New York, from Philadelphia, from Butte, Omaha, Seattle, Portland and Los Angeles fight lovers were gathered in liberal numbers. From interior California points they flocked to the ringside, and when the main event was started the vast hall was packed from pit to dome.

So great was the crush in the galleries that later in the evening the promoters were ordered by the authorities to release the overflow by permitting hundreds of spectators of that section to invade the main floor, where they were unceremoniously relegated to the rear portions of the building and from which but little of the night's entertainment could be observed. At 9 o'clock the house was completely sold out, and it was found necessary to install additional seats to accommodate the audience.

Diamente In Spectacular Finish.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 21.—The finish of Diamente, the winner of the last race, was the stirring feature of the racing at Ascot. From a position behind a field of seven into the stretch Diamente made the greatest finish ever seen on the local track and won the race from Heather Honey, the favorite, which had a lead of two lengths over the field at the head of the stretch. Diamente was 4 to 1 in the betting and was well played at this figure. It was a good day for favorites, four of them winning, while a second choice and a decided outsider took the other two races.

Bicycle Meet at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Dec. 21.—The amateur handicap event at one mile was the feature of last night's bicycle races here. The final heat in the event was won by Fred Ernest of Rochester, a scratch man. Adam Fischer of Buffalo was second. The professional motor paced races resulted as follows: Five miles, Hardy Downing of Los Angles won from Gus Lawson of Buffalo; seven miles, Louis Kettling of Lowell beat Frank Caldwell of Bristol, Conn.; three miles, Nat Butler of Boston defeated Charles Turville of Philadelphia.

Vanderbilt Got Champion Team.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Full Dress, Rustling Silk, Sweet Marie and Polly Prim, the champion four-in-hand team of the year, are now the property of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt of New York. Mr. Vanderbilt made a special trip from the east to Chicago to purchase the triple champions, and when he left New York last night all arrangements had been made for the champion quartet to be shipped direct to his stables at Newport. The horses were purchased from J. Hobart Moore

Mansard Won Oakland Handicap.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—Mansard won the handicap at Oakland from Venator in an exciting finish. In the first race The Cure easily outfooted Dora I. to the wire. The Cure opened at 4 to 1 and was played into favoritism. W. R. Condon, at even money, made a poor showing in the second race and finished among the tail enders. Mocorito, at 10 to 1, skimmed the rail and won easily.

Miss Jackson Won Derby.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 21.—The second day of the field trials at Waynesboro, Ga., ended with the announcement of winners in the Derby. Miss Jackson, J. A. Gude's dog, won first prize, $300; Rosement Speck, D. E. Rose's dog, won second, and Hardcash, Mr. Shelley's dog, and Bondhu Windem, H. S. Brown's dog, divided the third prize.

Tame Racing at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21.—Telescope and High Wind were the only winning favorites. The card was ordinary and the sport rather tame.

Attempted Her Child's Life.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Because she could not buy a Christmas present for her three-year-old daughter Mrs. Mary Metzger of Jersey City tried to cut the little girl's throat. The child's screams attracted neighbors, who rescued her after she had been badly injured. The mother then tried to kill herself, but was prevented. Mrs. Metzger was arrested, and the child was removed to a hospital, where it is said she may die. The father had been out of employment for some time.

Petition For Lowell Boy's Pardon.

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—A petition for the pardon of Olan Vaughan, formerly of Lowell, Mass., who is now serving a life sentence in state prison for assault with intent to kill, was received by Governor Bates. The boy's mother asks for his release on the ground that he was influenced by another to commit the crime. She is dependent upon him for support, she also submits.

COLD WEATHER GARMENTS.

Some New Hats and the Latest Things In Fur.

Each November, when the New York horse show is over, we know for a certainty what we are to wear, for not until the leaders of style in this country have worn a gown, hat or wrap to this show does it become a fashion. The dressmakers and modistes of all kinds wait in fear and trembling for the verdict. Then the newspapers show the wonderful costumes, and the smaller fry hasten to imitate them more or less closely.

It must be understood that the styles shown in this place are those for handsome afternoon wear and evening attire, and the hats, wraps and gowns worn do not constitute by any means all the things that even a wealthy woman requires. But the shapes are the most important things. Are sleeves to be the hideous leg o' muttons or short or long and bishop as far as the fundamental shape is concerned? Are skirts to be habit backed or Victorian, and will hats be the abominable things of the last year? Those are the questions which have the deepest interest for the ordinary woman who wants to look as well as she can on a very small sum.

Naturally there were many shapes of hats to be seen, but they can be summed up in a short paragraph so far as form goes. The prime favorite is the turban shape. Now, this word turban covers a wide degree of latitude, for some turbans are close and with the brim almost perpendicular, while others have the brim turned but slightly, which gives the hat a wider shape. Some have the brim bent so that the hat becomes a very tricorne. One of this kind which was much admired at the show was of black velvet, the brim being laid in folds of velvet. The crown was outlined by a band of royal sable, with a tall plume of floating marabou, white as snow and looking much like it. Perhaps I should have called this an aigret, but it is rather too soft and floating to be justly named aigret, which means a standing plume. Many of the turbans are entirely of fur of some becoming kind, with such trimming as seems fitting to the milliner. One has a bunch of red velvet roses, and another has beautiful and artistic thistles in natural colors. The soft green of the leaves and stems makes an artistic contrast with the dark fur of the hat, which is in cavalier shape, sharply turned up at the left side. There are many very handsome hats of beaver in many colors and shapes, but the shepherdess form with sweeping plumes seems to be best liked. The turban shapes are the oftenest seen and are more generally becoming. Besides, they may be made to match a gown or a fur neck piece.

And these fur pieces—how shall I give an adequate description of them without being a better scholar in all that pertains to natural history than I am? For it would seem that everything that ever walked on four feet has contributed to the list of furs used—Persian, seal, sable, ermine, mink, skunk, astrakhan, beaver, marten and last, but by no means least, chinchilla. This latter fur is sought for by the smart set, but it is by no means a durable fur. It is very soft and pretty.

There are long coats of seal and of all the other furs, but the great fad just now is to have a unique neck piece. There are very many more varieties of these than I can find place for, but the prevailing mode will be for four-in-hand ties of the close plied furs, edged in some cases by fur of another color or kind. Some have chenille fringes and others have rows of balls covered with the fur. The Victoria is a favorite shape. These Victorias have long stole fronts and are fastened near the center with some suitable ornament. One very odd shape has a flat scarf hanging down to the waist on both sides, while two more start from the neck and meet, partly crossing at the waist line. This leaves the front open in a very dressy way. Few of the fur garments of this season have high storm collars. Some have none at all.

Long coats for automobiling are by natural selection mentioned here, although none was seen at the show. They are made of thick cloth lined with fur or some of the less expensive varieties, such as red fox and raccoon. Some have the whole outside of the coat of fur, with a storm collar of unreasonable dimensions. The short coats for street are made in several different styles, but the best are those where there is a medium storm collar, with revers (some have only one revers) of the same or a contrasting fur. Some are snug fitting, and others have a reefer front; others, again, are in blouse shapes.

"I bet air 's all right," said D'ri, dipping into it with a spoon.

We ate with a fine relish, the guard, a sullen, silent man with a rough voice that came out of a bristling mustache, standing by the door.

"Luk a-here," said D'ri to the guard as we finished eating, "I want t' ast you a question. Ef you hed a purty comf'table hum on t' other side, 'n' tew thousan' dollars 'n the bank, 'n' hosses 'n' ev'rything fixed fer a good time, 'n' all uv a sudden ye found yerself 'n sech a gol-dum dungeon es this here, what 'u'd you dew?"

The guard was fixing the wick of his candle and made no answer.

"Want ye t' think it all over," said D'ri. "See ef ye can't think o' suthin' soothin' t' say. God knows we need it."

The guard went away without answering.

"Got him thinkin'," said D'ri, as he lighted the candle. "He can help us some, mebbe. Would n't wonder ef he was good et cipherin'."

"If he offered to take two thousand, I don't see how we 'd give it to him," said I. "He would n't take our promise for it."

"Thet ain' a-goin' t' bother us any," said D'ri. "Hed thet all figgered out long ago."

He gave me the candle and lay down, holding his ear close to the stone floor and listening. Three times he shifted his ear from one point to another. Then he beckoned to me.

"Jest hol' yer ear there 'n' listen," he whispered.

I gave him the candle, and with my ear to the floor I could hear the flow of water below us. The sound went away in the distance and then out of hearing. After a while it came again.

"What does it mean?" I asked.

"Cipherin' a leetle over thet air," said he, as he made a long scratch on the floor with his flint. Then he rubbed his chin, looking down at it. "Hain' jest eggac'ly med up my mind yit," he added.

We blew out the light and lay back, whispering. Then presently we heard the coming of footsteps. Two men came to the door with a candle, one being the guard we knew.

"Come, young fellow," said the latter, as he unlocked the door and beckoned to me; "they want you upstairs."

We both got to our feet.

"Not you," he growled, waving D'ri back. "Not ready fer you yet."

He laid hold of my elbow and snapped a shackle on my wrist. Then they led me out, closing the door with a bang that echoed in the far reaches of the dark alley, and tied a thick cloth over my eyes.

"Good luck!" D'ri cried out as they took me away.

"For both," I answered as cheerfully as I could.

They led me through winding passages and iron doors, with that horrible clank of the prison latch, and up flights of stone till I felt as lost as one might who falls whirling in the air from a great height. We soon came out upon a walk of gravel, where I could feel the sweet air blowing into my face. A few minutes more and we halted, where the guard, who had hold of my elbow, rang a bell. As the door swung open they led me in upon a soft carpet. Through the cloth I could see a light.

"Bring him in, bring him in!" a voice commanded impatiently—a deep, heavy voice the sound of which I have not yet forgotten. The guard was afraid of it. His hand trembled as he led me on.

"Take off the blindfold," said that voice again.

As it fell away, I found myself in a large and beautiful room. My eyes were dazzled by the light of many candles, and for a little I had to close them. I stood before two men. One sat facing me at a black table of carved oak—a man of middle age, in the uniform of a British general. Stout and handsome, with brown eyes, dark hair and mustache now half white, and nose aquiline by the least turn, he impressed me as have few men that ever crossed my path. A young man sat lounging easily in a big chair beside him, his legs crossed, his delicate fingers teasing a thin mustache. I noticed that his hands were slim and hairy. He glanced up at me as soon as I could bear the light. Then he sat looking idly at the carpet.

The silence of the room was broken only by the scratch of a quill in the hand of the general. I glanced about me. On the wall was a large painting that held my eye. I saw presently it was that of the officer I had fought in the woods, the one who fell before me. I turned my head; the young man was looking up at me. A fine set of teeth showed between them.

"Do you know him?" he asked coolly.

"I have not the honor," was my reply.

"What is your name?" the general demanded in the deep tone I had heard before.

"Pardon me," said the young man, quietly, as if he were now weary of the matter, "I do not think it necessary."

There was a bit of silence. The general looked thoughtfully at the young man.

"If your lordship will let me—" he went on.

"My dear Sir," the other interrupted, in the same weary and lethargic manner, "I can get more reliable knowledge from other sources. Let the fellow go back."

"That will do," said the general to the gaurd, who then covered my eyes and led me back to prison.

Lying there in the dark, I told D'ri all I knew of my mysterious journey. My account of the young man roused him to the soul.

"Wha' kind uv a nose hed he?" he inquired.

"Roman," I said.

"Bent in at the p'int a leetle?"

"Yes."

"And black hair shingled short?"

"Yes."

"An' tall, an' a kind uv a nasty, snookin,' mis'able-lookin' cuss?"

"Just about the look of him," I said.

"Judas Priest! He 's one o' them sneks ot tuk me when you was fightin' t' other feller over there 'n the woods."

"Looks rather bad for us," I remarked.

"Does hev a ruther squeaky luk tew it," said he. "All we got t' dew is t' keep breathin' jest as nat'ral 'n' easy es we can be till we fergit how. May fool 'em fust they know."

I had a high notion, those days, of the duty of a soldier. My father had always told me there was no greater glory for anybody than that of a brave death. Somehow the feeling got to be part of me. While I had little fear of death, I dreaded to be shot like a ... But I should be dying for my ..., and that feeling seemed to ... the shadows. When I fell asleep, ... much worry, it was to dream of ... three countrymen who had fallen ... their faces there by the corn. I awoke to find the guard in our cell, and D'ri and he whispering together. He had come with our breakfast.

"All I want," D'ri was saying, "is a piece of iron, with a sharp end, half es long es yer arm."

He made no answer, that big, sullen, bulldog man who brought our food to us. When he had gone, D'ri lay over and began laughing under his breaath.

"His thinker 's goin' luk a sawmill," he whispered. "Would n't wonder ef it kep' 'im awake nights. He was askin' 'bout thet air tew thousand dollars. Ef they 'll let us alone fer three days, we 'll be out o' here. Now, you mark my word."

"How?" I inquired.

"Jest a leetle job o' slidin' downhill," he said. "There's a big drain-pipe goes under this cell—t' the river, prob'ly. He says it 's bigger 'n a barrel."

We saved our candle that day, and walked up and down, from wall to wall, for exercise. Our hopes were high when we heard footsteps, but they fell suddenly, for, as we listened, we could hear the tramp of a squad of men. They came to our cell, and took us upstairs, blind-folded as before, to a bath-room, where the uniforms, discarded the day of our capture, were waiting for us, newly pressed. Our bath over, they directed us to put them on. They gave us new hats, for our own had been lost the night of the wreck, covered our eyes, and led us through many doors and alleys into the open air. It was dark, I knew, for as we entered a carriage I could dimly see the glow of a lantern hanging over the wheel. The carriage went away swiftly on a level road. We sat knee to knee, with two men facing us, and not a word was spoken. We could hear hoofs falling, the rattle of bit and rein, the creak of saddle-leather on each side of us. We must have gone a long journey when the carriage halted. They pulled us out roughly and let us up three steps and across a deep veranda. A bell rang, door swung open, a flood of light fell on us, filtering to our eyes. Entering, we could feel a carpet under us, and took a dozen paces or more before they bade us halt. We heard only the low-spoken order and the soft tread of our feet. There was a dead silence when they removed our fetters and unbound our eyes. We were standing in a big and sumptuous drawing-room. A company of gentlemen sat near us in arm-chairs; there were at least a score of them. Round tables of old mahogany stood near, on which were glasses and packs of cards and wine-bottles.

The young man who sat with the general and answered to "your Lordship" was approaching me, hand extended.

"Glad to see you; sit down," he said in the same quiet, languid, forceful tone I had heard before.

It was all very odd. The guards were gone; we were apparently as free as any of them.

"I shall try to make you comfortable," he said. A servant began filling a row of glasses. "We have here wine and wit and all the accessories, including women. I should introduce you, but I have not the honor of your acquaintance. Let it suffice to say these are my friends" (he turned to those who sat about), "and gentlemen, these are my enemies," he added, turning to us. "Let us hope they may die happy."

"And with a fighting chance," I added, lifting the glass without tasting it.

D'ri sat, his brows lifted, his hands in his pockets, his legs crossed. He looked curiously from one to another.

"Horton," said his lordship, as he sat down, leaning lazily on the arm of his chair, "will you have them bring down the prisoners?"

The servant left the room. Some of the men were talking together in low tones; they were mostly good-looking and well dressed.

"Gentlemen," said his lordship, rising suddenly, "I'm going to turn you out of here for a moment—they're a shy lot. Won't you go into the library?"

They all arose and went out of a door save one, a bald man of middle age, half tipsy, who begged of his "Ludship" the privilege of remaining.

"Sir Charles," said the young man, still lounging in his chair as he spoke, in that cold calm tone of his, "you annoy me. Go at once!" and he went.

They covered our faces with napkins of white linen. Then we heard heavy steps, the clink of scabbards on a stairway, the feet of ladies, and the swish of their gowns. With a quick movement our faces were uncovered. I rose to my feet, for there before me stood Louison and the Baroness de Ferre, between two guards, and, behind them, Louise, her eyes covered, her beautiful head bent low. I could see that she was crying. The truth came to me in a flash of thought. They had been taken after we left; they were prisoners brought here to identify us. A like quickness of perception had apparently come to all. We four stood looking at one another with no sign of recognition. My face may have shown the surprise and horror in me, but shortly I recovered my stony calm. The ladies were dressed finely, with the taste and care I had so much admired. Louison turned away from me with a splendid dignity and stood looking up at the wall, her hands behind her, a toe of one shoe tapping the floor impatiently. It was a picture to remember a lifetime. I could feel my pulse quicken as I looked upon her. The baroness stood, sober-faced, her eyes looking down, her fan moving slowly. His lordship rose and came to Lou-

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

THE PHILIPPINES.

General Wood Reports That Power of Moros Is Broken.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—General Wood, commanding the department of Mindanao, Philippine division, in his annual report to the war department says that the troops of the department have been in the field a great portion of the year quelling armed uprisings and preventing slave trade and kindred abuses. He says that in almost every instance actual fighting was initiated by the Moros.

"The conditions among the Moros throughout the department are generally peaceful," says General Wood, who adds:

"The establishment of civil government and the extension over them of certain laws and regulations have caused some excitement and at times serious resistance, especially the law prohibiting slavery. In some sections active hostility has been engendered by our presence, especially in the Lake Lanao region, where almost constant murderous attacks on workingmen and soldiers were the rule until the effects of the recent expeditions to the Taraca side of the lake, combined with expeditions to other sections of the Lanao, were felt by the Moros."

The power of the Moros of that section, he says, has been completely broken.

The prompt crushing of Hassans uprising has made a deep impression on the people, and the abrogation of the Bates agreement has done much to bring to an end the unfortunate conditions which existed under it.

Datto Ali's party, the report adds, is the only band of Moros now openly hostile, and it is small and is being followed by troops and scouts. General Wood says it is believed there will not be any very serious resistance of authority by the Moros in the future, but there will be constant work of a police character requiring the use of troops and constabulary.

The report shows that trials by general courts martial have diminished for enlisted men and increased for officers.

General Wood recommends encouragement of the islands' local shipping interests, the use of a repeating shotgun loaded with buckshot and a 45 caliber revolver for outpost duty.

MRS. CHADWICK EXCUSED.

Her Counsel Will Not Allow Cleveland Woman to Testify.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 21.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was brought into bankruptcy court here yesterday afternoon in the bankruptcy proceedings against her, but was excused from testifying because of illness. Whether Mrs. Chadwick will again be summoned will depend on counsel for Receiver Nathan Loeser, whose attorneys are expected to take up the matter. Should Mrs. Chadwick again be brought into court it is unlikely that she will give any testimony. If she does it will be against the advice of her attorney, who refuses even to allow her to be sworn as a witness.

Mrs. Chadwick was brought into the courtroom by several deputy marshals.

Mrs. Chadwick became more nervous as the attorneys argued and seemed on the verge of fainting. Soon after the announcement was made that she was excused she returned to the jail in a car

SPORTING NEWS.

BASKET BALL.

Several who witnessed the basketball game Monday evening between the Y. M. C. A. and the Montclair team have remarked upon the apparent ease with which the visitors handled the ball. Their aggressiveness was another notable feature of the game, which resulted in the local team being almost entirely out in the cold when team work was considered.

The Leal's School basketball team will figure in two matches on the local Y. M. C. A. floor this afternoon. The first team will play the North Plainfield High School team in the Interscholastic League, and in the Juvenile League the Leal's second team will meet the Y. M. C. A. juniors. Leal's are at the head in the older boys' league, and they are anxious to obtain the lead in the secondary contests also. The line up of the first team will probably be as follows: Chapman and Jewett, forwards; Strong, center; Manning and Lyman, guards.

DIAMOND DUST.

Sam. Mertes and R. P. Browne have signed contracts with the New York National League team for another year. The majority of last year's team has now renewed contracts.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The Christmas dance will be held at the Park Club on Thursday night, December 30, and it promises to exceed in brilliancy any similar event given at the club in some time.

Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell of West Seventh street, entertained a number of friends at cards on Monday afternoon. Seven-handed euchre was played and these were the prize winners: Miss Hart, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Joseph M. Shellabarger, Mrs. Rufus Delafield, Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, Mrs. George S. Ring and Mrs. J. Gilmore Drayton. Tea was served after the play.

Debate at Leal's School.

Though there will be no especial exercises at Leal's School appropriate to Christmas, the pupils are preparing for a debate, which will take place tomorrow morning. It will be between the pupils of the senior and junior classes, each class having selected their speakers. This will make the fifth debate which has been held at the school this year. They have been popular with the pupils, who have taken considerable interest in working up their subjects.

Physician's Horse Runs Away.

A horse belonging to Dr. A. H. Dundon ran away on Grandview avenue yesterday and by degrees made its way into Front street. It dashed along swaying from one side of the road to the other but was caught by Wesley Dunn before any great damage resulted.

—Of course, mince meat is needed in preparing the Christmas dinner. Neuman Brothers have Gordon and Dilworth's, Mrs. Taylor's and Leggett's Christmas mince meat. The market affords no better.

MRS. MURRAY'S HOME BURNED.

And Her Friend, Mrs. Bellis' Belongings Gone.

The handsome residence of Mrs. Evelyn Wentworth Murray, of New York, which is situated along the Raritan river, near Somerville, was burned to the ground early yesterday morning. The blaze started from the explosion of a lamp and the flames soon spread and the whole building was in flames. The loss, including much valuable furniture, is about $15,000. A few years ago Mrs. Murray's house on the same spot was burned.

Mrs. L. A. Bellis, a friend of Mrs. Murray, went to see her yesterday. Mrs. Bellis took a strange colored man in to drive for her and after they reached home she permitted him to go in and warm. She threw off her wraps and while she was out of the room the man and a fine gold watch, three diamond rings and Mrs. Bellis' pocketbook disappeared. No trace of the thief has been found by the local authorities.

KRIS VISITS THE ELKS

Distributes Presents to Members of Plainfield Lodge.

GIFT TO EXALTED RULER

Made the Recipient of An Emblematic Charm, Studded With Six Diamonds.

Benificent old Kris Kringle paid his first local visit at the meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., last evening, and distributed gifts with a lavishness that startled even his oldest acquaintances. One hundred and fifty members of the organization were in attendance and every one was remembered, not only with presents but also a card containing a jingling rhyme that made known his frailties or hobbies to the assemblage. Kris wore his travelling suit of furs but his voice and actions were suspiciously like those of George O. Stevens, explaining why the Elks were kept laughing from the time that he came in until he went out.

The hall was a mass of Christmas wreaths and greens in honor of the visit and to facilitate Kris' distributions, a large tree beautifully decorated and lighted with tiny electric globes borne innumerable small packages. As they were taken down, the verse on the card attached was read, revealing that fact, that during his four days' detention at home by illness a certain member of the lodge had been thinking busily.

With the conclusion of Kris' part of the programme, the feature of the gift making came when former Senator Charles A. Reed stepped forward and presented Exalted Ruler William N. Runyon with a magnificent elk's tooth in the form of a charm set with six brilliant diamonds. In making the presentation he spoke of the phenomenal growth of the lodge under the present officers and attributed no small degree of its success to the exalted ruler. Before its establishment in Plainfield, the Senator said, Elkdom had not been properly regarded in the city but through No. 885 its high ideals and lofty principles had been disseminated and it now has the confidence of the people. The presentation was a complete surprise to the exalted ruler and though taken back for the moment he quickly gained his composure and thanked the donors, at the same time replying to Senator Reed's remarks.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to a period of sociability, during which an informal programme of songs and addresses was given. The committee which arranged and had charge of the celebration consisted of Samuel P. T. Wilbur, George Johnston, H. C. VanEmburgh, Charles A. Reed, William N. Runyon and W. F. Williams.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS FRAMED FOR NEW YEAR

"SHERIFF" CARNEY SETS FORTH SOME WHOLESOME RULES.

David J. Carney, the Democratic leader of North Plainfield, has gotten together a set of "Good Resolutions for 1905," which he recommends to all, irrespective of "race, color or previous condition of servitude." Among the number are these:

That I will live within my income—even if I have to get trusted to do it.

That I will be polite to everybody—except to people I don't like.

That I won't give anybody advice—until I know the kind of advice they are anxious to follow.

That no man shall beat me in politeness—not as long as politeness continues to be as cheap as it now is.

That if lovely women smacks me on one cheek—I will turn to her the other also.

That if a man call me a fool—I won't ask him to prove it.

That I will lead a moral life—even if I lose a good deal of fun by it.

That if my friend loses on a horse race I will weep with him—while inwardly rejoicing that I missed being "tipped."

That it is just as natural to be born rich as poor—but seldom so convenient.

That I won't run after happiness—but if I see any lying around loose, I will close in on it.

How Foolish

GROUPS OF ATHLETES TO CONTEST FOR PRIZE

Y. M. C. A. JUNIORS WILL COMPETE IN ATHLETICS AND GYMNASTICS.

The group contests in athletics and gymnastics at the Y. M. C. A. junior department will begin on Saturday morning, January 9, and will be continued every week for three or four months. This form of contest was one of the original ideas which Physical Director Henckel introduced, and it will undoubtedly prove a successful event.

The members of the gymnasium squad are divided into groups under the direction of a captain. There will be four of these groups in the junior department, and the contests will include athletics, gymnastics and games. The record of points will be kept from week to week, and at the end of the contests, the winning group will be presented with an appropriate prize. Among the events which will be included in the contest will be apparatus work, potato races, twenty-yard dash, high jump, broad jump, ten-lap run, basketball game, battle-ball game, Indian club races, rope climb and others.

At the head of the four groups in the junior department, will be the following members of the class: Walter Caldwell, Roy Woodhull, Charles Line and Norman Loughlin. The same sort of contest will be held in the senior department, though the plans have not yet been definitely considered. The affair will probably be postponed until after the "costume entertainment" which will be given by the seniors in February.

Getting Ready to Build.

Civil Engineer Frank J. Hubbard has been engaged during the past two days surveying the property on Leland and South avenues, recently purchased by the Rogers' Silver Corporation and upon which it is planned to erect a large modern factory in the spring. The property purchased in the same vicinity by the New York Vacuum Cleaning Company will also be surveyed within a short time. Work on a factory for this company will be started in the spring.

EXERCISES IN SCHOOLS

Borough Pupils Observe the Christmas Festival.

GIFT FOR PRINCIPAL

Programme in High School and Lower Grades Interesting Alike to Teachers and Pupils.

Exercises appropriate to Christmastide were observed by both the senior and primary departments of the North Plainfield High School today. The former took place at noon and were in charge of Superintendent Wightman.

Carols were sung by the entire gathering and the following pupils gave recitations: Mary Neal, Frank Webster, Marion Overton and Otto Mueck. A number that was not scheduled was the presention of a brass desk set to Superintendent Wightman by Miss Margaret Hallock in behalf of the High School pupils. Mr. Sanders, of the manual training school, presented a gift to the High School department in behalf of his pupils. At the conclusion of the programme the seniors held their Christmas tree exercises at which a great deal of good-natured jollity was exchanged.

The pupils of Miss Carpenter's class presented her with an ornamental clock as a token of their esteem while the various classes were exchanging greeting.

The exercises of the primary department were conducted this afternoon with the following pupils giving recitations: Harry Steiner, George Haarand, Flo. Risberg, Paul James, Lillian Risberg, Roy Love, Jean Dumont, Elsa Haffner, Edson Day, Annie James, Herbert Reynolds, Horace Sohmeyer, Elmer Johnson and Ella Miller. An exercise was given by the girls of Grade 2 A and carols were sung.

CONSCIENCE STRICKEN, RETURNS STOLEN GOODS

SHOPLIFTER LEAVES A BUNDLE IN FRONT OF LOCAL STORE.

Conscience stricken for having picked up a number of articles in Woodhull & Martin's store on East Front street, a Plainfield woman employed a novel method of returning the goods. Yesterday morning an ordinary package was left in front of the store. It was allowed to remain there during the greater part of the morning, no one claiming it. In the meantime, J. V. S. Vanderhoef, manager of the housefurnishing goods' department at the store, noticed the package and took it inside.

Later when no one called for it, Mr. Vanderhoef opened the package and was surprised to find a note informing the firm that the writer had taken the articles from the store and being very sorry for her act, took this method of returning the goods, the total value of which amounted to about $15. The woman did not disclose her name.

RECORD REALTY DEAL

Highest Price Per Foot Paid for Dunlap Building.

SCHWEDS' PURCHASE

Property at the Corner of Front and Somerset Streets—Newspaper to Remove.

Paying the highest price per foot front in the history of Plainfield realty deals, Schwed Brothers today bought the Dunlap building at the corner of Somerset and Front streets. The building is now occupied by the Courier-News and a number of lawyers and real estate men. Abraham B. Dunlap, of East Front street, the owner, placed the property in the hands of Elston M. French & Company on Monday and the concern disposed of it to the highest bidder after many bidders made efforts to buy it. The price per foot cannot be learned.

It is not known what use Schwed Brothers will make of the property but it is quite likely that they will make it an addition to their present store. The newspaper plant will be removed before February 1, to the Marsh building, corner of Park avenue and Second street.

P. M. French, father of E. M. French, originally owned the tract and he sold it to Webster & Marsh, who built a store in 1853 and conducted a dry goods business. Mr. Dunlap bought the building in 1879.

WATCH-NIGHT SERVICE ABANDONED THIS YEAR

CUSTOMARY SERVICE NOT TO BE HELD AT MONROE AVE. M. E. CHURCH.

Contrary to the usual custom it was decided by the Official Board of Monroe Avenue church, last night, not to hold a watch-night service New Year's eve. This decision was due to the fact that the time for holding it comes on Saturday night and such a service might interfere with those of a special character to be held on Sunday, when the eighth anniversary of the church will be observed. This committee has charge of the anniversary services: Walter M. McGee, N. Mansfield Smith, Edward H. Beekman and Thomas Jacobs.

It was also decided to commence the series of evangelistic services on Sunday, January 8. Rev. George Mooney, the pastor, will be in charge, and the services will be continued for an indefinite period.

Announcement was also made of the special Christmas services to be held on Sunday. In the morning the Sunday-school will present a Christmas service entitled "Wonderful Light," by Geibel and Lehman. There will be no sermon and the Sunday school session in the afternoon will be omitted. In the evening there will be the regular preaching service in charge of the pastor.

The annual Christmas festival will be held Tuesday evening, December 29. The Junior League will give a cantata entitled "Our Old Friend Santa Claus." For several weeks Mr. Mooney and Miss Aldrich have been training the young folks for this cantata which will take up the whole evening. After the entertainment there will be the distribution of gifts.

SHOPLIFTERS BUSY.

Light-Fingered Gentry Make Use of the Holiday Crowds in the Various Stores.

During the holiday rush at the local stores the "shoplifter" is again in evidence. Both men and women who are addicted to the habit of picking up things in the stores have been seen about town and in most cases they are known to the proprietors and clerks.

During the past few days several light fingered persons have been caught and given orders to remain away from the stores where they have been operating. It has been noticed that those inclined toward "shoplifting" make good use of long heavy cloaks beneath which they hide articles picked up.

—Special at Roth & Co.'s for the holidays, Blue Points on half shell, 10 cts. per doz.

—Apples by the quart, basket or barrel at Neuman Brothers'. Your choice this week of a new lot of Spitzenbergs, Jonathans, Kings, Northern Spies, Greenings and Baldwins, also Lady apples.

JUST ESCAPED DEATH

Knocked Over by Engine, Thomas Tivell Lives.

PRACTICALLY UNHURT

Stepped in Front of Train and Jumping Back Was Hit by Projection.

Knocked over by a New Jersey Central freight engine near Grant avenue, early last evening, Thomas Tivell, of West Front street, is today walking about with only a gash on his forehead to remind him of the occurrence. His escape from death was little short of miraculous and was due alone to his presence of mind in leaping back when he found himself directly in front of the locomotive.

Tivell is employed at the Pond Machine Company's plant and to reach his home makes a short cut over the Central's tracks near the Grant Avenue station. Quitting work last evening he started over the familiar route but did not notice the approach of a freight train on account of an obstruction on a side track. Totally unconscious of his danger he stepped in front of the train and then as he realized his peril he sprang back. He was quick enough to escape the wheels but a projection from the side of the engine struck him on the head and knocked him over.

Friends carried him to the Grant Avenue station and Dr. A. H. Dundon was summoned. The physician found that aside from shock his only injury was a deep cut just above the eye as though a sharp instrument had been drawn along it. The cut was dressed and Tivell was sent home.

JERSEY CENTRAL AFTER "TICKET SCALPERS"

OFFICIALS CLAIM THAT THE ROAD HAS LOST MUCH BY THE PRACTICE.

Jersey Central officials are on the alert to prevent the abuse of monthly commutation tickets and it is said that a man and a woman who have been endeavoring to do business with several persons who are alleged to make a business of hiring out these tickets really are in the employ of the company, but this cannot be confirmed. Strict watch is being kept and a number of tickets presented by others than the owners have been lifted by conductors and brakemen.

The company claims that it has lost thousands of dollars by the practice, which is not carried on today on the scale that it was a few years ago. To stop the abuse it is reported that the New Jersey Central has in view a new form of monthly ticket. The commutation ticket is hired out for fifty cents by speculators, which is one half the price of an excursion ticket to New York.

Home From College.

Among the Plainfield young men who are home from college are Robert Abbott, Gordon Abbott, A. B. Fisk and Donald McGee, from Yale; Mellick Tweedy, D. S. Pond, Ames Brooks, F. O. Reinhart, Albert Beers, from Princeton; Alden Moore, Harold Nomer, Erwin Leland, Harold Fenno, Kerro Knox, from Williams; R. S. Lane, Edward Weseman, from Stevens; Norman Hill, from New York University; VanWyck Brooks, from Harvard; Clinton Hall and Ralph Schoonmaker, from Columbia; Arthur Denton and Hollis Cubberly, from Brown University; Dorsey Hyde, Jr., from Mohegan Lake School; Harold Hegeman, from Pennsylvania Military Academy; "Ned" James, Holloway Titus and Cyrus Kinsman, from Cornell.

Tax Receipts $185,000.

Tax Collector Robert L. Lee is still busily engaged completing his report of tax money received, which must be given to City Treasurer W. F. Arnold by 3 o'clock this afternoon so that he can get his report ready to be presented to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting tomorrow night. Mr. Lee says that Former Collector F. H. Smith received about $35,000 in taxes and the balance amounting to about $150,000 has been taken in by himself. It is believed that the total amount will reach close to $185,000.

LEALS WIN BASKET BALL GAMES IN BOTH LEAGUES

PRIVATE SCHOOL NOW LEADS IN JUVENILE AND INTERSCHOLASTIC CONTESTS.

Leal's first and second basketball teams had an easy time of it yesterday afternoon in defeating the North Plainfield High School team in the Interscholastic League, and the Y. M. C. A. junior team in the Juvenile League. Both the games were played on the Y. M. C. A. floor and were witnessed by a large number of supporters of both schools. The score in the Interscholastic game was 37 to 8. In the Juniors game Leal's seconds won 28 to 7.

It was in the second half that the first team rolled up a large score, adding 30 points in this part of the game to the 7 which it made in the first period of play. Chapman and Jewett both played fast games, while for the public school, Webster and Steiner were the stars. The line up and detailed score was as follows: Leal's—Jewett and Chapman, forwards; Strong, center; Lyman and Manning, guards. N. P. H. S.—Hand and Nischwitz, forwards; Steiner, center; Ward and Webster, guards. Goals from the field—Chapman, 5; Jewett, 2; Strong, 2; Lyman, 2; Manning, 4; Hand, 2; Webster. Goals from fouls—Chapman, 2; Manning, Steiner, Webster.

Howard was the hero of the Juvenile game, his shooting being a feature of the afternoon's playing. He threw eight basket. His passing was good, and he kept the team together well. The score was 28 to 7, the result of better all around playing.

The line up of the game was as follows: Y. M. C. A.—Line and Mortimer, forwards; Stern, center; Steiner and Doeringer, guards. Leal's—Underhill and Howard, forwards; Millar, center; Valiant and Rowlan, guards.

MYSTERIOUS CREATURE ALARMS MOUNTAIN COLONY

FIRST KILLS WATCH DOG AND THEN PARTIALLY DEVOURS IT.

The small colony of residents at the foot of the mountains just off Clinton avenue on the way to Washington's Rock are greatly stirred up over the invasion of a mysterious four-footed creature in their midst. Nobody has seen it as yet but there are rumors that it is a ferocious animal and some of the more timid declare it to be a wild cat that has somehow or other made its way along the Watchung range from Pennsylvania.

All last week the dogs kept by the residents whimpered and gave cries of fear during the night and Tuesday, George Perrine, who is engineer at the Manganese Safe plant, made a discovery that convinced him and his neighbors that they had better be on the alert. His faithful watch dog which was supposed to be without fear had been killed in some manner before his kennel and had been half eaten, to all appearances by an animal with very sharp claws. Perrine or none of his family had heard any struggle and they are at a loss to account for the canine's allowing anything to get so near to it without making an outcry. An attempt was made to track the mysterious visitor but so far it has eluded the parties that started out. In the meantime all manner of traps are being set and the number of watch dogs have almost been doubled.

Special Holiday Chase.

All plans for the special chase of the Watchung Hunt Club on Christmas Day have been completed, and the run promises to be one of the important events in the Hunt Club's season. The riders will meet at the corner of East Seventh street and Crescent avenue at 10 o'clock, and will ride about the usual distance.

Deacon Conway Denies a Report.

"Deacon" Spencer Conway asks that the report in circulation that he is going to be married this winter be denied. He says that he would not think of marrying within a year and six months of the time of the death of his first wife, and he has several months yet before that time expires.

Using Five Substitutes.

There are now five substitute letter-carriers and clerks at the local post-office—Frank Bailey, Daniel Shea, Robert Goldsack, William Callahan and Elmer Squires. Owing to the holiday rush they are all being used at present.

PHYSICAL ORGANIZATION

Y.M.C.A. Men Form Directors' Society of Northern N. J.

PLANS FOR CONTESTS

Annual Gymnastic Event to Take Place in This City in April—Athletics at Newark.

For the first time in the history of the New Jersey Y. M. C. A. physical departments, the physical directors met yesterday afternoon at Newark and effected the organization of the Physical Directors' Society of Northern New Jersey. There were eight representatives at the meeting which marked the beginning of the society, whose object is the promotion of athletic and gymnastic competition between the physical departments of the northern part of the State.

George Henckel, physical director of the Montclair association and brother of Fred A. Henckel, of the local department, was elected president of the society. Physical Director Roth, of Passaic, was appointed vice president and Physical Director Borden, of New Brunswick, was chosen secretary and treasurer.

Though the associations of northern New Jersey have met for many years in athletic and gymnastic championship contests, there has been the need of some organized management, and the meeting yesterday was one of utmost importance in Y. M. C. A. athletic history. These are the associations which will be represented in the organization: Montclair, Orange, Passaic, New Brunswick, Morristown, Hudson City, Jersey City, Summit, Rahway, Newark, Central Branch, of Jersey City, and Plainfield.

In addition to the initial steps in the organization of the society, the plans were entered into for the annual athletic and gymnastic inter-association contests. It was decided to hold the former at Newark in February, though the exact date has not been yet settled upon. The events in this contest which will be open to all the above named associations will be these: Shot put, high jump, one mile relay, fence vault for height, high dive and fifteen yard dash.

On behalf of the local association, Physical Director Henckel, of this city, invited the associations of the northern part of the State to compete in the local gymnasium in the annual gymnastic contest in April. The invitation was accepted and Mr. Henckel will have entire charge of this feature of the physical work of the State.

In an interview with one of the officers of the company, a reporter for The Daily Press was informed that the company has enjoyed an exceptionally prosperous year, and following the precedent already established by the concern of sharing its profits with its depositors, the directors decided to increase the savings rate as stated.

DEPEW FOR SENATOR

Conference of Republicans Called by Senator Platt.

GREAT AMERICAN ORATOR FAVORITE

Committee, Headed by Woodruff, Will Wait on Governor Odell to Say Assembly Would Re-elect Senator Depew.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The conference of Republicans, called by United States Senator Thomas C. Platt in the interest of the re-election of United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew by the coming legislature, was held according to programme at the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was in session about three hours and appointed a committee of seven headed by former Lieutenant Governor Woodruff to wait upon Governor Odell, who was not invited, and inform him of the sentiment as expressed at the conference. No arrangement was made for a future report of the committee to the conference which created it.

The committee failed to locate Governor Odell, and last night it was stated that the effort to find him had been abandoned for the present, but that Mr. Woodruff expected to see him at the New England society's banquet in Brooklyn.

The conference was attended by upward of seventy-five well known Republicans, most of them classed as being in favor of Senator Depew, but there were also not a few who are believed to be opposed to his candidacy.

The speeches made in the conference were almost without exception strongly in favor of Senator Depew's re-election. No vote was taken, and estimates of the numerical classification of those present vary with the sympathies of those estimating.

After the conference Senator Platt declared himself as greatly pleased with its character and personnel.

"I am proud of it," said he. "It was truly representative and clearly showed what I have all along claimed, that the sentiment of the people of the state is strongly for the re-election of Senator Depew. I imagine its result may be to tone down Mr. Odell."

Carnegie Offers $400,000.

BOSTON, Dec. 22.—At a meeting of the Benjamin Franklin fund managers of this city a letter was read from President Henry S. Pritchett of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology containing a proposition from Andrew Carnegie to duplicate the present amount of the fund, $400,000, provided the total be devoted to the establishment of a school for the industrial training of men and women along the lines of the Mechanics and Tradesmens' school of New York and the Cooper Union. Mr. Carnegie further stipulated that the city of Boston should furnish a site for the proposed institution.

Would Force Mayor to Sign.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 22.—Counsel for Halsey & Co. of New York yesterday served a peremptory writ of mandamus upon Mayor Nowrey ordering him to sign the public park bonds. The order was issued by Justice Ford of the supreme court of New Jersey. City Treasurer Miller presented the bonds to Mayor Nowrey for his signature, but the latter refused to sign them, claiming that he was no longer mayor. Mayor Nowrey has resigned, but the council has taken no action on the resignation.

Empire State Express In Collision.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 22.—A misplaced switch threw a shifting engine in the path of the eastbound Empire State express in the New York Central yards yesterday afternoon. The fast train was under reduced speed, and the switch engine was only partially on the main track, so the accident did not cause injury to any of the passengers, although it put the Empire State's locomotive and the buffet car out of commission.

Secured $40,000 by Forgery.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—John R. McFee, a lawyer, once in good standing in Chicago, has been sentenced to the penitentiary on one of several charges of forgery. McFee is alleged to have secured nearly $40,000 by forgery. Much of the money was squandered in extravagant indulgence and on the race tracks. Even while his trial was in progress the grand jury was hearing further charges of forgery against McFee.

Struck Derelict Three Times.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The schooner Edith L. Allen, from Fernandina for New York, while twelve miles off Hatteras, in a heavy wind and sea, struck a submerged wreck three different times. The schooner immediately began to take water and in twenty minutes had practically filled and was kept afloat only by the lumber in her hold. The steamer Sabine bore down and towed her into this port.

New Atlantic Steamship Line.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 22.—A steamship company composed of Norwegians and Americans will soon be incorporated with a capital of $2,500,000. It is the purpose of the incorporators to operate a line of steamers between ports of Sweden and Norway and New York, starting with three ships of 10,000 tons each.

DIPLOMATIC CORPS ATTEND EN MASSE

Capital Witnessed Nuptials of Miss Elizabeth Glover and Netherland's Minister, Jonkheer R. de Mere es von Swinderen.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Rene de Mere es von Swinderen, the Netherlands minister, and Miss Elizabeth Lindsay Glover, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Glover, were married here in the Church of the Epiphany by the Right Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, bishop of Washington, the rector of Epiphany, the Rev. D. Mc Kim, reading the betrothal. After the ceremony the wedding guests were entertained at breakfast at the palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. Glover on Farragut square, the guests being received by Mr. and Mrs. Glover and the bride and bridegroom. Official Washington attended the wedding in full force. The bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" was sung by a vested choir of forty voices, and a wedding hymn followed the betrothal.

The bridal party arrived at the south door of the church. First came the ushers, Count Adam de Moltke de Huitfeld of Denmark, Count von Limburg Stirum and Baron von Trallvan Serovskerken of Holland, Major Charles L. McCawley of the Marine corps, Mr. Walter Van Rennselaer Berry and Mr. Clarence Wilson. Miss Hagner, Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary, who was maid of honor, walked alone, carrying a large bouquet of bridesmaid roses. The bride entered on the arm of her father. At the outer chancel awaiting them were the bridegroom and his best man, Baron Moncheur, the Belgian minister.

All of the ambassadors were present with the exception of Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, who is indisposed. Practically the entire corps was in attendance, among the more prominent being the British ambassador and Miss Durand, accompanied by the ambassador's staff; the French ambassador and Madame Jusserand and the embassy staff, the Chinese minister, the the charge d'affaires of the German embassy, the Spanish minister and the Portuguese minister. There was a large representation of pan-American diplomats.

The secretary of state and Mrs. Hay arrived early and were given seats at the front of the church. The secretary of war and Mrs. Taft, the secretary of the navy and Miss Morton and Senator and Mrs. Fairbanks also were assigned seats in the middle aisle.

The church was beautifully decorated in white chrysanthemums, bride roses, palms and lilies of the valley.

The minister and his bride have left Washington for a brief wedding trip.

Few diplomats in so short a time have made as many friends as the Netherlands minister, and Miss Glover was a general favorite in the society of the capital.

Hart's Island Building Burned.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—A two story brick building on Hart's island, used by the department of corrections as a laundry and kitchen in connection with the workhouse, caught fire last night and was entirely consumed. The fire was discovered shortly before 5 o'clock, but before help could be summoned the flames were beyond control. The fireboat Zophar Mills was sent from the city upon the appeal from the department of corrections, and firemen also responded from City island, but their efforts were fruitless. The fire started in the drying room of the laundry.

Higgins Preparing His Message.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Governor Elect Higgins' day here was largely taken up in the preparation of his message. He declined, saying, "It would be hardly proper for one who was not invited to and who did not attend the conference."

BEFORE THE VERDICT

Counsel In Nan Patterson Trial Close Their Case.

RAND SCOURGED ACCUSED GIRL

District Attorney Characterized Prisoner as "This Stony Hearted, Cool Masked Avenger, This Actress." Charge to Jury This Morning.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—At the trial of Nan Patterson for the murder of Caesar Young, a bookmaker, adjournment was taken in the case shortly before 6 o'clock last night at the conclusion of the summing up for the prosecution by Assistant District Attorney Rand. On the opening of court this morning Judge Davis charged the jury, who will probably return a verdict today.

After Mr. Rand's speech Mr. Levy said:

"That was the most wonderful advocacy of any cause, the most masterful speech, that I have ever heard in a criminal case in an experience in the courts of twenty-four years.

"In spite of that I am confident that Miss Patterson will be acquitted."

At the opening of the trial Mr. Unger of the defendant's counsel moved that the defendant be discharged under section 140 of the code, which provides that a justice may take the case from the jury if he believes that the prosecution has not established a case.

This motion was promptly denied by Justice Davis, and then Mr. Levy opened his concluding address to the jury, in which he set out to prove by deduction that Nan Patterson did not murder Caesar Young, but that the bookmaker shot and killed himself.

He made a strong speech, at the end of which Nan Patterson embraced her father and wept.

The whole afternoon was taken up by Mr. Rand in his final speech to the jury. Rarely have judge and jury listened to a more impassioned, more vehement, arraignment of a defendant. With all the power of his forceful eloquence the prosecutor, his face stern, his eyes implacable, scourged the girl accused of the murder of the bookmaker, Young. With pitiless detail he held up her character for the jury to behold and asked if a woman like her could have any other love than that of the "beast for the beast."

The girl's counsel did not escape, and Mr. Rand declared that "there were those among her lawyers who would not hesitate to bring forward false witnesses." When he said this and offered to back it with proof there was a commotion in the courtroom.

With burning phrases Mr. Rand went over the evidence offered by the defense. Some of it he characterized as merely futile and vague, some of it he branded as false.

"This stony hearted, cool masked avenger" and "this actress, whose conceit makes her glad to go on the stand and tell her story," were some of the terms the prosecutor used in speaking of the chorus girl.

Smith and his wife, the brother-in-law and sister of the defendant, Mr. Rand held up to execration. He denounced their flight and hinted that they had lived on "the shame of this woman."

Perhaps the most impressive part of his speech was where he tried to convince the jury that Young could not possibly have shot himself. Holding the fatal weapon in his hand, Mr. Rand used it to show that in no position could it have been held by the dead man to inflict the wound that killed him.

"Take it," said he to the jury, "and if you can hold it so as to inflict that wound let the girl go free."

The courtroom was crowded, and the most intense interest was betrayed in the strong and bitter speech with which the prosecution closed.

Y., Dec. 22.—In a collision between a freight train and a train composed of an engine and four empty passenger cars here last night the passenger cars were telescoped, and Brakeman Harry May of Hartford, who was on the rear end of the passenger train, was badly hurt. The accident occurred near the depot on the Valley division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and blocked the tracks on that division for several hours.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 22, 1904

A man that never advertises is much like the man without a home; no one knows where to find him.—Ex.

Thankful for a favor she had received, a young woman constituent planted a kiss on the lips of the staid and venerable Senator Cullom yesterday. But we can't all be senators.

At last Kentucky has been vindicated. Specialists now declare excessive water drinking to be unhealthy, just what all the Blue Grass colonels and Majahs have been claiming for years and years.

Seldom in the history of such institutions, in this State at least, has a concern made such rapid progress and become so flourishing in so short a space of time after its establishment, as has the Plainfield Trust Company. On its second anniversary its deposits aggregated over $1,000,000. It was the first banking institution in the city to allow interest on deposits subject to check and its innovation had a wholesome effect. So prosperous has the Trust Company become that it is now enabled to increase its rate of interest on savings accounts. Heretofore it has allowed three per cent., but today the welcome announcement is made that the officials have seen fit to increase the rate to three and a half per cent.

Somerville is hard hit when it resorts to begging. The action of the Board of Directors of the Public Library in that place in directing its President to make an appeal to Andrew Carnegie for funds to carry on the work is not creditable to that town.—Daily Press.

What babies those Plainfield people are! Because Somerville is likely to get a sugar plum that they would like to have they set up a howl at once. Somerville is to be congratulated on its fine Public Library, which is almost free from debt, a mere mortgage of about $1,200 still remaining on the handsome building. Doubtless if the records of Plainfield's institution were closely scanned they would not show up as well, considering the size and wealth of the two towns. It is not a discredit to ask aid of anyone for a public institution. Many towns and cities as well, larger and more influential than Plainfield, New Brunswick, for instance, have asked and received help from Mr. Carnegie, who takes this method to get clear of his surplus cash for the benefit of humanity.—Somerville Messenger.

If it's a baby not not to beg than Plainfield will plead guilty but we always suspected that the contrary was the case. Plainfield's Public Library building is a substantial one and when a larger one is needed this city will not solicit alms from strangers. The library itself is the third largest in the whole State. If only a mere mortgage of $1,200 remains on Somerville's library building, can not that amount be raised among public spirited citizens?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 25.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The light of the world.—Isa. ix, 2-7.

Sir Edwin Arnold in his "Light of Asia" presents Buddhism as the light of the orient, but Christ, the author and finisher of the Christian faith, is proclaimed in the Scriptures to be the light of the world. Even in the Old Testament Scriptures, when Christ is especially spoken of as the Messiah who was to come to Israel, the chosen people of God, there are many indications that, while He was to come first of all to His own people, yet His mission was not to be limited by the boundaries of one race, but was through them to extend to every nation, people, kindred and tongue upon the face of the earth. Thus Isaiah testifies when he declares that "the people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined." The greatest of the Hebrew prophets thus recognizes the fact that, while the child was to be born unto Israel, yet His light was to shine throughout the world.

It is in the New Testament, however, that the doctrine of Christ as the light of the world is fully developed and the work of spreading the light worldwide is begun. Christ came and sent His disciples first to the "lost sheep of the house of Israel," and yet He positively declared, "I am the light of the world," and again in the parable of the sower, "The field is the world." And in a most mysterious way God opened up the way for the Messiah of Israel to become the light of the world. Israel rejected the Messiah, and then He was presented to the world! A mysterious way, and yet God's way, and one that will work together with the end attained for good. Israel will return, and then not only she, but the rest of the world, will be saved with her, and with her enlarged vision, through Christ, bigotry and prejudice will have passed away, and she will rejoice with heaven over the lost gentiles even that were found and saved through Israel's Messiah.

The light of the world has come, but the knowledge of the light has not yet been spread throughout the world. This has been the work of Christ's church from the beginning. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," was Christ's command to His church as embodied in the apostles and early disciples. They responded with zeal and energy and became light bearers to the world. They lifted up Christ and His cross, and before the first Christian century had passed away the Roman world had heard of Christ, had seen the light, and thousands of souls had been saved in Him. But there are still those who sit in moral and spiritual darkness, and who are dead in trespasses and in sins, and who therefore need Christ, the light. If we have seen the light, are we doing our part in spreading it abroad? If at this Christmas season we appreciate the blessings that we enjoy, let us consecrate ourselves to more determined efforts to set Christ, the light of the world, before all the peoples of the world.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxvii, 1; xxxvi, 9; xcvii, 11, 12; cxix, 105; Isa. ix, 1; Matt. v, 14-16; John i, 1-12; viii, 12; ix, 5; xii, 35, 36.

A Sunshine Message.

The following poem was given to Dr. Clark by the sunshine committee of the Norwood Congregational church, Liverpool, as he entered the pulpit of this church on a recent Sunday evening. It is the custom of this committee thus graciously to greet visiting ministers with a sunshine message, a custom that might well be adopted everywhere:

Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.—Matt. xxv, 40.

It is a fair tradition, one of old,
That at the gate of heaven called Beautiful
The souls of those to whom we ministered
On earth shall greet us as we enter in
With grateful records of those lowly deeds
Of Christian charity wherewith frail man
Proffers his humble loan unto his Lord.
May we not so believe, since He hath said,
That inasmuch as it was done to one
Of those His little ones 'twas done to Him?
Oh, think, if this be true, how many eyes
Whose weeping thou hast stilled shall glisten there!
How many hearts whose burden thou hast shared
And heavy feet whose steps were turned by thee
Back to their homes, elastic through the joy
Of new found hope and sympathy and love,
Shall welcome thee within the gates of bliss,
The golden city of Jerusalem!

With the earnest prayers of the sunshine committee.

Would Wear Her Pin at Any Cost.

Some time ago the president of the Christian Endeavor society in Holguin, Cuba, sailed for New York to join her husband. A young man on the boat told her that she had better take off her Christian Endeavor pin or some one might burn the boat because there was a Protestant on board. She replied, "That would be the same as denying my Saviour." And she would not remove it, though, for all she knew, the boat might be burned.—Clotilde Bretlow in Christian Endeavor World.

The Ingathering Season.

The season for ingathering into our societies and churches is now at hand. Let every one do what he can to lead at least one soul to Christ and into the church and society before Jan. 1, 1905. Personal effort and prayer will do it. Can the Master count on you?—Rev. J. E. Fout in Ohio Endeavorer.

UNCOMMON WISDOM.

Some Plainfield People Profit by Neighbors' Experience.

It's a wise man who profits by the experience of his friends and neighbors. Here is a chance to do it and every man, woman or child in Plainfield who knows the misery of a bad back, the nervousness and restlessness caused by kidney complaint will show uncommon wisdom to profit by this citizen's advice.

S. J. Conklin, traveling salesman for a New York confectionery house, 134 West Front street, says: "I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. I took three boxes altogether and was wonderfully improved. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplish all that is claimed for them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Dec. 25: "An Offering to Christ"—Mark xiv, 3-9.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

The lesson of the week does not present the story of the birth of Jesus, as is usually done at this season, but calls attention to the gift which a woman made to Him a few days previous to His death. This lesson is specially appropriate at this time, when all are making presents to friends. It calls to mind the significance of the Christmas festival and emphasizes the best manner in which it may be observed.

There is danger that in the excitement and pleasure of gift making and receiving the greatest and best possible gift be neglected if not entirely forgotten. The coming of Jesus Christ to the earth is the one event in human history which has greater value to the race than any other event which ever occurred. He was the gift of God to mankind. All human life acquires deeper meaning and holds higher possibilities, because He came to earth and lived the life of a man under the conditions in which we are placed. No possession of health, wealth, genius or anything which is of value to us in this world is comparable in worth to us with the personal interest and fellowship of Jesus Christ. The gift of Himself to be one with us forever, bearing our nature and leading us into all the fullness possible to human beings, is what makes Christmas the greatest festival of all the ages and the one in whose celebration every person has equal interest.

If He has so loved us as to give Himself for us and to us, every sentiment of gratitude prompts us to wish to express our thanks to God for His unspeakable gift. How shall we do this in the most appropriate manner and so as to best please Him is a question which may well have very careful consideration.

Mark gives a vivid picture of a woman who expressed her gratitude in a manner which could not be misunderstood. She had understood the words of Jesus as no other of His friends seem to have done. She believed that He was soon to die. He had said so plainly, but no other person seems to have taken His statement as she did. The shadow of the coming sorrow filled her with a passion of grief and loving desire to show her regard to Him. She does not appear to have much considered what others thought. He was to leave them soon. She knew the meaning of death, for but a little while before her own brother Lazarus had been sick and died. He was now living and at the table with Jesus, who had raised him from death. And this Jesus who could raise the dead was Himself to die! She had sat at His feet and talked with Him of these mysteries when others had been so busy with getting things to eat that they had been impatient with her for not helping them. Her heart was full. She poured out all her soul as she emptied the cruse of costly ointment on His head. He understood the whole. It was the prodigality of love, the passionate abandon of great affection. He who can call such use a waste has not only lost all sense of values, but under cloak of love for the poor conceals his own thievish preference of himself above his regard for his Lord.

John says that the odor of the ointment filled all the house. Her act filled Judas and others with indignation that they had lost so much. The ages have been filled with gladness that the Master commended her act and recognized the value of the heart gift.

Let us not stint our gifts to Him. He gave all He had to us. Let us give all heart love and every power of being to Him. Pour out the ointment of all precious things until the world is filled with the perfume of the offering and men praise Him for His grace.

The Gate of Prayer.

In the midst of the splendors of royalty, when men of the highest rank are admitted to the king's presence only at the king's pleasure, the children of the king's household always have free access. No court rules shut them away or prescribe any ceremonious manner in which they may approach the throne. The king is their father. To be a child of God is to have assurance of access to Him at all times. This golden gate of prayer, "Our Father," opens into the innermost sanctuary, into the very secret place of the Most High, and it is shut neither day nor night to any child of God.—J. R. Miller in "The Golden Gate of Prayer."

Where to Find Joy.

People should look for joy in the word and not in the world. They should look for the joy which the Scriptures furnish and then go to work in the vineyard, because a joy that doesn't send me out to some one else, a joy that doesn't impel me to go and help the poor drunkard, a joy that doesn't prompt me to visit the widow and the fatherless, a joy that doesn't cause me to go into the mission Sunday school or other Christian work, is not worth having and is not from above. A joy that does not constrain me to go and work for the Master is purely sentiment and not real joy.—D. L. Moody.

God's Christmas Gift.

Who can give like God? His Christmas gift to the world was His only Son.—United Presbyterian.

Something to Learn.

Just to be tender, just to be true;
Just to be glad the whole day through!
Just to be merciful, just to be mild;
Just to be trustful as a child;
Just to be gentle and kind and sweet;
Just to be helpful with willing feet;
Just to be cheery when things go wrong;
Just to drive sadness away with song
Whether the hour is dark or bright,
Just to be loyal to God and right;
Just to believe that God knows best;
Just in His promise ever to rest;
Just to let love be our daily key—
This is God's will for you and for me.

D'ri and I

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

"Come, now, my pretty prisoner; it is disagreeable, but you must forgive me," he said.

She turned away from him, drying her eyes. Then presently their beauty shone upon me.

"Grace au ciel!" she exclaimed, a great joy in her eyes and voice. "It is M'sieur Bell. Sister—baroness—it is M'sieur Bell!"

I advanced to meet her, and took her hand, kissing it reverently. She covered her face, her hand upon my shoulder, and wept in silence. If it meant my death, I should die thanking God I knew, or thought I knew, that she loved me.

"Ah, yes; it is M'sieur Bell—poor fellow!" said Louison, coming quickly to me. "And you, my dear, you are Ma'm'selle Louise."

She spoke quickly in French, as if quite out of patience with the poor diplomacy of her sister.

"I knew it was you, for I saw the emerald on your finger," she added, turning to me, "but I could not tell her."

"I am glad, I am delighted, that she spoke to me," I said. I desired to save the fair girl, whose heart was ever as a child's, any sorrow for what she had done. "I was about to speak myself. It is so great a pleasure to see you all I could not longer endure silence."

"They made us prisoners; they bring us here. Oh, m'sieur, it is terrible!" said the baroness.

"And he is such a horrible-looking monkey!" said Louison.

"Do they treat you well?" I asked.

"We have a big room and enough to eat. It is not a bad prison, but it is one terrible phase," said the baroness. "There is a big wall; we cannot go beyond it."

"And that hairy thing! He is in love with Louise. He swears he will never let us go," said Louison, in a whisper, as she came close to me, "unless she will marry him."

"Ah! a tea-party," said his lordship, coming toward us. "Pardon the interruption. I have promised to return these men at nine. It is now 10 minutes of the hour. Ladies, I wish you all a very good night."

He bowed politely. They pressed my hand, leaving me with such anxiety in their faces that I felt it more than my own peril. Louison gave me a tender look out of her fine eyes, and the thought of it was a light to my soul in many an hour of darkness. She had seemed so cool, so nonchalant, I was surprised to feel the tremor in her nerves. I knew not words to say when Louise took my hand.

"Forgive me—good-by!" said she.

It was a faint whisper out of trembling lips. It was lighted with trouble and a nobler beauty than I had ever seen. It was full of tenderness and pity and things I could not understand.

"Have courage!" I called as they went away.

I was never in such a fierce temper as when, after they had gone abovestairs, I could hear one of them weeping. D'ri stood quietly beside me, his arms folded.

"Whut ye goin' t' dew with them air women?" he asked, turning to the young man.

"I beg you will give me time to consider," said his lordship, calmly, as he lighted a cigarette.

There was a quick move in the big tower of bone and muscle beside me. I laid hold of D'ri's elbow and bade him stop, or I fear his lordship's drawing-room, his lordship, and ourselves would presently have had some need of repair. Four guards who seemed to be waiting in the hall entered hurriedly, the shackles in hand.

"No haste," said his lordship, more pleasantly than ever. "Stand by and wait my orders."

"D' ye wan' t' know whut I think o' you?" said D'ri looking down at him, his eyes opening wide, his brow wrinkling into long furrows.

"I make a condition," said his lordship: "do not flatter me."

"Yer jest a low-lived, mis'ble, wuthless pup," said D'ri.

"Away with them!" said his lordship, flicking the ashes off a cigarette as he rose and walked hurriedly out of the room.

CHAPTER XIII.

The waiting guards laid hold of us in a twinkling, and others came crowding the doors. They shackled our hands behind us, and covered our eyes again. Dark misgivings of what was to come filled me, but I bore all in silence. They shoved us roughly out of doors, and there I could tell they were up to no child's play. A loud jeer burst from the mouths of many as we came staggering out. I could hear the voices of a crowd. They hurried us into a carriage.

"We demand the prisoners!" a man shouted near me.

Then I could her them scuffling with the guards, who, I doubt not, were doing their best to hold them back. In a moment I knew the mob had possession of us and the soldiers were being hustled away. D'ri sat shoulder to shoulder with me. I could feel his muscles tighten; I could hear the cracking of his joints and grinding of the shackle-chain. "Judas Pr-r-i-e-st!" he grunted, straining at the iron. Two men leaped into the carriage. There was a crack of the whip, and the horses went off bounding. We could hear horsemen all about us and wagons following. I had a stout heart in me those days, but in all my life I had never taken a ride so little to my liking. We went over rough roads, up hill and down, for an hour or more.

I could see in prospect no better destination than our graves, and, indeed, I was not far wrong. Well, by and by we came to a town somewhere—God knows where. I have never seen it, or known the name of it, or even that of the prison where we were first immured. I could tell it was a town by the rumble of the wheels and each echoing hoof-beat. The cavalcade was all about us, and now and then we could hear the sound of voices far behind. The procession slowed up, horsemen jammed to the left of us, the carriage halted. I could hear footsteps on a stone pavement.

"You 're late," said a low voice at the carriage door. "It 's near eleven." "Got o' fooling with the candidates," said one of the horsemen, quietly. "Everything ready?"

"Everything ready," was the answer.

The carriage door swung open.

"We get out here," said one of the men who sat with us.

I alighted. On each side of me somebody put his hand on my shoulder. I could see the glow of a lantern-light close to my face. I knew there was a crowd of men around, but I could hear nothing save now and then a whisper.

"Wall, Ray," said D'ri, who stood by my side, "hol' stiddy 'n' don't be scairt."

"Do as they tell ye," a stranger whispered in my ear. "No matter what 't is, do as they tell ye."

They led us into a long passage and up a steep flight of wooden stairs. I have learned since then it was a building equipped by a well-known secret society for its initiations. We went on through a narrow hall, and up a winding flight that seemed to me interminable. Above it, as we stopped, the man who was leading me rapped thrice on a rattling wooden door. It broke the silence with a loud echoing noise. I could hear then the sliding of a panel and a faint whispering and the sound of many feet ascending the stairs below. The door swung open presently, and we were led in where I could see no sign of any light. They took me alone across a wide bare floor, where they set me down on some sort of platform and left me, as I thought. Then I could hear the whispered challenge at the door and one after another entering and crossing the bare floor on tiptoe. Hundreds were coming in, it seemed to me. Suddenly a deep silence fell in that dark place of evil. The blindfold went whisking off as if a ghostly hand had taken it. But all around me was the darkness of a pit. I could see and I could hear nothing but a faint whisper, high above me, like that of pine boughs moving softly in a light breeze. I could feel the air upon my face. I thought I must have moved out of door by magic. It seemed as if I was sitting under the trees alone. Out of the black silence an icy hand fell suddenly upon my brow. I flinched, feeling it move slowly downward over my shoulder. I could hear no breathing, no rustle of garments near me. In the dead silence I got a feeling that the hand touching me had no body behind it. I was beyond the reach of fear—I was in a way prepared for anything but the deep, heart-shaking horror that sank under the cold, damp touch of those fingers. They laid hold of my elbow firmly, lifting as if to indicate that I was to rise. I did so, moving forward passively as it drew me on. To my astonishment I was unable to hear my own footfall or that of my conductor. I thought we were walking upon soft earth. Crossing our path in front of me I could see, in the darkness, a gleaming line. We moved slowly, standing still as our toes covered it. Then suddenly a light flashed from before and below us. A cold sweat came out upon me; I staggered back to strong hands that were laid upon my shoulders, forcing me to the line again. By that flash of light I could see that I was standing on the very brink of some black abyss—indeed, my toes had crossed the edge of it. The light came again, flickering and then settling into a steady glow. The opening seemed to have a grassy bottom some 10 feet below. In front of me the soil bristled, on that lower level, with some black and pointed plant: there were at least a score of them. As I looked I saw they were not plants, but a square of bayonets thrust, points up, in the ground. A curse came out of my hot mouth, and then a dozen voices mocked it, going fainter, like a dying echo. A tall figure in a winding-sheet, its face covered, was leaning over me.

"JUMP!" IT WHISPERED AND THE BARE BONES OF THE DEAD FINGERS STIRRED IMPATIENTLY.

An Ideal Location

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark, 14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

REFORM IN RUSSIA.

Emperor Considering Zemstvos' Resolutions at Tsarskoe Selo.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 22.—Emperor Nicholas is holding councils daily at Tsarskoe Selo, at which it is understood the internal situation in Russia is being thoroughly discussed. Among those who are attending the councils are Grand Duke Michael, the brother of the emperor; ministers and members of the council of the empire, including Prince Svietopolk-Mirsky, minister of the interior; M. Witte, president of the ministerial council, and other ministers.

Prince Svietopolk-Mirsky laid before the council the addresses and resolutions adopted by the congress of zemstvos. Prince Svietopolk-Mirsky, M. Witte and Count Solsky favored a policy of concession, but the others opposed such a policy on the ground that the demands of the zemstvoists were subversive of the essential principles of the autocracy. In the opinion of the council it is not the time to entertain proposals looking to a change in the existing form of government while war is in progress, and it was decided to discourage political agitation.

HER FIFTH VICTORY.

Gold Rose, Never Headed, Won Handicap at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 22.—Green B. Morris' two-year-old filly Gold Rose started for the fifth time and scored her fifth successive victory at Ascot. The distance was over the Slauson course, and Gold Rose was held at 6 to 5 throughout the betting. Sais was looked upon to take the fast filly's measure and was heavily played at 5 to 2, while El Chihuahua found numerous backers at 5 to 1. Gold Rose went to the front and never left the issue in doubt. Sais finished second and El Chihuahua third. Three short priced favorites were successful, two outsiders and one second choice winning the other races. Summary:

First Race.—Liberto, first; Iras, second; Lustig, third.

Second Race.—West Brookfield, first; Cotillion, second; Hildebrand, third.

Third Race.—Tryon, first; Potrero Grande, second; Freesias, third.

Fourth Race.—Gold Rose, first; Sais, second; El Chihuahua, third.

Fifth Race.—Chub, first; Rough Rider, second; Eva G., third.

Sixth Race.—Alamansor, first; Schoharie, second; Our Pride, third.

Field Trials at Waynesboro.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., Dec. 22.—The second series of the all age dog contest at field trials was finished here. Pioneer, Mr. Shelly's dog, won first prize, $300; McKinley, Mr. Askin's dog, won second prize, $200; Jessie Rodfield's Count Gladstone won third prize, $100. This completed the all age contest, in which much interest was taken because all the dogs were used for these trials, making the race exciting.

Ananias Won Oakland Handicap.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22.—Ananias was the best in the handicap at Oakland, winning from the start. Military Man, first choice, finished third. Baker, at 12 to 1, upset calculations in the first race, easily winning from George P. McNear and Golden Buck. Sad Sam, at the prohibitive odds of 1 to 2, tiptoed his field, finishing first in the second race. Mimo, favorite in the third race, won from Troy by a nose.

Racing at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 22.—Ram's Horn was the only winning favorite. Homestead should have won easily, but Schilling's bungling ride not only beat the colt for first place, but procured his disqualification for the second.

Club Got the Lion's Share.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22.—The total gate receipts of the Britt-Nelson fight were $26,900, of which Britt received $8,877, Nelson $5,918 and the Yosemite club $12,105.

Harvard Man's Fortune Held Back.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 22.—Just as he was about to turn over $30,000 to Frederick Hall White, the Harvard football player, who has reached his majority and who inherited nearly $200,000 from the estate of his mother, James Kingsley Blake of this city has been served with papers restraining him from doing so. Mr. Blake is administrator of Mrs. White's estate, and the restraining action is brought by Josiah J. White, father of the young man. The elder White sues for $25,000, alleging various grounds of indebtedness.

Hanging Was Suspended.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 22.—A special from Rome, Ga., says that Bob Sutherland and Courtney Baker did not hang at the appointed time. The supreme court has granted a stay of execution, and the case will be heard before that tribunal in January. The sheriff had made all preparations for the hanging, and many passes had been issued for admission to the scene.

Siberian Exile Will Speak.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—A meeting arranged by the Society of Friends of Russian Freedom will be held at Cooper Union this evening. Rev. Minot J. Savage, D. D., will preside. The principal address will be made by Mme. Breshkofakaya, who was for more than twenty years an exile in Siberia. She was the first woman political offender to be sent into exile.

Pauper Immigrants Deported.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 22.—Twenty-four undesirable immigrants have been deported from here on the White Star liner Cymbric, which sailed for Liverpool. Thirteen of the immigrants are returned because thought liable to become public charges.

THE PLAINFIELD TRUST COMPANY

CLOSED PORTALS.

At the annual election of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., these were chosen trustees: L. B. Woolston, Robert A. Becker and Dr. George D. Herring.

Rev. Dr. D. W. Goff, of Lynchburg, Va., worthy president of the order, has just organized a branch of the Royal Order of Joseph in this city and these officers have been elected: Worthy ruler, Spencer Conway; vice worthy ruler, R. Jackson; worthy scribe, Miss Sally Thornton; worthy treasurer, Wm. Manning. The members will meet on Wednesday night, Dec. 28, and elect the remaining five officers. Dr. Goff will come to Plainfield soon after the holidays and give a lecture before the local branch. He will organize another branch at Westfield. The organization pays sick and death benefits and has a total membership of 15,000.

AMUSEMENTS.

John Philip Sousa and his world famous band will say farewell to home audiences in three holiday concerts at Carnegie Hall on Sunday evening, December 25, Monday evening, December 26, and Tuesday evening, December 27, before sailing for England on the R. M. S. "Baltic," Wednesday, December 28, for the fourth European tour of the "March King" and his American organization. Mr. Sousa will first be heard at Philharmonic Hall, Liverpool, January 6 and 7, and he will inaugurate a series of twenty-five London concerts at Queen's Hall, on Monday, January 9. The British section of the tour will occupy about fifteen weeks, after which Mr. Sousa will probably give concerts in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Belgium. The soloists at the Carnegie Hall concerts will be Miss Estelle Liebling, soprano; Miss Jessie Straus, violinist; Messrs. Herbert L. Clarke and Herman Bellstedt, cornetists; Marshall Lufsky, piccolo.

Klaw & Erlanger will begin their new policy of great productions at popular prices at the New York Theatre—25 cents to $1—with a matinee performance of Joseph Brooks' presentation of C. T. Dazey's new play, "Home Folks," next Monday afternoon, Christmas Day. A previous announcement stated that the New York premiere of this drama would occur next Monday evening. This was an error. "Home Folks" is played by a company of eighty people, thirty of whom are talented children. The principals make up the most prominent aggregation of actors ever presented at popular prices. All of them have heretofore been seen on Broadway in high class productions, for which the prices ranged from $2 to 50 cents. Their appearance in play for which the highest priced set is only $1 is a notable innovation, which will undoubtedly attract wide attention, coupled with the fact that "Home Folks" is the greatest attraction ever presented at popular prices, so called, in history of the American stage. It is not only big in numbers of people, massive scenery and elaborate effects, but it is also great in its story and general interest to the play-goer. "Home Folks" is staged in four acts and five scenes. The locale is a small town in Illinois two years after the Civil War.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, will give a party for her daughter, Miss Edith Mellick, on Tuesday, December 27.

Mrs. Joseph P. Truitt, of Greenbrook road, gave a small and informal tea at her home yesterday afternoon in honor of some friends from Philadelphia, who are her guests.

Clift As Cross' Secretary.

Senator Cross said yesterday that he would leave the appointment of his secretary, who receives $600, to the Union County Republican committee. It was stated last night that Hamilton F. Kean, chairman of that committee, had said that he would use what influence he had to secure the appointment to the position of J. W. Clift, of the Summit Herald.

Fruit Store Closed.

Mrs. Michael Higgins, who has been conducting a fruit business on Park avenue, has given up the place, and Mrs. Henry Drake, through her counsel, W. L. Hetfield, Sr., has foreclosed the mortgage on the stock and fixtures. Mrs. Higgins has moved to another part of the city. The goods will be sold soon.

Funeral of Mrs. Duvernoy.

The funeral of Mrs. Marie C. Duvernoy, who died at her home on Monday, was held last night from the residence of her mother, Mrs. L. A. Rheaume, of Webster place. The burial was at Hillside.

—For the making of those mince pies for Christmas dinner, Neuman Brothers have all the best brands of prepared mince meat. Gordon and Dilworth's, Mrs. Taylor's and Leggett's Christmas mince meat. New consignments of each received today.

Miss Linnie Manning, of Grant avenue, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Luther Anthony, of Kingston.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

"Jack" Warner, the celebrated catcher for the New York National League team, for several years, has been purchased by Manager Charley Nichols, of the St. Louis Nationals, for his team. The purchase price is not stated, but is believed to be very large.

An important deal in baseball is now on in which Manager Ned Hanlon, of the Brooklyn Nationals, will place a National League team in Baltimore and transfer the Eastern League team now there to Washington. Baltimore for a number of years was one of the best big league cities and Hanlon believes that it can be so again. It is expected that the deal will be completed within a few days.

Harry G. Thompson, last year's captain of the Plainfield High School baseball team, has been re-elected and will act in the same capacity next spring. The vote was taken at the school and those who cast ballots were the members of last season's squad. Howard Craig was nominated for the office but the majority went to Thompson. Thompson has played for two years on the baseball team, and has made a capable captain. In 1902 he played first base, and last year he covered second bag.

If plans do not miscarry, George Mallen will probaly manage the baseball team at Westfield next season. Manager Denman having announced his decision to retire from the business, the honors would naturally go to his worthy lieutenant, Mallen. This player has successfully managed teams for Sunday ball and being well-acquanted with the players it is claimed that he would have no trouble in getting the pick. It is said that a majority of the stockholders of the Westfield Baseball Association favor Mallen, if Mr. Denman retires.

That the formation of a baseball league among teams in the northern part of the State is practically assured, is regarded as a certainty as the result of a meeting held in Newark under the auspices of the North Jersey Baseball League, and it is probable that Plainfield may join this league. It was definitely settled that Elizabeth will not join, and Plainfield is looked to to fill the vacancy.

At the meeting seven of the desired eight teams were chosen—Orange, Summit, Chatham, Madison, Dover, Stroudsburg and Washington. This list includes practically the strongest teams in the State with few exceptions. Elizabeth and Trenton were considered, but did not agree satisfactorily with the desires of the league.

These representatives were present: Manager Mills, Orange A. C.; A. P. Konkle and Edward Littlejohn, of the Chatham F. C.; Managers Murphy, Christine and Doland, of the Summit, Washington and Dover teams, respectively. Mr. Doland was chairman of the meeting and Mr. Konkle secretary. Another meeting will be held within a short time.

A Model Winter Colony.

The attractiveness of Lakewood is greatly enhanced by the architecture of private residences which has been successful to a remarkable degree. Every variety of style and scale is artistically represented. Those which harmonize best with their surroundings, on the whole, are perhaps those after the antique Dutch model designed from the Copley prints. Their colored roofs and rough plaster half hidden in ivy peep out charmingly from their setting of gnarled pines. The hotels are built on a vast scale and are not surpassed by those of any other resort in appointments and comfort. The fact that Lakewood does not contain a single cheap or tawdry feature should not convey the impression that it is exclusively a resort for the rich. Rates are moderate at the hotels and it is pre-eminitely a resort for the business man. There are also numerous private boarding houses suitable for families of moderate means, and the excellent schools make Lakewood especially suitable for a winter home. The Lakewood booklet, published by the Central Railroad of New Jersey contains information of value to those interested, including institutions of the town, opportunities for out-door recreation and general advantages, as well as the names and rates of the best hotels and boarding houses. This suggestive brochure will be sent to any one writing for it to C. M. Burt, General Passenger Agent, 143 Liberty street, New York city.

SNAP SHOTS.

An inmate of the City Industrial Home known familiarly as "Susan" escaped Superintendent TenEyck's watchful eye Tuesday, and stirred up Dunellen's business district during a period of freedom. She wandered into a barber shop after a series of antics on the street and declared she wanted her hair cut so that it would grow again any color but gray, because that shade reminded her too much of the "graveyard." When the astonished proprietor refused, "Susan" started to "clean house" but met her match.

The knight of the shears summoned assistance and in a very short space of time the belligerent "Susan" was put out of doors with such force that she decided to get away from Dunellen. She returned to the Home as search was being made for her.

The Harrison Fisher Picture "Will He Dare?" which adorns the front cover of Madame for December, will excite universal admiration because of the beauty of design and exquisite of harmony of colors. It is the handsomest of the art covers used on Madame during the year.

Bon-Fire Makes Trouble.

A bon fire left burning near Truell Inn on Park avenue, last night, spread to a pile of lumber nearby and a merry blaze was in progress when someone discovered it at 1:45 this morning. Chief Doane was notified by telephone and going to the Inn aroused several of the servants. The flames were extinguished without calling out any of the apparatus.

PUBLIC SCHOOL EXERCISES

Christmas Programmes in the Various Grades Today.

MUSIC A FEATURE

Interesting Exercises in the Plainfield High School—Attractions in Other Departments.

Characterized by the usual merry-making and festivities appropriate to the occasion, the Christmas exercises at the public schools this morning were at once significant of the Christmas spirit, and decidedly interesting from the spectator's point of view. In all departments, the surroundings were brightened by appropriate decorations, while good will was in evidence everywhere. Throughout all the buildings in the city, red and green decorations were prevalent, and the Christmas atmosphere made itself felt in many ways. In some of the departments presents were exchanged, while in the Plainfield High School, the customary humorous rivalry between the seniors and juniors existed.

the schools exercises appropriate to Orhistmas were held, either at assembly, in the form of a regular programme, or in the class rooms. The programme at the Plainfield High School was an elaborate one, and was well rendered in every detail. The singing, in which the pupils had been trained by Charles L. Lewis, was characterized by the usual excellence which marks High School performances, and the programme was arranged with care and taste. The following was the programme in full:

Selection by the High School and Mandolin Club.
Presentation of prizes to the winners of events in the annual fall meeting for track athletics.
Presentation of prizes to the winners of the girls' Tennis tournament.
Anthem by the school—"Prepare ye the Way of the Lord."

Recitation—Phoebe's Cary's narrative poem, "The Christmas Sheaf".....Ines Tolles

Presentation of a large photograph of the Capitol at Washington, given by the students of the school, presentation by Martin B. Stutsman; acceptance by Gertrude L. Hunter.
Presentation of the two large colored photographs, (a) St. Mark's Cathedral, Venice; (b) Cathedral at Milan, presentation by Chester H. Briggs; acceptance by Edith L. Jarvis.
Anthem by the school—"The First Christmas," Barnaby.
Address—Rev. Dr. W. O. Snodgrass.
School song—"The Plainfield High School."

At the conclusion of this programme, the platform was given up to the senior class and the usual good natured hits at the juniors took up the time until 1:30, when the class of '06 retaliated by inviting the seniors to a bountiful repast in one of the class rooms. The class of 1905 presented their gifts to the juniors in a novel and interesting manner. In accordance with the old precedent, the gifts were applicable to the various characteristics of the receivers and were accompanied by short verses of poetry.

Howard H. Craig, costumed to resemble as near as possible a snow ball, had charge of the ceremonies, and in a suit of white cotton made a picturesque snow man. He rolled up on the platform, what appeared to be a large snow ball, and from within this mass of coldness, were drawn one by one the presents for the juniors. Each was gotten up like a small snow ball. The hits were clever and gave rise to much merriment. The teachers were not remembered with presents this year as on former occasions, but a large school banner was presented from the class to the school and intrusted to the teachers. An appropriate poem, significant of this presentation, was written and read by Miss Lillian Snodgrass.

At the Franklin School the exercises were held in the assembly hall, and were for the most part musical. Christmas anthems, all of which were sung in a delightful manner, combined with appropriate Scripture reading and the services impressive as well as interesting. This was the programme in full:

Processional—"Hail, All Hail the King."
Hymn—"While Shepherds Watched".....School
Scripture—The Christmas Story.
Carol—"Wake and Tune Your Watchful Voices".....School
Carol—"Praise for His Glory".....School
Solo.....Master Martin
Christmas song.....Masters Martin, Janke, Voorhees, Keiderling, Dame, Pope, Doty, Lee, Coyle and Smith.

Carol—"At Christmas Time"..School
Duet—"Silent Night".....The Misses Searles and Miller.
Carol—"Christmas Chimes"...School
Carol—Christmas Bells are Ringing".....School
Song—"The Star of Bethlehem".....School

Though the limited space at the Bryant School building prevented a large attendance, the programme at that school was one of the best in the city, and was rendered in a style remarkable when the age of the pupils is considered. Music and recitations composed the programme which displayed great taste on the part of those who had charge of the training in the singing and speaking. This was the programme:

Processional—"Hail, All Hail the King."
Carol—"Christ Our King."

A large number of friends and relatives of the pupils attended the exercises at the Irving School this morning, which consisted largely of music. There were several recitations in addition to the carols, which were rendered in a pleasing manner. This was the programme:

PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB

Title of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club is Changed.

DUES ARE INCREASED

Membership Limit is Increased to 400—Initiation Fee is to be Raised.

A thoroughly representative attendance of members marked the meeting of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, at the Casino, last night, called for the purpose of adopting an entirely new constitution and by-laws and changing the name of the club. It was unanimously voted to change the name and hereafter the organization will be known as The Plainfield Country Club.

Among the most important features in the new constitution is that the dues are increased as follows: Active, $20 to $25; associate, $8 to $12; junior associate, $4 to $6. The initiation fee will remain at $15, as at present, until April 30, 1905, when it will be increased to $25. The present membership of the club is 325, the limit, and this was increased to 400. There are now many applications from those wishing to join the club. The increased revenue to be received by reason of raising the dues will be used toward improving the course and engaging a clerk at the clubhouse.

The new constitution has been very carefully prepared. After the meeting, the Board of Trustees, met and adopted a new set of by-laws. In the spring a new club book will be issued. This will contain the names of members, the constitution and by-laws and other information.

George P. Mellick, president of the club, presided at the meeting and Leighton Calkins acted in his capacity as secretary.

CHRISTMAS CHEER FOR THREE HUNDRED CHILDREN

ELKS TREE TO BE LIGHTED IN REFORM HALL TOMORROW AFTERNOON.

Through the combined efforts of the Plainfield Relief Association and Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., three or four hundred of the city and borough's children will have a delightful Christmas celebration in Reform Hall tomorrow afternoon. An entertainment is to be furnished by a professional humorist from New York and at the close, each boy and girl in attendance will receive a box of candy and an orange, also warm garments, such as stockings, mittens, caps or similar useful affairs.

The Elks planned the celebration but as one somewhat like it is conducted each year by the Relief Association, the lodge men decided to submit the final arrangements to this organization. A committee of women from the association will be in attendance and attend to the distributions. Admission to the ball will be by ticket only and these have been extended by the women's committee.

Against Government Ownership.

The negative side won in a debate at Leal's School yesterday morning on the subject: "Resolved, That the United States Government should own and control the railroads." Those who represented the negative were Charles Chapman and Elliot Rowland, of the junior class, while for the affirmative were Percy Chapman and John Jewett, of the senior class. The judges were John Leal, Mr. Stiles and Mr. Hubbard of the faculty.

Gift to Teacher Campbell.

A feature of the closing exercises at the public school at Stirling, yesterday, for the holiday season, was the presentation to the principal, David Campbell, of a handsome oil painting, entitled "At the Brook." It represents the village of Stirling, through which courses the beautiful Passaic river. The scene, a summer one, is true to nature and Mr. Campbell prizes the gift highly. It was presented to him by Guy and Lois Peck, two of his pupils in the school.

Miss Hattie Dobbins Dead.

Miss Hattie Dobbins, of Kearney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dobbins, and granddaughter of Mrs. Ann Dobbins, of Scotch Plains, died at her home, yesterday after a long illness. Miss Dobbins was well-known at Scotch Plains, where she was a former resident.

MRS. H. K. WRIGHT DEAD

NEWS BY CABLE

Major W. D. W. Miller's Daughter—Married to Rev. Mr. Wright Two Years Ago.

News of the death of Mrs. Harrison King Wright at Ningpo, China, on Wednesday, was received by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William DeWitt Miller, of East Seventh street, by cable yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Wright's maiden name was Maude Howe Miller. She was twenty-nine years old and graduated from the Plainfield High School in 1894. The remains will be interred at Ningpo.

Mrs. Wright, with her husband, Rev. Harrison King Wright, prepared for the mission work in China, and both were under the direction of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, he being sent to China by the Rutgers Memorial Presbyterian church, of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Wright were married in this city in May, 1902, and soon afterward prepared for their journey to the Orient. They were located on the coast about 120 miles south of Shanghai.

SEMINARY PUPILS' GIFT TO DEPARTING TEACHER

SOLID SILVER SERVICE FOR MISS EDITH BURT.

Appropriate to the season a school party was given at The Seminary this morning. The programme, comprising songs, recitations and a piano solo, was given by the children in the primary department. A feature of the exercises was the presentation by the faculty and children of a solid silver service to Miss Edith Burt, who, for over three years has been a teacher of physical culture and elocution and instructor for the basketball team. She resigned her position today to prepare for her marriage to Howard R. Reiter on Saturday, January 7.

Miss Kenyon announced Miss Burt's retirement and the purpose, after which Miss Louise Saunders, president of the senior class, made the presentation. In accepting the gift, Miss Burt expressed her appreciation, as well as her regret in severing such pleasant relations.

Resolutions of Condolence.

Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., met last night and received a letter from Wm. Hepburn, of Arizona, telling of the death of his father, C. E. Hepburn, a former Plainfielder and member of the lodge. Harvey R. Thorn, L. G. Spicer and Wm. Newcorn were appointed a committee to draft suitable resolutions of condolence. In accordance with the annual custom a Christmas tree was a feature of the evening and each member received a present.

$193,000 Tax Money Received.

The report to be presented to the Common Council tonight by Tax Collector Robert L. Lee will show that the collections for November were $35,000 and for December up to 3 o'clock yesterday, were $581,000, making a total of $198,000 received out of $235,000 to be collected. This amount will be reduced considerably during the next few days, leaving the delinquent tax a comparatively small small amount.

A Gift for the Firemen.

The Public Service Corporation is to play Santa Claus for the men at fire headquarters. Because of the dispute over the use of gas at the house, the officials have notified Chief Deane that it will give his men an electric stove, suitable for cooking or any need where heat is required. The gas was formerly used in this way the officials say, contrary to agreement, but there is no restriction on using the electric current.

Trouble at a Ball.

During the progress of a ball in Saengerbund Hall, last night, somebody said that some fellow's girl "wasn't a lady" and the young woman in question called for vindication. She secured it and the police nabbed two young men, brothers, named Kearns. They will be given a hearing before Judge Dead tonight.

To Try Nan Patterson Again.

The jury in the case of Nan Patterson, charged with killing Caesar Young, the bookmaker, disagreed.

Miss May Batchelor, of Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., is home for the holiday vacation.

P. A. C. TO BE INDEPENDENT

Manager Woolston Opposes Joining the N. J. League.

WANTS HOME GAMES

Not Prepared As Yet to Announce Probable Lineup—Cregan a Likely Player.

Manager Charles Woolston, of the Plainfield A. C., does not favor the idea of forming a baseball league for teams in North New Jersey and having Plainfield represented. He says that local cranks want Saturday games here and any attempt to play away on that day would meet with general disapproval. During the summer months nearly all of the local shops closed at noon, giving the employes an opportunity to attend the ball games. This patronage is of too much consequence to ignore according to Mr. Woolston and if he has his way there will be games every Saturday in Plainfield. The Northern Jersey League is about formed, there being seven of the desired eight teams in the organization. The promoters are now looking for another aggregation and Plainfield was considered favorable. However, there does not seem to be a disposition to have the city represented.

Regarding the makeup of the local team, Mr. Woolston has nothing to say as yet. About the first of the year he hopes to make it public. He guarantees to have a first-class nine and is now working toward that end. Beisel, who was signed by Hoboken toward the end of last season as a pitcher, and who gave some good exhibitions, is now training at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

There is good reason to believe that "Pete" Cregan, the last season favorite, will again be seen wearing a Plainfield A. C. uniform next year.

WHITTIER PUPILS MAKE HIT IN ENTERTAINMENT

KORONATION OF KRIS KRINGLE WENT OFF WITHOUT A HITCH LAST NIGHT.

"The Koronation of King Kris Kringle," which was given last night at Franklin Hall by the pupils of the Whittier School, was indeed the crowning success of Whittier School entertainments. Elaborate and varied in sytle, the short musical sketch was carried through without a hitch, and all took their parts in a highly creditable manner.

The story of the play led up to the koronation of Santa Claus in a delightful way, combining interesting solos, choruses and recitations in the simple, though complete plot. There were in all nineteen solos by members of the school, in addition to four choruses and a number of recitations and dialogues. The climax of the entertainment was when representatives of all nationalities entered and proclaimed Kris Kringle, king. The words were spoken distinctly, and the costumes were features of the production.

Miss Irene Dunham, gotten up as a colored mamie, made a great hit in a humorous song. The two sailor lads, Herbert Grant and Charles Leiseaux, were also good. The Fairy Queen, Miss Marian Mann, was decidedly queenly, gowned in a glittering costume, and waiving a shining wand. The part of Kris Kringle was well taken by Roy Woodhull. Others who took part in the entertainment were Monroe Staats, Russel Abbott, William P. Westphal, LeRoy Woodhull, Charles Leiseaux, Herbert Grant, Guion Fountain, Earl Oakley, John Yoss, Elmer Boban, John Rittenhouse, Harold Miller, John Hopewell, and the Misses Ella Case, Marion Mann, Bessie Alpaugh, Irene Dunham, Ethel VanWinkle, Heine Rogers, Lillian Cronkite, Frances Rittenhouse and Florence Dickerson.

Great credit is due to the teachers who instructed in the programme, and to Miss Addie Parker Jackson and Charles L. Lewis, who had charge of the training in elocution and in music.

Judge Runyon, Choir Leader.

The Christmas music at the Park Avenue Baptist church on Sunday morning and evening will be under the direction of City Judge William N. Runyon. There will be baptism at the evening service.

GOOD SCORES MADE AT COMPANY K'S SHOOT

SERGEANT LITTELL REACHES HIGHEST MARK IN WEDNESDAY'S CONTEST.

Good scores characterized the shoot at Company K's Armory Wednesday evening, which was one of the most successful events of the season. About twenty took part in the contest which was the first of two competitions for the prize turkey, which will be awarded at the conclusion of the shoot tomorrow evening.

The highest possible score is fifty, and the nearest to that record Wednesday evening was Sergeant Littell, who scored a 44. There were other very good scores, and Littell was closely followed by several competitors. The following was the summary of the shooting: Littell, 44; Esterbrook, 43; Gallaway, 42; Douglass, 41; Neal, 40; Howell, 39; Kling, 39; Goldsack, 38; Sampson, 33; Tranchard, 33; French, 32.

The shoot Wednesday evening in no way determines the winner of the prize as the Saturday night contest is also to be considered. It is the best score in the two nights which determines who shall have the Christmas dinner.

MIDNIGHT BANQUET AT P. H. S. LABATORY

JUNIORS SUCCDEDED IN DECORATING THE BUILDING WITH THEIR COLORS.

Members of the Plainfield High School, classes of 1905 and 1906, enjoyed a midnight banquet at the school last night, which proved in every way a successful affair. Toasts, songs and school cheers enlivened the laboratory at the school until 1 o'clock, when the revelers left for their homes. Before leaving, the juniors put their flag on the cupolo. White and gold were the only colors to fly from the school building this morning.

Within the building, however, the colors were equally distributed, each class having its share of the assembly room to adorn with class insignia. The blue and white of the senior class, from the chandelier to each corner of the large hall contrasted well with the white and gold of the juniors' and the red and white of the freshmen. The decorations at the rear of the room by the last mentioned class were particularly commendable.

AMUSEMENTS.

Ethel Barrymore has scored the triumph of her career in "Sunday," the new play in which she is now appearing at the Hudson Theatre, New York. She has surpassed all her previous records for New York business, and she has succeeded also in making the heroine of the picturesque melodrama, whose love story is so charmingly and convincingly told, take place by the side of the most popular of her previous stage creations. "Sunday," as portrayed by Miss Barrymore appeals in the strongest way to her audiences, being a very human and winsome girl of the far Western type; breezy, slangy, courageous and ready for every emergency that arises, but with all as sweet and wholesome a young creature as ever stepped out of a border romance. Miss Barrymore employs her exquisite art most effectively in presenting this character and she deserves the great triumph she is achieving in it.

Case Dismissed.

The Northeastern Telephone case, which has been in the courts for some time, has been concluded finally, and was dismissed by Justice Huff Wednesday afternoon. William McMahon and Leughy McDonald, employes of the Northeastern Telephone Company, were the defendants and Mrs Theodore Glaser, though illness prevented her from appearing at the trial yesterday, was the plaintiff. She was represented by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., while H. C. Runyon appeared for the defendants.

—George Bennett, of 73 Norwood avenue, received a compound fracture of one finger and lacerated wound of another at Scott's Press Works, Wednesday. He received treatment at the hospital.

DESTROYERS ESCAPE

Desperate Sortie of Port Arthur Torpedo Flotilla.

KAMIMURA'S FLEET NEAR SINGAPORE

Squadron of Powerful Japanese Cruisers Sail South to Hold Sea Gates Against Rojestvensky's Armada.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—A Chefu report says that eight torpedo boat destroyers have escaped from Port Arthur, where for the last twenty-four hours a severe snowstorm has been raging.

A special semiofficial St. Petersburg dispatch says that four Japanese cruisers and twelve torpedo boats are proceeding west from Singapore. It is not believed, however, that such a small squadron can have been sent out by Japan with any idea of engaging in offensive operations, but it is regarded as more probable that it is the purpose of this squadron to keep a surveillance over the two detachments of the Russian fleet, which are expected to soon unite in the neighborhood of Madagascar. It is generally believed that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky intends to establish a naval coaling base on some small island between Madagascar and the Philippines and that the Japanese cruising squadron hopes to mark down the rendezvous for Vice Admiral Togo's information. The hope is expressed that Admiral Rojestvensky will be able to catch up with the Japanese scouts, which, it is believed, he could easily destroy, thereby weakening the Japanese in the final naval engagement.

A Tokyo report received from Vice Admiral Togo says that a prisoner taken by the fleet, who is considered to be reliable, reports that as a result of the attack on the battleship Sevastopol eight torpedoes struck her deck and that at least one took effect on her hull. She now lies aground, with her gun ports awash.

A Singapore (Straits Settlements) report says that two Japanese cruisers called there and left soon afterward. They reported that two Japanese battleships, two first class cruisers, two second class cruisers and twelve torpedo boat destroyers were near by, steaming west.

Shanghai reports that a squadron of powerful cruisers under Admiral Kamimura has gone south to the China sea to meet the Russian second Pacific squadron.

Advices from Tokyo by telegraph from the Japanese army before Port Arthur says:

"The right column of the army, taking advantage of the enemy's excitement, drove the enemy off an eminence north of Housanyentao, on Pigeon bay, and occupied the position and later dislodged the enemy from a height on the peninsula west of Housanyentao, which we occupied, capturing one small gun. After the Japanese occupation of the positions the enemy made a counter attack, but was immediately repulsed. At present our occupation of the positions is practically secure."

Mukden dispatches say that artillery firing from Poutiloff hill dispersed a party of Japanese who were trying to intrench in front of that position.

Chinese report that Field Marshal Oyama and his staff have established headquarters at Liaoyang and that the Japanese are constructing new forts around the city.

The Orenburg Cossacks have captured six Japanese scouts, four of whom were badly frozen, two having to have their feet amputated. The same Cossacks recently captured seventeen Japanese, who were unable to fire a single shot when they found themselves surrounded.

The port of Yinkow is closed by ice.

Large Japanese re-enforcements landing at Dalny are going in the direction of Port Arthur.

Life Sentence Convict Freed.

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—James Nicholson, under life sentence for the murder of his wife in this city in 1884, was released from state prison, he having been pardoned by Governor Bates. The pardon was granted because of the prisoner's exemplary conduct since his incarceration in 1884 and mitigating circumstances surrounding the crime.

New England Games Open In April.

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—At a meeting of the New England Baseball league here it was decided to open a playing season of nineteen weeks on April 28, 1905. Sixteen games will be played instead of eighteen, as last season. A team salary limit of $1,500 a month, including $100 for the manager, was adopted.

Escaped Murderer Captured.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 23.—J. H. Adams, who was convicted of the murder of James Jacques of Colleton county and sentenced to be hanged and who escaped some months ago, has been captured by Sheriff Owens and a posse in Colleton county. A reward of $1,000 for the capture of Adams was offered.

Nicol Landed Three Winners.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 23.—Nicol's riding was a feature of the racing here. The boy had four mounts and landed three winners, finishing second with his last mount. Foxmead and Reliance were the only winning favorites. Foxmead was run up $500 after his race.

Morton and Dewey to Review Fleet.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The date for the grand review of the battleship squadron of the north Atlantic fleet at Hampton Roads by Secretary Morton has been fixed for Jan. 9. The secretary will be accompanied by Admiral Dewey and the admiral's staff.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 23, 1904

Don't forget the paper carrier. He will be at your door on Monday morning with The Daily Press calendar.

By all odds the Washington, N. J., Star is the best weekly newspaper published in New Jersey and in fact one of the best in this part of the country at least. Its Christmas number is a model in journalistic enterprise.

Were it not for the fact that the reliability of The Daily Press as a truthful vendor of news is attacked in this instance, pursuing our usual custom, no attention would be paid to the statement in the Courier-News which quotes Mayor Smalley as denying that he will oust Dr. Honeyman as a member of the North Plainfield Board of Health and recommend that Recorder Thomas Doud be given his place.

On Wednesday, The Daily Press said:

When the North Plainfield Common Council meets on Friday night, January 6, Mayor Newton B. Smalley will ask that Thomas Doud be appointed a member of the Board of Health to succeed Rev. W. E. Honeyman.

The Courier-News said yesterday:

Mayor Smalley denies the story that appeared in The Press of yesterday wherein it stated that he would "oust" Dr. W. E. Honeyman from the Board of Health and appoint Recorder Doud in his place. The Mayor said he never made such a statement and was extremely sorry such an article got into public print.

Without solicitation Mayor Smalley sent this communication to The Daily Press last night after reading the Courier-News' article:

"Editor, The Daily Press:

"In reply to the question of The Daily Press regarding our next borough meeting, I said the term of W. E. Honeyman as a member of the Board of Health would expire and that it would probably be filled by Thomas Doud, our present recorder. The general wording of the article was not authorized by me and that covers any denial I may have made to the Courier. N. B. Smalley."

"The Octoroon" a Success.

Before a large and appreciative audience in the Casino, last evening, the familiar drama, "The Octoroon" was excellently produced by local talent for the benefit of Mount Olive Baptist church. Merit was won by Alfred P. White, James and Robert Toney, Alexander Stills, Miss Anna Howard, Miss Ellie M. Sumter and Miss Bertha Hill. Solos were given by Miss Patsy Lanier and C. H Paine and instrumental selections by the Toney Brothers. Others in the cast were the Misses Bettie Davidson, Etta Kingslow and Ida Mitchell, Robert Carter, Harry Barnely, T. J. Banks, P. Bullock, A. Ridley, George Toomey, Seymour VanBlake, Archibald Ridley and Frederick Hemes. The production was planned and given under the personal direction of Mrs. William Dempsey and to whom credit is due for its success.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Rev. Henry N. Jordan, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of New Market, is spending his Christmas vacation in a theological seminary in New York city. His place will probably be filled by Rev. Mr. Livermore, former pastor of the church.

Silas Carpenter, of Prospect avenue, is seriously ill at his home with a severe attack of paralysis. He is being attended by his daughter, Mrs. Lizzie Hoffman, of Trenton.

Frank Nelson left this morning for Seattle, Wash., with John Peters, Jr., who at the last minute arranged to go with him.

Ed. Harlich will leave Monday for Port Richmond, S. I., where he will start in business for himself.

The local schools will close today and will not open again until Monday, January 2.

The M. E. church was very prettily decorated last evening for Christmas Day.

Special services will be held in all of the churches on Christmas morning.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Evangelist Rev. George W. Coon, of Worcester, Massachusetts, finished his labors with the M. E. church this week after a three weeks' series of services. Progress is reported, and a number are to unite with the church. Mr. Coon is a graduate of Rochester University, and also of Rochester Theological Seminary, as well as of Boston University School of Theology. He has been in the Methodist pastorate for twenty years, and in extensive evangelistic work for five years, in West, North and South; realizing marked success. It was to assist his son, the Rev. Warren P. Coon, in special services, that he stopped at Scotch Plains while en route for the South, where the winter will be spent among the schools, colleges and churches, in revivalistic effort. Scores of bishops and ministers in the North and South are interested in this work, and heartily commend Mr. Coon's zeal and plans for the solution of the racial problem, "The Christianizing of the Colored South." His evangelistic tour beings in Baltimore, Md., January 1, 1905.

The work of changing the heating apparatus at the Baptist church from the old style furnace to steam heat is completed. The two heaters, which have done service for a number of years, have at times proved very unsatisfactory, during the extreme cold weather it being found impossible to heat the church comfortably. The same trouble was experienced at the public schools until a steam heater replaced the old furnace. At times school had to be dismissed because it was impossible to heat the building comfortably. Now the rooms are kept at an even temperature during the coldest weather.

Taxes which have not been paid are now delinquent and will have the added interest attached. The list is reported as being smaller this year than in the past. This is no doubt due to the fact that the township is obliged to sell each year such properties as are classed as delinquent or lose its claim against the property.

The promised boom in real estate at Graceland is welcome news to the few property owners who purchased home sites there when the place was boomed by a New York real estate company ten years ago.

St. Mary's Catholic church at Stony Hill will hold a midnight mass, tomorrow night. A feature will be the Gloria, Gregorian chant, for the first time.

The local weather prophets who were predicting only thirteen snow storms this winter have now changed their predictions to the usual cry of an early spring.

Rev. Moore Smith, who has been called to the pastorate of the Baptist church, led the weekly prayer meeting held last night in the parlors of the church.

The Christmas festival will be held at the M. E. church tonight, and the annual festival will be held at the Baptist church tomorrow night.

Tomorrow afternoon the Brookside Gun Club holds its weekly shoot on the club grounds near Green brook.

The annual Christmas entertainment of the Methodist Sunday-school will be held tonight in the church.

George Adair, formerly ar esident here, but now of Stelton, N. J., has been visiting friends in town.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Hollis Cubberley, of Brown University, returned home for the holiday vacation, yesterday.

The Patriotic Order Sons of America met in camp for business last night in Washington Hall.

Claude Cubberley, of Scranton, will spend Christmas at home.

In consideration of the fact that there is no assembly hall at the Lincoln School, the pupils did not have any regular programme in celebration of Christmas. The exercises were brief and were confined to the various class rooms. The Christmas story was told and the significance of the day explained. In the kindergarten the children had a Christmas tree, from which a great deal of pleasure was derived.

PARK BOWLERS WIN FROM CRANFORD TEAM

IN MATCH WHERE GOOD SCORES WERE PREVALENT LAST NIGHT.

The Park Club bowlers won a good match from the Cranford team last night in the Central Journal Bowling League, rolling the best scores they have made so far this year. It was in the first and third games that the local pin-hitters showed their superiority, though their second game was far from the usual standard.

It was an interesting match, and was viewed by a large gathering of spectators, who applauded the good rolling. Baylis, of the Cranford team, was high man, with a score of 224, while the best average was made by Captain Ball, of the Parks, with a score of 196. Townsend's score was also one of the highest. This was the card of the match:

JURY WAS LOCKED UP

No Verdict In Nan Patterson Murder Trial.

RUMOR OF 10 TO 2 FOR ACQUITTAL

Crowds Besiege Court Shouting Directions to Jurymen—Prisoner Has Abiding Faith That Today She Will Be Free.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The Patterson jury was finally locked up at 11:30 last night, it being found impossible to arrive at a verdict.

After the announcement was made at 11 o'clock that the jury would be locked up for the night Judge Davis was communicated with, and he said he would allow the jury another half hour to arrive at a decision if possible.

The delay in reaching a verdict greatly unnerved the prisoner, who waited, with her father, in "the pen." She was said to be on the verge of collapse when it was found at 11 o'clock that an agreement had not been arrived at up to that hour.

Nan Patterson, the former "Florodora" girl, spent an anxious evening in the criminal courts building awaiting the result of the deliberations of the twelve men who shortly after noon were sent to the jury room to decide whether she should be branded as the woman who fired the shot that killed Caesar Young or liberated to join her family.

She had expected a speedy verdict and had even packed her belongings and left them in the cell which has been her home for several months. But evening came, and the jury went to dinner and returned to its deliberations with no sign of what the verdict would be.

The suspense of the early days of the trial, when Prosecutor Rand put witness after witness on the stand to complete a chain of circumstantial evidence against her, returned, although outwardly Miss Patterson seemed to maintain the same quiet demeanor that has characterized her from the beginning.

As the afternoon passed into evening various rumors were spread about the criminal courts building as to the doings in the jury room.

"The jury stands ten to two for acquittal," was one of these reports.

"One man is holding out," was another.

Some had the hardihood to name the juror upon whose refusal to acquit hangs so much for the former actress.

The fact that one of the jurors after the charge of Judge Davis had asked that he might take the revolver with which Young was killed to the jury room gave rise to stories that the jurymen were spending much time in experiments.

The great interest which the trial of Nan Patterson has attracted was never evinced in a more pronounced way than at the close. Excluded from the corridors of the court building, several score of persons stood outside the main entrance in the slush and snow and cold waiting for word that the jury had at last agreed. It was a quiet crowd, but needed only the news of a verdict to start it into a frenzy of excitement and cheering.

Miss Patterson after the jury retired spent the time between her cell in the Tombs and what is known as the "pen" on the third floor of the court building.

Most of the time was spent in the Tombs. As she was led from the court after the jury had retired she witnessed a marriage ceremony between two prisoners and congratulated them. For a moment her face brightened, as though she had forgotten her own troubles, but soon after resumed its look of sad calm. While she was in the Tombs she opened numerous telegrams and letters from relatives and friends congratulating her upon her defense and expressing the hope and wish that her freedom was near at hand. One of the messages was from her mother, who has not been able to attend the trial. It said she hoped to have her daughter home for Christmas.

Last evening after her dinner she was taken to the "pen," where she was joined by her father, who has been constant in his support of his daughter since she was first accused of the crime and who has been her faithful ally and companion every day in court. No one else saw Miss Patterson.

The abiding faith of the young woman was shown shortly after 6 o'clock, when she expressed the opinion that the jury would acquit her.

"I almost feel sure I will leave here tonight, for the jury, I think, will not stay out all night." When she said this her face was tense with nervousness, and in her hand was the missive she had just received from her mother. It read:

"Dear Nannie—We look for you tomorrow because father sent word that the jury would set you free and send you to me tonight. I dreamed last night that you were with us again and it was Christmas day. God grant that the dream comes true, Nannie, and that I will soon have my little girl again."

At 10 o'clock the crowd of morbidly interested people about the courthouse gathered on the White street side of the building, where they could see the little room in which the Nan Patterson jury was sitting.

Half of those gathered were women, and for a time the people were quiet. Finally, however, becoming impatient, various cries were set up directed at the jurymen, and this was continued for a long time.

The jury began its work of considering the evidence about 12:25. At 2 o'clock the twelve men were escorted to a Park row restaurant for lunch and an hour afterward again took up the case. At 7:20 o'clock court officers again opened the jury room, and the men went to dinner. They were a solemn looking lot, and during the meal there was little conversation and fewer smiles. It was over an hour later.

The judge adjourned his court late in the afternoon, saying that if a verdict was reached before 11 o'clock he would return to the building.

Justice Davis' charge in the morning was purely a legal address without any flavor of eloquence. He explained to the jury the various verdicts of homicide they could bring against the defendant.

He said that if they found that the young prisoner had deliberately and with premeditation killed Caesar Young their only verdict could be murder in the first degree, for which her life would have to be sacrificed.

Then he explained to them if they found there was some grave element of deliberation or premeditation lacking, but that she had killed the bookmaker, they could bring in a verdict of murder in the second degree, for which she would have to suffer life imprisonment.

Next he defined the status of the crime which would establish manslaughter in the first degree, for which the young defendant could be sent to states' prison for not more than twenty years and not less than one day. He concluded his explanation of the various degrees of homicide with a definition of manslaughter in the second degree, for which the actress could be sentenced to imprisonment for not more than fifteen years nor less than one day.

Concluding his charge Judge Davis said:

"Where it may appear that the defendant has wilfully violated the law of this state the people are entitled to your conscientious deliberation and verdict. You are the sole judges of the facts—nothing more.

"The theory of suicide has not been proved, and you shall govern your reasoning accordingly.

"The law does not declare that there shall be proof beyond all doubt, but beyond a reasonable doubt.

"The claim of the people is that this defendant armed herself with a revolver and with premeditation and deliberation killed Caesar Young. You are not bound by any inferences of counsel, but must abide by your own judgment.

"There is nothing in the evidence to show that J. Morgan Smith had anything to do with this case. The defendant must not be judged by the acts of others. Smith's absence must not be held against the prisoner.

"It is for you to determine whether this defendant killed Caesar Young or Young killed himself."

He spoke in a soft tone, but with a clearness of enunciation that carried to every corner of the big room. He kept his face turned directly upon the jury and talked at each and every member of it. He never once looked the way of the prisoner from the time he began until he concluded with the words:

"Gentlemen of the jury, you may now retire to deliberate."

Mrs. Stockwell Burned to Death.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Dec. 23.—Mrs. Frank A. Stockwell, wife of a prominent citizen of this place, was burned to death last night in her home. Mrs. Stockwell had been reading during the early part of the evening in the dining room and about 9 o'clock left that room to go to the kitchen. It is presumed that she upset an oil lamp, igniting her clothing. It was not until the firemen burst into the house that the dead body of Mrs. Stockwell was found.

Verdict For Miss Warren.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23.—The jury in the Dolbeer estate case was out only fourteen minutes and rendered a verdict for Miss Warren. The appraised valuation of Miss Dolbeer's estate as made public is $931,000.

John Goodwin As Santa.

Christmas jollity and good cheer characterized the annual Sunday-school entertainment of the Rescue Mission last night. John Goodwin, as Santa Claus, distributed presents among the audience. Solos by Miss Ackerman and Herbert Manley were well rendered. Mrs. Manley was presented with a gift by the members of the church, and the pastor, Rev. Phil A. Porter, McKain, Goodwin, Albert, Stewart and Marsh.

Cough Mixture Nearly Fatal.

The thoughtless act of Mrs. Giovana, of 430 Watchung avenue, in giving her seven-months-old son an overdose of patent cough medicine, nearly resulted in the death of the child on Tuesday. Only the prompt action of Dr. Gesswein saved the child's life and he is now out of danger.

CHADWICK IS IN IT

Grand Jury at Cleveland Indict Husband and Wife.

CHARGE, FORGING FIVE MILLION NOTE

Dr. Chadwick, Now on Atlantic, Due In New York Wednesday Next, Will Be Held on His Arrival.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 23.—Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick and his wife, Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, were jointly indicted by the county grand jury yesterday afternoon on the charge of having forged and uttered a $5,000,000 note signed Andrew Carnegie.

Dr. Chadwick is now on his way to New York from Paris and is expected to land next Wednesday. As soon as the indictment was returned Sheriff Barry of this county made arrangements to secure Dr. Chadwick's extradition. He will meet the steamer on its arrival.

This is the third time that Mrs. Chadwick has been indicted by the county grand jury, but it is the first instance of her husband's name appearing in legal proceedings in the case. The indictments already returned against Mrs. Chadwick are similar to the present one except that they cover notes of $250,000 and $500,000 signed Andrew Carnegie.

Mrs. Chadwick was reclining on a couch before her cell in the jail when she was informed of the action of the grand jury. She appeared not the least concerned and asked only if there had been any one else indicted, mentioning the name of a person who has figured in the case to some extent. She declined to make any comment, saying: "It will do me no good to discuss my affairs in the newspapers. There has been so much misrepresentation that I have decided to do no further talking, and I am also acting on the advice of my attorney in this respect."

The grand jury has spent more than two weeks in its investigation of the Chadwick affair. It is understood that it was mainly on the testimony of President Beckwith of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O., which failed recently, that the jurors voted to indict Dr. Chadwick.

Rev. Dr. Snodgrass at P. H. S.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass spoke of the significance of Christmas at the Plainfield High School exercises this morning. He referred to the custom of gift giving.

Mrs. Vernon H. Waters, of this city, has been visiting relatives at her former home in Bound Brook.

James Keiderling, of this city, is visiting J. B. Young, of Raritan.

By an order of the Board of Directors of THE FAIR stores all of their stores and stocks must be disposed of on or before January 15, 1905.

IN order to realize something for our goods we are compelled to adopt desperate means to dispose of our stocks.

The lease of one of our New York branches expired, and the entire stock of Furs and Suits from that branch was shipped to our Plainfield store. Now if you attend our marvellous Dissolution Sale!

You will see a grand exhibition of FURS and SUITS. Our store looks more like a PALACE OF FASHION than an ordinary ladies' furnishing store. But when you look at the way the goods are marked you will say: "Why, the trimmings alone are worth more than the price they ask for the whole Suit, Coat, or Set of Furs." That is true enough, but we have no alternative for the stock must be sold regardless of what it may bring.

Our DISSOLUTION SALES caused the greatest sensation in the commercial history of New York, Elizabeth and Plainfield. This sale will be remembered and talked about for ages.

We also have a beautiful line of Ladies' Neckwear, Handkerchiefs and Umbrellas suitable for Christmas gifts. Listen to the spirit of economy urging you to attend our Dissolution Sale.

Young Carver is Now Going to School.

Because of his evident intention to attend to the matter and the near approach of the holidays, no action was taken in the case against Howard Carver for his son's truancy, when arraigned before Justice Mattison this morning.

Chairman Honeyman, of the Borough Board of Education's truancy board, informed the court that he had learned that Carver had tried to send the boy to school and that the fault really rested with the mother, and that the boy had been at school this week and he asked for an adjournment of the case for two weeks in order to see if he continued.

OFFERINGS FOR HOSPITAL

Many Church Collections at Christmas for Muhlenberg.

FOR FREE BEDS

Cost of One Endowment Per Annum $200—The Collections One Year Ago.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The finance committee of Muhlenberg Hospital desires to remind the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield that Sunday, December 25, is "Hospital Sunday," and that on that day a large number of the churches will make their usual yearly offering towards the support of Muhlenberg Hospital.

The work of the hospital increases steadily every year, the number of patients admitted from January 1 to December 15 this year was 465 against 376 admitted during the same period last year, an increase of 89 patients or over 23 per cent. At this rate of increase the work of the hospital will double in less than four years. The need of the new and larger plant has been fully demonstrated, and it is a cause of great thankfulness that the people of our city and borough have at their service a modern hospital, free from any mortgage indebtedness, which is so splendidly equipped to carry on this great work and to meet the growing demands upon it. Increased opportunities for service bring increased responsibilities, yet, because of the noble support given the hospital during the twenty-three years of its existence, the governors feel confident that the people of our city and borough will generously respond to the increased demands upon them for the maintenance of this charity.

The "Hospital Sunday" offerings last year were as follows: Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, $407.17; First Baptist church, $234 30; First Unitarian Society, $203; Grace Episcopal church, $200; Holy Cross Episcopal church, $89; First M. E. church, $48.72; Seventh-Day Baptist church, $43 40; Trinity Reformed church, $30; St. Joseph's church, $35; Congregational church, $19 58; Home Sunday-school, 16 64; Monroe Avenue M. E. church, $14 15; Hope chapel, $7.51; a total of $1,872.42.

Four of the churches, the Crescent Avenue, First Baptist, First Unitarian and Grace Episcopal, have each, as a result of their "Hospital Sunday" collections a year ago, supported a free bed during the current year. The cost of such endowment is $200, and entitles the donor to name the patient to occupy the bed for ten months of the year. It is hoped, not only that the said churches will decide to continue such endowment for 1905, but that other of the churches, one or more of our manufacturing industries, a number of wealthy citizens will endow beds for the coming year, and thus secure the privileges attaching thereto.

As stated, the work of the hospital this year shows an increase of more than 20 per cent. over last year. It will be very gratifying to the governors if the offerings from the churches this year shall amount in the aggregate to a sum of 20 per cent. larger than that received last year.

Muhlenberg Hospital is not sectarian, but receives all applicants irrespective of nationality or religious belief and no person has ever been refused admission because of inability to pay for treatment. As it serves all the people, it must look to all the people for its support.

FRENCH COURT FREES MASSE AND MORANNE

WERE CONVICTED OF PERJURY IN THE FAIR WILL CASE.

A cable from Paris today states that the Court of Criminal Appeals has reversed the lower court's decision condemning Masse and Moranne to three years' imprisonment for perjury in the Fair will case. The Appellate Court sustains the prisoners' plea that, as the Fair case was compromised without trial in the United States, their alleged false testimony was not used in the American courts, and therefore worked no injury.

Masse and Moranne were the bicyclists who were touring at the time of the automobile accident which resulted in the death of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair, of San Francisco. The men said they saw the Fairs thrown out, but other testimony showed that they were not there when the accident happened, but so represented in the hope of getting a free trip to America. They were brought to New York by Chandler & Rickman, the law firm retained by the Nelsons, of New Market.

MILITARY BILL'S DEFEAT DEPLORED BY GOVERNOR

MR. MURPHY POINTS OUT LOSS TO NEW JERSEY.

Adjutant General R. Heber Breintnall, in submitting his annual report to Gov. Murphy takes occasion to complain of the fate of the military bill of last winter which was so bitterly attacked in the House of Assembly by Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, and others, and so riddled that when it came to a vote it was completely routed.

The measure was to place the troops of New Jersey in line with the Dick law of the United States Government by which Federal aid is gotten for State troops. Its provisions to make the National Guard similar in equipment, armament and discipline to that of the regular army. The failure of the bill to pass at the sessions of the last Legislature was a great surprise to General Breintnall, and he takes occasion to say that a new code is being prepared for submission to the coming Legislature and he hopes that the measure will go through.

Complimenting the officers of the Guard, and stating that they serve the State well and often at a personal sacrifice, General Breintnall declares that many good officers drop out of the Guard owing to the continual expense of purchasing officers uniforms and he repeats his last year's recommendation that the State pay at least a portion of the cost of uniforms now paid entirely by officers.

General Breintnall concludes his report by paying a tribute to the pleasant relations existing between him and Governor Murphy.

Accompanying the report of Adjutant General Breintnall are the reports of the various departments of the National Guard and the State Naval Reserve.

Lieut. Colonel Charles W. Parker, Assistant Adjutant General, shows in his report on enrollment and drafting, that there are 5,154 line officers and enlisted men, and 44 staff officers in the active militia service of the State. As to the possibility of draft there are 473,032 able bodied men capable of doing military duty in the State.

Surgeon General J. D. McGill reports everything doing well in his department, and Inspector General Joseph W. Congdon declares that there has been a notable improvement in the morale of the State troops.

CLOSING UP THE YEAR

City Council Transacted Routine Matters Last Night.

NUMEROUS REPORTS

Commissioners of Assessment Resign to Avoid Technicalities—Final Session Next Friday.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company gave notice at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night, that the several new hydrants ordered by the city have been located. Townsend Rushmore, James F. Buckle and Robert A. Meeker, commissioners of assessment, offered their resignations and asked that the city accept the same immediately. This action is taken to avoid any technicalities that might arise by their continuing in office until next year. New commissioners will be appointed.

The Public Service Corporation gave notice that the light ordered for East Second street, near Washington, had been located. The bonds of Constables John Conroy and Peter V. Weaver were received and after approval will be filed. Street Commissioner Gavett reported that from November 28 to December 20, ten sewer permits were granted. It was reported by Corporation Counsel Marsh that the city tax deed had been recorded in the office of the county Registrar of Deeds and on Mr. Daniel's motion the papers were also filed with the City Clerk.

Regarding the claim of John Ross, through his counsel, C. J. McNabb, Esq., for $55, the cost of a pane of glass which he alleges was broken in his building corner of North and Watchung avenues by a city employe, Mr. Daniel said that the committee had been unable to find proof of the claim and he recommended that the bill be not paid and that the petitioner be notified to that effect.

Mr. Daniel offered a resolution calling for an appropriation of $75 to purchase a "strong box" which has been placed in the safe in the collector's office. This resolution was adopted as was also another providing for an appropriation of $33.88 to make certain alterations in plumbing in the city offices and one for $39.65 to paint the crematory, recently purchased by the city on DeKalb avenue. Still another resolution offered by Mr. Daniel provided for the city borrowing $4,000 in anticipation of the collection of taxes, the same to be transferred to the fire fund. In connection with this resolution another one offered by the same member resulted in the transfer of $4,000 from the general fund to the fire fund to meet certain extra expenses incurred during the year. These resolutions were adopted.

Frank DeW. Randolph, chairman of the police committee, stated that an American flag had been purchased at an expense of $20 and that under the supervision of the police it would be displayed every day on the city flag pole.

Mr. Gloak asked that the petition in the hands of the street committee which have not been reported upon, be referred to the street committee for 1905. This was done.

Mr. Murphy reported on the matter concerning the action of the Public Service Corporation in not allowing the city free gas after January 1, and stated that unofficially he had reasonable assurances from Mr. Cassebrook, agent for the corporation, that he free gas might be continued at the fire engine houses for the purpose of heating water for the firemen. Mr. Murphy also moved that the electric light petitioned for on Charlotte road, between Woodland and Belvidere avenues, be granted, and the other members concurred.

After the bills were paid and the petition of the Plainfield Water Supply Company was referred to the next Common Council, an adjournment was taken to Friday night, December 30, when the reports for the year will be presented.

In response to the petition of residents on East Front street in the vicinity of Watchung avenue, an arc light is to be located at that corner. This action was taken at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night on a motion offered by Mr. Murphy. The Public Service Corporation offered the light for $100 a year. The petition was granted. Mr. Murphy stated that the location of an arc light would do away with a number of incandescent lights in the vicinity of that corner, saving the city $63, thus making the arc light cost but $38 additional. The new arc light will be put in position within a few days.

—The Plainfield public schools will re-open Wednesday, January 4.

NO PARK FOR THE PRESENT

Special Committee Makes Adverse Report to Council.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Randolph Road Site Not Suitable—Advocates Permanent Park Commission.

The special Park committee, appointed by Mayor Olin L. Jenkins, in its report last night declared that the Randolph road site is not suitable, and further that it would be inadvisable at this time to make any purchase for the purpose. The report in full is as follows:

"To the Honorable The Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

"Gentlemen: The committee, consisting of certain members of the Council and other citizens, appointed for the purpose of considering the Mayor's suggestion of a public park, or of public parks, in the City of Plainfield, and to consider, in particular, the acquisition by the city of certain property in the neighborhood of Randolph road, concerning which certain statements and estimates were submitted, now report to your Honorable Body that they have quite fully and deliberately considered the whole subject; and, after giving due attention to the undoubted advantages which would be afforded to our citizens by a liberal public-park system, they have reached the following conclusions:

"First. Your committee are of the opinion that at the present time it is not wise to incur the expense attending the purchase and care of property or properties suitable for park purposes. They find that the only way in which a park scheme could be carried out liberally would be by making a considerable addition to the public indebtedness of the city; and this step they do not see the way to recommend at the present time.

"Second. In respect of the particular property in the neighborhood of Randolph road, your committee consider that it is not sufficiently well adapted to the purpose for which it was recommended; and, moreover, in case it were acquired for park purposes, as proposed, a very large sum would have to be expended upon it in order to develop and utilise it. It is conceded that it would be of great advantage to health and property in this neighborhood if the swamp lands could be drained and converted into a small park, and if the party, or parties, owning this land could be persuaded to donate it to the city, on condition that the city should do away with the swamp and lay out a public park within a reasonable time, the committee would commend such action to the serious consideration of the Common Council.

"Third. The Mayor-elect, who is a member of your committee, has brought to our attention the fact that in the Southwest portion of our boundaries the city owns approximately fifty acres of land that in the course of time could be more or less availed of for park purposes. Your committee would not favor any large expenditure at the present time on this street, but would respectfully suggest that, with an eye toward future improvement, it might now be well to expend some small sum—perhaps a few hundreds of dollars—in grading, enclosing and planting. Trees and shrubs of an interesting character at no great cost might be set out in a judicious way, and the basis laid for future improvements of a more important character. The small park on Eighth street, near Park avenue, might also be made more sightly by a little more attention and a trifling increase in the amount annually appropriated for its care.

"Fourth. Your committee also realise that in the long future the city may be able to afford and maintain parks at two or three points, and in different sections of the city. It appears to be a subject which should be considered, in various aspects, well in advance of any definite action to be taken. In adopting any positive policy, legal and financial conditions should be fully understood; the location of the park or parks should be well chosen; and any steps taken should have the general approval of citizens and tax-payers.

"With a view to all this, it might not be amiss that the city should have the benefit of a continuous committee in the character of a Park Commission to consider the general subject and to report on suitable occasions to the Mayor and Common Council. This commission should not, however, have power in any way to in-

A STUDENTS' REVOLT

Columbia Sophomores Up In Arms Against Faculty.

THREATEN TO QUIT IN A BODY.

Kingdon Gould Hazing Affair Causing a Big Rumpus in New York's Great University—Boys Want Mates Reinstated.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—A truce has been arranged between the faculty of Columbia university and the sophomore class, which resented the suspension of four of their number for participation in the Kingdon Gould hazing affair and which had threatened to quit the university in a body.

The student board, represented by the presidents of the various classes, both college and science, met Dean Hutton to discuss the suspension of the four sophomores. Their decision, which was announced, is that suspension will be left primarily in the hands of the student board.

The conditions under which this was arranged are:

First.—The student board will prohibit hazing in obnoxious form.

Second.—Freshmen will be under the surveillance of the sophomores.

Third.—Any case of the "freshness" of the underclassmen will be brought to the attention of the board, and they will serve notice on the student that his actions have aroused the animosity of the sophomores, and they will fix a penalty which he must pay.

Fourth.—There will be an underclass fight, and the winners will have the right to summon the officers of the defeated class to appear at their dinner.

This last is expected to do away with the capturing of freshmen by the second year men.

The student board of representatives was authorized to draw up a plan embodying these provisions, which is to be submitted to the students immediately after the Christmas vacation.

When the members of the sophomore class learned of the suspension of their classmates, Aigelthinger, Doty, Cauchois and Finch, until Feb. 6, 1905, the entire student body was aroused, and at the preliminary mass meeting President Browne of the college seniors had to caution the men present to keep cool and not to gossip about the suspension. He said that he hoped the faculty would grant the students' request and reinstate the men.

President Butler held a conference with Dean Hutton of the School of Applied Sciences, after which the suspensions were announced.

Immediately after their conference the student body held its protesting mass meeting in Earl hall. About 500 students attended and expressed their disapproval of the action of the faculty.

A petition was drawn up and signed by all the students present, many of the names being those of prominent athletes of the university. The petition read as follows:

"We, the undersigned, undergraduates in the university, do respectfully petition that the sophomores who have this day been suspended from the university be reinstated."

Conference of Virginia Republicans.

ROANOKE, Va., Dec. 24.—The leaders of the Republican party in Virginia were in conference all last night to outline a plan of action to place the party on a stronger and more aggressive footing throughout the state and to devise a more satisfactory method of making recommendations to the president for appointments for federal offices. Resolutions were adopted which agreed that Representative Slemp of the Ninth district be selected as general referee and that the president be requested to consult him in making appointments.

One Hundred and Fiftieth Voyage.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Captain C. Kaempff, in command of the Hamburg-American line steamer Deutschland, on the arrival of the steamer here last night completed his one hundred and fiftieth voyage across the Atlantic. Captain Kaempff's first trip was made in 1869 on board the bark Bazar. For a time he commanded the Japanese ship Tatsu. In 1879 he entered the service of the Hamburg-American line as fourth officer of the steamer Lessing.

Ball For Dr. Chadwick.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 24.—Arrangements are being made, it is understood, to secure bail for Dr. Leroy Chadwick, who with his wife, Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, has been indicted by the county grand jury, charged with forging and uttering a $5,000,000 note signed Andrew Carnegie, when he arrives here. Dr. Chadwick is now on his way to New York from Paris, and extradition papers are to be requested.

President Will Rest.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—President Roosevelt, so far as the exigencies of public business will permit, will rest thoroughly during the Christmas holidays. No engagements will be made next week except on matters of particular importance. The president expects to spend as little time as possible in his office.

Lackawanna Conductor Killed.

BATH, N. Y., Dec. 24.—Conductor Edward E. Surdan of a fast westbound freight on the Lackawanna railroad, fell between two cars just before his train reached Bath and was killed. Surdan was walking from the caboose to the engine room when the train broke apart and he fell under the wheels.

You cannot fully enjoy the holiday season unless you have an up-to-date hat or bonnet and at Burd's millinery store on East Front street, you will find the latest styles, best quality and lowest prices.

A brilliantly lighted store never fails to attract trade. Electricity is the best medium for lighting and W. H Pope, of North avenue, makes a specialty of electric wiring. He will furnish estimates gladly.

Henry Eggerding, the Park avenue cigar and tobacco dealer, has a large line of cigars in boxes that make an appropriate Christmas present for the men. They are always in good taste and are always welcomed.

Before concluding your Christmas shopping go to the Paris Cloak and Fur Store, and see what an appropriate gift you can get for your mother, sister or sweetheart. Mr. Fass never displayed a better stock of women's cloaks, suitings and furs.

For the convenience of patrons, I. H. Boehm's big department store will be kept open until late tonight and the holiday force of clerks will be greatly added to. The display of Christmas novelties is still large and there are hundreds of articles to select from.

Levy Brothers, of West Front street, are offering an unusual line of Christmas goods in every department. The person who cannot get a suitable present is too hard to please. Inspect the goods and you will be surprised to learn what you can get for a little money.

Manager Adelberg, of the People's Credit Company, in wishing patrons and friends the compliments of the season, begs to remind all that there is no better gift to be made than good serviceable wearing apparel. It conveys the spirit of the holiday occasion just as well as some ornamental trifle and is always useful. Bear this in mind when deciding what to give.

WASWIFT WON EASILY.

Yeager's Big Horse, Overlooked In Betting, Won at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 24.—Waswift, Yeager's big chestnut horse, showed some of his speed exhibited at Ascot last year when he hung up the track record of 1:39½ for the mile with 124 pounds up by winning the third race from Felipe Lugo and Kenilworth. Waswift was almost overlooked in the betting. He drifted from 5 to 1 to 8 to 1 in the books, while Kenilworth was played from 2 to 1 to 8 to 5. Waswift took command at the head of the stretch and won easily. Three favorites took first money. Summary:

First Race.—Andvari, first; Anona, second; Sinicado, third.

Second Race.—Happy Chappy, first; Hersain, second; Foxy Grandpa, third.

Third Race.—Waswift, first; Felipe Lugo, second; Kenilworth, third.

Fourth Race.—Descendo, first; Oxford, second; Sportsman, third.

Fifth Race.—Heather Honey, first; Akela, second; Eves G., third.

Sixth Race.—Rodolfo, first; Great Eastern, second; Jardin de Paris, third.

ST. JOHN, N. On the evening of the 13th, while the gale was at its height and the seas breaking over the ship and sweeping her decks, Thomas Kenshole, a deck boy, and A. White, a messroom steward, were swept overboard by a sea that broke over the bridge, where they were standing. Both of the men lost belonged in England. A seaman was hurled across the deck and had an arm broken.

Fate of Schooner Calderwood.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The fate of the little seventy-nine ton Sydney (C. B.) schooner Josie M. Calderwood, which sailed from Dalhousie, N. S., early in November, was first learned when news was received from Hamburg that the German steamer Barcelona had rescued the captain and four men composing the crew of the Calderwood on Nov. 27 and had taken them to Hamburg. The men are now on their way to New York. The schooner herself, waterlogged and helpless, was fired and was ablaze from water line to main truck when the Barcelona steamed away.

French Guillotined Natives.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 24.—H. M. S. Mutine, which has returned to Australia from a south sea cruise, reports that tribal wars were being carried on in the New Hebrides, and many natives were being killed, especially on the island of the Malakula. With the French warship Muerthe the Mutine investigated the "cutting out" of two trading vessels, and the natives who murdered part of the vessels' crews were guillotined by the French. Four natives were executed for the murder of Captain Penetos, master of a trading vessel, which they attacked.

Kaiser's Silver Wedding.

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—The cities of Schleswig-Holstein are arranging to purchase and present to Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria at their approaching silver wedding anniversary the house in Hamburg in which the empress spent a number of her childhood years. Prince Oscar, fifth son of the emperor, it is expected, will return to Germany in time for the wedding of his brother, Crown Prince Frederick William, the cruiser Hertha, on which he is serving in Asiatic waters, having been ordered home.

Australia and Germany Disagree.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 24.—Differences have arisen between the commonwealth of Australia and Germany with regard to the exclusive policy adopted by Germany in the south Pacific, according to advices received here. The question arose after the steamer Ysabella had been held by the Germans until a license of $2,250 per month was paid for trading in the Marshall group.

Sioux City Store Burned.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Dec. 24.—Pelletier's department store, a five story building, has been destroyed by a fire which broke out at 9 o'clock last night. The fire is spreading, and assistance has been asked from outside points. The loss so far is estimated at $70,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Governor Murphy of New Jersey has announced at Newark that he has appointed Vivian Lewis to succeed Governor Elect Stokes as clerk of the court of errors of the state.

THE JURY DISAGREED

Nan Patterson Murder Case Ends In Mistrial.

GIRL BROKE INTO A STORM OF TEARS

Jury Stood From First to Last Evenly Divided as to Verdict. Accused Girl May Be Freed on Bail.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Following a day of intense nervous strain Nan Patterson is in the Tombs, ill and perhaps on the verge of a nervous breakdown but with constant attendance.

The former "Florodora" girl, expecting acquittal at the hands of the jury which has listened to the evidence in her trial for the murder of Caesar Young last June, went into court to learn that the twelve men chosen to decide as to her innocence or guilt had been unable to reach an agreement—in fact, had divided evenly over the question as to whether or not she held the revolver which ended Young's life.

The jury stood 6 to 6—half for acquittal, the other for conviction. Although no official announcement was made further than this, courthouse talk had it that of the six deciding against Miss Patterson none was for conviction of murder in the first degree; that one held out for murder in the second degree, two for manslaughter in the first degree and three for manslaughter in the second degree.

Immediately the announcement of the verdict was made Miss Patterson broke into a fit of weeping, which continued even after she was led from the courtroom to a retiring chamber, where physicians were called and restoratives administered.

Then she was taken to the Tombs, but she again wept and moaned and became hysterical, and the efforts to quiet her of her aged father, the prison matron and attendants were futile.

The demonstration in the court after the announcement of the disagreement was somewhat remarkable, many pressing forward to express sympathy for the young woman.

Abraham Levy, chief counsel for Miss Patterson, remained with her an hour.

He was ill in bed when the court convened, but when he learned of the action of the jury he went to the jail to cheer his client.

"The girl is in a very bad mental condition," he said after he had left her. "She is almost constantly hysterical, but I don't think she will collapse. I hope I left her in a somewhat better frame of mind. I of course cannot tell what we will do for her yet. The counsel for the defense will have a consultation and will then do the best we can for her. If the retrial is not right away I am going to make a desperate effort to get bail for her. I will plead with Mr. Jerome to reduce the bail to $15,000, and I will be able, I think, to arrange for that amount and thus let her have her freedom while again awaiting the long nerve wrecking ordeal she will have to face."

Interest centered in what the district attorney will do in the case. District Attorney Jerome has not said what he will do, but it was intimated that the way the jury stood would influence him as to a new trial.

The jury took but one ballot, according to the foreman, and devoted the remainder of the time to discussion. From first to last the division was even. For twenty-four hours they discussed the evidence, and one juror is quoted last night as saying that one of those who stood for acquittal tried on the coat which Young wore at the time of his death and with a revolver attempted to demonstrate that suicide was possible.

The interest in the case was so intense that the crowds which had stood outside the court building all the morning pursued Foreman Harmer of the jury when he left the court after the final adjournment. He boarded a car, but men chased this to his business office, and mounted policemen were called upon to disperse the throng.

Abraham Levy last night issued a statement, in the course of which he said:

"From our understanding of the law applicable to it and a careful analysis of the material proofs, which could be regarded as having any legal or logical relation to the case, we felt confident that the trial would result in the girl's acquittal, and we are disappointed at the outcome.

"We are more convinced than ever that a verdict of 'guilty' never will be reached in the case. Whether or not there is to be a third trial is a matter largely resting in the official judgment of the district attorney, whose conclusion on that subject necessarily will be affected by his legal judgment as to the probability of conviction and his more purely official judgment whether or not the county should be subjected to the enormous expense which another trial of such a case entails."

After expressing his appreciation of the work of Judge Davis and reviewing the fact that there was no coroner's inquest and that the defense did not have the minutes of the grand jury which indicted Miss Patterson, Mr. Levy continued:

"The defendant is wholly without means. When counsel assumed the defense of her case it was with the understanding and in the expectation that the defendant would be sufficiently equipped with means, if not to properly compensate them, at least to meet the disbursements and actual expenses which were bound to arise. This she has never been able to do; so that during the progress of the trial we did not even have the stenographer's minutes of the testimony, but were obliged to depend upon our own notes as to proofs given through a trial spreading over three weeks.

"Probably the most important witness for the defense should have been Miss Blake, the telephone operator at the St. Paul hotel, who received the various messages which the deceased sent on that morning. But we were entirely without means to secure her attendance at the trial and only discovered her whereabouts in St. Louis while the trial was in progress.

"There were many other embarrassments from which the defendant suffered with regard to the nonappearance of witnesses which are well known to the public.

"We feel confident now that, in view of the wide publicity given to the case, other witnesses will come forward if necessary to corroborate the defendant's story in all its substantial details. We question, however, whether the district attorney will move for a third trial of this case."

Mother on Verge of Collapse.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Mrs. Patterson, mother of Nan Patterson, who has been on the verge of collapse since the jury retired, was somewhat revived by the news of the disagreement of the jury now that her daughter is not directly under the shadow of conviction. A brother of the actress said that the outcome was not what had been expected. He expressed his belief in her innocence.

Warrant For Mme. Syveton.

PARIS, Dec. 24.—A news agency says two warrants have been issued, but have not yet been served, in the Syveton case, one of them against Mme. Syveton, widow of the deputy. Although the officials do not confirm this report, it is believed that arrests are imminent. On Dec. 21 M. Syveton, father of the late deputy who was found dead from asphyxiation Dec. 8, made a formal complaint to the criminal court that his son was assassinated. The accused person was not specifically named, as the examining magistrate was to make a specific charge after an investigation of the complaint.

Negro Killed by Spring Gun.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 24.—Robert Dorsey, a negro, was shot and killed here by a mechanical contrivance while attempting to rob the chicken coop of Howard Brown in South Camden. Brown, who contrived the affair to catch chicken thieves who had been robbing his hennery, was held without bail to await the action of the coroner. Brown placed his old army musket in a corner of the coop and attached a wire to the trigger and to the door of the chicken house in such a manner that when the door was opened the gun would be discharged.

Ballot Box Tampered With.

DENVER, Dec. 24.—In defending Clarence J. Dick, an election clerk charged with contempt in having permitted illegal voting at the November election in violation of the supreme court's injunction, Attorney Philip Hornbein declared in open court that the ballot box must have been tampered with since the election. The expert's report had shown that there were eighty-one ballots in the box, which were folded in such manner as to show that they were not deposited singly in the usual manner through the opening in the box.

Bishop Phelan's Funeral.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 24.—Funeral services over the remains of Bishop Phelan of the Pittsburg diocese of the Roman Catholic church were marked with simplicity. Pontifical requiem mass was celebrated by Bishop Canevin, after which absolution was given by five bishops individually. The funeral procession then commenced the journey to St. Mary's cemetery. At the grave the services were brief and consisted of the ritual for the burial of a bishop and the blessing of the grave by Bishop Canevin.

Phillips Sentence Approved.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—On the recommendation of Secretary Taft the president approved the sentence of dismissal imposed by court martial in the case of Captain John W. L. Phillips of the Twenty-seventh infantry at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, convicted of duplication of pay accounts, financial irregularities and other violations of the army regulations. The officer was tried on nine charges, containing seventy-six specifications.

Stranger Did the Shooting.

RISING SUN, Ind., Dec. 24.—In the Gillespie murder trial here Mr. Griffith said the defense would show that immediately after the shot was fired a tall man, dark and stooped, was seen running from an alley and was seen to drive a buggy rapidly from the mouth of an alley near the Gillespie home and disappear down the street. Mr. Griffith intimated that the plea of the defense will be that the stranger did the shooting.

Eye Pierced by Hatpin.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Dec. 24.—In consequence of a remarkable accident Miss Jennie Fairbanks of Mansfield, a niece of Vice President Elect Fairbanks, was brought to a hospital here. While putting on her hat, with a hatpin in one hand, a friend accidentally jostled Miss Fairbanks' arm, as a result the pin was buried in Miss Fairbanks' eye. A strong effort will be made to save her sight.

Van Sant a Candidate.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 24.—Governor Van Sant in an interview here announced his formal entry into the senatorial campaign of Minnesota as a successor to Senator Clapp. He is quoted as saying that he had been abused and vilified by certain parties in the state and that he had just one more fight in view. He said he was going into the campaign to fight it out to the finish.

STOP BALTIC FLEET

Port Arthur Squadron to Support Kamimura.

PLAN TO DESTROY RUSSIAN ARMADA

Tokyo Claims Capture of Two Strong Positions Before Port Arthur, Thus Preventing Retreat to Liaothieshan Forts.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—A special dispatch from Tokyo says that in the event of Admiral Kamimura, who has gone south with a squadron of powerful cruisers, sending a wireless message of the approach of the Russian second Pacific squadron the whole Japanese fleet, which has been blockading Port Arthur, will proceed south and give battle to Rojestvensky's fleet.

A Mukden report says that volunteers during the night occupied Japanese trenches opposite their positions. Three trenches were evacuated by the Japanese with scarcely a fight. The victors were surprised to find a box lying in plain view, which they opened carefully, fearing that it might contain explosives, but they found in it wine, biscuits and sweets and a letter in Russian politely requesting its acceptance "from disturbing neighbors."

Advices from Tokyo say that the imperial war board has bulletined a dispatch from the third army, before Port Arthur, which announces that while the center column was attacking two of the intrenchments south of Shungshu mountains before dawn 1,400 volunteers of the right army surprised the enemy on a hill ninety-six meters high about one-half mile to the south of Two Hundred and Three Meter hill and after two hours' fighting occupied the position, capturing seven prisoners and one nine-centimeter gun.

The Russians attempted to dislodge the Japanese, but were repulsed. While this last fight was going on the extreme right of the Japanese attacked another hill still farther west and within rifle fire of White Wolf hill. After forty minutes' fighting this also was taken, and naval guns are now being mounted. The two positions are practically secure and will prevent the retreat of any Russian forces toward the Liaothieshan forts.

It is reported from St. Petersburg that Grand Duke Vladimir will be appointed president of the council of the empire, being succeeded as commander in chief of the imperial guard by Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that the daughter of Bishop Ornatsky, a very holy man of the Russian church, lately deceased, has sent to General Kuropatkin a rude wooden cross with a remarkable letter praying the blessing of heaven on the Russian arms. The cross is, of course, only one of thousands of ikons and sacred symbols that have been showered on the army in the far east. But the letter states that the cross is from Jerusalem and has been in the Ornatsky family for generations.

SPYING OUT JAPAN.

Russian Made Hazardous Trip In Enemy's Country as Percy Palmer.

MOSCOW, Dec. 24.—V. E. Crazuesky, correspondent of the Russky Slava, has just arrived at San Francisco after a long and hazardous trip through Japan, where he traveled as an American journalist under the name of Percy Palmer. He undertook the journey to ascertain the real situation of affairs in the enemy's country, taking the risk of discovery and execution as a spy. He had a complete American outfit and arranged to have letters forwarded from various cities in the United States. He has telegraphed to the Russky Slava from San Francisco that he visited Yokohama, Tokyo, Sasebo, Osaka, Kioto, Simonoseki, Nagasaki and Matsuyama; photographed the Russian prison camp, examined the hospitals, fortress and troops and met and entertained high Japanese.

Crazuesky is bringing home a mass of interesting material, which will make many interesting disclosures. He says his most dangerous moment was when he faced 3,000 Russian prisoners. If he had been recognized by one of them he would have received short shrift.

A Tale of War For Kaiser.

CONGREGATIONALISTS IN CHARMING CANTATA

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT SCORED DECIDED SUCCESS.

"The Charmed Garden," an attractive Christmas cantata, formed the leading feature in the annual entertainment of the Congregational church Sunday-school last night. The church was tastefully festooned in green garlands, and a huge Christmas tree added much to the general effect.

In the center of the platform was an imitation garden wall, composed of boxes of candy in the form of bricks. At the conclusion of the cantata three roses bloomed up from behind the wall, and at the wave of the fairy's wand turned into three maidens who distributed the candy bricks. These human roses were the Misses Hazel Morris, Emma VanAlstyne and Elizabeth Harper. Harold Miller took the part of the sand-man, while Gansie VanAlstye and Walter Pond were shepherds and Kathline Phillips fairy queen. The attendants were the Misses Nellie Steiner, Katherine Day, Amy Wynant, Marguerite Fisher.

In addition to the cantata, Miss Marie Murray, of Brooklyn, and Willard Wadsworth rendered a duet entitled "Calm Is the Night."

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The members of the Methodist Sunday-school and their friends enjoyed the school's Christmas exercises held last night in the church. The edifice, which was prettily trimmed with greens, was filled with a happy yuletide gathering, who had gathered to greet Santa Claus on his first visit to town this season. A pleasing programme of recitations, songs and carols was rendered while waiting for the guest of the evening to arrive and help distribute the many presents which were ready for young and old. every scholar receiving not only a present but a box of candy, oranges and other good things in the eatable line. The pastor, Rev. Warren P. Coen, came in for a substantial reminder of the happy event. Altogether the pleasant affair was one of the most successful the school has ever held.

ZADKIEL OF THE ALMANAC.

Richard James Morrison Was a Man of Brilliance in Service of England.

The original "Zadkiel," an Englishman, was an interesting person. His name was Richard James Morrison, whose father is described as "a gentleman pensioner under George III," while his grandfather had been a captain in the service of the East India company. Entering the royal navy the year after Trafalgar as a first volunteer, Morrison saw much boat service in the Adriatic, and afterward shared in "a brilliant and single-handed victory" gained by his ship "over a Franco-Neapolitan squadron." After having served as lieutenant and master, he entered the coast-guard in 1827, and for rescuing life from shipwreck in 1828 the Society for the Preservation of Life from Shipwreck—the parent of the present Royal National Lifeboat Institution—presented him with a medal, which he appears to have amply deserved, since he had to retire from the coastguard in 1829 through ill health induced by exposure on the occasion of this rescue. It was he who, in 1824, presented to the admiralty a plan subsequently adopted in principle for registering merchant seamen and engineers, to know that in 1827 he suggested another "for propelling ships of war in calm." For his plan (1835) to "provide an ample supply of seamen for the fleet without impressment" he received the thanks of the admiralty, Sir James Graham, then first lord, adopting his arguments in the house of commons and partly giving effect to them by adding 1,000 boys to the navy. Meanwhile "Zadkiel" had in 1831 brought out the "Herald of Astrology," which afterward became the "Astrological Almanac," and subsequently "Zadkiel's Almanac," whose enormous circulation brought him a competence.

ATMOSPHERE AS A PRISM.

Refracts the Sun's Rays and Produces the Peculiar Green Color Seen at Sunset.

A green ray at sunset is sufficiently well known to make unnecessary any mention of the beauty of the spectacle and the ordinary conditions of its observation. The ray may be seen on beautiful evenings on the seashore and elsewhere, although the intensity is variable in general, it is necessary that the state of the atmosphere be such that the horizon may be clearly distinguished as the solar disk sinks behind it. In explanation of the green ray recourse has been had to the theory of an optical illusion, due to the yellow-orange light of the sun, which at the moment of the disappearance of the last small portion of the sun becomes affected by the complementary color, green-blue. This has not been satisfactory, and it has been suggested, says a writer in La Nature, that the atmosphere acts as a prism, refracting the last luminous ray from the sun at the time of its disappearance and decomposing and spreading it out according to the succession of colors of the spectrum. The red, orange and yellow rays are the less deviated and are confused with the solar point of which they have the color, but the eye perceives clearly the green and blue rays while the indigo and violet, which are the most dispersed and the most luminous, cannot be seen.

FIND GOLD IN NEW ZEALAND

Quartz Bearing Rich Metal Is Found on Reef in Mokinini Locality.

News has been received from New Zealand of the discovery of a wonderfully rich gold reef in the Mokinini locality by a Yorkshire fireman, which information is verified by another Yorkshire man who is now living at West Port, New Zealand. The discovery was made, as discoveries often are, in a very singular manner. Winter, the fireman, having stooped at the edge of a creek to pick a piece of stone to throw at a bird, noticed that the stone was gold-bearing quartz. He at once returned to town, took out his miner's right, and, with his mate, pegged off claims on the ground, subsequently selling out his interest for £75,000. This is the biggest gold find ever made in New Zealand. Winter, who is now on his way home, is the son of a poor billposter at Shields, in Yorkshire, where his widowed mother is still living. The young man left his home three years ago, and had not been heard of since until a month ago, when he wrote from West Port. At that time he had evidently not made the discovery, as there is no reference in his letter to his amazingly good fortune.

CHIC CONCEITS.

Hats and Furbelows For Up to Date Femininity.

Cording as a trimming is a great deal used on these evening wraps, as also are tucked ruffles. Loose and full the wrap must be, and the favorite length is ten inches from the floor.

What "makes or breaks" a wrap of this kind is its style. It may be of the Dolly Varden, directoire or the severe tailor build, but a personal note there must be to give individuality to the whole.

On many of the large hats long ribbon strings are arranged at the back and under the chin. These ribbons when put on with studied carelessness and fastened coquettishly add an indescribable charm to a piquant face.

A pretty hat for morning wear is a high crowned round affair with a canotier brim trimmed with ruched shaded ribbons and wings.

Very smart is the improved style of toreador hat, turned up abruptly at the side with a bandeau and bird, the crown trimmed with only a thick satin ruche.

Charming frocks for little girls are of white linen, gathered full into a linen yoke embroidered in scarlet or pale blue. These gowns are caught far below the waist with wide white leather or suede belts, below which are a couple of embroidered frills, and the little full sleeves are likewise gathered into bands of embroidered linen. Other little frocks of scarlet linen are fashioned in the same manner, and the same material is used in the construction of the Russian blouses for boys, trimmed with a double row of pearl buttons down the front and completed by a wide white linen collar.

Quite the latest modistic wrinkle is to have a touch of blue somewhere in the toilet. Whether my lady has a blue rose in her hat, a fine line of blue about her collar and cuffs or a blue girdle or rosette on a pale gray or tan gown, the touch is there just the same.

A stunning hat is of black beaver of the lightest make, with rather a high crown and moderately broad brim. A long white feather passes around the crown and rests on the neck of the wearer. A large strass buckle under the brim lifts the hat slightly at one side in a very becoming line.

The cut shows a beautiful hat from Paris. It is created from black chiffon velvet. White ostrich feathers are arranged in coronet fashion about the crown, and a chou of white chantilly lace lifts the hat at one side.

DAINTY LINGERIE.

Frills and Froufrou Make a Dainty Muslin Petticoat.

The smart petticoat for all occasions is the white muslin one of long ago, but this dainty piece of lingerie must be handmade to be really swell.

The new muslin skirts are all cut circular and fit in an exquisite fashion about the hips. At the bottom they usually have a wide ruffle reaching to the knee, on which is applied the daintiest of hand work.

Very new is a muslin petticoat with its ruffles cut in points at the bottom and buttonhole stitched. Under the points is a ruffle of fine swiss embroidery or coarse lace. Above the buttonholing to the depth of half a foot are embroidered French dots.

Very lovely is a skirt of white muslin with a dust ruffle of muslin edged with cluny lace. On the umbrella upper flounce are insertions of the cluny, headed top and bottom with the tiniest hand run pin tucks.

Medallions of lace elaborately embroidered all round in a dainty design are inset in many of the deep ruffles of the new petticoats.

Charming is the skirt illustrated. It is of white muslin with a dust ruffle trimmed with inch wide valenciennes lace. The upper flounce is buttonholed at the edge with an elaborate scallop. Above this is a dainty floral design done in mercerized cotton. The ruffle is headed with beading, through which wash ribbon is run and tied at intervals in small bows.

Woman's Ways

The Philosophy of Clothes and the Art of Make Believe

"You can tell by the changes in woman's dress the changes in her attitude toward life. Did you ever notice the difference in dress between a married woman and a single one? The single one may be ever so pretty and her clothes ever so chic, but an indescribable change comes over her wardrobe after she becomes "Mrs." The air of assurance, of having "arrived," also imparts itself to her clothes. She may wear white, the simplest of white apparently, and yet it has a different look from the white of former days; it is a beribboned, beautifully corseted white without a sign of uncertainty about its lines."

Only yesterday I was looking over a magazine of the vintage of several years back, when woman's advance was the shrill, compelling battle cry shrieked through every page. There were many examples of the heights to which woman had raised herself from every rank in life. There were women this and women that. A woman had knocked down a tramp on one page and closed the left eye of another member of the stronger sex on the next page. There was even—heaven save the mark!—a woman butcher, and she was enjoying business when last heard from. Ah, yes, my friends, woman was doing great work in those days! Miss Bessie Somebody broke the record for long distance bicycling; picture of Miss Bessie, bones and all, clad in an ultra chic pair of bloomers and hobnailed shoes that would not have disgraced a coal heaver. Another fair exponent of new womanhood in the next paragraph had broken a collar bone and sprained both her wrists, not to speak of a tooth, doing some athletic stunt or other which "no woman had ever done before." Even the newspaper women caught the craze and did rare and desperate stunts for copy. Ah, how we have backslidden! And compare the costume of that day with that of the present. Compare the short, stocky skirt, made almost from horse blanket and as short as the law allowed, with the present idea of a walking skirt, all graceful fullness and tucks and soft material! How the woman's righters must gnash their teeth as they gaze upon this perfidious destroyer of woman's masculinity! And the shoes! But look at the shoes in order to make yourself comprehend the change in the female attitude! Never have so many French heels been worn, and this in place of the boys' footwear of when new womanhood was in flower. Can heroic athletic deeds be done on French heels? Can the bicycle be bestraddled in full, softly tucked skirts? No; the new woman that was is as extinct as the dodo, and who shall say the fashions do not stand as the sign of her downfall?"

"Bless them, then!" ejaculated the bachelor fervently.

"He doesn't love me any mo-o-o-re!" sobbed the fair Mrs. Newlywed.

"Well?" commented the married woman of several seasons.

"And, honestly, I don't think I love him any more!"

"Well, pretend, then," remarked the older woman.

And as the young bride raised her face from the tear stained handkerchief in wonder she went on: "Nine-tenths of the world, my dear, is make believe. There are more actresses than those who go on the stage. Act in real life, and if you act well you will receive your meed of applause. Pretend that you care, play that you love him, and he must do the same. You may not either of you be any happier, but it will make the outer life so much easier. If one gives up the game, the other must. If both give up, life is a wreck, and while life remains there is hope that it may yet be as it used to be. But no matter how you feel, my dear, pretend, just pretend; fool yourself, if necessary, but pretend that you care. That's the thoroughbred of it, and the thoroughbred always wins out in the long end."

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

"To hesitate is to die," it whispered. "Courage may save you."

Then a skeleton hand came out of the winding-sheet, pointing down at the square of bristling bayonets. The figure put its mouth to my ear.

"Jump!" it whispered, and the bare bones of the dead fingers stirred impatiently.

Some seconds of brief silence followed. I could hear them slowly dripping out of eternity in the tick of a watch near me. I felt the stare of many eyes invisible to me. A broad beam of bright light shot through the gloom, resting full upon my face. I started back upon the strong hands behind me. Then I felt my muscles tighten as I began to measure the fall and to wonder if I could clear the bayonets. I had no doubt I was to die shortly, and it mattered not to me how, bound as I was, so that it came soon. For a breath of silence my soul went up to the feet of God for help and hope. Then I bent my knees and leaped. I saw much as my body went rushing through the air— an empty grave, its heap of earth beside it, an island of light, walled with candles, in a sea of gloom, faces showing dimly in the edge of the darkness. "Thank God! I shall clear the bayonets," I thought, and struck heavily on a soft mat, covered over with green turf, a little beyond that bristling bed. I staggered backward, falling upon it. To my surprise, it bent beneath me. They were no bayonets, but only shells of painted paper. I got to my feet none the worse for jumping, and as dumfounded as ever a man could be. I stood on a lot of broken turf with which a wide floor had been overlaid. Boards and timbers were cut away, and the grave dug beneath them. I saw one face among others in the gloom beyond the candle rows—that of his lordship. He was coming up a little flight of stairs to where I stood. He moved the candles, making a small passage, and came up to me.

"You're a brave man," said he, in that low, careless tone of his.

"And you a coward," was my answer, for the sight of him had made me burn with anger.

"Don't commit yourself on a point like that," said he, quickly, "for, you know, we are not well acquainted. I like your pluck, and I offer you what is given to few here—an explanation."

He paused, lighting a cigarette. I stood looking at him. The cold politeness of manner with which he had taken my taunt, his perfect self-mastery, filled me with wonder. He was no callow youth, that man, whoever he might be. He was boring at the floor with the end of a limber cane as he continued to address me.

"Now, look here," he went on, with a little gesture of his left hand, between the fingers of which a cigarette was burning. "You are now in the temple of a patriotic society acting with no letters patent, but in the good cause of his Most Excellent Majesty King George III., to whom be health and happiness."

As he spoke the name he raised his hat, and a cheer came from all sides of us.

"It is gathered this night," he continued, "to avenge the death of Lord Ronley, a friend of his Majesty, and of many here present, and an honored member of this order. For his death you, and you alone, are responsible, and, we suspect, under circumstances of no credit to your sword. Many of our people have been cut off from their comrades and slain by cowardly stealth, have been led into ambush and cruelly cut to pieces by overwhelming number, have been shut in prison and done to death by starvation or by stabs of a knife there in your country. Not content with the weapons of a soldier, you have even resorted to the barbarity of the poison-wasp. Pardon me, but you Yankees do not seem to have any mercy or fairness for a foe. We shall give you better treatment. You shall not be killed like a rat in a trap. You shall have a chance for your life. Had you halted, had you been a coward, you would not have been worthy to fight in this arena. You would not have come where you are standing, and possibly even now your grave would have been filled. If you survive the ordeal that is to come, I hope it will prove an example to you of the honor that is due to bravery, of the fairness due a foe."

Many voices spoke the word "Amen" as he stopped, turning to beckon into the gloom about us. I was now quite over my confusion. I began to look about me and get my bearings. I could hear a stir in the crowd beyond the lights, and a murmur of voices. Reflecting lanterns from many pillars near by shot their rays upon me. I stood on a platform, some 30 feet square, in the middle of a large room. Its floor was on a level with the faces of the many who stood pressing to the row of lights. Here, I took it, I was to fight for my life. I was looking at the yawning grave in the corner of this arena, when four men ascended with swords and pistols. One of them removed the shackles, letting my hands free. I thanked him as he tossed them aside. I was thinking of D'ri, and, shading my eyes, looked off in the gloom to see if I could discover him. I called his name, but heard no answer. His lordship came over to me, bringing a new sword. He held the glittering blade before me, its hilt in his right hand, its point resting on the fingers of his left.

"It 's good," said he, quietly; "try it."

It was a beautiful weapon, its guard and pommel and quillons sparkling with wrought-silver, its grip of yellow leather laced with blue silk. The glow and the feel of it filled me with a joy I had not known since my father gave me the sword of my childhood. It drove the despair out of me, and I was a new man. I tried the blade, its point upon my toe. It was good metal and the grip fitted me.

"Well, how do you find it?" said he, impatiently.

"I am satisfied," was my reply.

He helped me take off my blouse and waistcoat, and then I rolled my sleeves to the elbow. The hum of voices had grown louder. I could hear men offering to bet and others bantering for odds.

"We 'll know soon," said a voice near me, "whether he could have killed Ronley in a fair fight."

I turned to look at those few in the arena. There were half a dozen of them now, surrounding my adversary, a man taller than the rest, with a heavy neck and brawny arms and shoulders. He had come out of the crowd unobserved by me. He also was stripped to the shirt, and had rolled up his sleeves, and was trying the steel. He had a red, bristling mustache and overhanging brows and a vulgar face—not that of a man who settles his quarrel with the sword. I judged a club or a dagger would have been better suited to his genius. But, among fighters, it is easy to be fooled by a face. In a moment the others had gone save his lordship and that portly bald-headed man I had heard him rebuke as "Sir Charles." My adversary met me at the center of the arena, where we shook hands. I could see, or thought I could, that he was entering upon a business new to him, for there was in his manner an indication of unsteady nerves.

"Gentlemen, are you ready?" said his lordship.

But there are reasons why the story of what came after should be none of my telling. I leave it to other and better eyes that were not looking between flashes of steel, as mine were. And then one has never a fair view of his fights.

CHAPTER XIV.

This is the story of Corporal Darius Olin, touching his adventure in the Temple of the Avengers, at some unknown place in upper Canada, on the night of August 12, 1813, and particularly the ordeals of the sword, the slide, and the bayonet to which Capt. Ramon Bell was subjected that night, as told to Adjutant Asarius Church, at Sackett's Harbor, N. Y.:

"Soon es I see whut wus up, I gin a powerful lift on thet air shackle-chain. I felt 'er give 'n' bust. A couple o' men clim' int' the seat front uv us, 'n' the hosses started hell bent. I sot up with my hands 'hind uv me 'n the wagin. I kep' 'em there tight 'n' stiff, es ef the iron wus holding' uv 'em. Could n't git no chance t' say nuthin' t' Ray. Hustled us upstairs, 'n' when we come in t' thet air big room they tuk him one way an' me 'nother.

"I did n't hev no idee where I wus. Felt 'em run a chain through my arms, careful, efter they sot me down. I sot still fer mebbe five minutes. Seemed so ev'rybody 'd gone out o' the place. Could n't hear nuthin' nowhere. I le' down the chain jest es ca-areful es I could, 'n' tuk off the blindfold. 'T was all dark; could n't see my hand afore me. Crep' 'long the floor. See 't was covered with sawdust. Tuk off m' boots, 'n' got up on m' feet, 'n' walked careful. Did n' dast holler t' Ray. Cal'lated when the squabble come I'd be ready t' dew business. All t' once I felt a slant 'n the floor. 'T was kind o' slip'ry, 'n' I begun 't slide. Feet went out from under me 'n' sot me down quick. Tried t' ketch holt o' suthin'. Could n't hang on; kep' goin' faster. Fust I knew I'd slid int' some kind uv a box. Let me down quicker 'n scat over thet air grease a little ways. I out with my tew hands 'n' bore ag'in' the sides o' th' box powerful 'n' stopped myself. Then I up with these here feet o' mine. See the top o' the box wa'n't much more 'n a foot above me. Tried t' crawl up ag'in. Could n't mek it. Dum thing slanted luk Tup's hill. Hung on awhile, cipherin' es hard es I knew how. Hearn suthin' go kerslap. Seem so the hull place trembled. Raised up my head, 'n' peeked over my stumick down the box. A bar o' light stuck in away down. Let myself go careful till I c'u'd see my nose in it. Then I got over on my shoulder 'n' braced on the sides o' the box, back 'g'in' one side 'n' knees 'g'in' t'other. See 't was a knot-hole where the light cum in, 'bout es big es a man's wrist. Peeked through, 'n' see a lot o' lights 'n' folks, 'n' hearn 'em talkin'. Ray he stud on a platform facin' a big, powerful-lookin' cuss. Hed their coats 'n' vests off, 'n' sleeves rolled up, 'n' swords ready. See there wus goin' t' be a fight. Hed t' snicker —wa'n' no way I c'u'd help it, fer, Judas Priest! I knew dum well they wa'n't a single one of them air Britishers c'u'd stan' 'fore 'im. Thet air mis'able spindlin' devil I tol' ye 'bout—feller et hed the women—he stud back o' Ray. Hed his hand up luk thet. 'Fight!' he says, 'n' they got 't work, 'n' the crowd begun t' jam up 'n' holler. The big feller he come et Ray es ef he wus goin' t' cut him in tew. Ray he tuk it easy 'n' rassled the sword of the big chap round 'n' round es ef it wus tied t' hisn. Fust I knew he med a quick lunge 'n' pricked 'im 'n the arm. Big chap was a leetle shy then. Did n't come up t' the scratch es smart 'n' sassy es he'd orter. Ray went efter 'im hammer 'n' tongs. Thet air long slim waist o' hisn swayed 'n' bent luk a stalk o' barley. He did luk joe-mightyful han'some—wish 't ye c'u'd 'a' seen 'im thet air night. Hair wus jest es shiny es gold 'n the light o' them candles. He 'd feint, an' t' other 'd dodge. Judas Priest! seemed so ez put the p'int o' the sword all over thet air big cuss. C'u'd 'a' killed 'im a dozen times, but I see he did n't want t' dew it. Kep' prickin' 'im ev'ry lunge 'n' druv 'im off the boards—tumbled 'im head over heels int' the crowd. Them air devils threw up their hats 'n' stomped 'n' hollered powerful, es ef 't were mighty fun t' see a man cut t' pieces. Wall, they tuk up another man, quicker 'n the fust, but he wa'n' nowhere near s' big 'n' cordy. Wa'n't only one crack o' the swords in thet air fight. Could n't hardly say Jack Robinson 'fore the cuss hed fell. Ray hurt him bad, I guess, for they hed t' pick 'im up 'n' carry 'im off luk a baby. Guess the boy see 't he hed a good many to lick, 'n' hed n't better waste no power a-foolin'. All t' once thet air low-lived, spindlin', mis'able devil he come t' the edge o' the platform 'n' helt up his hand. Soon 's they stopped yellin' he says: 'Gentlemen,' he says, 'sorry t' tell ye thet the man fer the next bout hes got away. We left him securely fastened up 'n the fust chamber. Have hed the building searched, but ain't able t' find him. He must hev gone down the slide. I am sorry to say we hev no more Yankees. If this man fights any more it will hev t' be a Britisher thet goes ag'in' 'im. Is there a volunteer?'

"Ray he runs up 'n' says suthin' right 'n his ear. Could n't hear whut 't wus. Did n' set well. T' other feller he flew mad, 'n' Ray he fetched 'im a cuff, luk thet, with the back uv his hand. Ye see, he did n' know he hed been a-fightin' Yankees, 'n' he did n' like the ideë. 'Gentlemen,' says he, 'I 'll fight anybody, but ef this chap ain't a coward, he 'll fight me himself.' T' other feller he off with his coat 'n' vest es quick es a flash 'n' picked up a sword. 'Fight, then, ye cub!' says he; an' they flew at each other hell bent fer 'lection. He wa'n' no fool with a sword, nuther, I can tell ye, thet air spindlin' cuss. I see Ray hed his han's full. But he wus jes es cool es a green cowcumber, eggzac'ly.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

Blow at Tobacco.

It was reserved for Eliza Mowry Bliven, a Connecticut reformer, to point out the real source of all the evils which afflict the human race. "If all lands for raising tobacco," she says in a letter to a Norwich paper, "were divided into homesteads, all money spent for tobacco were used to buy and build homes, all time wasted in using tobacco were employed in improving their homes, all laborers could have home comforts, clear heads, prosperity, health and happiness; no poverty, drunkenness nor crime. Single tax, socialism, prohibition do not reach the roots. Break your chains by abolishing tobacco, the demoralizing cause."

Admiral Rojestvensky.

Thirty years ago Admiral Rojestvensky was naval attache of the Russian embassy in London. By his many graces, and especially in waltzing, he turned the heads of all the marriageable girls of the English aristocracy. Whenever he led the cotillon his hostess was simply transported with joy. At an evening party not so very long ago a noble dame, who had been a lady in waiting to Queen Victoria, was heard to murmur the admiral's name, which she pronounced with perfect and even melodious ease. "Ah," she said, with a sigh, "I wanted to marry him."

THE DAY IN THE CHURCHES

Local Congregations Observe the Saviour's Nativity.

THE PROGRAMMES

Sunday-School Departments Sing Carols and Render Appropriate Exercises.

Christmas Day was one of gladness in the churches of Plainfield and North Plainfield, the congregations observing the nativity with programmes of sacred songs and appropriate services. Large attendances were everywhere apparent and the edifices were made still more in keeping with the occasion by the use of holly, greens and other decorations. The Sunday-school departments held separate exercises in the afternoon at which the members sang carols and recited.

In addition to the special musical service in the morning, and the regular Sunday-school session in the afternoon, the annual Sunday-school Christmas exercises at Trinity church Sunday evening made the celebration of Christ's nativity at that church an attractive and an interesting one. At the morning service the regular chorus choir was assisted in the rendition of several Christmas anthems by Arthur Smith, bass; W. C. Leek and T. R. VanZandt, tenors, while Kenneth Stuart accompanied on the violin. In the evening an orchestra furnished the music. The members of the orchestra were Kenneth Stuart, violin; Elmer Wheeler, flute; Miss Hazel Martin, piano; Mr. Gaston, violin; E. D. Young, cornet; Mr. Binninger, violin.

In accordance with the annual custom, the evening service was in charge of the Sunday-school, and the children celebrated the occasion by appropriate carols and recitations. Members of both the junior and primary departments took part in the interesting service. This was the programme of recitations and songs, which in addition to a number of Christmas carols, comprised the programme Sunday evening: Recitation, "Welcome to Christmas," Beatrice Tier; recitation, "Merry Christmas," Helen Leithenser; recitation, "The Christmas Child," Helen Woolley; song by primary department, "Little Child of Love;" recitation, "Little Stockings," Elsie Tier; exercise, "Christmas Stars," Ella VanArsdale, Nellie McAfee, Ella Porter, Margaret Hope, Madeline Blair and Helen Saffren; recitation, "Signs of Christmas," Ralph Martin; song by beginners' department, "Jesus is His Name;" recitation, "What I Can Do," Gretchen VanZandt; recitation, "Just For a Day.'," Milford McAfee; exercise, "The Infant Jesus," Mildred Breimer, Anna Vail, Lulu Trewin, Maud McAfee and Adelaide Cole; song by primary department, "The Christmas Tree;" song, "Alaska Christmas Candles," Harold Leach; solo, "While I Lay Asleeping," Helen Roberts. In addition to this programme, which was rendered by the primary departments, there was a song by the members of the junior department, and three recitations. Those who spoke were Ella Case, Gertrude Schlief and Gertrude Enander. The exercises by these departments were in charge of Mrs. J. M. Tier and Mrs. L. R. Scofield.

The church was artistically decorated for the occasion in red and green. Ropes of evergreen were festooned from the chandeliers through the entire length of the church, while palms and potted plants were banked on the platform. From the center of each chandelier was hung a red paper bell, which combined with other decorations in red, added to the color and brilliancy of the scene. Harry C. VanEmburgh was in charge of the decorations, assisted by a committee.

Exercises appropriate to the Christmas season characterized the regular session of the Sunday-school of the Congregational church Sunday afternoon. A special programme of Christmas carols was rendered by the scholars, and an address by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, added much to the interest of the exercises. Mr. Goodrich took for his subject the golden text: "His Name Shall Be Called Wonderful, Counselor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace." He took for his illustration a star which was set in a background of greens over the pulpit, likening the top point to Jesus and the other five to the tiles mentioned in the golden text. In addition to the anthems, Mr. Snubert rendered two 'cello selections, and ten children of the primary department gave an exercise entitled "The Christmas Story." There was a solo by J. H. Barnes.

The exercises at Hope chapel were in charge of Superintendent Henry C. Squires and Assistant Superintendent L. W. Travell. The singing was in charge of William N. Runyon and the following members of the school gave recitations: Ruth Kenny, Agnes McInnis, Mary Louden, Jessie Duncan, Jean Muir, Margaret Harris, Alice Rimmer, William Richmond, Ida Louden, Helen Rockfellow, Helen Taylor, Lydia Nelson, Arthur Dawe, Lillian Shirley, Mabel Hunter, Anna Warnock, Laura Dawe, Josie Snyder, Harriet Marsh, Helen Smith, Emma Edmonds, Charles Kregar, Eva Genera, Margaret Overland, Clara Weber, Daisy Cowley, Russel Cone, Grace Taylor, Marcus Bradford and Agnes Vetter. An address was given by Leander N. Lovell and a special collection was taken for the benefit of Indian missions. The chapel was appropriately decorated with Christmas greens.

At the Monroe Avenue church the decorations were elaborate, Christmas trees and roping being used with good effect. Superintendent Walter McGee was in charge and the following programme, in addition to the singing of carols, was rendered: Solos, Miss Mae Brower, Miss Avis Aldrich, Miss Weston and Otto Moore; recitations, Sadie Brower, Florence Brower, Mary Stafford, Marion Praed, of the junior department; Helen Davenport, Alfred Cornwall, Marion Harris, Harold Wyckoff, Minnie Ayers, of the primary department. In the kindergarten department an address of welcome was given by Alfred Martin and recitations were given by Marion Stine, Eloise Brown, Dorothy Theirs, Dorothy Manning, Margery Theirs and Lena Cornwall.

The feature of the programme at Warren chapel Sunday-school's exercises were four addresses given by Ernest R. Ackerman, Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. J. O. McKelvey and Superintendent F. H. Andrews on the following subjects: "Bethlehem," "The Mother of Christ," "The Babe" and "The Heavenly Host." Exercises were given by the primary department in charge of Mrs. Elizabeth Ulrich. At the morning and evening services Pastor McKelvey delivered Christmas sermons and special music was rendered which will be repeated next Sunday.

The Christmas celebration in St. Mary's church began with a mass in the convent at midnight, while others took place in the church hourly between 5:30 and 10:30 in the morning. The 5:30 and 10:30 masses were solemn high and were largely attended. Rev. Father Charles Boone, of Washington, D. C., former Plainfielder, was the celebrant at the 5:30 with Rev. Father Delehanty, deacon, and Father Frederici, sub-deacon. Father Delehanty celebrated at the 10:30 with Father Boone, deacon, and Father Frederici, sub-deacon. The Christmas sermon was preached by Rev. Father Egan and the decorations and music were enjoyable features.

A special midnight mass was observed by the members of St. Joseph's church, with Rev. Father Miller as celebrant. Others were held hourly from 5:30 until 10:30 during the morning. The special choir rendered a musical programme with Mrs. A. E. LaPorte at the organ.

"The Prince of Peace," a Christmas mission service, was the feature of the Christmas celebration at the First Presbyterian Sunday-school Sunday afternoon. Anthems appropriate to Christmas and several responsive readings comprised the programme, which was in full as follows: Responsive reading; invocation; hymn, "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear;" responsive reading; hymn, "Ring the Bells, the Christmas Bells;" The Apostles' Creed; hymn, "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun;" address by the pastor, Rev. Charles E. Herring; offering; prayer. Appropriate to the subject of the service Mr. Herring's address was on the topic "The Prince of Peace," and was a particularly interesting and instructive talk. Following the prayer, the foreign mission calendars were distributed, and in addition six books were presented to the library by Miss Josephine Petrie, a former member of the school, now a home missionary worker.

Special services held at the Mt. Olive Baptist church Sunday morning included Christmas selections by the choir under the leadership of Richard Randolph and Miss Hattie Mitchell, organist, and a sermon by the pastor, Rev. E. E. Jackson.

The services at the First Baptist church Sunday morning included a prelude, organ and violin, Howard Case and Miss Florence C. Wohlfert; anthem, "Break Forth Into Joy," Matthews, by the choir; invocation, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss; hymn, congregation; psalm, responsively; anthem, "Hark What Mean Those Holy Voices," Birch, by the choir; Scripture lesson; anthem, "The Night

EIGHTY BOYS GIVEN CHRISTMAS DINNER

Y. M. C. A. BOYS' DEPARTMENT PROVIDED REPAST FOR POOR BOYS.

Eighty poor boys, with eager, expectant faces sat down to a Christmas dinner at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday which was provided by the members of the boys' department. It was in every way a successful affair and one which contrary to other years, was conducted entirely by the boys' department independently of the Women's Auxiliary.

Under the direction of the boys' work committee, composed of O. S. Rogers, Dr. N. H. Probasco, Phillip Suffern, Lindsay Best and Dr. Charles Davis, the boys' cabinet, and a specially appointed committee provided a dinner which touched the right spot in the hearts of the young urchins. Those who waited and assisted in providing the dinner were Walter Caldwell, Russell Morris, Harold Robins, Stanley Robins, Arthur Humble, Stricker Hoagland, Fred Armstrong and William Nischwitz.

This was the menu which was served to eighty deserving boys, chosen by the Organized Aid Society: Soup, turkey, celery, vegetables, cranberries, bread and butter, ice cream, cake and coffee.

BISHOP SCARBOROUGH VISITS PLAINFIELD

CONFIRMATION AT ST. STEPHEN'S AND AT CHURCH OF THE HEAVENLY REST.

Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, Bishop of New Jersey, confirmed the largest class in the history of St. Stephen's church, at the Christmas services Sunday morning. The programme as published was rendered entire. The class comprised sixteen persons, one being detained at home by illness and the Bishop confirmed her there prior to the service. The principal service was at 11 o'clock when there was high celebration with holy communion. In addition to the sermon by the Bishop he also made an adddress to the confirmation class. There was also one baptism by the rector, Rev. Mr. Peck. The musical service was well rendered under the direction of Charles Suhr, organist, and the church was filled to overflowing with worshippers. It was one of the red letter days in the history of this parish and one long to be remembered.

The only other visitation made by Bishop Scarborough on Sunday was in the afternoon at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, where he confirmed a class.

Those who were confirmed by Bishop Scarborough were Miss Mary Ludgate, Frank Hullet, Margares Hullet, Agnes VanNorden and Charles Ludgate.

Despite the stormy weather there was a large attendance at the reception given the Bishop by Rev. Arthur Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church, at the rectory, in East Sixth street, Saturday night. The young men of the parish decorated the home of the rector with greens and wreaths.

Those who received with the Bishop were Rev. Arthur Peck and his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Peck; senior warden, Dr. Dupuy and Mrs. Dupuy and other women of the parish. Those who presided and assisted at the table in the dining room were Miss Edith Mattox, Miss Florence Mattox, Miss Mary Tygard, Miss Edith Lacey, Miss Helen Crook, Miss Helen Borrup, Miss Edith Bramble and Miss Myers.

It Was a Jolly Party.

An enjoyable family gathering on Christmas was that of A. L. Force and family at the home of his sister, Mrs. L. K. Prescott, of VanBuren street, Brooklyn, where gifts were exchanged and a bountiful Christmas dinner served. Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hardy as host and hostess made the visit a very pleasant and a long to be remembered one. Mr. Hardy, as an entertainer, is certainly "a rare old bird."

Chase Postponed.

Owing to the heavy snow drifts yesterday, the Christmas chase of the Watchung Hunt Club was necessarily postponed. The riders intend to hold a chase on Saturday, which promises to be largely attended.

BOROUGH POLICEMEN BATTLE WITH NEGROES

Marshals Flack and Klein Badly Cut and Stabbed in Early Morning Encounter.

FOUR PRISONERS TAKEN

CROWD IN ANGRY MOOD FOLLOWS THEM TO THE JAIL.

Trouble Narrowly Averted Yesterday When the Assailants Are Removed to Somerville—Victims Said to be Resting Easily.

Two policemen badly cut and slashed, a third suffering from kicks on the head and body and four colored men in the Somerville jail, is the aftermath of a battle which took place on Somerset street shortly before 1 o'clock Sunday morning between Chief George Weiss, Marshals Joseph Flack and Walter Smalley and Special Marshal J. William Klein on one side, and three partially intoxicated Plainfield negroes on the other. Klein is in Muhlenberg Hospital badly slashed about the face, arms and body. Flack is at his home on Codington avenue with an ugly stab wound in the back below the shoulder and Smalley was temporarily disabled by the beating he received. The condition of the first two was looked upon as serious all day Sunday but this morning they were reported as doing nicely and with excellent chances for recovery unless blood poisoning developed.

The colored men in custody are Whit Tunstall, twenty-three years old, of 662 South Second street, who has been employed at Regetti's brick yard at Dunellen; James Tems, twenty-five years old, of 214 Muhlenberg place, until one week ago employed as a molder at Pond's; Samuel Hunt, twenty-three years old, of 834 East Third street, a molder at Pond's and Thomas Henderson, a barber, of 214 Plainfield avenue. Henderson is being held as a witness as he had nothing to do with the battle in which the policemen were hurt, although he had been somewhat abusive previous to it. The trio was landed in jail after an immense crowd had followed them up Somerset street and yelled and hooted all the way. A conference held yesterday afternoon between Prosecutor Griggs and Mayor Newton B. Smalley resulted in papers being made out for their removal to Somerville, together with Henderon, who was captured on the city side of the brook by Patrolman Peter Hamilton as he was running away from the scene of the trouble.

Surrounded by a cordon of borough officials, the prisoners were taken up Somerset street, through Park and North avenues, to the Central station for the 3:31 train to Somerville. Continued reports that both Klein and Flack were dead had caused intense feeling against the negroes and by the time the group reached Front street, an immense throng was in the rear giving vents to shouts of "String them up," "lynch them" and similar cries. Chief Kiely was notified and he detailed several of his patrolmen to re-inforce the North Plainfield police, while he himself hurried to the station and cleared one part of the waiting room in which to hold the men until train time.

When the crowd reached the platform it had grown to nearly 1,000 men, women and children and tilts between whites and blacks were frequent. The prisoners were taken into the building and policemen were stationed at the doors with orders to allow no one to get in. When the train drew up, the pushing, yelling crowd was shoved back by patrolmen and the colored men were hustled to seats in a forward car. The yelling then became worse than ever and the excitement for the time being was at a high pitch.

The trouble which led to the fight began late on Christmas eve when gangs of white and colored men were roaming up Somerset street singing and yelling. The particular crowd was first noticed pounding on the door of Boice's Hotel, the place being closed, and Marshal Flack was given orders by Chief Weiss to drive them away. He did so but when the gang got a short distance away, they yelled back all manner of taunts at him and then hurried on toward the city line. At Somerset street and Craig place they encountered Smalley and transferred their yelling to him with the added challenge that "the policemen didn't live who could arrest them."

OSHKOSH VISITORS DUE HERE JAN. 20 AND 21

FUN MAKERS TO BE LET LOOSE IN PLAINFIELD.

Fifty students of Oshkosh lore are now hard at work preparing for their appearance on the nights of January 20 and 21 next. Rehearsals are being held three nights weekly and a splendid entertainment is promised. The many improvements which Charles J. Fisk has so kindly made to the Casino, preparatory to this event are now about completed. The stage has been thrown back twenty feet and widened considerably and it now offers about as much floor space as many of the New York theatres. This has necessitated entirely new stage setting and special scenery, for it can truely be said that the whole Oshkosh creation is practically original, embodying many novel ideas and songs. The seating capacity of the Casino has been somewhat changed and three new boxes have been placed on the Arlington avenue side.

So many requests have been made for tickets that it has been decided to place them on sale, and reserved seats may now be obtained at Armstrong's. The music, most of which is original, will be handled by nine pieces under the same director as last year.

"Oshkosh at Home" offers many chances for much fun, original music, songs and dances. It may be well to add full advantage has been taken of these opportunities. "Oshkosh" will be presented by entirely local amateur talent which, incidently, would be difficult to improve upon. It is safe to say a thoroughly good performance will be given and it is the intention to turn over whatever may be possible to local interests.

Captain Martin Won Turkey.

Captain Martin won the turkey at the competition rifle shoot given under the auspices of Company K at the armory Saturday night. His score was 47 out of a possible 50, and was the result of a hot competition between Martin, Littell and Vosseller. In the first shoot each made a 46, and in the final shoot to decide the winner, Captain Martin took a 47 and the other two kept their former score. The shoot was begun on Thursday, when Sergeant Littell's score of 44 was the highest. In all about twenty-five competed for the prize, and among that number many good scores were made. The shoot was in charge of George Apgar and was well conducted.

Offering for Faith Chapel.

The offering at the First Baptist church on Sunday was for Faith chapel, a statement in behalf of that mission being made at the morning service by C. W. McCutchen.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK INCREASES INTEREST RATE

DIRECTORS ANNOUNCE IT WILL BE FOUR PER CENT. AFTER JANUARY 1.

The directors of the First National Bank announced today that they have advanced the rate of interest on savings accounts from three to four per cent., the same to go into effect January 1. This is the largest rate paid by any banking institution in the city and equals that maintained by many of the large banking houses in New York.

Simultaneously with this announcement, the directors of the same bank declared a semi-annual dividend of four per cent. from the earnings of the past six months, payable to stockholders on and after January 3, 1905, making the eighty-first dividend. The bank has been enjoying a prosperous year and the increase in the interest rate has been the natural result.

CHRISTMAS RUSH AT POSTOFFICE BREAKS RECORD

LOCAL CARRIERS ACQUIT THEMSELVES CREDITABLY IN DELIVERIES.

The Christmas holiday rush at the postoffice was probably the greatest in its history, yet before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon every letter, as well as the thousands of packages and parcels of every description were delivered. At 8 o'clock yesterday morning the office looked like a big department store. Sleighs, as well as wagons of every description, were used by the carriers to deliver the mail matter and these were lined up on the Madison avenue side of the office awaiting turns. It practically took every carrier his prescribed eight hours to make one delivery yesterday and it was under difficulty that they made the rounds in the snow and slush.

Postmaster Bird is much gratified with the work of his staff and the carriers. Everyone worked faithfully throughout the rush and Mr. Bird says that he does not believe that the service in any office was better than that of Plainfield's.

Clerks Surprise Mr. Randolph.

As a mark of appreciation and esteem, the clerks at L. W. Randolph's pharmacy on West Front street, presented him with a beautiful lamp as a Christmas present. The presentation was made Saturday night at the close of the day's work, and Mr. Randolph heartily thanked each one for the useful gift.

CONSTABLES IN A WRANGLE

Argument Over Writ of Attachment Holds Up Trucks.

CASE COMPLICATED

Goods of Persian Wall Paper Co. Make Trouble for Officials, But Amuse a Crowd.

While Constables Peter Weaver and John Manley argued for three hours in front of the Persian Wall Paper Company Saturday afternoon over a five dollar writ of attachment, two moving vans stood out in the cold waiting for the word to start for Bloomfield with goods sold to Herman & Wise, of that city, by the local concern. Whenever the truckmen attempted to start at the word from Weaver, Manley put himself at the horses' heads and interferred with their progress. When finally William Newcorn, who represented the A. Schaffe Molding Company, of New York, advanced the sum of five dollars, the trucks were allowed to proceed and the large crowd which had gathered to view the dispute, dispersed.

Herman & Wise, of Bloomfield, recently purchased from Morris Viener the fire damaged goods of the Persian Wall Paper Company, but not until after a levy had been made by Constable Weaver for the Schaffe Molding Company, on an execution issued from Justice Huff's court. It was decided to wait until the levy was removed Saturdy, to settle the case. The trucks, two four-horse affairs, were sent out Saturday to deliver the goods to the purchasers, and when the amounts of the levies, which included $35 for Miss Lottie Hepner, an employe of the Wall Paper Company, and several other small amounts, were collected, there was still plenty of goods left in the store, and the trucks were at liberty to proceed to their destination.

At this stage of the game, Constable Manley arrived with a writ of attachment for the amount of five dollars and a few odd cents for Henry Wierenga. He insisted upon levying on the goods packed in the vans, and though he was assured that the amount on the store was valuable, he was immovable, and it was only when William Newcorn advanced the payment in cash that the constable was satisfied, and the vans started for Bloomfield. Francis J. Blair represented Miss Hepner in the case and William G. DeMesa was the attorney for Henry Wierenga.

AT THE HOSPITAL.

Patients Treated to a Christmas Tree and Entertainment.

The Christmas festivities at Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock were greatly enjoyed by the patients, as well as the large number of visitors and those who assisted in the programme. There was a Christmas tree in each ward, well filled with gifts. The choir from Grace P. E. church was present and under the direction of Mrs. Freeman, organist, sang carols. During the exercises, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie made short addresses. He first spoke in the women's ward and then in the men's ward. His remarks were brief.

The hospital was well remembered with good things, there being an abundance of fruit, vegetables, turkey, chickens and many other things. Those of the patients who were able to, enjoyed a Christmas dinner, and in other ways the day was made very pleasant for them.

Christmas Tree for Poor Children.

The Christmas tree and entertainment given by the Elks and the Organized Aid Society at Reform Hall Saturday afternoon was in every way a success and a source of pleasure to many poor children. Professor Henderson delighted the children with tricks and magic, and each was presented with a gift from the tree. The affair was in charge of a committee from the Organized Aid Society.

Walpole Loses $40.

When Lyman Walpole closed his hotel at Scotch Plains Saturday night he left a colored man asleep in the bar-room. Later he discovered that $40, which he had placed behind the bar, had disappeared, and the colored man could not be found. The man had been employed about the place for some time. Mr. Walpole suspects that the negro took the money.

CANOLE COUNTED OUT.

Willie Lewis Sent Fall River Man Down Four Times.

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 27.—Willie Lewis surprised all the fight followers of this city by the way he disposed of Canole. The latter did not have a chance with the New Yorker at any stage and was completely outclassed both in cleverness and punching ability. The men had just shaken hands and stepped back when Lewis jabbed Canole with his left and followed instantly with a right that sent Canole down for the count. He regained his feet only to go down again from that terrible right of Lewis.

The second round was a repetition of the first, Canole taking the count twice, and just before the bell Lewis knocked him through the ropes.

In the third round Lewis sent the Fall River man down twice. The fourth and fifth were easily Lewis'.

A minute after the ninth round started Lewis' right came over with crushing force on the point of Canole's jaw. He regained his feet at the count of nine, only to be sent down again, when he was slowly counted out.

Christmas Handicap to Claude.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—The Christmas handicap was the attraction at Oakland, and the crowd was one of the largest of the season. In the Christmas handicap, worth $3,470 to the winner, Claude got to the front at the stand, led all the way around and won with ease. Military Man was second, a length and a half back. Ten lengths behind came Ferguson's colt, Leila, one of the added starters. Divina, the other eleventh hour candidate, sulked all the way. Bombardier had speed, but tired. Gold Money was never prominent. The mile and a quarter was traversed in 2:08.

Ethylene Won Handicap.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 27.—The card at Ascot was a splendid one, the weather clear and the track fast. Ethylene clipped off one-half second in the big race of the day. Two favorites won. The Hollywood handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, with a gross value of $1,810, had seven starters. Ethylene set the pace from the start, with Fossil always a close second and Milton Young, Blissful and Chancellor a few lengths back. Ethylene, maintaining her lead throughout, finished a length ahead of Fossil. Tulane came fast in the stretch and finished third.

Brodigan Knocked Out at Salem.

SALEM, Mass., Dec. 27.—Jimmy Walsh of Boston knocked out Harry Brodigan of London after two minutes and thirty seconds of fighting at the Apollo Athletic club. The men met for a ten round bout, and for a couple of minutes they appeared on even terms. Then Walsh broke loose and after a few exchanges caught Brodigan on the jaw with a terrific right hander. The Englishman collapsed and was counted out.

Armstrong Knocked Out at Haverhill

HAVERHILL, Mass., Dec. 27.—Walter Johnson of Philadelphia knocked out Bob Armstrong of this city in the fourth round of a scheduled twelve round bout before the Haverhill Athletic club. Johnson claimed a foul in the fourth round and when the referee refused to allow it started to leave the ring. He was induced to stay, however, and soon after delivered the deciding blow, a stiff right hander.

Fought a Draw at Scituate.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 27.—Hugh Clancy of Pawtucket and "Emergency" Kelly of Boston fought fifteen fast rounds to a draw before the Brighton Athletic club of Scituate, R. I. Neither showed much punishment at the end of the battle in spite of the fact that the fight was a very aggressive one.

Ashley and McCloskey Fought Draw.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Dec. 27.—Guy Ashley of Fall River and "Blink" McCloskey of Philadelphia fought fifteen rounds to a draw before 400 spectators at the Gloucester Athletic club last night. In the last round McCloskey broke a tendon above the wrist of his right arm.

Racing at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 27.—Brooklyn, who scored in the fifth race, was the only winning favorite. Kickshaw and Luralighter fell in the fourth race, but neither horses nor riders were hurt.

Italian Editor Fell Dead.

MILFORD, Conn., Dec. 27.—Giovanni Lombardi of New Haven, editor of an Italian paper called Il Couriers del Connecticut, fell dead of heart disease yesterday while calling at the home of Frank Partigliani in this town. Some years ago Partigliani, whose wife had just died, allowed Lombardi the custody of his young daughter. The child remained with Lombardi until the Milford man married again, and it was while Lombardi was pleading for the custody of the child again that he was stricken.

Help For Textile Strikers.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 27.—Every effort was made by the Salvation Army, the associated charities and benevolent societies in and outside of the city to give the families of the striking cotton mill employees of this city a joyous Christmas. Tons of food, warm clothing and goodies were distributed, yet last night the Salvation Army leaders said that there was much actual suffering in the city, which they could not relieve.

ARE ON THE WARPATH

Pulajanes, In Samar, Killed Corbin's Scouts.

FOUR HUNDRED ATTACKED TWENTY

Town of Dolores Threatened by Thousands of Filipino Rebels—All East Coast Stations Are Heavily Re-enforced.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Secretary of War Taft has received a cable message from Governor Wright at Manila in response to his inquiry in regard to recent uprisings of the Pulajanes at Dolores, Samar. Governor Wright's message is as follows:

"With reference to your telegram I regret to say that General Corbin's report of attack on and loss of detachments of scouts at Oras and Dolores is correct. Pulajanes have of late left the west and north sides of Samar and become active on the east coast, which is practically without a harbor and very difficult of access during the prevalence of the existing monsoon.

"Orders were given some time since to strengthen all detachments on the east coast, but unfortunately this was delayed by the wreck and loss of a coast guard boat carrying a hundred or more of the constabulary.

"The men were saved, but the delay in sending another coast guard boat to the rescue resulted in leaving these small detachments at Oras and Dolores isolated and the consequent loss.

"All the east coast stations have been heavily re-enforced, and we are still sending men in by my direction. General Allen, chief of constabulary, left Manila two weeks since to take personal charge of affairs in Samar.

"I am still further re-enforcing him with constabulary and am consulting with General Corbin, who if necessary will aid us with troops."

General Corbin's report of the uprising is as follows:

"The Pulajanes are on the warpath in Samar in considerable numbers, as may be judged from the following:

"About 400 Pulajanes and several hundred volunteers joined in an attack on a detachment of twenty Philippine scouts at Oras, Samar. Killed, one hospital corps man; wounded, twelve Philippine scouts; missing, five, said to have been boloed while in the river. All badly mutilated.

"Second Lieutenant Stephen K. Hayt and thirty-seven enlisted men, Thirty-eighth company, Philippine scouts, killed by Pulajanes at Dolores, Samar. First Lieutenant George A. Abbott requests help from military authorities. Town threatened by thousands of Pulajanes."

HIT A HOG TRAIN.

Wreck of "Governor's Express" Near Smith's Crossing.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 27.—The Boston and Albany passenger train known as the "governor's express," leaving this city, eastbound, at 9:10 a. m., was wrecked near Smith's Crossing, between Springfield and Westfield, about 9 o'clock in the morning by colliding with the rear end of a hog train, which was running ahead of it and which had stopped to remedy a breakdown to the engine.

The engine of the passenger train went down a steep embankment, overturned and was demolished, carrying Engineer Merritt and Fireman Wheeler with it, the former crawling from the wrecked cab badly injured. His legs were badly scalded, he received bad scalp wounds, and internal injuries are feared. He was taken to Mercy hospital in this city, where it is believed he will recover.

Fireman Wheeler was not much hurt, although buried by the coal of the tender, in which he was shoveling at the time of the collision. None of the passengers was seriously injured, though some were badly shaken up and many received bad injuries.

The caboose and two cars of the hog train were demolished, and many hogs were killed, some being roasted in the wreckage, which took fire. Many others were liberated by the crash and took to the woods. Some injured animals dragged themselves about until killed by nearby farmers.

Colonel Warren's Home Burned.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 27.—The handsome residence of Colonel and Mrs. Tracy B. Warren on Seaview avenue, facing Long Island sound, has been burned here, a candle which was a part of the decoration of a Christmas tree starting the blaze. Colonel and Mrs. Warren were entertaining a party of children at the time. All the persons in the house got out safely, but in her anxiety for the children Mrs. Warren neglected to take with her some valuable jewels. Practically all the contents of the house were consumed. The total loss is estimated at $12,000, partly insured.

Wall Street Broker a Suicide.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—George S. Evans, a Wall street broker and until two months ago secretary of the American Fuel company, has been found dead in a Jersey City hotel with a bullet hole in his right temple. A note addressed to the hotel proprietor asked that his wife, who resides in Bloomfield, N. J., be notified. Evans is said to have recently undergone financial reverses, and these are believed to have made the broker despondent.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Dec. 27.—Weyland H. Austin of Waltham, a railway mail clerk, was instantly killed near here through his head striking an iron bridge while looking out of the open door of his mail car. Austin was forty-five years of age and leaves a widow and son in Waltham.

SHOOK THE COUNTRY

Acadia Powder Mill Exploded Near Halifax.

BROKE WINDOWS MILES AWAY.

Ton of Powder Exploded, Breaking All the Glass In Town of Waverley. Twenty Employees Stunned. Loss, $25,000.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 27.—A portion of the Acadia Powder company's works at Waverly, ten miles from this city, blew up yesterday, and the concussion shook the country and broke windows for twenty miles around. Fortunately no one was killed or even seriously injured, although about twenty of the employees, who had scarcely left the building, which was demolished, were thrown violently to the ground and stunned.

The plant is situated a mile outside of Waverly. Yet every window in the town was broken, and many people on the streets were cut by the shower of broken glass. The property loss at the Acadia works was estimated at $25,000.

The explosion occurred at 10:30 o'clock in the morning in a small building known as the dryhouse, in which about a ton of powder was stored, and is believed to have been due to overheating, although President T. R. Gue of the company stated that shortly before the accident the thermometer registered only 150 degrees.

About twenty of the men, one-fifth of the ordinary force employed at the works, had just left one of the buildings and were rods off when the dryhouse blew up. The concussion threw them violently to the ground, demolished half a dozen other buildings close by the dryhouse, but did not explode the powder in the magazine, although that building was partially wrecked. A hole several feet deep was blown in the ground.

The men regained consciousness after a few seconds and, expecting other explosions, ran off to a safe distance. About a quarter of a mile off was the house of Robert Layton, the manager of the plant, and this was very badly damaged. All the windows were blown out, while the plaster in nearly every room was shaken down. Miss Margaret Layton, who was sitting in a room on the second floor, was hurled from her chair and rendered unconscious, but recovered later.

In Waverly windows were broken, and the glass falling outward, as is usual in explosions, was showered upon passing citizens, and many received small cuts. People in that town rushed from their houses fearing that other explosions would follow and that the town would be wrecked, and it was some time before they were reassured.

The effect of the explosion in this city was quite marked, and for a time it was thought that an earthquake had taken place. Later came the word from Waverley of the exact cause.

The shock was severe enough in this city to break many large plate glass windows in the business section and throw open locked doors. At one of the houses of the fire department the large front doors were burst open and partially damaged. In many houses articles were thrown to the floor from tables and shelves, and in some instances furniture was broken.

Similar reports were received from Bedford, three miles from the powder plant, and from Renfrew, Oldham and other small towns situated up the valley toward the scene of the explosion.

It was feared that some of the employees had been killed, but later in the day all were accounted for, and so far as known there was no one else about the works or in the immediate vicinity at the time.

Had the explosion occurred on an ordinary working day many would undoubtedly have been killed.

CHRISTMAS AT HANCEVILLE.

Volley Fired Into Negro Congregation at Stout's Mountain.

HANCEVILLE, Ala., Dec. 27.—While a negro congregation was holding a Christmas celebration in a church at Stout's Mountain, a mining camp here, a volley of shots was fired into the church from the outside.

The Rev. Clay, the pastor, was shot through the hips and will die. Two other men were probably wounded. The other negroes hurried out of the building and ran in every direction.

Later the dead body of Henry Jett, a white miner, was found near the church with a revolver lying near by. It is supposed he was accidentally killed by one of his companions. John Jett, a brother of the dead man, and Ted Blackwell, both white miners, have been arrested in connection with the affair.

RUSSIAN REFORMS.

Emperor Nicholas Still Clings to Rule of Autocrats.

GRANTS SOME MEASURES OF FREEDOM

Trubetskoi Declared That Zemstvos Had Firm Confidence In Their Ruler and Hoped For Early Parliamentary Representation.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 27.—Emperor Nicholas' long expected reform ukase was issued last night. The document deals, under eight heads, with practically all the subjects brought to the emperor's attention by the memorial of the congress of zemstvos presidents and, while not especially pledging the government to carry out the various reforms in their entirety, as demanded by the memorial, promises that each shall be referred to the council of ministers, with orders to report promptly on the fullest measures of relief which can be accorded on the various subjects.

One question not touched by the ukase is that of the constitutional assembly. Neither is the Jewish religion specifically mentioned, though freedom for all creeds or sects, whether Christian or otherwise, is among the subjects which will be dealt with.

The various subjects will be referred to committees for early report.

The zemstvo congress of the Moscow government opened at the ancient capital yesterday. Prince Trubetskoi, the president, in his opening address dwelt upon the serious condition of Russia and the regrettable war with Japan, the end of which could not be anticipated in the near future, as well as the grave economical crisis through which the country is passing, and the internal disorganization of the empire. All this, he said, lay as a heavy yoke on the Russian people and produced the condition of strong nervous excitement under which it labored.

Prince Trubetzkoi then proposed the adoption and forwarding to Emperor Nicholas of a resolution announcing that to commemorate the birth of the czarowitch the zemstvo had set aside the capital sum of $150,000 to be devoted to the construction of new school buildings and that the emperor should be asked to name the new foundation after his son Alexis.

Continuing, Prince Trubetzkoi declared that Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky's assurance of confidence in the people had given the zemstvo new power to serve the state. The zemstvos had firm confidence in the emperor. They believed the happy day was nigh when through the imperial will the present bureaucratic regime, which had estranged the supreme power from the people, would be changed; the day on which the emperor would summon freely elected representatives of the people to participate in legislation, through whose cooperation the imperial power and greatness of the throne would be strengthened and the triumphant development of the fatherland assured. That development, Prince Trubetzkoi said, was dependent upon the immutability of the principles of the law, the inviolability of persons and equality of rights for all citizens as well as freedom of speech and faith, which would bring with them a strengthening of the close and strong ties between the throne and the people and enable them to co-operate for the good of the fatherland.

CHRISTMAS BOX FOR JAPAN.

General Nogi's Forces Capture More Advanced Positions.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Advices from Tokyo say that General Nogi has sent a great Christmas present to the people of Japan, and there is great rejoicing. The first bulletin from the Japanese commander was as follows:

"At 2:55 o'clock in the morning we captured all the enemy's advanced positions on the west of Port Arthur, and our right army now dominates five miles of these fortifications."

Two further bulletins showed the great extent of the Japanese victory, following two days of incessant fighting for possession of the line of fortified works in and about White Wolf hill. The eminence known as Honsanyentao was the key to these defenses and was captured after desperate fighting before dawn.

American Attaches For Home.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 27.—Lieutenant Colonel Walter S. Schuyler and Captain Carl Reichmann, the United States military attaches with General Kuropatkin's army, have arrived here, making the journey from Mukden to St. Petersburg in twenty-four days. After completing their formal calls they will leave immediately for Washington. Both officers have personally seen much fighting, having been present at the battles of Vafangow, Liaoyang and Shakhe. They expressed satisfaction with the treatment accorded them, but as they left the front under pledge not to reveal anything they had seen they consider it would be improper to discuss the military situation.

Song of Bethlehem," Dudley Buck, by the choir; Scripture lesson; prayer, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss; sentence, "Holy Night," Barnby, by the choir; sermon by the pastor; offertory, "Immanuel," Thayer, by the choir; hymn, choir and congregation; benediction, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes; organ postlude, "Toccata," Bach. The church was decorated with greens and flowers with a large illuminated star over the organ.

The Sunday school service in the afternoon at the First Baptist church was in accordance with the programme previously published. There were extra voices in the choir and the solo work was by Miss Luella O. Harris, soprano; Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto; George W. Smith, tenor; William Holmes, baritone. There was no evening service at this church.

Special selections by the quartette choir at the First M. E. church Sunday morning included "Zion Awake," and four selections from "The First Christmas," by Barnby. In the evening "Rejoice in the Lord," by Hollins, and "O, Little Town of Bethlehem," by Nivin, were rendered. The choir comprised Mrs. Thomas Mac Donald, soprano; Mrs. Wentworth, contralto; Charles L. Lewis, bass, and H. D Harrison, tenor. Miss Utter was at the organ. At both services the pastor, Rev. Dr. W. O. Snodgrass, delivered appropriate sermons. The pulpit platform was attractively decorated with greens and potted plants.

It was planned to have the Sunday-school exercises at Mt. Olive Baptist church in the evening, but on account of the storm this programme was postponed to Thursday night, when the annual festival will be held. Pastor Jackson preached in the evening on the "Significance of Christmas Day."

Christmas was celebrated at the Holy Cross church Sunday morning and evening by special music by the regular church choir. The music was in charge of J. Edmund Skiff, the organist and choirmaster.

"The Divine Mission of Childhood" was the subject of Rev. A. C. Nickerson's address at the morning service at All Souls' church Sunday. In the afternoon appropriate services were held at which time carols and anthems were sung, and the Christmas story was taught to the Sunday-school.

A special chorus choir of mixed voices was the Christmas attraction at the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday afternoon. A Christmas programme was rendered in a pleasing manner to a large audience. Frank MacDonald, of Chester, Pa., was the speaker of the afternoon, and his address on an appropriate topic was an interesting one.

Rev. G. M. Shost, of Scotch Plains, formerly pastor of the Baptist church there, filled the pulpit at the Rescue Mission, Sunday morning, and conducted the special services appropriate to the Christmas season.

In the afternoon in the Vincent chapel the First M. E. church Sunday-school held special services, including the singing of carols by the main school and primary department. James R. Joy, superintendent, was in charge.

Early Christmas services were held at the Swedish Pilgrim church Sunday morning at 5:45, there being a large attendance of members of the church and congregation. The edifice was beautified with greens and a Christmas tree. Several special selections were rendered by the choir. The sermon on "The Birth of Christ," was delivered by the pastor, Rev. L. T. Lindholm. During the rest of the day the regular services were held as usual.

The services at Faith chapel Sunday morning and evening were appropriate to Christmastide and included some special anthems by the choir under the direction of William A. Conger, organist. Two interesting sermons were preached by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson. There were no services at the chapel in the afternoon, the Sunday-school uniting with the First Baptist church school in a special service.

Special Christmas services were held at the Calvary Baptist church Sunday night, with a sermon by the pastor, Rev. Scott Wallace. The offering was given to the pastor's step-son, George H. Jones, who has been partially blind for two years.

Christmas carols and appropriate exercises characterized the Sunday-school celebration at the Park Avenue Baptist church. Singing was the main feature, several anthems being well rendered. All were accompanied by an orchestra led by G. W. V. Moy. Those who took part were Mary Hale, G. E. Hall, Arline Brown, while an addition there were two elaborate exercises and seven carols. The committee in charge of the exercises consisted of Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Miss Elmira Runyon, Miss Mary Clark, Miss F. G. Hawkins, Joseph M. Hawkins, Aaron Thompson, Jr., and G. E. Hall.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Under the chapironage of Mother Goose, the members of the Scotch Plains Baptist Sunday-school and their friends indulged in a visit to Santa Claus Saturday night, by way of a Christmas treat. The merry party was one of the happiest that has ever left town, for it not only included the school and Mother Goose, but all the other quaint characters of nursery legend, which have been handed down to the younger generation for ages past. The start was scheduled to be made at 7:30, but while necessary preparations were being made for the trip, a pleasing programme of carols, two solos by little Miss Allen, of Westfield, and an address by the pastor-elect, Rev. Thomas Moore Smith, was enjoyed.

In honor of the event the church was prettily trimmed in holiday attire, festoons of greens intermingled with red crepe and ribbons being everywhere in evidence. Shortly after 8 o'clock Mother Goose, accompanied by Little Boy Blue, arrived, announced that the journey would begin. Soon all were on their way North to visit the land of mystery. Nearly a two hours' journey, during which many amusing incidents occurred to break the monotony of the trip, the destination was reached. Mrs. Santa Claus welcomed the party, but said she thought it would be impossible for the "old fellow" to receive them on account of urgent business engagements, one of them being an engagement to be at Scotch Plains that night. Mother Goose's card though soon proved to be the open sesame for admittance to his royal presence and a grand welcome was given them.

After enjoying a short visit together, the merry party, bidding goodbye to Mrs. Santa Claus, and accompanied by "Santa," returned to town where the festivities were continued as the "old fellow's" pack was overflowing with presents for both young and old. As soon as possible he was on his way again, taking with him the best wishes of all for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

While praise is due all who took part in the cantata and helped make it the success it was, much credit is due Mrs. Charles R. Vincent, who had been untiring in her work of drilling the children in their various parts. Others who took principal parts and acquitted themselves well were: "Mother Goose," Miss Mary Westcott; "Old Woman who lived in a Shoe," Mrs. George L. Dunn; "Old King Cole," Benjamin Allen; "Old Woman in Basket," Miss Mary Hayes; "Peter Peter Pumpkin Eater," Charles R. Vincent; "Mother Hubbard," Miss Marion Todd; "Mamie Ettiocat," Mrs. Grace Thompson; "North Wind," John Lynn Thompson; "Jack Horner," John Todd; "Tom Tom the Piper's Son," Emil Kramer; "Boy Blue," Charles R. Vincent, Jr.; "Lazy Tom," Depierre Beekon; "Bambin Cross," Miss Elsie Cook; "Dr. Foster," H. L. Gilmour; "Little Bo Peep," Dorothy Hoar; "Little Bird that Tells," Dorothy Beekon; "Mrs. Santa Claus," Miss Etta Cook; "Santa Claus," H. L. Gilmour.

The many others who took part did well but lack of space will not permit us to dwell further upon the trip, which, while an innovation at the 'Plains, was a success in every way and something similar will no doubt be given again when Christmas rolls around next year.

The Industrial School held its first Christmas celebration Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in Meyers' Hall. The scholars of the school all received presents, as well as an abundance of candy and oranges. During the afternoon games were played and the children all voted the school's first Christmas entertainment a huge success.

The Christmas shoot of the Brook side Gun Club, held yesterday afternoon on the club's grounds near Green brook, was well attended by the club members and trap shooters from out of town. The hazy weather made good scores scarce but the sport was enjoyed nevertheless, especially the match for the club's championship, which went to Edward L. Hand, who killed 23 out of 30.

Christmas exercises of All Saints' Episcopal Sunday-school were held yesterday afternoonat 5 o'clock in the church. The Sunday-school room was prettily trimmed with greens and holly, while the large tree was laden with gifts for all. A pleasing programme of games and music was provided which was enjoyed by the members of the school and their friends.

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS.

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

ASHORE ON FIRE ISLAND.

British Freight Steamer Went Fast on Shoal In Snowstorm.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The British freight steamer Drumelzier, which sailed from New York for Havre, Dunkirk and Swansea, went ashore on a shoal off the point of Fire island bar at 7 o'clock and held fast. The crews of the Fire island and Oak island life saving stations went to the assistance of the stranded steamer as soon as her predicament was discovered at daylight. It is presumed that in the thick snowstorm any signals which the stranded steamer may have displayed were not discovered by the patrol of the life saving station. When the life savers reached the steamer shortly after daylight they found that she was lying well outside of the breakers and as only a moderate sea was running was lying easily without pounding. The wind was fresh from the northeast and the weather cloudy. The shoal on which she stranded is half a mile directly west of the point of Fire island bar, and the steamer lies heading southeast. She appears to be a little lower at the bow than at the stern.

Soon after the life savers boarded the steamer she displayed her private signals, from which her name was ascertained.

The Drumelzier arrived in New York from Baltimore on Dec. 18 and took on board a general cargo for Havre and Swansea. She is commanded by Captain Nicholson, and Barber & Co. of New York are her local agents. She carries a crew of about thirty men. The Drumelzier is of 2,330 tons net, 340 feet long, 44.7 feet beam, 18.5 feet depth, was built in Sunderland in 1895 and is owned by the Astral Shipping company of Liverpool.

The Drumelzier is fast amidships, with both bow and stern free. Captain Nicholson says that after passing Sandy Hook he saw nothing until the steamer struck. It is believed she can be floated at high tide with the assistance of a tug.

A GLOOMY CHRISTMAS.

Nan Patterson In Tombs Received Sixty-one Letters.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Nan Patterson spent a gloomy Christmas in the Tombs, although many folk that sympathize with her in her ordeal did their best to cheer her.

The early forenoon mail brought to her sixty-one letters, most of them messages of sympathy, and some of them contained money. One inclosed a twenty dollar bill. She spent the greater part of the day opening and reading the letters with the help of Philip Waldheimer, one of her counsel.

In her mail since the disagreement of the jury have been several letters of a scurrilous nature, and her lawyers have adopted the precaution of reading for her letters evidently from strangers and not showing such to her.

More flowers arrived for her at the prison yesterday, but they were refused—all but a half dozen splendid Jacqueminot roses, which Warden Flynn sent to her after giving the bunch a rigid scrutiny. He explained that the rule against bouquets is an old one in the prison and faithfully adhered to. The object is to prevent the smuggling into the prison of dangerous weapons or even poisons. In the case of the roses he said he had made an exception such as he might for any other prisoner.

Daniel O'Reilly, also of her counsel, gave her a Christmas present in the shape of a specially prepared dinner from a fashionable restaurant.

The father of Nan is in Washington, but there was a letter from him in the lot received.

The only callers were a man and finely dressed woman, who said they were from Washington, but refused to tell who they were after they learned that the day was regarded as a holiday and that Miss Patterson would not be permitted to receive visitors other than her counsel.

Too Much From Santa Claus.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—The excitement of Christmas culminated in sorrow instead of joy for six-year-old Louis Simmons. The child's joy, the sight of his humble but to him gorgeous presents, his little stocking filled with sweets and popcorn and the tiny Christmas tree proved too much for him, and he was suddenly taken violently ill. Feebly asking for the presents which Santa Claus brought him, the little boy was discovered by his mother in one corner of the room almost unconscious. He was removed to a hospital, where his condition was pronounced serious and his case diagnosed as heart failure.

Chinese Want Russian Sailor.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 27.—The Russian consul has made no reply to the demand of the taotai for the surrender of the sailor belonging to the Russian cruiser Askold who on Dec. 15 murdered a Chinaman as the result of a dispute of payment for the hire of a jinrikisha. The sailor is still on board the cruiser, where he was sent by the consul and where, it is understood, he will be tried by court martial. The taotai has applied to the foreign board at Peking for further instructions. The Ningpo community is becoming restive.

Admiral Dewey's Friend Dead.

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 27.—Joseph W. Wallace, a lifelong friend of Admiral Dewey and his shipmate in the civil war, died suddenly at his home, aged seventy-four years. He was born in Nashua, N. H., where he was city marshal for several years. Burial will be in Nashua. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Lucie F. Harrison of Worcester.

SMART STYLES.

Peacock Feathers a Fashionable Fancy For Millinery.

Peacock feathers are a fashionable trimming for hats and are used in all their natural glory or dyed to match the colorings of the chapeau.

Turnover collars and cravats of silk are very becoming with French knots worked in colors contrasting or harmonizing with the blouse or dress on which they are placed.

Evening gloves are no longer either all white or all black, but are to be had in pale tints exactly matching the dainty shades used for evening gowns. Street gloves are still in the masculine styles of the last few years, but for theater wear gloves are a little heavier, more after the walking type and weight, and fasten with one button. Mousquetaire gloves are worn with elbow sleeves.

Some of the daintiest sleeves on evening dresses are plain and close fitting to the elbow, where they flare out in several full ruffles either of the material or of lace and chiffon.

A neat hat is herewith illustrated. It is something of a three cornered affair of mole colored felt. The brim is bound with a cord of velvet exactly matching the felt. The sole trimming is a chou of violet velvet ribbon, and gray brown bird wings are perched jauntily at one side.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Materials For Winter Walking and Afternoon Frocks.

There is no doubt that velvet, cloth and cashmere are the three materials that reign supreme in winter fashions. The sporting tailor is running riot in the matter of homespuns, Scotch tweeds and Irish friezes, and in these three latter materials there are some lovely mixtures in rather light shades. Blues and greens blend beautifully, but a warmer note is struck by red and brown mixtures.

At the recent New York horse show these tweed tailor built costumes were much in evidence for morning wear among the sporty set who attended the show in the early hours to worship at the shrine of the noble animal the horse and not to prance about in the dress parade of the afternoon and evening. The gowns were made with short, unlined skirts devoid of trimming except, perhaps, stitching and strappings. The coats were usually of the three-quarter length and loose, without the least suggestion of a fit to be found in their graceful folds. Some of the coats were belted in at the back, and others hung straight and full from the shoulders. A coat of this kind when properly cut rather emphasizes than conceals a graceful figure. Linen collars, smart mannish ties and small hats accompanied these frocks.

The illustration offers a suggestion for a girl's gown carried out in smooth faced green cloth. The skirt, which is fairly full, is trimmed with lines of fine tailor stitching arranged in battlement form around the hem. Bands of stitching appear upon the coat and on the gauntlet cuffs, the latter being finished by dainty little frills of lace. Instead of stitching, the gown would be very stunning trimmed with rows of Russian braid exactly matching the cloth.

MODISTIC FANCIES.

The Fichu Once More a Favorite of Fashion.

Velvet faced cloth and cashmeres are the materials of the season most popular for smart gowns. A pretty idea for trimming these dresses is to thread the cloth or cashmere with velvet ribbon.

A stunning trimming of the winter is to trim a costume with a deep fur band at the hem. Narrow edges are applied about the coat if revers of the fur are not used.

Lace fichus are again in fashion and prove a boon to the thin woman. If made of some kind of lacy net and trimmed with a handsome lace edge a fichu transforms the simplest kind of waist into a dressy bodice. The ends are usually long, falling almost if not quite to the knee.

Blond lace makes an attractive fichu-like cape. A ruffle of the same made double edges the entire fichu. A plain net fichu finished with lace ruffles is equally smart.

There are endless ways of arranging the fichu. It may be doubled and tied around the shoulders like a cape or simply crossed at the waist and held in place by a silk or net chou.

Empire scarfs are dainty little accessories for the evening toilet, and a picturesque girl can use one of these scarfs to telling advantage. They are four yards long and one wide and usually made of painted or embroidered chiffon.

The gown illustrated is of deep purple chiffon velvet. The skirt is perfectly plain and falls in long, graceful lines. The very swagger three-quarter coat is box plaited in the back and held in front with a pointed girdle of the velvet. Handsome buttons trim the coat in front and outline the high cuff at the elbow. The lower part of the sleeve is of white lace tied here and there with narrow velvet ribbon.

HINTS ON NECKWEAR.

The New Turnover Collars Are Dainty and Easy to Make.

Quite the newest and smartest of the many neck ruches worn is that of plaited lisse edged with a bright silk tartan plaid. This finish is very becoming and so narrow as not to be in the least clumsy.

Other neck trimmings have several rows of Scotch bias silk mounted on a tape ready to be sewed in a dress neck at a moment's notice.

Dainty and expensive are the collar and cuff sets of embroidered chiffon and the india mull sets exquisitely worked and bordered with a plaiting of the mull.

The newest sleeves for the shirt waist have a slight fullness at the armhole, scarcely any at the cuff and a distinct widening out at the elbow.

A pretty idea is illustrated in the shirt waist seen in the cut. The material is broadcloth in a pastel shade of gray. The fullness hangs in plaits from a shield shaped emplecement of the cloth. A band of strapping neatly stitched on the edges and trimmed with buttons outlines the fronts. About the neck is a square effect in stitched cloth, over which hangs a jabot of lace. The sleeves are full and plaited at the top. The outside fullness is taken in at the wrist in plaits overlaid with mitered straps ornamented with buttons.

"'Who be you?' says he.

"'D'ri,' says I.

"'Tired out,' says he; 'can't swim a stroke. Guess I 'll hev t' go t' th' bottom.'"

CHAPTER XV.

D'ri's narrative was the talk of the garrison. Those who heard the telling, as I did not, were fond of quoting its odd phrases, and of describing how D'ri would thrust and parry with his jack-knife in the story of the bouts.

The mystery of that plunge into darkness and invisible water was a trial to my nerves the like of which I had never suffered. After they had pulled his lordship out of the grave, and I knew there would be no more fighting, I began to feel the strain he had put upon me. He was not so strong as D'ri, but I had never stood before a quicker man. His blade was as full of life and cunning as a cat's paw, and he tired me. When I went under the water I felt sure it was all over, for I was sick and faint. I had been thinking of D'ri in that quick descent. I wondered if he was the man who had got away and gone down the slide. I was not the less amazed, however, to feel his strong hand upon me as I came up. I knew nothing for a time. D'ri has told me often how he bore me up in rapid water until he came into an eddy where he could touch bottom. There, presently, I got back my senses and stood leaning on his broad shoulder awhile. A wind was blowing, and we could hear a boat jumping in the ripples near by. We could see nothing, it was so dark, but D'ri left me, feeling his way slowly, and soon found the boat. He whistled to me, and I made my way to him. There were oars in the bottom of the boat. D'ri helped me in, where I lay back with a mighty sense of relief. Then he hauled in a rope and anchor, and shoved off. The boat, overrunning the flow in a moment, shot away rapidly. I could feel it take headway as we clove the murmuring waters. D'ri set the oars and helped it on. I lay awhile thinking of all the blood and horror in that black night—like a dream of evil that leads through dim regions of silence into the shadow of death. I thought of the hinted peril of the slide that was to be the punishment of poor courage.

D'ri had a plausible theory of the slide. He said that if we had clung to the sides of it to break our speed we'd have gone down like a plummet and shattered our bones on a rocky shore. Coming fast, our bodies leaped far into the air and fell to deep water. How long I lay there thinking, as I rested, I have no satisfactory notion. Louise and Louison came into my thoughts, and a plan of rescue. A rush of cavalry and reeking swords, a dash for the boats, with a flying horse under each fair lady, were in that moving vision. But where should we find them? for I knew not the name of that country out of which we had come by ways of darkness and peril. The old query came to me: If I had to choose between them, which should I take? There was as much of the old doubt in me as ever. For a verity, I loved them both, and would die for either. I opened my eyes at last, and, rising, my hands upon the gunwales, could dimly see the great shoulders of D'ri swaying back and forth as he rowed. The coming dawn had shot an arrow into the great, black sphere of night, cracking it from circumference to core, and floods of light shortly came pouring in, sweeping down bridges of darkness, gates of gloom, and massy walls of shadow. We were in the middle of a broad river—the St. Lawrence, we knew, albeit the shores were unfamiliar to either of us. The sunlight stuck in the ripples, and the breeze fanned them into flowing fire. The morning lighted the green hills of my native land with a mighty splendor. A new life and a great joy came to me as I filled my lungs with the sweet air. D'ri pulled into a cove, and neither could speak for a little. He turned, looking out upon the river, and brushed a tear off his brown cheek.

"No use talkin'," said he, in a low tone, as the bow hit the shore, "ain' no country luk this 'un, don' care where ye go."

As the oars lay still, we could hear in the far timber a call of fife and drum. Listening, we heard the faint familiar strains of "Yankee Doodle." We came ashore in silence, and I hugged the nearest tree, and was not able to say the "Thank God!" that fell from my lips only half spoken.

CHAPTER XVI.

We got our bearings, a pair of boots for D'ri, and a hearty meal in the cabin of a settler. The good man was unfamiliar with the upper shore, and we got no help in our mystery. Starting west, in the woods, on our way to the harbor, we stopped here and there to listen, but heard only wood-thrush and partridge—the fife and drum of nature. That other music had gone out of hearing. We had no compass, but D'ri knew the forest as a crow knows the air. He knew the language of the trees and the brooks. The feel of the bark and what he called "the lean of the timber" told him which way was south. River and stream had a way of telling him whence they had come and where they were going, but he had no understanding of a map. I remember, after we had come to the harbor at dusk and told our story, the general asked him to indicate our landing place and our journey home on a big map at headquarters. D'ri studied the map a brief while. There was a look of embarrassment on his sober face.

'Seems so we come ashore 'bout here," said he, dropping the middle finger of his right hand in the vicinity of Quebec. "Then we traveled aw-a-a-ay hellwards over 'n this 'ere direction." With that illuminating remark he had slid his finger over some 200 leagues of country from Quebec to Michigan.

They met us with honest joy and no little surprise that evening as we came into camp. Ten of our comrades had returned, but as for ourselves, they thought us in for a long stay. We said little of what we had gone through, outside the small office at headquarters, but somehow it began to travel, passing quickly from mouth to mouth, until it got to the newspapers and began to stir the tongue of each raw recruit. Gen. Brown was there that evening, and had for me, as always, the warm heart of a father. He heard our report with a kindly sympathy.

Next morning I rode away to see the Comte de Chaumont at Leraysville. I had my life, and a great reason to be thankful, but there were lives dearer than my own to me, and they were yet in peril. Those dear faces haunted me and filled my sleep with trouble. I rode fast, reaching the chateau at luncheon time. The count was reading in a rustic chair at the big gate. He came running to me, his face red with excitement.

"M'sieur le Capitaine!" he cried, my hand in both of his, "I thought you were dead."

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

A QUIET WEDDING.

Earl of Suffolk and Miss Leiter United at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The marriage of Miss Margaret Hyde Leiter, better known as Daisy Leiter, last of the unwed daughters of the late Levi Z. Leiter, and Henry Molineux Paget Howard, Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire, the scion of the oldest of England's noble families, took place at noon in the Leiter mansion in this city.

The wedding was very quiet, only members of the family being present. The father of Miss Leiter died a short time ago, and, although two of his daughters have been married since his death, in both instances the weddings were family affairs.

The ceremony was performed in the large drawing room by the Rev. Roland Cotton Smith of St. John's Episcopal church. Joseph Leiter gave his sister in marriage, and Hon. Lionel Guest of England attended the Earl of Suffolk as best man.

The earl's party was perhaps the most distinguished that any Englishman has brought to this country to attend him at a wedding in years. There was Major Colin Campbell and his bride, who was Miss Nannie Leiter; Lady Catherine Howard, the earl's sister; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, Lionel Guest of London, who acted as the earl's best man; Ivan Hay of London, one of the earl's most intimate friends, and a number of others. These people have been at the house for days, and the Leiter house party has been a very gay one, elaborate entertainments marking each day.

Miss Leiter made a very pretty bride. Her gown was a court train of rich white satin draped with rare old lace. It had sleeves and a high neck. Miss Leiter wore no jewels at all, but her veil was held in place by a cascade wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of orchids.

Tomorrow the wedding party will sail for England. Major Colin Campbell and his bride will go by the same steamer.

The new Countess of Suffolk and Berkshire is about twenty-four years old, beautiful, clever, witty and has been much admired. Her fortune is estimated at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000. The earl is twenty-seven years old, handsome, a good amateur actor and popular in society. He is the owner of the vast domains of his family, including a 10,000 acre estate, has one of the finest art collections in the world and comes of what is perhaps the oldest noble family in all England.

This young couple first met at Simla, India, in the summer of 1899. The countess is the sister of Lady Curzon, vicerine of India, and was her guest at the time.

MANY TIMES A HERO.

Captain John V. Clinnin's Record as a Life Saver.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—The presentation of medals for heroism at St. James' Episcopal church has brought out the fact that one of the recipients is several times a life saver. He is Captain John V. Clinnin, inspector of rifle practice in the First regiment, Illinois national guard. A year ago he was an unknown hero in the Iroquois theater fire. He is known also as the hero of a yachting incident off Zion City.

The Rev. James S. Stone, rector of St. James', after awarding medals to George H. Shapiro and A. Waldo Carlisle of the United States training ship Dorothea turned to Captain Clinnin.

"Friends of the captain," he said, "hearing that he had been recommended for this honor, insisted that his record in connection with the Iroquois disaster be made public. Captain Clinnin was in the Schiller building when he saw smoke pouring from the air vent of the theater. He was one of the first to arrive in the foyer of the Iroquois.

"Some already had fallen to the floor. Others were piling upon them in their efforts to escape. Seizing a woman, Captain Clinnin dragged her to a place of safety. Then he went back, edged along the wall and rescued a chorus girl. He was thrown down and trampled on, but he returned to help carry another woman out. He made three more trips into the theater, brought out a child apparently dead, found his sister-in-law hysterical and took her to the Schiller building and came back, but was excluded from the fire lines by the police."

The act of heroism, however, for which Captain Clinnin received the "life saving medal" founded by Henry E. Weaver in 1900 was the rescue last May of three men from a capsized yacht in which he, with eight others, had been sailing.

Refused to Extradite Chadwick.

ALBANY, Dec. 27.—Sheriff Barry of Cleveland, O., was refused an extradition warrant for Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick at the executive chamber here. The ground of refusal was that his papers failed to prove that Dr. Chadwick was in the state of Ohio March 5, 1903, when the forgery of the signature of Andrew Carnegie, in which he is accused of having been concerned with his wife, Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, is alleged to have been committed. Sheriff Barry went on to New York.

Girl Died In Ambulance.

At the request of the borough officials, Lee Wells, a local colored man, was arrested by the city police today on a charge of inciting the fight which led to the trouble on Somerset street Christmas morning. He took no active part in the struggle but is said to have urged the colored men to resist the policemen to the utmost. He will be given a hearing before Recorder Dood tonight

Smalley laid hold of Hunt but was sent down with a terrific kick in the groin and Hunt, Tems and Tunstall started dancing on his face. Klein, who was in citizen's clothes and not on duty, was in the vicinity and went to Smalley's aid. Tems and Tunstall drew knives and razors and wielding the weapons sprang upon him and he was blinded by blood spurting from gashes in his face. In the meantime, Smalley managed to blow his whistle for help and Flack responding sprang into the affray with a rush that made it more fierce than ever, the negroes fighting with the desperation of maniacs.

The crowd which kept gathering about offered no helping hand, being frightened by the display of sharp blades, but Flack blew his whistle for assistance and Chief Weiss joined the policemen. Tems was finally overpowered and Flack and Smalley were putting handcuffs on him when Tunstall stole up behind and drove a long bladed knife into Flack's back. He made another jab at Weiss but the chief ducked through a shouted warning and escaped. He in turn struck Tunstall on the head with the butt of his revolver, knocking him in a dazed heap. Tems was rendered partially conscious and was turned over to Lieutenant Campbell, of the fire department, who had been summoned by telephone. Tunstall was then overpowered and Hunt was the last to give in, swinging his fists around until a blow from a club knocked him down.

Klein was removed to fire headquarters and Flack to police headquarters, Dr. Hughes attending them at first. Klein was sent to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance and Flack was taken to his home on Codington avenue. Both lost a great amount of blood and were in a greatly weakened state. The knife thrust Flack received was in a danger spot and the fact that he had on a heavy overcoat and underclothing is all that saved his life.

It was said today that the colored men went over into North Plainfield with the exppress intention of "cleaning out the borough cops." They were on Park avenue until the local saloons closed and were spoken to by Patrolman Hamilton because of their boisterousness. They were in Somerset street saloons until they closed and it was in the effort to get more liquor that led to the disturbance about Boice's Hotel.

Small Fire in Closet.

A small fire in a closet in the house occupied by G. D. Walsh, of North Front street, called the local fire department out at about 8:30 yesterday morning. The fire was the result of a match carelessly thrown, and caused damage to the amount of $30. The house is owned by Isaac Runyon and was covered by insurance.

In the City Court.

The following prisoners, all charged with drunkenness, had sentence suspended when arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court today: David McLarnon, Otto Findin and Edward Powers. George Donavan, eighteen years old, was charged with fast driving and his case was put over until tomorrow.

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

W. J. Travis.

That golfers are expansionists is fully demonstrated by the results of the leading events of the past season and the time does not seem to be far distant when a genuine world's championship will be played. American golfers competed in both the men's and women's British championships, the British woman champion competed in the American championship tournament, and British and American players took part in the German championship. The outcome of the leading tournaments was gratifying as in nearly every instance new champions appeared and the monotony of individual successes or of the division of the spoils amongst a small coterie of experts was broken. First, and most noteworthy, was the winning of the British amateur championship by Walter J. Travis, of the Garden City Golf club, of New York, a performance which electrified the golfing world. Then Jack White snatched the British open championship away from Varden, Braid, Taylor and Herd, and Miss Charlotte Dod annexed the women's championship from such favorites as Miss Adair and Miss Hezlett. Following his wonderful work in England, Travis was generally picked to win the United States championship, but here, again, the critics were at fault, for his hopes were snuffed out in the first round, and H. Chandler Egan, the brilliant young Chicago player, won the highest golfing honors this country affords. Miss Georgeanna Bishop's victory in the women's championship was another surprise, as several others were considered stronger candidates. In the national and western open championships the victories of Willie Anderson were true to form. On her successes of the season, Miss J. A. Carpenter was favorite for the women's western event, but here again came an upset, as Miss Everett finished first. Just when H. Chandler Egan was looked upon as a sure winner of the Olympic tournament, George S. Lyon, the former Canadian champion, loomed up strongly and eventually won. In many of the state and sectional tournaments there was a shifting around of titles. Looked at from a nonpartisan standpoint, the upsets of the season were opportune, and cannot fail to benefit the sport in general. As far as this country is concerned, the results indicate that the young native golfer has caught on in his branch of sport as quickly as other youngsters have done in other branches of athletics, and there seems every reason to believe that within a few years this country will be able to send a team to England that will be able to compare with the leading team there.

A. P. McDonald.

Alta P. McDonald has driven more sensational miles behind trotters and pacers in 1904 than any reinsman ever did before him in the history of the turf. He is the only driver who ever drove two performers in one year to as sensational world's records as that held by Dariel, 2:02¼, the champion pacing mare, and Major Delmar, 2:01½, the world's champion trotter, both performances without the wind shield. McDonald virtually developed both Dariel and Major Delmar. He has now had the latter three seasons, while when Dariel came into his care she only had a mark of 2:07½. With the aid of the wind shield he marked Major Delmar and Dariel miles in 1:59¾ and 2:00¼, respectively. McDonald's marvelous record of extreme speed miles behind the cracks he has driven this season stands as a mark not likely to be excelled by any other driver for perhaps years to come. He has driven Major Delmar in 2:01¼, 2:01¾, four times in 2:02¼ (equaling the best previous trotting record without the wind shield), twice in 2:02¾ and again in 2:03, and to the high-wheeled sulky he has marked the great gelding at 2:07, lowering Maud S.'s long-standing record of 2:08¾. As noted above, he has driven Dariel in 2:02¾ this year, so all told this season he has ridden 11 miles on different occasions in 2:03 or better. Every start of Sweet Marie with McDonald behind her the great mare has won and he gave her the present race record she holds, 2:04¾. He also drove Prince Alert, 1:59½, to his record at Syracuse, the fastest mile the hoppled king ever paced, with a pacemaker at his side. He has also this season marked Albert, 2:04¾, and drove McKinley to victory in 2:06¼, that gelding's best record. In the Transylvania with Sweet Marie he equaled the record of Budd Doble and W. O. Foote by driving two winners of the great classic, he having previously piloted Azote to victory in that rich event, and he also with Sweet Marie won the most sensational Transylvania ever trotted, thus atoning for his defeat in that race when behind Major Delmar in 1902. McDonald spent his boyhood days in Glens Falls, N. Y., and for years his father conducted a hotel in that city. It is odd that the horse which has given him his greatest fame on the turf claims Glens Falls as his birthplace. McDonald has lived a number of years in Albany, N. Y., where he owns valuable roadhouse property, and from November until June he is always at home. He is now over the border of 50 years and is a grandfather.

SOMERSET COURT OPENS

Afterward Adjourned Until Regular Session, January 4.

JURORS CHARGED

Judge Garretson Makes Reference to North Plainfield Stabbing Affair and North Branch Feud.

The December term of the Somerset county courts opened at Somerville yesterday and promises to be a very slim affair as far as Supreme and Circuit cases are concerned. But two were ready for trial and Justice Garretson decided to take them up January 4, and regular court was adjourned until that day.

From a criminal standpoint there will be aplenty doing this term. Sheriff Cooper's first Grand Jury is a good one. Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, is the chairman, and among his associates are former Sheriffs Calvin D. McMurtry and William H. H. Wyckoff, Assessor Frank T. Ross, Assemblyman Irving Hoagland, former Freeholder E. V. Cruser, Fred. Kirch, Richard G. G. Moldenke, Thomas S. Armstrong and W. L. Saunders; the last two of North Plainfield.

In his charge to the jurors Justice Garretson said the affray in North Plainfield should be given the greatest care. Two men at least, he said, had been injured by the four prisoners. In an affray of that sort where it is done on purpose all the offenders should be indicted together, and the charge may be assault with intent to kill, or atrocious assault and battery.

In regard to the Cramer-Flomerfelt feud at North Branch, which resulted in the death of Constable Frank D. Cramer, Justice Garretson said he was not familiar with the circumstances, but declared they should be looked into carefully and the jurors should present such an indictment as the facts require. "If they engaged in mutual combat and death resulted that would be manslaughter. It might be that the act of killing was murder," said the Justice.

Among the licenses granted were those of Joseph A. Blatz and Richard A. Botce, of North Plainfield.

George W. Anderson, John C. Staats and E. B. Hoagland were appointed to assess the particular benefits derived from the Neshanic road to property owners.

Judge Schenck announced he would take up the jury appeals February 6 and the court appeals February 17. In these among the cases listed of interest to North Plainfielders are:

John A. VanFleet ads. John D. Smith; Codington & Swackhamer, Reed & Coddington. Tried January 5, 1904, before Justice Smalley.

Mary A. Lee ads. William H. Rogers; Dungan & Reger, Horace Codington. Tried June 9, 1904, before Justice Kitchen.

COMING OUT PARTY FOR MISS WINIFRED HAVEN

DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL AFFAIR GIVEN BY MRS. WILLIAM E. LOWE.

An interesting social event was the coming out party given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. William E. Lowe, of Park avenue, for Miss Winifred Haven. During the hours from 4 to 7 o'clock over one hundred guests attended and there were many pleasant features. The home was decorated in red and white, many flowers being used. There was a profusion of the favorite American Beauty rose, gifts to the debutante. In the dining room, as well as the reception hall the arrangement of flowers was greatly admired.

Receiving with Miss Haven were Mrs. William E. Lowe and Miss Lowe, while in the dining room were a number of young women, who assisted in serving refreshments.

Miss Haven is a favorite in Plainfield society and she was the recipient of many gifts of value in honor of her introduction to society.

1904 Council Winding Up.

The Common Council will meet Friday night for the last time this year. All bills will be passed upon and the odds and ends of business concluded for the year. The new Common Council will hold its first meeting on Monday night, January 2, for organization. An adjournment will then be taken to a later date in the month.

MR. AND MRS. HARMAN'S DANCE FOR DEBUTANTE

PARK CLUBHOUSE THE SCENE OF A BRILLIANT SOCIAL AFFAIR.

Among the society events of the season the debutante dance given by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Harman, of West Eighth street, for their second daughter, Miss Helen Harman, last evening, at the Park Club, was one of the most brilliant. It was not a reception, but was intended chiefly as a dance for the younger set, including the young married couples.

The main room and gallery at the clubhouse were decorated with festoons of hemlock, balsam and holly, while a bower of palms and ferns were arranged on the stage, beneath which Austin's orchestra was seated. The scarlet of flower of the poinsettia was used with good effect, giving a Christmas note to the entertainment.

The guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Harman, Miss Harman and Miss Helen Harman. During the early part of the evening the orchestra discoursed selections from the well-known operas and later the preparation for dancing was announced by the rendition of Strauss's waltz, "On the Blue Danube." The dancing was continued until 11 o'clock, when supper was served. Dancing was afterward resumed and from the lively airs played during the evening, the orchestra quickly changed to "Home, Sweet Home," at an hour selected for the termination of the affair.

Prior to the affair at the Park Club Mr. and Mrs. Harman entertained a house-party of out-of-town guests at dinner, who were the guard of honor of the evening for the debutante. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, Miss Isabelle V. Hoyt, Arthur Bliss, Leigh H. Rouzer and Roderick A. Dorman, of New York; Ralph James and Robert Burton, of Baltimore; Wharton Clay, of Chicago; Miss Katherine Young and Gayle L. Young, of Newark; Willis Adams and Richard T. Thompson and Miss Helen G. Adams, of Germantown, Pa.

TESTIMONY OF CHILDREN SURPRISES THEIR MOTHER

MRS. GILES TURNED AGAINST IN HER SUIT FOR ALIMONY.

When Mrs. Malvinia Giles, of Newark, formerly of New Market, appeared yesterday in the Court of Chancery to prosecute proceedings already brought against her husband, Joiel Giles, to secure alimony, she was surprised to find that her four children, upon whom she depended to corroborate her charges of alleged cruelty, had taken sides with the defendant father.

The cause came up before Vice Chancellor Emery and an answer filed by Giles was a complete denial of all the charges made by the wife. Annexed to the answer were the affidavits of the three sons and one daughter, in which each denied the affiant had ever seen their father strike or otherwise ill-treat their mother, as was charged in the petition for alimony. Jacob J. Merrill, a brother of Mrs. Giles, also filed an affidavit in which he blamed his sister for the marital trouble.

Mrs. Giles had been granted temporary alimony of $35 a week and this was reduced to $18 with the understanding that the defendant pay $50 arrearage alimony.

WANT NEW COURT HOUSE

Scheme Outlined at Somerset Co. Bar Association Session.

TO COST $150,000

Price of Suggested Site is Too High—Grand Jury and Freeholders to Act.

The most important matter considered at a meeting of the Somerset County Bar Association at Somerville yesterday, was that in reference to the much talked of new court house, which has been opposed by the Board of Freeholders for various reasons. Judge Schenck, who introduced the subject said that much of the opposition on the part of the Freeholders had been met and that the Board is now inclined to favor it. Judge Schenck referred to the unsanitary condition of the present building and the fact that on the second floors the walls are sagging and that the building can hardly be considered safe.

The proposition is to erect a new court house at a cost of $150,000 and Judge Schenck said that this could be done without any increase in taxation to the residents of Somerset County. He said that since 1900 the property valuations in the county had increased $3,000,000 and he suggested that thirty year 4½ per cent. bonds be issued, adding that it would not be many years before the increase in valuation would reach $3,000,000 He also argued that the money which would necessarily have to be expended for repairs on the old building would pay the interest in the cost of the new structure.

A statement was made in behalf of the Board of Freeholders in which it was said that that body had been trying to purchase the corner property near the court house, but that the owners had raised the price. The members were hoping to get the property at a reasonable figure.

It was also stated that the surrogate's office is in a dilapitated condition and not really safe to hold the valuable papers recorded there. It was finally decided to report these matters to the Grand Jury and have that body confer with the Board of Freeholders with a view to securing the desired improvements.

These officers were elected: President, John Reger: vice president, George Pace; secretary, Miss Steele; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Nelson Y. Dungan; trustees, A. M. Beekman, S. S. Swackhamer. It was decided to hold the annual banquet and the date will be announced soon.

SAENGERBUND LIQUOR BAN

German Society Prohibits Sale By Others in Its Hall.

REASON FOR ORDER

The Repeated Disturbances Have Prompted the Organization to Take Action at This Time.

Through a disturbance which took place in the building at a dance last week, the Gesang and Turn Verein has decided to no longer rent Saengerbund Hall to floating social organizations which are formed solely to conduct some picnic or dance affair and then disband. The ban is placed because of repeated violations of the contract which lessees are asked to sign, agreeing not to sell liquor in the hall while their affair is in progress. Time and again the promise has been given by committees only to be disregarded and the Turn Verein in order to protect itself was forced to resort to drastic measures.

In speaking of the matter, one of the leading Turn Verein members said today that the Saengerbund people were being criticised repeatedly for disturbances which took place in the hall during dances when they were not to blame. He declared that it has been the custom of city and borough young men who wish to conduct such an affair to call themselves a club and in its name rent the hall, signing all agreements readily but at the same time intending to keep none. The clubs have backing of no kind and consequently when the Saengerbund officials attempt to gain an explanation for violations, the floating organization has disappeared and only individuals can be found who always claim, "it was some other fellow who allowed the liquor to be brought in and sold."

Continuing further, The Daily Press' informant said that reputable clubs would still be allowed to rent the hall but even at that a strict watch would be kept for the breaking of any agreements. He also said that the Gesang and Turn Verein would conduct monthly dances in the hall of its own accord and by the official's supervision correct the mistaken impression of constant disorderliness that has spread about.

"TIM" SUES PLAINFIELDER

Congressman's Dewey Theatre Injured by Automobile.

DEMANDS DAMAGES

Tammany Politician Wants $3,500 From D. T. Kenney—An Attachment Has Been Served.

David T. Kenney, of North Plainfield, has just been made the defendant in a suit for $3,500 damages brought by Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan, of New York.

Deputy Sheriff Leavitt has just levied an attachment on the property, including an automobile of Mr. Kenney, in the suit brought against Mr. Kenney by Congressman Sullivan, commonly known as "Big Tim," to recover $3,500 damages alleged to have been caused to an ornamental canopy in front of the Dewey Theatre in East Fourteenth street. Mr. Sullivan, who is the owner of the Dewey Theatre, says that about 1 o'clock in the morning of November 14, an automobile truck owned by the defendant and operated by an employe of Mr. Kenney ran into and totally destroyed the canopy.

In an affidavit filed by his counsel, Steuer & Hoffman, Mr. Sullivan sets forth that Mr. Kenney owns and operates trucks and wagons and particularly an automobile truck. He asserts that at the time the canopy of the Dewey Theatre was destroyed the automobile truck was operated by an employe of the defendant by the name of Williams. He sets forth that on the morning in question Williams negligently and carelessly ran the truck into the canopy of the Dewey Theatre. He further sets forth that the said Williams was not a fit, competent and proper person to operate the machine and could not operate the same with safety. Mr. Sullivan also sets forth that the machine was defective in that the steering gear was not in proper order.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS' CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT

ENJOYABLE PROGRAMME MARKS ANNUAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

The entertainment and Christmas festival at the Seventh-day Baptist church last night, was a thoroughly enjoyable and interesting one in every respect. The Sunday-school room was tastefully decorated for the occasion, a huge star of evergreen occupying the central place above the platform while a handsomely trimmed Christmas tree stood on one side of the room. A feature of the decorations was the dining room, where the tables, set, and decorated in red and green, made an attractive appearance.

The programme opened with a selection by the school, which was followed by devotional exercises led by the pastor and Dr. Henry M. Maxson. A carol by the school was the next number on the programme, which was followed by the presentation of gifts by the various classes in the Sunday-school for the benefit of the poor. There were thirteen classes to make their presentations, and each took some part in the programme either by music or recitation. Among the features of this part of the exercises was a quartette selection, "Sleep, Baby, Sleep." This was sung by Sydney Titsworth, bass; John Daub; tenor; Miss Cornelia Miller, soprano, and Mrs. W. C. Hubbard, contralto. A solo, "Sleep, Little Baby of Mine," by Miss Nancy Randolph, was also well received.

At the conclusion of another Christmas carol by the school, the gifts from the tree were distributed, and the evening's programme ended with refreshments served by the committee composed of Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard, Mrs. L. T. Titsworth and Mrs. Ira N. West. This was the committee on general arrangements: Mrs. J. E. Kimball, Dr. Martha Stillman, Miss Ernestine Smith, Mrs. Asa F. Randolph, Mrs. Nathan Lewis and Mrs. W. C. Hubbard.

CHILDREN'S FESTIVAL AT HOLY CROSS CHURCH

SUNDAY-SCHOOL EXERCISES AS ATTRACTIVE AS USUAL.

Unusually attractive was the annual Christmas exercises of the Sunday-school at the Church of the Holy Cross last night. A service in the church preceded the entertainment in the parish house, at which time the school sang its Christmas carols and listened to an appropriate address by Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church.

At the conclusion of this service, the Sunday-school, congregation, and friends, adjourned to the parish house, where a delightful winter scene was presented. A large chimney, fifteen feet in height, occupied a prominent place in the room, while all around, drifts of snow and imitation icicles made a picturesque appearance. Evergreen trees and decorations added to the beauty of this wintry scene, and added in making the room most attractive.

William Westphal impersonated Santa Claus in a clever and realistic manner and delighted the children with gifts from his pack. The affair was in charge of the officers of the Sunday-school, and was very creditably arranged in every detail.

WAR ON THE TRUSTS

Attorney General Opens on Paper Combination.

NEWSPAPER MEN MADE COMPLAINT

Injunction Sought In Minnesota Courts Against General Paper Company, Charging Monopolies In Restraint of Trade.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 28.—Attorney General Moody for the United States, through United States District Attorney Haupt and Frank B. Kellogg and James M. Beck, special assistant attorneys general of the United States, late yesterday filed a petition in the United States district court, in which he makes the General Paper company the principal defendant and twenty-five other paper companies throughout the states of Wisconsin and Michigan party defendants in a suit to enjoin them and restrain them from doing business through the General Paper company as the sales agent in violation of the provisions of sections one and two of the act of congress approved July 2, entitled "an act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies."

The petition alleges that the defendants entered into an agreement to combine and control the sale of the product of the different companies through the General Paper company in that the General Paper company regulated prices, sales and shipment and territory for the sale of the same and after deducting operating expenses of the General Paper company divided the surplus among the members of the corporation.

The petition recites that the General Paper company was organized under the laws of Wisconsin, May 26, 1900, with a capital stock of $100,000, divided into 1,000 shares, which were distributed among and are now held by certain of the defendants named and that later the others were taken into the combination, naming them in the order in which they entered the combination, and goes on to state that the General Paper company became the exclusive selling agent for the defendants with absolute power to control the output of the various mills, fix the price of all paper sold and to whom and upon what terms and conditions the paper should be sold and into what states and places it shall be shipped and what publishers and other customers each mill shall supply.

The petition alleges that in consequence of the combination all competition in the manufacture, sale and distribution of paper had been restricted and the price of all paper products greatly increased, particularly that of news print paper, which has been increased about 50 per cent.

The court is asked to declare the alleged combination unlawful and that the defendants be perpetually enjoined from doing any act in pursuance of the same.

Attorney General Moody at Washington last night gave out the following official statement regarding the suit:

"On the complaint of many newspapers last spring that a combination in restraint of commerce existed among manufacturers of paper to control the distribution and sale of their products among the states of the Union, the department of justice began an investigation of that subject, resulting in the present action."

New Central Branch Road.

NEPAUG, Conn., Dec. 28.—Thirteen civil engineers employed by the New York Central and Hudson River railroad are encamped on the meadows in this place preparatory to taking up the work of surveying a proposed double track line for that road between Brewsters, N. Y., and Springfield, Mass. The original survey of the old Connecticut Western road will be followed closely, it is understood. If the line is completed it will run through this town, which is less than seven miles from Winsted.

New Capitol For Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 28.—Governor Van Sant has taken possession of the executive offices in the new Minnesota capitol, which is nearing completion, and during the day held an impromptu reception, many prominent men calling to congratulate him. While the capitol interior is not entirely finished as to decoration, the legislature will convene there next week. The whole structure when complete will have cost about $5,000,000.

Williams Homestead Burned.

HUBBARDSTON, Mass., Dec. 28.—The old Williams homestead in Williamsville, four miles from Hubbardston Center, owned by Colonel W. A. Williams of Worcester, Mass., was burned last night. It was built more than 100 years ago at a cost of $10,000 and for many years was the finest house in Hubbardston. A large and valuable library was destroyed.

Medico's Party Bound to Panama.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 28.—Twenty-two physicians, accompanied by several men and women not of the medical profession, left here on board the steamship Athos of the Di Giorgio Steamship line bound for Panama. The physicians are delegates to the fourth pan-American medical congress, which will meet in Panama on or about Jan. 1, 1905.

FIERCE STORM RAGES

Efforts to Save Drumelzier Barred by Heavy Surf.

CAPTAIN AND CREW MAY PERISH.

Fog So Thick and Seas So Heavy That Rescue Work Is Almost Impossible, as It Stops Communication With Wrecked Vessel.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Efforts to learn whether Captain Nicholson and the crew of the British tramp steamer Drumelzier are still aboard the vessel, which is aground on the bar at Fire island, have been unsuccessful, and last night the life savers were still watching from the beach in the hope of communicating with the ship.

Hidden in a black fog and pounded by fierce seas rolling from the southeast the steamer is in imminent danger of going to pieces. If her captain and crew of thirty-two men are still in the ship they face an almost certain death in the heavy surf breaking over the sandy beach.

The captain would not let the life savers take off his crew yesterday when the seas were not running so high, and it is now too late to help them. No lifeboat in the world could be launched in the teeth of the southeast gale that lashed up great waves and crashed them down on the shore.

The fog was so thick that the stranded vessel could not be seen from the shore, 200 yards away. Out on the sand bar, where the big vessel was last seen rocking in the waves, there was nothing to be seen but a black haze, so dense that not even signal rockets could be seen from shore.

Two rescuing tugs were by the vessel last night, but no report has been received from them, and it is thought they may have fled to escape the wrath of the rising storm.

The crews of both the Fire island and Oak island life saving stations are on the beach opposite the Drumelzier, but they were helpless. They could barely see one another's faces as they stood huddled over the fire they had built on the beach for warmth and as a beacon light to the shipwrecked sailors.

The wind freshened from the southeast, and the waves came in so fierce and heavy that the men on the beach said there was no chance for any one on board the Drumelzier. The only hope was that the wrecking tugs had rescued the crew in the darkness.

The surf was too high for a lifeboat to be launched, and it was impossible to get in communication with the Drumelzier. Should the weather clear an effort will be made to shoot a line to the Drumelzier, but it was feared that the ship would go to pieces before that is possible.

The Drumelzier belongs to the Astral Shipping company of Liverpool, England, but is under charter to Barber & Co. Until recently she was used between Baltimore and Daiquiri, Cuba, and her last two trips were very exciting. She encountered a hurricane that stove in all her boats and put a hole in her side. Three days overdue, she hobbled into Havana. Her crew consists of thirty-two men with Captain Nicholson, First Mate Hutchinson, Second Mate Smith, Third Mate Richardson and Chief Engineer Wood.

FOG CAUSED COLLISIONS.

Panic When Ferryboats Came Together In North River.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—While a dense fog hung over the river and harbor the ferryboats Bergen and Musconetcong of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western line crashed into each other near the Hoboken ferry slips, and for a few minutes there was a wild panic on both boats.

The Bergen struck the Musconetcong on the starboard quarter only a few feet abaft the paddle box.

The engines were reversed almost immediately on the Musconetcong, but the headway was such that the impact tore away about twenty-five feet of the cabin timbers on the men's side of the Bergen and all of the starboard railing.

As the two ferryboats came together there was a wild rush on the part of the men on the Bergen into the cabin. The shock was such that it threw twenty or more of the men off their feet.

In the women's cabin the panic was greater, as the passengers there had received no warning of the impending crash.

The ferryboat Chicago of the Pennsylvania line, loaded down with commuters, was run into by the New Haven railroad's big steam transport Maryland in the North river just off the Cortlandt street slip of the Pennsylvania ferry. The transport crashed into the rear of the ferryboat and tore away a large part of the deckwork over the stern.

Among the crowd of passengers on the Chicago were many women, and a panic ensued when the accident occurred.

High Wind Freaks In Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 28.—High winds prevailed yesterday throughout Indiana. Much damage was done to wires. At Elkinsville a schoolhouse was unroofed, and several children were injured. Barns were blown down and several head of stock killed. At Vincennes the wind unroofed the Blackford glass plant and blew down a portion of the walls, causing a loss of $15,000 on building and stock.

Drought Over at Fort Edward.

FORT EDWARD, N. Y., Dec. 28.—Twelve hours of steady rainfall has relieved to a considerable extent the drought of the past three weeks. Paper mills along the Hudson river, employing thousands, which were on the point of shutting down on account of scarcity of water, will not be interrupted. Though the rain was heartily welcomed, it interfered seriously with the operation of railroads and telegraph lines by freezing as it fell. No schedule was maintained during the greater part of the day on electric roads, and one telegraph company was completely tied up.

Storm In the West.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—One of the most severe storms of recent years has raged through the territory lying between the Rocky mountains and the great lakes since early yesterday and has caused much trouble to street car companies, railroads and telegraph companies. The latter were the greatest sufferers, for the blizzard which swept through the west and northwest during the last twenty-four hours was preceded by a heavy fog and drizzling rain which made the wires almost unworkable.

Ship Lying on Her Side.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The captain of the Fire island life saving station reported last night that the schooner Frank W. McCullough, from Georgetown, S. C., which went ashore Dec. 28 on Fire island bar, is afloat and lying on her side. He has sent for assistance and will make an effort to save the vessel.

Fear of Water Famine Past.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 28.—Nearly twenty-four hours of continuous rain throughout western New York has broken the drought which threatened a water famine and has been a great relief to this district.

WAS CECILIA MOSS.

Girl Who Jumped From Three Story Room In New York Identified.

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 28.—The young woman calling herself Cecil Hall, who was killed by plunging from the third story window of a lodging house in West Forty-sixth street, New York, has been identified as Cecilia Moss, aged twenty-three years, of this city. Her mother, Mrs. Thomas Moss, residing at 319 West Marion street, received the following telegram:

"Sorry to tell you your daughter has committed suicide. What shall I do with body?"

The telegram was signed Mrs. M. Webb, New York. Mrs. Moss telegraphed back that the body should be sent to this city.

Mrs. Moss is unable to give much information as to her daughter's recent career. About a year ago the girl went to Washington. Later she wrote to her mother that on Sept. 6 she had married Clinton Frazer of that city, whom she said was a clerk in the employ of the government. Some weeks ago she wrote that she and her husband would spend Christmas here with Mrs. Moss, but a letter received a few days since announced she would go to New York.

TO EXPLOIT HERCULANEUM.

Professor Waldstein Wishes to Invoke Roosevelt's Aid.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Professor Charles Waldstein, professor of fine arts in Kings college, Cambridge, England, who came here on the invitation of Secretary Hay as the latter's guest, was entertained at luncheon by President Roosevelt. Secretary Hay accompanied him. Professor Waldstein gave the president an earnest invitation to join in an international movement to accomplish the thorough excavation of Herculaneum. The plan, it was explained, does not involve governmental aid.

Professor Waldstein gave a lecture before the Washington Society of the Archaeological Institute of America. He explained that Herculaneum never had been as thoroughly explored as Pompeii, and his idea now was, through international co-operation, to accomplish that result. The movement, it was explained, already has begun in different countries of the world, the emperors of Germany and Austria and the kings of Italy and Great Britain having expressed their interest and hearty support.

Not Yet Perfected.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 28.—Owing to a broken motor which could not be easily repaired the Baldwin airship, California Arrow, was unable to make the return flight to the city from the place where it landed after trial, several miles south of the city. The gas was allowed to escape from the bag, and the machine was hauled into the city in a wagon. Baldwin will continue his experiments here after the motor of his machine has been repaired.

Charged With Election Frauds.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 28.—An information equivalent to an indictment was returned by Assistant Circuit Attorney Hancock into the office of the clerk of the court of criminal corrections charging John L. Gillespie, former partner of "Lord" Barrington, under sentence of death for the murder of James P. McCann, and later partner of John L. Sullivan in the saloon business, with aiding and abetting in the fraudulent registration of 101 names.

Valencia a Total Wreck.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 28.—The German third class cruiser Bremen, which returned here from Port au Prince, Haiti, reports that the Atlas line steamer Valencia is ashore in a bad position at that place and that she is likely to be a total wreck. Nelson took the stand and declared the arrests were made while he was laboring under a misapprehension of facts. The money in the property clerk's hands was then produced, Nelson being given $6,001 and Murphy $2,100, this division being according to the manager's accounts.

NOGI IN HOSPITAL.

Japanese Commander at Port Arthur Hors de Combat.

GREAT NAVAL FIGHT IS IMMINENT.

Rojestvensky's Fleet, Approaching Sumatra, Is Being Watched For by Kamimura With Strong Cruiser Squadron.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—It is evident that Port Arthur is near to its fall, as Peiyu mountain, to whose base the Japanese have penetrated, is directly over the city itself, the environs nestling on its eastern base and the dockyard, where the Russian fleet was sunk, being on its western base. It is in the rear of the great Etseshan, Antzshan, Wangtai, Ehrlung, Sungshu and Keekwan forts, that have so long held the besiegers at bay.

If the Japanese are able to hold this new position and bring up re-enforcements they can drive home their wedge immediately and take all the forts in the rear. As it is they now hold new positions that place the whole Russian line in peril.

A special from Japanese headquarters at Port Arthur says that General Nogi was severely wounded by rifle bullets in the arm and leg while directing operations at Two Hundred and Three Meter hill.

Every cable from the far east is expected to bring news of the great sea fight which is imminent between the great Baltic fleet, under Admiral Rojestvensky, and the Japanese fleet, under Vice Admiral Kamimura. The Russian fleet rounded South Africa more than a week ago and was steaming north when Kamimura, in command of a strong fleet of cruisers and torpedo boats, sailed out from Port Arthur to give battle.

On the same day twenty Russian ships which went by way of the Suez canal under Rear Admiral Von Folkersham were reported above Jibutil, off the western coast of Africa.

Off the coast of China a report comes from Peking that Admiral Togo, in command of the main Japanese fleet, is waiting for the Russians. Should Kamimura meet and defeat one of the Russian fleets he will sail on to meet the second. Should he be defeated by the first of the enemy's ships he will report to Togo, and the main Japanese fleet will rush out to give battle.

Two places are suggested for the meeting between the Russians and Japanese—one at Minicoy, off the Indian coast, and the other at Sunda strait, off the coast of Sumatra.

The route the Russians expected to take, so it is said, is through the strait of Sunda.

The belief here is general that the meeting of the formidable fleets will mean the destruction of one or the other.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that the Emperor Nicholas will leave on Thursday for Minsk and the Don Caucasus, returning on Jan. 5.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 28.—After investigating the death of Anton Mayer, aged forty, a baker, who lived in the village of East River, near Guilford, Coroner Mix decided that there was not sufficient evidence to indicate foul play. It is now believed that he was despondent and committed suicide.

Men of promise—Plumbers in winter.

The selection of John W. Clift, of Summit, as secretary to Joseph Cross, president of the State Senate, meets with general approval.

Astronomers assert they have discovered a crack in the moon's face. Probably stood too near that Somerset street fight Christmas morning.

That awful sound coming from the back room is caused by Tom Lawson's pen scratching along as he is getting his New Year's resolutions in shape.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Christmas exercises of the Presbyterian Sunday-school were held in the chapel last evening for which time a very short but pleasing programme had been made out. Santa Claus was present in the person of Charles Lake, who took his part to perfection, and in trying to help distribute the candy and gifts he got in everybody's way, which pleased the little ones very much. After the presents had been distributed, Rev. W. C. Castleberry presented books to the following persons for perfect attendance: Miss Nellie Dodwell, Miss Mary Baldwin, Robert F. Bogardus, Jr., Arthur Voorhees and Leroy Jennings. The following was the programme for the evening: Prayer, Rev. W. W. Castleberry; violin solo, Miss Kitty Liable; singing, by school; address, Rev. W. W. Castleberry; singing, by school; benediction, Rev. W. W. Castleberry. At this point, several telegrams were received from Santa Claus, saying that he was on his way. Then Santa entered and distributed the gifts.

COURTSHIP BEGINS WHEN?

Famous English Judge Finds Himself Facing a Perplexing Problem in Court.

When does courtship begin? At the moment when a man first meets his affinity? At the time when he realizes that "the only girl in the world" is his affinity? Or at the time when he determines to let her guess his views on the subject? asks the Chicago Tribune.

This delicate question was raised in the English probate and divorce court. The president, Sir Francis Jeune, was compelled to admit that the solution was beyond him. The point was raised in this way: A young man named George Whitehead was asking the court to declare that the Scotch marriage between his parents was valid. His mother, Mrs. Whitehead, was called as a witness in support of his case, and gave evidence about her courtship, which began, she said, in the gardens that flank Princes street in Edinburgh. "How long had your husband been courting you when he proposed to you?" asked counsel. Mrs. Whitehead hesitated, finding the query hard to answer, and the president came to her rescue. "Can anyone say that?" he remarked. "I doubt if a man knows himself when he first begins to court a girl."

Japan's Imperial Mint.

One of the earliest western institutions established in Japan was the imperial mint at Osaka, and it has been one of the most successful and useful. In the convention which was signed at Yeddo, in 1866, between representatives of the Japanese government and those of the foreign powers, the establishment of a mint was stipulated. The Japanese government purchased from the British government a mint, which had been established at Hong-Kong, but which the latter had resolved to discontinue. The mint is now managed entirely by Japanese.

Gloomy View of Lo.

James Mooney, attached to the Smithsonian bureau of ethnology, sees a hopeless future for the Indians, among whom he has spent the greater portion of his life. He believes that it is practically impossible to civilize the Indian; that, having no ambition for improvement or progress, they will continue in their present state, dying out in numbers till they become simply roving bands.

CONDUCTOR KILLED.

Westbound Express Crashed Into Accommodation at Stamford, Conn.

STAMFORD, Conn., Dec. 28.—The westbound Boston express due here at 7:06 crashed into a westbound accommodation train in front of the depot last night, and Conductor George Howland of Mount Vernon, N. Y., an instructing conductor on the accommodation train, was crushed to death between the two rear cars. A heavy fog which has hung over the city for twenty-four hours hid the signals warning the engineer of the express, and it was not until his train was almost upon the other train that he saw the danger.

The express was going at about half speed and crashed into the rear coach, throwing that one and the one ahead of it off the track. Conductor Howland was between these cars and had just given the signal to the engineer of the accommodation train to back down to the spur track in order to allow the express to pass. Every night the accommodation usually has three or four minutes to spare after taking the spur track and before the express reaches the depot, but last night it was a few minutes late.

But few passengers were in the accommodation train, these few being in the forward cars, and none of them was hurt. While the express train carried almost its capacity of passengers, the force of the collision was not great enough to injure any one seriously. Aside from a severe shaking up and slight cuts the engineer and fireman of the express were not hurt. After a short wait, during which the accommodation train was backed into the yards, the express was able to continue its trip to New York.

MANY CHARGES AGAINST TALBOT

New York Lawyer Briefly Outlines Case of Pennsylvania Bishop.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—In a statement last night Herbert Noble, a lawyer of this city, representing the presenters in the charges recently made against Bishop Talbot of the central diocese of the Episcopal church, in Pennsylvania, briefly outlined what those who will appear against the bishop will take up. The presenters Mr. Noble will not name except to say Dr. Irvine is not one, and he also declines to give out the text of the presentment, but his statement says that the presentment has its foundation in a letter said to have been written by Bishop Talbot to Rev. Samuel Upjohn, when the latter was president of the Philadelphia Catholic club in 1902.

"The presentment is based on this letter," says Mr. Noble. "It is in the hands of the Rev. W. B. Bodine, D. D., of Philadelphia. It charges Bishop Talbot with: 'A criminal libel;' 'immorality, to wit, false statements;' 'the circulation of a false, malicious and defamatory report;' 'falsifying;' 'breach of ordination and consecration vows,' and 'conduct unbecoming a bishop.'"

These charges, Mr. Noble said last night, are the "headings" of the allegations made in the presentment. He added that he had communicated with Dr. Bodine and would call on him tomorrow or Friday in Philadelphia for a consultation as to the method of procedure in the hearing of the charges against Bishop Talbot in Reading, Pa., Jan. 10.

HINTS FOR THE TROUSSEAU.

A Bedroom Wrapper For the Winter Bride—Useful Shopping Gown.

An ideal possession of a recent bride was a bedroom wrapper of pale blue face cloth lined with white pongee held below the waist with a broad silken girdle handsomely tasseled. Around the shoulders a large pointed white fur collar hangs in plaits just over the bust and crossed to fasten at one side with a clasp of turquoise and steel.

An attractive trousseau costume is of white chiffon velvet trimmed with applications of pale green cloth embroidered with gold. The hat worn with a gown of this description is a large white beaver adorned with white plumes and green roses.

A useful cloth walking costume is one made with a three-quarter double breasted semifitted coat. The shoulder line is broad and tapers to a narrow waist. The sleeves are small, but set outward at the arm's eye. Such a gown in tweed accompanying a skirt made plain in front and plaited at the back represents the ideal of simplicity and smartness.

The dress pictured is a charming creation in dark brown cloth. The skirt is made to simulate an overskirt cut at the bottom in undulations, which hang over a petticoat of brown velvet trimmed with brown taffeta silk braid. About the waist the skirt is laid in plaits. The bodice is draped crosswise around the figure, and a surpliced band of braid trimmed velvet fits about a chemisette of yellow chiffon and lace. The sleeves are formed at the wrist of puffed yellow chiffon and at the elbow are banded with velvet. Braid ornaments catch the wrinkled upper sleeve.

DRESS NEWS.

Costumes For Small Girls—Modern Jewelry Barbaric In Design.

"Buster Brown" costumes for very little girls are among the newest things in children's fashions. The suits are of dark wool in different shades of red, blue or brown, with just a touch of trimming in the form of a gay belt or possibly a few buttons. In their very plainness lies their modishness.

Barbaric splendor reigns in the jewelry modes. The Chinese clasp, with its huge matrix of colored stones, has taken the place occupied so long by the turquoise matrix.

Some beautiful petticoats are of brown taffeta with printed flower design in delicate tones of pink and blue, a vandyked border consisting of four rows of narrow ribbon velvet completing the effect.

A good many lace blouses will be worn with fur and cloth coats, and these bodices are particularly appropriate for restaurant junching.

Rough tweeds and friezes are very popular for smart Norfolk jacket costumes with kilted skirts.

The bolero pictured is of pale yellow spotted muslin chiffon. The two gored flounces forming the bolero effect are gathered in puffs at the shoulders and bordered with an application of malines lace. Liine silk ribbon in three shades forms the trimming about the gathered yoke of white muslin and makes the bows and girdle, which latter crosses in the back and ties up high on the waistband.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

"And so I have been—dead as a cat drowned in a well, that turns up again as lively as ever. Any news of the baroness and the young ladies?"

"A letter," said he. "Come, get on your horse. I shall read to you the letter."

"Tell me—how were they taken?"

I was leading my horse and we were walking through a deep grove.

"Eh bien, I am not able to tell," said he, shaking his head soberly. "You remember that morning—well, I have 20 men there for two days. They are armed, they surround the Hermitage, they keep a good watch. The wasp he is very troublesome, but they see no soldier. They stay, they burn the smudge. By and by I think there is nothing to fear, and I bring them home, but I leave three men. The baroness and the two girls and their servants they stay awhile to pack the trunk. They are coming to the chateau. It is in the evening; the coach is at the door; the servants have started. Suddenly—the British! I do not know how many. They come out of the woods like a lightning, and bang! bang! bang! they have killed my men. They take the baroness and the Misses de Lambert, and they drive away with them. The servants they hear the shots, they return, they come, and they tell us. We follow. We find the coach; it is in the road, by the north trail. Dieu! they are all gone! We travel to the river, but—" here he lifted his shoulders and shook his head dolefully—"we could do nothing."

"The general may let me go after them with a force of cavalry," I said. "I want you to come with me and talk to him."

"No, no, my capitaine!" said he; "it would not be wise. We must wait. We do not know where they are. I have friends in Canada; they are doing their best, and when we hear from them—eh bien, we shall know what is necessary."

I told him how I had met them that night in Canada and what came of it.

"They are a cruel people, the English," said he. "I am afraid to find them will be a matter of great difficulty."

"But the letter—"

"Ah, the letter," he interrupted, feeling in his pocket. "The letter is not much. It is from Tiptoes—from Louison. It was mailed this side of the river at Morristown. You shall see; they do not know where they are."

He handed me the letter. I read it with an eagerness I could not conceal. It went as follows:

"My Dear Count: If this letter reaches you, it will, I hope, relieve your anxiety. We are alive and well, but where? I am sure I have no better idea than if I were a baby just born. We came here with our eyes covered after a long ride from the river, which we crossed in the night. I think it must have taken us three days to come here. We are shut up in a big house with high walls and trees and gardens around it—a beautiful place. We have fine beds and everything to eat, only we miss the bouil-labaisse, and the jokes of M. Pidgeon, and the fine old claret. A fat Englishwoman, who waddles around like a big goose and who calls me Mumm (as if I were a wine-maker!) waits upon us. We do not know the name of our host. He is a tall man who says little and has hair on his neck and on the back of his hands. Dieu! he is a lord who talks as if he were too lazy to breathe. It is 'Your Lordship this' and 'Your Lordship that.' But I must speak well of him, because he is going to read this letter; it is on that condition I am permitted to write. Therefore I say he is a great and good man, a beautiful man. The baroness and Louise send love to all. Madame says do not worry; we shall come out all right; but I say worry! and, good man, do not cease to worry until we are safe home. Tell the cure he has something to do now. I have worn out my rosary, and am losing faith. Tell him to try his. Your affectionate, LOUISON."

"She is an odd girl," said the count, as I gave back the letter, "so full of fun, so happy, so bright, so quick—always on her tiptoes. Come, you are tired; you have ridden far in the dust. I shall make you glad to be here."

A groom took my horse, and the count led me down a wooded slope to the lakeside. Octagonal water-houses, painted white, lay floating at anchor near us. He rowed me to one of them for a bath. Inside was a rug and a table and soap and linen. A broad panel on a side of the floor came up as I pulled a cord, showing water clear and luminous to the sandy lake-bottom. The glow of the noonday filled the lake to its shores, and in a moment I clove the sunlit depths—a rare delight after my long, hot ride.

At luncheon we talked of the war, and he made much complaint of the northern army, as did everybody those days.

"My boy," said he, "you should join Perry on the second lake. It is your only chance to fight, to win glory."

He told me then of the impending battle and of Perry's great need of men. I had read of the sea-fighting and longed for a part in it. To climb on hostile decks and fight hand to hand was a thing to my fancy. Ah, well! I was young then. At the count's table that day I determined to go, if I could get leave.

Therese and a young Parisienne, her friend, were at luncheon with us. They bade us adieu and went away for a gallop as we took cigars. We had no sooner left the dining room than I called for my horse. Due at the Harbor that evening, I could give myself no longer to the fine hospitality of the count. In a few moments I was bounding over the road, now cool in deep forest shadows. A little way on I overtook Therese and the Parisienne. The former called to me as I passed. I drew rein, coming back and stopping beside her. The other went on at a walk.

"M'sieur le Capitaine, have you any news of them—of Louise and Louison?" she inquired. "You and my father were so busy talking I could not ask you before."

"I know this only; they are in captivity somewhere, I cannot tell where."

"You look worried, M'sieur le Capitaine; you have not the happy face, the merry look, any longer. In June you were a boy, in August—voila! it is a man! Perhaps you are preparing for the ministry."

AT LUNCHEON WE TALKED OF THE WAR.

She assumed a solemn look, glancing up at me as if in mockery of my sober face. She was a slim, fine brunette, who, as I knew, had long been a confidante of Louison.

"Alas! ma'm'selle, I am worried. I have no longer any peace."

"Do you miss them?" she inquired, a knowing look in her handsome eyes. "Do not think me impertinent."

"More than I miss my mother," I said.

"I have a letter," said she, smiling. "I do not know—I thought I should show it to you, but—but not to-day."

"Is it from them?"

"It is from Louison—from Tiptoes."

"And—and it speaks of me?"

"Ah, m'sieur," said she, arching her brows, "it has indeed much to say of you."

"And—and may I not see it?" I asked eagerly. "Ma'm'selle, I tell you I—I must see it."

"Why?" She stirred the mane of her horse with a red riding-whip.

"Why not?" I inquired, my heart beating fast.

"If I knew—if I were justified—you know I am her friend. I know all her secrets."

"Will you not be my friend also?" I interrupted.

"A friend of Louison, he is mine," said she.

"Ah, ma'm'selle, then I confess to you—it is because I love her."

"I knew it; I am no fool," was her answer. "But I had to hear it from you. It is a remarkable thing to do, but they are in such peril. I think you ought to know."

She took the letter from her bosom, passing it to my hand. A faint odor of violets came with it. It read:

"My Dear Therese: I wish I could see you, if only for an hour. I have so much to say. I have written your father of our prison home. I am going to write you of my troubles. You know what we were talking about the last time I saw you—myself and that handsome fellow. Mon Dieu! I shall not name him. It is not necessary. Well, you were right, my dear. I was a fool; I laughed at your warning; I did not know the meaning of that delicious pain. But oh, my friend, it has become a terrible thing since I know I may never see him again. My heart is breaking with it. Mere de Dieu! I can no longer laugh or jest or pretend to be happy. What shall I say? That I had rather die than live without him? No; that is not enough. I had rather be an old maid and live only with the thought of him than marry another, if he were a king. I remember those words of yours, 'I know he loves you.' Oh, my dear Therese, what a comfort they are to me now! I repeat them often. If I could only say, 'I know'! Alas! I can but say, 'I do not know,' nay, even, 'I do not believe.' If I had not been a fool I should have made him tell me, for I had him over his ears in love with me one day, or I am no judge of a man. But, you know, they are so fickle! And then the Yankee girls are pretty and so clever. Well, they shall not have him if I can help it. When I return there shall be war, if necessary, between France and America. And, Therese, you know I have the weapons, and you have done me the honor to say I know how to use them. I have told Louise, and—what do you think?—the poor thing cried an hour—for pity of me! As ever, she makes my trouble her own. I have been selfish always, but I know the cure. It is love—toujours l'amour. Now I think only of him, and he recalls you and your sweet words. God make you a true prophet! With love to you and the marquis, I kiss each line, praying for happiness for you and for him. Believe me as ever, Your affectionate, LOUISON."

"P.S. I feel better now I have told you. I wonder what his lordship will say. Poor thing! he will read this; he will think me a fool. Eh bien, I have no better thought of him. He can put me under lock and key, but he shall not imprison my secrets; and, if they bore him, he should not read my letters. L."

I read it thrice, and held it for a moment to my lips. Every word stung me with the sweet pain that afflicted its author. I could feel my cheeks burning.

"Ma'mselle, pardon me; it is not I she refers to. She does not say whom."

"Surely," said Therese, flirting her whip and lifting her shoulders. "M'sieur le Capitaine is never a stupid man. You—you should say something very nice now."

"If it is I—thank God— Her misery is my delight, her liberation my one purpose."

"And my congratulations," said she, giving me her hand. "She has wit and beauty, a true heart, a great fortune, and—good luck in having your love."

I raised my hat, blushing to the roots of my hair.

"It is a pretty compliment," I said. "And—and I have no gift of speech to thank you. I am not a match for you except in my love of kindness and—and of Louison. You have made me happier than I have been before."

"If I have made you alert, ingenious, determined, I am content," was her answer. "I know you have courage."

"And will to use it."

"Good luck and adieu!" said she, with a fine flourish of her whip; those people had always a pretty politeness of manner.

"Adieu," I said, lifting my hat as I rode off, with a prick of the spur, for the road was long and I had lost quite half an hour.

My elation gave way to sober thought presently. I began to think of Louise—that quiet, frank, noble, beautiful, great-hearted girl, who might be suffering what trouble I knew not, and all silently, there in her prison home. A sadness grew in me, and then I suddenly saw the shadow of great trouble. I loved them both; I knew not which I loved the better. Yet this interview had almost committed me to Louison.

An Ideal Location

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark, 14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

Story Told of Tom Marshall, the Kentuckian, and the Science of Phrenology.

One of Kentucky's national lawmakers furnishes this story about Tom Marshall: When the science of phrenology first began to attract public attention a lecturer on that line turned up in Louisville and gave talks as well as making examinations of a large number of craniums. This lecturer developed a wonderfully large amount of hidden vice and virtue which had not before been even suspected among the good people of that city. Marshall attended one of the "exhibitions." He was about half-seas over, unfortunately. After the lecture and demonstration closed Marshall and a crowd of friends went to the Galt house to "liquidate" and talk over the newly discovered science. Marshall declared that he could phrenologize as well as the lecturer; that it was a rank fake, and the fellow ought to be rocked out of town. Marshall was requested to go in the parlor and examine a few heads. This he consented to do, and several men and women were entertained by the brilliant man as he called off the different "bumps" and ground out yard after yard of good and bad qualities of the head owners. He knew most of the crowd, and made a vast amount of fun. It happened that among those present a Louisville fop, of scant amount of brains, distinguished for his forwardness and egotism, was left out by Marshall. To this the fop objected, telling him that his head had not been examined. "I beg your pardon, sir," said Marshall, "but you must really excuse me. I am too drunk to read small print by candle light."

VALOR IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Peruvian Ship Battles Desperately for Hours Against Three Chilian Vessels.

Once the Peruvian monitor Huascar fought against three Chilian ships. After both Admiral Grau and his flag lieutenant were killed Capt. Aguirre took command, was killed and then succeeded by Capt. Carbajal, who was put hors de combat by a shell. The command devolved then on Lieut. Palacios, who was disabled, and finally Lieut. Gareyon, with the ship on fire, three feet of water in the hold and with a loss of half his officers and crew, was forced to strike his flag.

On July 23, 1879, the Huascar was in action against the Chilian ship Abtao. Torpedoes were not at that time much understood and, one being fired from the Huascar, through faulty mechanism returned back straight upon the ship. Seeing this and knowing that if the ship was struck she must sink, Lieut. Diaz Canseco jumped overboard and in the water with his hands altered its course just before it came in contact with the ship.

The fierceness of the fighting and the appalling slaughter both in this war and that of Paraguay against Brazil can be matched only by the present war between the Russians and the Japanese. Venezuela, the Argentine Republic, Chili and portions of Peru and of Brazil are inhabited by some of the most athletic and warlike races in the world.

RAISING TEA IN THE SOUTH

Vast Success Has Been Achieved on a Plantation in South Carolina for Twelve Years.

Dr. Charles A. Shepard, of South Carolina, has proved on his own plantation at Summerville, 20 miles out of Charleston, that the growing of tea can be carried on successfully and profitably. He has been doing this for 12 years with such good results that the secretary of agriculture and the congress of the United States highly approve his deeds and both are extending him liberal assistance. "My idea from the start," said Dr. Shepard, "was to add an additional crop to the farm products of the country. The road to agricultural supremacy is through diversifying. My friends seem to think I have been successful, and I have every reason to be gratified with what has been accomplished. Tea-raising in the United States is certainly practicable. It is no new thing in this country, for in the old days a French priest planted tea on the banks of the Ashley river. But owing to the difference in the cost of labor the United States cannot compete with the orient in low grade or cheap teas. It will pay us to produce only that of the highest quality, which brings a high price in market. The tea grown on my place in South Carolina compares with the best that is imported from eastern lands."

Apple Tempted Eve.

A botanical friend showed me not long since what he said was an apple that must have tempted Eve in what was surely a tropical fruit garden, says a writer in Country Life in America. It was a little bit of an oriental crab, about a third of an inch in diameter, and, of course, it was bitterly sour! My philosophizing friend pointed out that, of course, the fruits in Eden were the natural "wild" fruits, and he was wondering whether the fall of mankind would not have been accelerated if the attracting tree had been hung with a fair crop of the golden bellflower, or of crimson-striped wealthy or winesap!

The members of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school enjoyed their annual Christmas entertainment last evening in the form of an elaborate cantata entitled "The Koronation of Kris Kringle." Afterward candy, oranges and gifts were distributed by Miss Florence Hawkins.

The committee which had the affair in charge consisted of Mrs. W. S. Lowry, chairman, Miss Florence Hawkins and G. E. Hall. An orchestra in charge of George W. V. Moy rendered musical selections during the evening.

FIFTH MAN IMPLICATED IN STABBING AFFRAY

LEE WELLS SENT TO JAIL TO AWAIT GRAND JURY'S ACTION.

Preferring to dispose of the matter at once than to let it drag along, the Somerset County Grand Jury now in session, has decided to take up the case of the four colored men arrested after the bloody fight with policemen Sunday morning, at once.

Witnesses were summoned today and testimony is being taken. Lee Wells, the fifth colored man to be implicated in the affair, was arraigned before Recorder Doud last night on a charge of inciting the others, but he was remanded to Somerville. Tunstall has secured counsel and the others will likely apply for it today.

The condition of the two victims, Flack and Klein, was reported today as being favorable. Flack is the worst off of the two but he is still holding his own. Klein has been gaining steadily and at the present time no signs of blood poisoning have developed.

CHIEF JUSTICE MAY RESIGN

Rumored That He May Leave Supreme Bench After Roosevelt's Inauguration.

Washington.—Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller, of the supreme court of the United States, plans, it is said, to resign his office on March 5, 1905, the day after he has administered the oath of office to President Theodore Roosevelt. In this event it is conceded that Secretary of War Taft will be appointed by the president to the vacancy on the supreme bench. Chief Justice Fuller will be 72 years old on February 11, 1905, and will then be entitled to retire from the bench and enjoy a salary of $10,500 a year as long as he lives. No chief justice of the supreme court has ever resigned. All have died on the bench. Chief Justice Fuller has administered the oath of office to four presidents, Harrison, Cleveland and McKinley twice. He was appointed April 30, 1888.

CHIEF JUSTICE FULLER.
(He May Resign from the United States Supreme Bench.)

Justice Fuller has been chief justice of the United States since 1888, having been appointed by President Cleveland. During his incumbency of the office he has been called upon to pass judgment upon many of the most important cases that have ever come before the supreme court in the history of the nation, legal tangles that grew out of the expansion of the nation following the war with Spain.

Justice Fuller was born in Augusta, Me., February 11, 1833. After his graduation at Bowdoin college, in 1853, he formed a law partnership in his native town, and also engaged in newspaper work at the same time, being associate editor of The Age, a democratic paper there. In 1856 he sought a new field in the middle west, and settled in Chicago, where he opened a law office. From that time until the date of his appointment to the supreme bench he figured to a considerable extent in Illinois politics. He was a member of the Illinois state constitutional convention in 1862; was elected to the state legislature, and a delegate to the democratic national conventions of 1864, 1872, 1876 and 1880.

In Washington Justice Fuller has been a prominent figure in social life, and has been extremely popular with all classes of officialdom. He is a great admirer of President Roosevelt, and his desire to remain in office long enough to entitle him to administer the oath of office to the president on the 4th of next March is the result of the friendship of the two men.

cave afforded no safe path of descent, but now, through the efforts of M. Martel, a French lawyer, a winding stairway, inclosed in a steel skeleton tower has been built from the floor to the mouth of the cave.

The crystal formations, which have been compared in beauty to those of Mammoth Cave, Kentucky, glitter in the light of electric globes, with which the cave has been fitted.

BOGUS CHECK MAN GETS 2 YEARS SENTENCE

JOHN J. McCABE UNDERGOES IMPRISONMENT FOR HIS CRIMES.

James J. McCabe, who worked the bad check game in many cities and who tried to work it on John J. Kenney, in this city, sometime ago, has received a sentence of two years' imprisonment in the criminal court at Baltimore, Md. When arrested here, he was turned over to the Baltimore authorities, the case against him there being a much stronger one. He confessed his crimes.

McCabe's scheme was to defraud undertakers by arranging to have them take charge of funerals. At an opportune moment he would present a check on some out of town bank, explaining that he was temporarily short of funds. In each instance he would represent himself to be a member of the Knights of Columbus, having the pass words and signs. When he attempted the game on Mr. Kenney, John J. Whelan notified Detective McCarthy who placed the man under arrest.

SCHOOLS MAY DEBATE

Move to Introduce Argument in Inter-Academic League.

LEALS NOT FAVORABLE

Local School Not Likely to Vote for Its Adoption—Chess May Also Have a Place.

The New Jersey Academic League, which is conducting amateur athletic contests between the schools in northern New Jersey, has under consideration the advisability of adding to the competitions chess tournaments and debating contests. In this league are represented the following schools: Leal's, Newark Academy, Montclair Military Academy, Carteret and Pingry. So far no relations have existed between the various schools in this league other than in an athletic line. It has been considered wise to extend the contests so as to cover other branches, and the scheme is now in the hands of a committee.

As far as the local end of the affair is concerned it is not likely that Leal's School will vote for the adoption of a chess and debating tournament. Though the local school has been carrying on debates for the last six months, the authorities deem it unwise to devote more time to outside work. Several interesting and well conducted debates have been held at the local private school, and among the pupils are many good speakers and good debaters.

In all of the schools which are represented in this inter-academic league, the game of chess is to a great extent a new one, and this contest is the least probable to meet with favorable consideration. None of the members of the local school play chess, and it would be a fruitless attempt for them to take time which might be put to better use, to compete in a chess tournament.

Among those who have debated at Leal's School this year, and the subjects of the debates are the following: "Resolved, That the United States Ought to Give Up the Philippines." Junior, affirmative, Hooley and Valiant; negative, Rowland and Glenney; Senior, affirmative, P. Chapman and Wilcox; negative, Curtis and Suffern. "Resolved, That the United States Ought to Build and Maintain a Large Navy." Junior, affirmative, C. Chapman and Wills; negative, Browne and Scott; Senior, affirmative, Jewett and Strong; negative, Millar and Waring. "Resolved, That the Right to Vote Should be Further Restricted by an Educational and Property Qualification." Junior only, affirmative, Lyman and Gutierrez; negative, Vandeveer and L. Smith. "Resolved, That the Right to Vote Should be Given to Women." Junior, affirmative, Bates and Stryker; negative, Gough and Booth Senior, affirmative, Reese and W. Smith; negative, Wyckoff and Daniel.

DANCE AT PARK CLUB.

Given by Mr. and Mrs. Lowe in Daughter's Honor.

Among the particularly pleasant social events of Christmas week was a dance given at the Park Club, last night, by Mr. and Mrs. William E. Lowe, of Park avenue, for their daughter, Miss Margaret Lowe. There were about one hundred guests, comprising many of the young people who are home from school for the holidays. The club house was made attractive with Christmas decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Lowe received the guests. Music for dancing, which was continued until a late hour, was furnished by Austin.

Had a House Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Jules Stephany, of Summit avenue, were given a surprise on Christmas Day by a visit from their life-long friend, David Basch and family, of New York. Their son, Mortimer, having returned from Paris, where he spent two years at the Conservatore de Music, he played several classical selections on the piano and Henry Stephany entertained with selections on the phonograph, while August Stephany played the mandolin, and Miss Edith Basch sang operatic selections. Following a turkey dinner, the guests returned home.

FIRE IN A CLOSED HOUSE

Residence of Mr. Mygatt, West Eighth St., Damaged.

THE LOSS IS $1,200

Family Away at the Time, and Origin of the Fire is a Mystery—Department Worked Hard.

With no one in the house to give an alarm, flames broke out mysteriously in a closet on the first floor at the residence of Frederic E. Mygatt, of 414 West Eighth street, shortly after 6 o'clock last evening, causing nearly $1,000 damage. After spreading some distance about the main hallway the fire found its way up the stairs to the second floor and then by a second flight of stairs to the third floor. Flames were bursting out of a window when they were discovered by Charles T. Kescad, coachman for W. T. Gough, who turned in the alarm for the West fire on Central avenue last October. He first summoned the fire department by telephone and then pulled box 32.

The blaze had a good start before the arrival of the department and it was twenty-five minutes before it was gotten under control. Despite this fact and also that three lines of hose were laid in the flames were confined to the vicinity of the stairways and but very little damage resulted from water. On the first floor only the hallway and kitchen suffered and above it was only stairways and hallways. Insurance men who have already looked over the premises declare it a remarkable piece of work on the part of the department. It was an hour and a half before the recall was sounded.

Mr. Mygatt, the occupant of the house, has been stopping at Truell Inn, his family being away, and knew nothing of the fire until informed by a neighbor. He was at a loss to explain the origin and an investigation conducted by Chief Doane fails to give any idea. The buiding, which is a brick structure owned by a Mrs. Green, of Orange, was damaged to the amount of $700, with an additional $250 loss on furniture.

Y.M.C.A. BASEBALL FANS TO MEET NEXT MONTH

FOR THE PURPOSE OF DISCUSSING PLANS FOR NEXT SEASON.

Under the physical directorship of Fred A. Henckel, of the Y. M. C. A., the baseball stock of that organization has gone up fifty per cent. Last year an attempt was made to organize a baseball team, but there were too many managers, and the enterprise fell through. Two years ago the Y. M. C. A. had an amateur baseball team, but they have not had the opportunity or the material since to win another pennant in there had been three leagues.

It is the intention of the management of the Y. M. C. A. baseball affairs to put a team on the diamond next season, if possible, as good as the one which represented it two years ago, but at all events, a strictly non-professional organization. The Y. M. C. A. has stood for the cleanest athletics for many years, and it was when professionalism took a hold on this city last year, that baseball cranks first realized and expressed the fact that the town was better off when there was an amateur league.

As to what sort of a team the Y. M. C. A. will organize, Mr. Henckel is unable to say at present, but a meeting will be held in the interest of baseball some time in January. The opinions of the various Y. M. C. A. ball and bat enthusiasts will be solicited, and the initial plans outlined. There is some possibility that the local Y. M. C. A. may enter a league which is proposed among the Y. M. C. A.s of the northern part of the State. The recently organized Physical Directors' Society has not yet decided upon the advisability of such an inter-association league, but if one is organized the local nine will have a place in the score book.

Veterans to Gather.

Past Department Commander W. O. Smith, of Winfield Scott Post, G. A. At the close of the installation a camp fire will take place under the supervision of Woman's Relief Corps.

WANTS MR. KELLER JAILED

First Wife of Plainfield Man Makes Fight for Alimony.

DIVORCE SECRETS

Proceedings in New York Supreme Court Against Plainfielder, Who Married Co-respondent.

Through proceedings brought in the New York Supreme Court by his divorced wife, Mrs. Annie Louise Keller, the secrets surrounding the separation of Augustus R. Keller, of this city, and the complainant, have just been revealed. A fight is now in progress over the amount of alimony to be paid and the first Mrs. Keller is seeking to have her former husband placed in Ludlow street jail, New York. Keller now lives at 937 West Seventh street with his second wife, who was named as co-respondent in the divorce proceedings and who at the time was employed in his publishing offices.

The divorce was granted in April, 1903, by Judge Fitzgerald, of the New York Supreme Court, who sealed all the papers and threw a veil of secrecy over the proceedings. Keller was ordered to pay alimony of $35 a month and to give a $5,000 bond as guarantee. It appears that he failed to pay, and Justice O'Gorman issued an order adjudging him in contempt. Justice Scott denied a motion to vacate this order and Keller took an appeal. In the meantime he took up his residence in Plainfield, thus freeing himself from the jurisdiction of the New York courts, making it impossible for the sheriff to obey the orders given him to put Keller in Ludlow street jail.

The first Mrs. Keller alleges that her former husband has been guilty of additional contempt of court in having married contrary to the terms of the decree.

The trouble now in progress originally came about through Mrs. Keller securing an increase in her alimony, last May, from $35 to $135, Keller being required to furnish a $5,000 bond. Keller is said to have asserted that he would not pay it and that no court could make him.

BOWEN TO RETURN.

President Castro May Ask for His Recall.

Herbert W. Bowen, brother of H. E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, American Minister to Venezuela, may be recalled by this Government at the request of President Castro, as was his predecessor at Caracas, according to a story in yesterday's New York Herald.

Reports have reached Washington of coolness between Mr. Bowen, who has just returned to Caracas, and the Executive of Venezuela. It is said that Mr. Bowen in the discharge of his duties has had several sharp tilts with President Castro, who, according to common report, is a first rate rascal. Mr. Bowen is under instruction to press the Venezuelan government for a settlement of pending difficulties. Whether this government would consent to Mr. Bowen's withdrawal is not known.

Justice and Mrs. Elmore D. Moffett, who spent Christmas with their daughter in Trenton, have returned home.

MORE XMAS FESTIVALS

Pleasing Exercises at Various Churches Last Night.

LARGELY ATTENDED

Services at Hope Chapel, St. Stephen's Church and Friends' Meeting House Among Number.

Hope chapel Sunday-school and its friends enjoyed their annual Christmas entertainment last evening, at which an excellent programme delighted old and young. It was made up of impersonations, imitations and ventriloquism by Professor Bryant, of New York; violin and piano duetts by the Misses May and Agnes McInnis and vocal selections by Elmer D. Cutting, accompanied by Clifford Braider. Carols were sung by the entire gathering and an address was made by Assistant Superintendent I. W. Travell. The usual distributin of books and dolls was made among the primary members and candy and oranges to the main school.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair consisted of I. W. Travell, chairman; Dr. D. G. Atwood, Thomas M. Muir, Miss Gertrude Hunter, Miss Clara Hunter and Mrs. N. C. King.

Christmas exercises of a pleasing character were held in the Friends meeting-house on Watchung avenue, last evening, under the direction of Margaret Vail, superintendent of the First day school. The members and friends of the school assembled at 7:30 and enjoyed a programme consisting of concert reading by the school, a recitation, "A Christmas Carol," by Helen Poole; an exercise, entitled "The Year," by thirteen boys and girls; a reading, "Is There a Santa Claus," by Agnes Cooley; a recitation, "Is He a King," by Dorothy Underhill; a reading, "A Christmas Dream," by Marjorie Cooley; a recitation, "Daisy Sutton," by Gladys Richardson.

After this programme about fifty fine colored views of the Yellowstone Park were shown on a screen by Charles E. Vail and described by Horace E. Vail. The views were among some of the best ever shown and were greatly enjoyed.

The members of the school then adjourned to the room above where an abundance of ice cream and cake were served by a committee in charge of the entertainment. Afterward the parents and friends were served. Each pupil also received a box of candy and an orange.

The annual Christmas festival at St. Stephen's church Sunday-school was held at the church yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when the tree was lighted and the pupils and friends joined in a programme appropriate to the occasion. In addition to the school of nearly one hundred there were many parents and friends present. The early part of the festival took the form of even song. There were carols by the school under the direction of Charles Suhr, organist, assisted by John Bennett on the cornet.

Following this service there was the distribution of gifts. Every pupil received a box of candy, while others not members of the school were also favored with candy. There were special gifts on the tree for the rector, Rev. Arthur Peck, the organist, each member of the choir, the secretary, librarian and treasurer of the school. These were of a substantial nature and much appreciated. It is gratifying to the rector and workers in the church and Sunday-school that the numbers have increased steadily since Mr. Peck entered upon the work in July last and there is now more than ordinary interest in this parish. The gifts were distributed by Hanford Miller and John King.

Contrary to the usual custom, there was no Christmas tree at the annual Christmas festival of the Sunday-school of Grace church Tuesday evening. The exercises consisted of Christmas carols by the pupils, and the entertainment was to a great extent in charge of a New York magician and humorist. Miss Florence Tweedy and a committee was in charge of the affair.

Warren chapel's annual entertainment was in two parts, the primary department holding forth in the afternoon and the seniors in the evening. At the former, the exercises were brief, the pupils singing carols and gifts being distributed by Mrs. Elizabeth Ulrich. In the evening moving pictures were shown by a professional concern and recitations were given by Miss Aimee Louise Emmons. Candy and oranges were passed about in conclusion.

The pupils of the Sunday-school de-

SAYS HE BROKE UP HOME

So Declares W. C. Emery in Suit Against David Taylor.

ASKS $10,000 DAMAGES

Plaintiff Says Defendant Alienated His Wife's Affections—Trial on at Newark.

Watson C. Emery, of Irvington, who at one time resided here and later at Dunellen, told Chief Justice Gummere and a jury at Newark yesterday that the actions of his wife, Rebecca, and David Taylor, a Lincoln hotel keeper, had caused him so much misery that he often wished that somebody would kill him.

Emery is suing Taylor for $10,000 for the alleged alienation of Mrs. Emery's affections.

Emery testified that he was married April 28, 1889, in New York city. They have four children. After marriage the couple lived in this city, West Dunellen and Irvington. It was while a resident of Dunellen that his domestic troubles began.

He told how one day Taylor came to his house to make a deal in horses and Mrs. Emery then first met him. They formed a friendship, Emery alleged, that was continued until the present time, with the exception of one period, when he believed it was broken. But, he declared, it was resumed, and the climax was reached in 1903, when, Emery declared, his wife left him and went to Lincoln to live in the same house with the defendant.

"Taylor frequently drove to my place," said the plaintiff. "Sometimes he called in my presence, but oftener during my absence. He wanted to loan me money and offered to form a partnership with me.

"Once I caught Taylor covering up the tracks of his horse and carriage near my home. Another time I caught him and my eldest child doing a similar trick. They used a rake and broom.

"I told my wife," said Emery plaintively, "that Taylor was a bad man, and I asked him to stop his visits so that my family might be saved from disgrace. My appeals were useless."

"Did you ever beat your wife?" counsel for the defendant asked.

"Never. Once I quarreled with her about her habits. She was away from home much and once she stayed in Coney Island two weeks."

The case is still on trial today.

REFORM FOR ECONOMY IN UNION COUNTY NOW

JUSTICE FORT DECIDES NOT TO PAY PETIT JURORS FOR NOTHING.

The January term of the Union County Court will begin Tuesday before Supreme Court Justice J. Franklin Fort, but while the Grand Jury will be announced and sworn in on that date, and the list of cases on the calendar be called and dates set down for their trial, the petit jurors will not be summoned to appear until Monday, January 9. This is the first time in the history of the Union County Court that such a thing has happened, and it is done by order of Justice Fort, who wants to save the county from the expense of having the forty-eight petit jurors come to court on the opening day of the term and get paid, as they have been in the past, $2 a day, for merely answering their names.

Justice Fort has informed the Sheriff that he will be unable to try any cases next week, and, therefore, does not see why the county should be put to needless expense. This is in line with Justice Fort's previous action, when he instructed the Sheriff, for the sake of economy, to reduce the panel of petit jurors from fifty-four to forty-eight, and also to cut down the number of court constables.

PUBLIC OFFICE GOSSIP

Murphy May be Chairman of the Finance Committee.

COUNCILMANIC PLUMS

Tyler Likely to be Head of Police Committee—Bullock for Chairmanship of Fire Committee.

While it is not believed that it will be Mayor-elect J. F. Buckle's policy to make any decided changes in his appointments that are to be made by him in January, there is a feeling that he has made no promises, preferring to make the selections according to his judgment. That there is not likely to be many changes is shown by the fact that Mr. Buckle has always shown a disposition to leave well-enough-alone in other city matters with which he has had to do and he is a great believer in the fact that the various departments are well managed and good returns are given to the taxpayers.

This policy is not likely to be so pronounced in the Common Council for it is said that some decided changes are planned by President-elect Leslie M. Daniel. His leaving the floor makes a vacancy in the chairmanship of one of the most important committees, the finance, and there is a report in circulation that Councilman Clarence L. Murphy will succeed Mr. Daniel. This honor, his friends claim, is due him, as he has been in the Common Council two terms.

The rumor that there is to be a change in the head of the police committee continues to gain strength and according to it Mr. Tyler will succeed the present chairman, Frank DeW. Randolph. Councilman W. S. Bullock is the natural successor to Robert L. Lee as chairman of the fire committee, as he is the second member of that committee had has devoted more or less time to a study of fire matters.

In the change among the heads of the various committees, there is unusual interest manifested as to who will be chairman of the license committee, providing Mr. Tyler goes over to the police committee. It is possible that Mr. Hibbard may be appointed to the position. There is an impression that Councilman R. I. Teller, who retires as president, will return to the chairmanship of the streets and sewer committee, the work of which he is so familiar with. There is no doubt but that the more experienced members will be chosen for the important committees and the others will be given secondary place.

Mr. Daniel has also exercised great care in all his work for the city, and his friends have no hesitation in leaving the matter of appointments to him in the makeup of the committees, knowing that it will be his aim to give a wise distribution and to select those who he thinks will best be able to do the work on the committees.

FIRE AT GARWOOD.

Double Tenement House Destroyed Last Night.

Fire destroyed a double tenement house at Third avenue and Oak street, Garwood, last night, and the contents were a total loss. The blaze was discovered about 8:30 o'clock and owing to the high wind, it spread very rapidly throughout the building. The Garwood fire department was quick to respond and soon afterward the Cranford department arrived to assist in fighting the flames. The two departments succeeded in preventing the fire from spreading to adjoining property.

The tenement house was owned by an estate in Newark and was occupied by C. D. Corteleigh, borough clerk of Garwood, and Charles Kiln. The loss on the building was $2,500 and that on the contents $15,000. Both building and contents were insured.

Backache is really kidney ache.
To cure the back you must cure the kidneys.
If you don't other kidney ills follow—
Diabetes, Brights disease.

A Plainfield citizen tells you how—the cure is easy.

Mrs. Valentine Utzinger, of 75 Grandview avenue, says: 'I suffered from kidney complaint for six years. I doctored and used various kinds of medicine with little or no result. I had almost a constant sharp darting pain across my back and if I ever exerted myself or took cold I suffered severely. I always felt it most when the weather was damp. While in this condition I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and my son bought me a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. I started to use them at once, following directions closely. They helped the pain in my back, and relieved the other difficulty. I give all the credit for this relief to Doan's Kidney Pills for they are beyond a doubt a wonderful medicine for kidney trouble."

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS.

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

ESTERRE AT NEW ORLEANS.

Feature of Racing Was Defeat of Long Shot In Third.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29.—There were no signs of the blizzard here except in the difference in temperature, the air being crisp, cool and clear, a decided relief from the muggy, damp atmosphere of last week.

It was ideal racing weather and made outdoor sport thoroughly enjoyable. The card was fairly good and the track in excellent shape and almost fast.

Lauralighter was the only successful favorite to land. Summaries:

First Race.—Lampoon, first; Knowledge, second; Arachue, third.

Second Race.—Lady Fonse, first; Bessie McCarthy, second; Swift Wing, third.

Third Race.—Esterre, first; Belle Indian, second; Queen Rose, third.

Fourth Race.—Lauralighter, first; Extol, second; Rankin, third.

Fifth Race.—Fannette, first; Torlo, second; Yellow Hammer, third.

Sixth Race.—Midshipman, first; Dr. Gwaney, second; Joe Lesser, third.

Racing at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—Jockey Davis won the first four events at Oakland and was second in the remaining two. Four favorites won. Silverskin, the favorite in the second race, would have won if his rider's stirrup had not broken. Before the fifth race Ferryman threw Jockey Daly at the post. Daly's leg was broken.

Poor Sport at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 29.—Racing at Ascot was featureless. Two favorites won, the other events going either to second choices or well played third choices except the last race, which was won by Emily Oliver at 20 to 1. Hildebrand rode in his old form. He successfully piloted three winners.

Woonsocket Man Guilty of Murder.

CROOKSTON, Minn., Dec. 29.—Joseph Guilmette of Woonsocket, R. I., has been found guilty of murder in the first degree for killing Mathias Mongeon, whose home it is believed was in Canada. The crime was committed on Oct. 7 last. The men, who had just returned from the harvest fields, were thought to have quarreled over the earnings of the past summer. The victim was shot, and his head was crushed with some blunt instrument. The body was then dragged to some underbrush and was not found until some time later. The verdict carries with it life imprisonment or hanging.

Choate's Resignation Not In Yet.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—While numerous semiofficial statements have been published here that Ambassador Choate is about to retire from diplomatic life, it can be stated that Mr. Choate has not sent his resignation or any communication on the subject to President Roosevelt or the state department, nor has he received any inquiry either from the president or Secretary Hay concerning his future plans. It can be safely asserted, however, that it is Mr. Choate's intention to tender his resignation soon after the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

Secret Conference With Black.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Secret conferences, which were held at the Republican club between Governor Odell, former Governor Frank S. Black and the supporters of the latter's candidacy for United States senator as successor to Chauncey M. Depew, were believed to portend a long expected announcement from Governor Odell. As a result of his protracted talks the governor is expected to pronounce himself in some fashion either for Mr. Depew or Mr. Black or to make a declaration that he will take no part in the senatorial contest.

Cotton Buyer Shot Himself.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Dec. 29.—J. B. Harrison, a prominent cotton buyer, fatally shot himself here. Losses on cotton contracts led to the act. His losses are estimated at about $25,000. He has been despondent for the past few days and yesterday bought a pistol. Immediately thereafter, seeing the figures given at the close of the market for the day, he went to his room and shot himself. He was forty-five years old and stood well among the people here.

Ice Carried Out Bridge.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 29.—The ice in going out washed out a part of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad bridge which is being rebuilt across the Tioughnioga river at Chenango Forks, tying up the Utica division of that road. Passengers were transferred across the river to the Syracuse division of the same road, and later milk and passenger trains for the Utica division were run over the Delaware and Hudson to Sidney.

DEMAND THE BALLOT

Moscow Police Break Up Zemstvos' Banquet.

CLOSED CONFERENCE AS PROTEST.

Note of Warning, Credited to Grand Duke Sergius, May Lead to a Renewal of Terrorism Throughout Russia.

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—Grave fears prevail here that the resentment aroused by the czar's supplementary note warning the zemstvos against discussing matters deemed outside their very limited powers may result in violence. The city is excited, and any untoward incident would quickly kindle a riot.

A banquet held on the anniversary of the Troubetzskoi revolution was broken up at 3 o'clock in the morning by order of the police because those present passed a resolution demanding the ballot. The Moscow zemstvo had already adjourned sine die as a protest against the government warning and the return of Grand Duke Sergius, governor general of Moscow, who is held responsible for the note which may signalize a renewal of terrorism.

Among those present at the banquet were popular writers, professors of the university, mining school and the Technological institute, editors and Socialist workmen. M. E. Kairine, the well known lawyer and member of the St. Petersburg municipality, presided. The text of a resolution, which was carried by 766 to 7 votes after many fervid speeches, was as follows:

"In view of the horrors of the war, which is devoid of sense, and in view also of the enormous sacrifices and ruin in which the country is being involved, we, representing the liberal professions and working classes, protest against the war into which the government dragged the nation without consideration for the opinions of interests of the Russian people, and we express our profound belief that only the nation itself can save Russia from her difficulties through free representatives of the people elected by secret ballot on the principle of equal rights. Our motto is 'Peace and Freedom.'"

Musical Festival at Bethlehem.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 29.—This old historic town is resounding with the majestic harmonies of Bach's immortal Christmas oratorio and a number of his most fetching church cantatas, as last night the historic Moravian church was crowded at the opening of the three day festival of the Bach cycle. Scores of visitors shared with many people from this vicinity what was voted to be one of Dr. J. Fred Wolles' most accomplished musical triumphs. The soloists were: Soprano, Mrs. Marie Zimmerman, Miss Lucy A. Brickenstein and Master John Eskroth; contralto, Miss Marguerite Hall; tenor, Nicholas Doughty; bass, Julian Walker.

Locomotive Toppled Over.

ASHTABULA, O., Dec. 29.—The locomotive and two express cars of the Southwestern express, eastbound on the Lake Shore railroad, were derailed in this city last night. The locomotive toppled over on its side, but the cars were pulled back on to the track, and after a delay of less than an hour the train proceeded with a new locomotive. The engineer and fireman jumped from their engine and were not hurt. No passengers were hurt. The Southwestern express is a through train on the Big Four and Lake Shore from St. Louis.

Ingalls, Cortland; secretary and treasurer, F. T. Hakes, Cortland. Among subjects discussed were the cultivation of ginseng and legislation necessary for protection of growers. Efforts are to be made to have every state pass a law prohibiting the sale of Japanese ginseng in its borders unless it is labeled as such.

Young Girl's Neck Broken.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—An autopsy performed by Coroner's Physician Weston on the body of the young woman who died in an ambulance soon after she was found in the snow in Riverside park here early on Monday morning revealed that death had resulted from a broken neck. It had been thought that exposure killed the girl, but Dr. Weston said the absence of congestion of the lungs showed that the exposure was not the cause of death.

WRECK AT HATTERAS

Unknown Steamer on Inner Diamond Shoals.

LIFE SAVERS CANNOT APPROACH HER

Held Fast In Graveyard of Shipping Known as "Hell's Hole"—Signs of Life on Board—Heavy Sea Prevents Rescue.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 29.—Battered by heavy seas, an unknown steamer lies helpless on the Inner Diamond shoals, eight miles off Cape Hatteras, and faint lights seen now and then carry a message to the life saving corps on shore that there are human lives aboard the wrecked craft that cannot be saved until wind and sea have calmed sufficiently to allow the surfboats to be launched.

The observer of the United States weather bureau at Hatteras first saw the steamer when the fog lifted shortly before noon yesterday. At that time she appeared to be in distress, and later it was seen that she had grounded on the inner shoal, known to mariners as "Hell's Hole," in the graveyard of shipping. Heavy seas careened the vessel on her beams, and at 3 o'clock she was lying on her port side, with seas washing all over her. The smoke that her funnel emitted early in the day was no longer discernible, and it was then supposed that her fires had been extinguished by water filling the hull.

The steamer has three masts and one funnel. Her engines and boilers are aft, and the funnel is between the mainmast and mizzen mast. From her description it is thought she may be one of the fruit liners that ply between West Indian ports and Baltimore or New York.

The observer at Hatteras reported that the life saving crews of several stations along the Carolina coast in the vicinity of Hatteras were on the beach ready to launch their surfboats the minute the wind and tide had abated sufficiently to allow them to do so. At that time the wind had dropped from forty to thirty-six miles an hour, but the mercury also was falling steadily, and the approach of freezing weather bodes ill for the crew imprisoned upon the steamer. The report states that at sunset the vessel had apparently righted herself somewhat and that if the wind and sea did not increase there was a probability of her remaining intact for a time at least, thus giving the life savers a chance to reach her.

From the size of the steamer it is estimated she carries a complement of twenty-five men, but it has been impossible to secure a view that would allow any surmise as to her character being made. There may be passengers aboard.

Word from the scene expresses little hope that loss of life can be averted. Several hours, while on her port beam, the steamer was at times completely covered by the breakers that piled up on her decks, striking with terrific force. The lights appeared to those on shore last night as torchlights and not signals of any regular character.

STILL ON THE BAR.

British Steamer Drumelzier Stuck Fast on Fire Island.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Shrouded in fog and pounded by heavy seas the British tramp steamer Drumelzier still rolls on the Fire island bar with her keel stuck fast in the sand. So high is the surf that the members of the two life saving crews at Fire island were unable to make any attempts to launch a lifeboat and were compelled simply to sit on the beach and watch the big vessel containing its crew of thirty-two men, a grim, gray hulk, tortured by the seas. Her condition is rapidly growing worse.

The Drumelzier lies three-quarters of a mile off the point of the beach. Her stern is well up on the south side of the bar and she is heading toward the southeast. The spray is breaking clean over her.

The Merritt-Chapman tug and the revenue cutter Mohawk are in the vicinity, but are unable to approach close to her. The crew is still on board.

It looks as if the chances of getting the big vessel off the bar are exceedingly slim, and the life savers believe that the captain and crew of the ill fated vessel are in a very precarious position. How much longer the big ship can stand the pounding is a question.

Aged Farmer Burned to Death.

GLEN COVE, N. Y., Dec. 29.—Charles Freeman, a farmer, aged eighty years, has been burned to death in his home on the Jericho road. Freeman lived with his daughter. An oil stove in his bedroom exploded, and the flames spread with great rapidity. Miss Freeman was not only unable to save her father, but had to flee from the house to escape a similar fate.

Bodine Will Conduct Inquiry.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29. — Rev. Dr. W. B. Bodine will be chairman of the board of inquiry which will investigate the charges brought by the Rev. Ingram N. W. Irvine against Bishop Ethelbert Talbot of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of central Pennsylvania, growing out of his connection with the deposition of Dr. Irvine from the priesthood.

Kansas Pioneer Dead.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Dec. 29.—John M. Pickart, who took part in the early border troubles in this state and was with the party that captured "Old Kickapoo," the proslavery party's cannon, is dead at his home here of pneumonia, aged seventy years.

BLIZZARD IN THE WEST.

Railway Traffic Paralyzed Between Chicago and St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 29.—Although causing but little trouble in St. Paul, the storm brought serious trouble in many districts of the west and northwest, paralyzing railway traffic and working havoc with the movement of trains.

Between St. Paul and Chicago hardly one of the seven railways was able to get its fast trains through. Trains are stuck in the snow throughout Wisconsin and probably will not move with any regularity for some time.

Freight traffic is still absolutely blocked.

Five through trains from Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City were caught in snowdrifts and held. A dozen southbound trains were likewise snowed in.

The Omaha's northwestern limited trains, both northbound and southbound, were stalled by the tremendous drifts.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul's main line was blocked at Lake City.

The Wisconsin Central was cut off entirely and, with wrecked telegraph line and serious snow troubles, has not yet moved its through trains.

Other lines suffered equally with these, only one of them, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, bringing in mails on time.

ASK ROOSEVELT'S AID.

Armenian Revolutionaries Look to Us to Help Reform.

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—The Armenian Revolutionary federation committees in the United States of America, which has headquarters in this city, has addressed a letter to President Roosevelt presenting congratulations on his "triumphant election to the exalted office of the presidency of the United States and their sincere appreciation for the sympathetic reception accorded to the delegates to the catholicos of all Armenians."

The letter continues:

"Permit us, Mr. President, to plead and hope that with all legitimate means in your power you will endeavor to secure the much needed reforms, which consist of nothing more than safety of life and honor for the defenseless Armenian people who are subjected to a systematic extermination under the Turkish regime. Our people look with strong hopes to the United States as the champion of freedom, to which they owe much for their intellectual development and progress and which has always raised a noble and disinterested protest in behalf of peoples suffering under the yoke of tyranny."

NAN MAY GO FREE.

Bail For "Florodora" Girl Tendered From West Virginia.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Dispatches from Fairmont, W. Va., received here say that T. A. Deveney, one of the most wealthy men of that city, has confirmed the report that H. J. Price, Edward Slack, business men, and he would furnish bail for Nan Patterson, now in the Tombs awaiting retrial on a charge of having murdered Caesar Young, to the extent of $50,000 if necessary to secure her release.

Mr. Deveney said this action was not taken in order to obtain publicity in connection with the case, but because he and his friends believed thoroughly in the girl's innocence of the crime with which she is charged.

Daniel O'Reilly, one of her counsel, has in his possession the following telegram which was received by his client. It is addressed to Miss Nan Patterson, Tombs Prison, New York; is dated Fairmont, W. Va., and reads as follows:

"We will furnish bonds to the extent of $50,000 if needed."

The telegram is signed by P. A. Deveney, H. J. Price, Edward Slack and C. W. Swisher.

Dispatches from Fairmont, however, stated that Mr. Swisher denied absolutely that he ever had signed the telegram or had authorized the use of his name in any way in connection with the case.

Following a conference between Abraham Levy and Daniel O'Reilly of counsel for Nan Patterson and Assistant District Attorney Rand, who prosecuted the murder charge against the actress, it became evident that if the prisoner is ever tried again there will be a delay of several months at least. Mr. Rand refused to commit himself when asked about a second trial.

After Miss Patterson's counsel had left Mr. Rand the latter said that the attorneys had called upon him to ask that no immediate action be taken. Mr. Levy told him, he said, that his physical condition is far from good and that he wants a rest before being called upon again to undertake a defense. Mr. Rand said he told Mr. Levy and Mr. O'Reilly that he, too, felt in need of a rest.

These new developments indicate that Nan Patterson may be at liberty within a very few days and that the matter of a new trial is a question of the distant future, if, indeed, she will ever be tried again.

Train Lost In the Snow.

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Dec. 29.—A Chicago Great Western freight train, lost in the snowstorm, has been wrecked two miles south of Melbourne, causing injuries to six train and section men. Section Man William Boger was buried under snow and coal two hours before he could be rescued. He was pinned down by a piece of timber driven through the calf of his leg. A wrecking train sent from Des Moines was stuck in a snowdrift two miles distant and was unable to assist. Traffic on two roads out of this city, the Iowa Central and the Chicago Great Western, is at a standstill.

Bail For Mrs. Chadwick.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 29.—A syndicate for which Attorney P. D. Quigley of this city is spokesman is said to be ready and willing to furnish bail up to the sum of $40,000 to procure the release of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, held in jail here awaiting trial on the charge of forgery. Attorney Quigley would not give the names of the prospective bondsmen of Mrs. Chadwick, but says that they are well able to furnish any reasonable sum of money required if Mrs. Chadwick is permitted to go out on bail.

STOESSEL AND SMIRNOFF INJURED

China Employing Japanese Officers to Train Her Troops In Place of German Instructors—Harbor of Kelung Mined.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—A Shanghai report says that the Chinese government is discharging the German military instructors throughout the Yangtse region and replacing them with Japanese officers.

From Mukden General Sacharoff, in recording recent reconnoitering operations, reports that a Cossack officer, Prince Yildaroff, has been killed.

Advices from Tokyo say that General Kondrachenko, chief of the Russian engineer force, who was in command of the inner line of the defenses of Port Arthur, has been killed and that General Stoessel, the commander of the garrison, was injured by a fall from his horse. General Smirnoff, who has been in command of the artillery in the advance defenses of Port Arthur, is also reported among the wounded.

The Japanese military authorities have published a list of thirty-three officers killed and fifty-six wounded, presumably at Port Arthur. The navy department has issued a list of nine officers and sixty-five men killed while on special duty. No details are given. It is presumed that they belonged to the crew of some cruiser which struck a mine and was sunk or damaged.

The Japanese have mined the harbor of Kelung, Formosa, as a protection against the Baltic fleet, and the shipping interests of the United States are warned accordingly. Kelung is one of the most important cities of the island.

The British steamship Baron Eldon has been stopped thirty-five miles outside of Hongkong by a big Japanese cruiser. The Baron Eldon was on her way to Yokohama and was allowed to proceed.

Burning Their Cotton Crops.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 29.—A special from Fort Gaines, Ga., says: "The farmers and merchants of Clay county met at Fort Gaines and decided to burn their share of 2,000,000 bales of surplus of cotton. A starter was made when a fire was made of cotton on the streets of Fort Gaines. It is not yet determined where it will stop. The farmers have decided to set the pace and are moving determinedly. A large crowd paraded, with cheers and much spectacular ceremony. The object is to show that the farmers are ready to sacrifice a few bales for the benefit of the masses. The fire is still burning, and excitement is increasing."

Fushimi Sails For Home.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—The Mongolia has sailed, with Prince Fushimi and suit. Other passengers are Lieutenant Commander J. B. Blish, U. S. N.; Commander Culleen of the British navy and Episcopal Bishop McKim, who is returning to Tokyo. There were a number of Japanese assembled at the dock to bid Prince Fushimi farewell. He took with him two fine riding horses presented to him here. Included in the cargo are pig lead, machinery, structural steel, leather and cotton, which have been declared contraband of war by Russia.

Railway Superintendent Killed.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—John G. Hartigan of Little Rock, Ark., superintendent of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railroad, died at St. Luke's hospital here last night from injuries sustained when he was struck by a railroad train in front of the Dauphin Park station of the Illinois Central railroad. The storm was at its height at the time, and while protecting his face from the blizzard Mr. Hartigan failed to notice the approaching train.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Miss Igna Hansen, prone upon a cot, was wheeled into court here to stand trial under an indictment charging her with perjury said to have been committed in the trial of a personal injury suit for $50,000 brought by her against the Chicago City Railway company. Will Pump Mine For a Year.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Dec. 29.—The Lehigh Valley Coal company decided to pump out the water in the Mount Carmel colliery and save the mine, which when in operation employs 500 men and boys. The officials estimate that it will take one year to pump out the water.

ANIMALS HELP TO LAY BARE CRIME

MUSKRAT LEADS SEARCHERS TO BODY OF MURDERED MAN.

HORSE AND BIRD AID IN SOLVING MYSTERY

Indiana Authorities Find Strange Helpers in Solving a Mysterious Murder Case Which Had Perplexed the Detectives.

Hartford City, Ind.—Has the hand of Providence, guiding the steps of a muskrat to a place of safety, filling a dumb animal with the fear of a remembered danger and directing the flight of a wounded bird, helped in the detection of the murderers of Edward P. Sanderson?

This is a popular question in this county. Some point to the peculiar circumstances as confirmatory of the fact, while others declare that the strange happenings were merely accidental. Certainly the events leading up to the arrest of the suspects stand out as singular in the annals of crime.

Edward P. Sanderson, a large property owner, lived on a farm ten miles from this city. He disappeared, and for a week persistent search was made for him without result.

A boy employed in a factory near here took his lunch basket a week after Sanderson's disappearance and went in the direction of an old gravel pit, which had become filled with water. He sat down to eat his lunch and a muskrat ran past him. He followed it and it disappeared at the edge of the pond. He was about to turn away when he saw the hand of a man above the stagnant water. He called some of the men from the factory. After much difficulty the body was removed. It was found to have been weighted with a 75-pound stone, which was attached to it by a strap.

The body was that of the missing man, and examination showed that two bullets had been fired into the brain before it was placed in the pond, where it was found.

Where had the murder occurred? The gravel pit was some distance from the highway and Sanderson was known not to have been near it the day he disappeared.

Sanderson was at the home of a neighbor late in the evening of the day he disappeared, and drove home along the public road. Search was made for some evidence that the crime had been committed between the neighbor's house and his home, but none could be found.

His horse was hitched to his buggy and a circuitous drive was made to the home of the neighbor. Then the road was followed that Sanderson traveled on the night of his disappearance. At an abrupt turn the horse showed signs of fear. He pricked up his ears, turned to the side of the road and showed unwillingness to proceed.

The spot was examined and in the dust at the side of the road were found several little balls of dust which are believed to have been made by drops of blood which flowed from Sanderson's wounds. These now are in the hands of the officers and are being subjected to analysis. The officers are positive that this will be shown, as there has been no rain in the locality for several weeks.

Four men were hunting later in the neighborhood of the Sanderson home, and one of them shot and wounded a quail. The wounded bird fell in the yard, and when the hunters went in to get it it fluttered under the house. One of the men followed it, and as he crawled through an opening in the foundation he discovered two tin cans filled with dynamite. A fuse led them to another opening in the foundation wall. Each can contained about five pounds of the explosive, and it was plain that it had been placed there with the intention of blowing up the house.

The authorities were notified and started an investigation to find where the explosive and the cans were bought. They are reticent, but believe that the same men who murdered Sanderson placed the heavy dynamite charge under his house.

The theory of the state is that the murderers, knowing Sanderson was away from home, placed the explosive under his house and intended to return that night and light the fuse. But on their way home they met the man at the turn of the road, that they purposely got into an altercation with him and killed him, taking the body from the place in his buggy to the gravel pit pond where it was found.

Jan. 1: Our Goals For 1905—Phil. iii, 12-16.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

No other man in all the Christian ages could give with better grace the exhortation with which this lesson closes, for none has made a better record than he in this way of life.

The Christian has a definite aim and should never forget it. His goal is not the same as that of the multitudes around him. So he cannot do as the common run of men do. He must do some things that others cannot, and some things they do he must never perform. God has given us in Jesus a call to a peculiar and privileged life. The goal of all earthly effort for us is to attain to the full development of the Christian life within and without. God is working in us by His Spirit continually the things of His kingdom. He gives new ideas and thrills us with high and holy desires and energizes us with a strength for doing otherwise unknown. As He works within us, we are to work out in practical life all we see and feel of the truth and beauty of holiness and righteousness. We are to grow until we attain the measure of the stature of the full grown manhood of sons of God.

The encouraging feature of this development lies in the fact that we have a trainer who has made success. The model is known and has promised us His help in every way possible. In fact, all His business is to bring us to His measure. We have capacity for such development. Our surroundings are well adapted to such effort on our part. Every consideration of well being urges to effort on our part to reach the standard set before us.

Paul says that he has not yet attained all there is for him to have, but he presses on that he may lay hold on that for which he was laid hold on by Christ. No advancement is possible unless we recognize that we have not got as far as we can go. When we see this clearly we will need to guard ourselves from discouragement on account of our lack of progress. This would cut the nerve of all effort.

Then we come to the next item in character training, determined pressing forward in spite of all the failures and mistakes of the past. There must be strenuous forgetting as well as strenuous exertion to get ahead. Some spend so much time bragging of their past triumphs that they have no time to gain new victories and end by being driven from all they had gained. Forget some things; especially forget that you ever were great in any way. Humble yourself under the mighty hand of God, and He will do all the lifting up you will need.

"That I may know Him!" There is nothing else in life to be compared to this in worth. Whoever or whatever else we may know or not know, let us know Him. The fellowship of His sufferings means a great deal more than we have learned yet, and we must know what that holds for us. We must be conformed unto His death that we may also know the glory of His resurrection.

The goal this year is set before us. Shall we not run with patience the race that we may obtain the crown of everlasting life?

Let us lay aside every weight and keep our eyes fixed on Jesus, who is the beginning and the ending of the race for life, and let us run with patience and steadiness. Then shall we be able to say when we have finished our course, "I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith, and henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of rejoicing which Christ shall give to me at his appearing."

The Spirit of Love.

The spirit of love, wherever it is, is its own blessing and happiness, because it is the truth and reality of God in the soul, and therefore it is the same joy of life and is the same good to itself everywhere and on every occasion. The spirit of love does not want to be rewarded or honored or esteemed. Its only desire is to propagate itself and become the blessing and happiness of everything that wants it, for the wrath of an enemy, the treachery of a friend and every other evil only helps the spirit of love to be more triumphant, to live its own life and find all its own blessings in a higher degree.—William Law.

Pleasures Not Lost.

The pleasures of companionship are not lost when one becomes a Christian; neither is the joy of following one's own inclinations. The difference is that both desires and companionships are changed in character. As these are made better our real happiness is increased, and we are the gainers.—United Presbyterian.

A Morning Thought.

What if, some morning, when the stars were paling,
And the dawn whitened, and the east was clear,
Strange peace and rest fell on me from the presence
Of a benignant spirit standing near!

And I should tell him, as he stood beside me:
"This is our earth—most friendly earth and fair.
Daily its sea and shore through sun and shadow
Faithful it turns, robed in its azure air.

"There is blest living there, loving and serving,
And quest of truth and serene friendships dear,
But stay not, spirit! Earth has one destroyer—
His name is Death. Flee, lest he find thee here!"

And what if then, while the still morning brightened,
And freshened in the elm the summer's breath,
Should gravely smile on me the gentle angel
And take my hand and say, "My name is Death!"

—Christian Work and Evangelist.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 1.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Our goals for 1905.—Phil. iii, 13-16. (Consecration meeting.)

It is quite a common thing in these days for Christian people to have daily Bible texts to guide and lead them for the day. If such a text be wanted for the first day of the year, no better can be found than these inspired words of Paul to the Philippians. Nor need we stop here with them, but can take them for a yearly text, to be applied each day of the year, or even a life text, for they would apply to the Christian's life from the start to the finish. Every Christian Endeavorer, therefore, could do nothing better than to commit them on the first day of 1905, if they are not already known, and then refer to them each day of the year as an inspiration to renewed energy both in his personal life and in his life of service in connection with the church and the society.

A goal marks the end of an achievement. The athletes in the Grecian games pressed toward the goal or mark. When they reached it, they no longer strove. There was nothing then to strive for. Hence if we seek goals for 1905 it is a confession that the ends we strive for have not been attained. Paul made this confession before he placed his goal before him: "Not as though I had already attained or were already perfect, but I follow after." Paul knew nothing of the doctrine of perfection, nor should we be deceived by thinking that we can attain to it in this life. Since Adam's fall the only perfect man who has ever lived was our Lord, and we will not become perfect in this life; hence the need of selecting goals of inspiration toward which by the grace of God we shall constantly advance.

The one goal toward which the apostle declares that he presses is "the mark of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." No more important goal could be placed before us. It includes all other worthy goals. He who strives for the highest goal in life necessarily wins the lesser ones. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." The prize is eternal life in Jesus Christ. God on high calls us to it. Let us therefore press earnestly and constantly toward the goal where such a prize is the reward. Beside it the purely worldly goals sink into insignificance, and none so exalted as God calls us on to success and victory. Under His leadership we cannot fail. "Let us therefore run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

'Tis God's all animating voice
That calls thee from on high;
'Tis His own hand presents the prize
To thine aspiring eye.

Blessed Saviour, introduced by thee,
Have I my race begun,
And, crowned with victory, at Thy feet
I'll lay my laurels down.

BIBLE READINGS.

A Southland Leader.

Rev. Arthur J. Smith, D. D., the evangelist who is now making his home in New York state, was one of the very early friends of Christian Endeavor in the south. He served as state secretary for one of the southern states and made a reputation as a leader of ability and executive skill. He not infrequently addresses state and other large Christian Endeavor conventions and is always heard with acceptance and profit.

REV. A. J. SMITH, D. D.

New Jersey Cheer.

Two hundred and forty Young People's societies succeeded in making a gain in membership the past year of 10 per cent or over, while 115 Juniors made the same gain. The Sixth Baptist Young People's society of Paterson led the state, its record being a gain of 300 per cent. Seven other Young People's societies gained 100 per cent or more.

The Westminster Presbyterian of Jersey City led the Junior societies with a gain of 280 per cent. Seventeen other Junior societies also succeeded in gaining 100 per cent or more. Thus Christian Endeavor moves forward, as Dr. Clark puts it, "by leaps and by bounds."

How a Committee Won a Tramp.

The chairman of the good literature committee for the West Epping Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor is the wife of the station agent. For years she has at her own expense supplied the waiting room with gospel leaflets. One day a tramp, stopping for rest, read one of them, and as a result he gave up tramping, returned home and is now living a Christian life.—Mary L. Nichols in Christian Endeavor World.

Our Best.

We must not be content with a half alive society. Away with the idea that anything is good enough if only it is labeled Christian work. The best is none too good for Christ. He gave us His all. Nothing less on our part is a worthy recognition of His blessed sacrifice.—Rev. Dr. Edwin Forrest Hallenbeck in Empire State Notes.

FURS OF THE DAY.

Automobile Fur Capes With Hoods Are Becoming.

The furs a la mode for the moment are undoubtedly ermine, white fox and sable. Ermine coats, semifitting, are a great deal used for carriage wear. A pretty example has a deep collar of yellow lace and quaint cords and tassels for fastenings. It is lined with a delicate shade of green silk. The toque of ermine to be worn with this wrap has ivy and mistletoe for trimming.

Some charming fur capes especially designed for evening wear have a lining of soft silk or satin in pale shades and a deep capuchin hood lined in the same manner. The cape reaches to the waist, being usually carried out in ermine, chinchilla or sable. The hood is elaborately embroidered around the border in colored silk or in gold or silver with a heavy gold tassel as a finish. Capes of cloth made along these lines and bordered with an edge of some inexpensive fur would be stunning.

The longer fur capes for automobile wear are also treated with fur hoods and prove of the greatest comfort to the chauffeuse during cold winter rides in the evening. Separate fur hoods for automobiling have narrow fur capes attached and are worn with the great coats.

The toque pictured is a most becoming affair made of sable. The new argus quills outline the brim, and three feathers of the same kind are placed in an upright position at the side, finished with a velvet bow. A handsome sable boa is worn with this smart hat.

VOGUE OF THE WAISTCOAT.

Tiny Buttons Used to Outline Seams. A Blouse Novelty.

The vogue for the waistcoat on both coats and gowns is becoming more pronounced than it has ever been before. Some of the new examples are in plain silk, cloth or satin, without any embroidery whatever and buttoned down the front with a row of tiny buttons. A pale gray cloth costume boasts a tight fitting waistcoat of white watered silk piped with pale pink panne and adorned with tiny round opal buttons.

A curious development of the craze for buttons is shown in the case of a gown of rough gray cheviot tweed. It is fashioned with lapped seams on blouse and skirt, each being outlined with a row of tiny gray leather buttons considerably smaller than the top of a hatpin. The gown has no other adornment except a belt of soft gray suede fastened with heavy Egyptian looking clasps in oxidized silver set with imitation scarabs. The sleeves are full to the elbow and tight below.

One of the daintiest blouses seen recently is constructed of alternate bands of black panne ribbon or velvet and white lace insertion. The lace is mounted over ombre ribbon in no less than three shades. The darkest portion of the ribbon is placed at the side seams, and the light ends meet in the center.

An ideal material for a dressing gown is zenana cloth. This material has a silky surface and a woolen back. The charming dressing gown illustrated is carried out in this fabric in a lovely shade of peach pink. It is simply cut and is full enough to wrap around the feet. It is lined with pongee and has a large collar of net and a jabot of lace down the front and around the hood.

CHAPTER XVII.

Orders came from the War department providing a detail to go and help man the guns of Perry at Put-in Bay. I had the honor of leading them on the journey and turning them over to the young captain. I could not bear to be lying idle at the garrison. A thought of those in captivity was with me night and day, but I could do nothing for them. I had had a friendly talk with Gen. Brown. He invited and received my confidence touching the tender solicitude I was unable to cover. I laid before him the plan of an expedition. He smiled, puffing a cigar thoughtfully.

"Reckless folly, Bell," said he, after a moment. "You are young and lucky. If you were flung in the broad water there with a millstone tied to your neck, I should not be surprised to see you turn up again. My young friend, to start off with no destination but Canada is too much even for you. We have no men to waste. Wait; a rusting saber is better than a hole in the heart. There will be good work for you in a few days, I hope."

And there was—the job of which I have spoken, that came to me through his kind offices. We set sail in a schooner one bright morning—D'ri and I and 30 others—bound for Two-Mile Creek. Horses were waiting for us there. We mounted them, and made the long journey overland—a ride through wood and swale on a road worn by the wagons of the emigrant, who, even then, was pushing westward to the fertile valleys of Ohio. It was hard traveling, but that was the heyday of my youth, and the bird music, and the many voices of a waning summer in field and forest, were somehow in harmony with the great song of my heart. In the middle of the afternoon of September 6, we came to the bay, and pulled up at headquarters, a two-story frame building on a high shore. There were wooded islands in the offing, and between them we could see the fleet—nine vessels, big and little.

I turned over the men who were taken to the ships immediately and put under drill. Surgeon Usher of the Lawrence and a young midshipman rowed me to Gibraltar island, well out into the harbor, where the surgeon presented me to Perry—a tall, shapely man, with dark hair and eyes, and ears hidden by tufts of heavy beard. He stood on a rocky point high above the water, a glass to his eye, looking seaward. His youth surprised me: he was then 28. I had read much of him and was looking for an older man. He received me kindly: he had a fine dignity and gentle manners. Somewhere he had read of that scrape of mine—the last one there among the Avengers. He gave my hand a squeeze and my sword a compliment I have not yet forgotten, assuring me of his pleasure that I was to be with him awhile. The greeting over, we rowed away to the Lawrence. She was chopping lazily at anchor in a light breeze, her sails loose. Her crew cheered her commander as we came under the frowning guns.

"They 're tired of waiting," said he; "they 're looking for business when I come aboard."

He showed me over the clean decks: it was all as clean as a puritan parlor.

"Captain," said he, "tie yourself to that big bow gun. It 's the modern sling of David, only its pebble is big as a rock. Learn how to handle it, and you may take a fling at the British some day."

He put D'ri in my squad, as I requested, leaving me with the gunners. I went to work at once, and knew shortly how to handle the big machine. D'ri and I convinced the captain with no difficulty that we were fit for a fight so soon as it might come.

It came sooner than we expected. The cry of "Sail ho!" woke me early one morning. It was the 10th of September. The enemy was coming. Sails were sticking out of the misty dawn a few miles away. In a moment our decks were black and noisy with the hundred and two that manned the vessel. It was every hand to rope and windlass then. Sails went up with a snap all around us, and the creak of of blocks sounded far and near. In 12 minutes we were under way, leading the van to battle. The sun came up, lighting the great towers of canvas. Every vessel was now feeling for the wind, some with oars and sweeps to aid them. A light breeze came out of the southwest. Perry stood near me, his hat in his hand. He was looking back at the Niagara.

"Run to the leeward of the islands," said he to the sailing-master.

"Then you 'll have to fight to the leeward," said the latter.

"Dont' care, so long as we fight," said Perry. "Windward or leeward, we want to fight."

Then came the signal to change our course. The wind shifting to the southeast, we were all able to clear the islands and keep the weather-gauge. A cloud came over the sun; far away the mist thickened. The enemy wallowed to the topsails, and went out of sight. We had lost the wind. Our sails went limp; flag and pennant hung lifeless. A slight rain drizzled down, breaking the smooth plane of water into bubbles. Perry stood out in the drizzle as we lay waiting. All eyes were turning to the sky and to Perry. He had a look of worry and disgust. He was out for a quarrel, though the surgeon said he was in more need of physic, having the fever of malaria as well as that of war. He stood there, tall and handsome, in a loose jacket of blue nankeen, with no sign of weakness in him, his eyes flashing as he looked at the sky.

D'ri and I stood in the squad at the bow gun. D'ri was wearing an old straw hat; his flannel shirt was open at the collar.

"Ship stan's luk an ol' cow chawin, 'er cud," said he, looking off at the weather. "They 's a win' comin' over there. It 'll give 'er a slap 'n th' side purty soon, mebbe. Then she 'll switch 'er tail 'n' go on 'bout 'er business."

In a moment we heard a roaring cheer back amidships. Perry had come up the companionway with his blue battle-flag. He held it before him at arm's-length. I could see a part of its legend, in white letters, "Don't give up the ship."

"My brave lads," he shouted, "shall we hoist it?"

Our "Ay, ay' sir!" could have been heard a mile away, and the flag rose, above tossing hats and howling voices, to the mainroyalmasthead.

The wind came; we could hear the sails snap and stiffen as it overhauled the fleet behind us. In a jiffy it bunted our own hulls and canvas, and again we began to plough the water. It grew into a smart breeze, and scattered the fleet of clouds that hovered over us. The rain passed; sunlight sparkled on the rippling plain of water. We could see the enemy; he had hove to, and was waiting for us in a line. A crowd was gathering on the high shores we had left to see the battle. We were well in advance, crowding our canvas in a good breeze. I could hear only the roaring furrows of water on each side of the prow. Every man of us held his tongue, mentally trimming ship, as they say, for whatever might come. Three men scuffed by, sanding the decks. D'ri was leaning placidly over the big gun. He looked off at the white line, squinted knowingly, and spat over the bulwarks. Then he straightened up, tilting his hat to his right ear.

"They're p'intin' their guns," said a swabber.

"Fust they know they'll git spit on," said D'ri, calmly.

Well, for two hours it was all creeping and talking under the breath, and here and there an oath as some nervous chap tightened the ropes of his resolution. Then suddenly, as we swung about, a murmur went up and down the deck. We could see with our naked eyes the men who were to give us battle. Perry shouted sternly to some gunners who thought it high time to fire. Then word came: there would be no firing until we got close. Little gusts of music came chasing over the water faint-footed to our decks—a band playing "Rule Britannia." I was looking at a brig in the line of the enemy when a bolt of fire leaped out of her and thick belches of smoke rushed to her topsails. Then something hit the sea near by a great hissing slap, and we turned quickly to see chunks of the shattered lake surface fly up in nets of spray and fall roaring on our deck. We were all drenched there at the bow gun. I remember some of those water-drops had the sting of hard-flung pebbles, but we only bent our heads, waiting eagerly for the word fire.

"We was th' ones 'at got spit on," said a gunner, looking at D'ri.

"Wish they'd let us holler back," said the latter, placidly. "Sick o' holdin' in."

We kept fanning down upon the enemy, now little more than a mile away, signalling the fleet to follow.

"My God! see there!" a gunner shouted.

The British line had turned into a reeling, whirling ridge of smoke lifting over spurts of flame at the bottom. We knew what was coming. Untried in the perils of shot and shell, some of my gunners stooped to cover under the bulwarks.

"Pull 'em out o' there," I called, turning to D'ri, who stood beside me.

The storm of iron hit us. A heavy ball crashed into the after bulwarks, tearing them away and slamming over gun and carriage, that slid a space, grinding the gunners under it. One end of a bowline whipped over us; a jib dropped; a brace fell crawling over my shoulders like a big snake; the foremast went into splinters a few feet above the decks, its top falling over, its canvas sagging in great folds. It was all the work of a second. That hasty flight of iron, coming out of the air, thick as a flock of pigeons, had gone through hull and rigging in a wink of the eye. And a fine mess it had made. Men lay scattered along the deck, bleeding, yelling, struggling. There were two lying near us with blood spurting out of their necks. One rose upon a knee, choking horribly, shaken with the last throes of his flooded heart, and reeled over. The Scorpion of our fleet had got her guns in action; the little Ariel was also firing. D'ri leaned over, shouting in my ear.

"Don't like th' way they 're whalin' uv us," he said, his cheeks red with anger.

"Nor I," was my answer.

"Don't like t' stan' here an' dew nuthin' but git licked," he went on. "'T ain' no way nat'ral."

Perry came hurrying forward.

"Fire!" he commanded, with a quick gesture, and we began to warm up our big twenty-pounder there in the bow. But the deadly scuds of iron kept flying over and upon our deck, bursting into awful showers of bolt and chain and spike and hammerheads. We saw shortly that our brig was badly out of gear. She began to drift to leeward, and being unable to aim at the enemy, we could make no use of the bow gun. Every brace and bowline cut away, her canvas torn to rags, her hull shot through, and half the men dead or wounded, she was, indeed, a sorry sight. The Niagara went by on the safe side of us, heedless of our plight. Perry stood near, cursing as he looked off at her. Two of my gunners had been hurt by bursting canister. D'ri and I picked them up, and made for the cockpit. D'ri's man kept howling and kicking. As we hurried along over the bloody deck, there came a mighty crash beside us and a burst of old iron that tumbled me to my knees.

A cloud of smoke covered us. I felt the man I bore struggle and then go limp in my arms I felt my knees getting warm and wet. The smoke rose; the tall, herculean back of D'ri was just ahead of me. His sleeve had been ripped away from shoulder to elbow, and a spray of blood from his upper arm was flying back upon me. His hat crown had been torn off, and there was a big rent in his trousers, but he kept going. I saw my man had been killed in my arms by a piece of chain, buried to its last link in his breast. I was so confused by the shock of it all that I had not the sense to lay him down, but followed D'ri to the cockpit. He stumbled on the stairs, falling heavily with his burden. Then I dropped my poor gunner and helped them carry D'ri to a table, where they bade me lie down beside him.

"It is no time for jesting," said I, with some dignity.

"My dear fellow," the surgeon answered, "your wound is no jest. You are not fit for duty."

I looked down at the big hole in my trousers and the cut in my thigh, of which I had known nothing until then. I had no sooner seen it and the blood than I saw that I also was in some need of repair, and lay down with a quick sense of faintness. My wound was no pretty thing to see, but was of little consequence, a missile having torn the surface only. I was able to help Surgeon Usher as he caught the severed veins and bathed the bloody strands of muscle in 'D'ri's arm, while another dressed my thigh. That room was full of the wounded, some lying on the floor, some standing, some stretched upon cots and tables. Every moment they were crowding down the companionway with others. The cannonading was now so close and heavy that it gave me an ache in the ears, but above its quaking thunder I could hear the shrill cries of men sinking to hasty death in the grip of pain. The brig was in sore distress, her timbers creaking, snapping, quivering, like one being beaten to death, his bones cracking, his muscles pulping under heavy blows. We were above water-line there in the cockpit, we could feel her flinch and stagger. On her side there came suddenly a crushing blow, as if some great hammer, swung far in the sky, had come down upon her. I could hear the split and break of heavy timbers; I could see splinters flying over me in a rush of smoke, and the legs of a man go bumping on the beams above. Then came another crash of timbers on the port side. I leaped off the table and ran, limping, to the deck, I do not know why; I was driven by some quick and irresistable impulse. I was near out of my head, anyway, with the rage of battle in me and no chance to fight. Well, suddenly, I found myself stumbling, with drawn saber, over heaps of the hurt and dead there on our reeking deck. It was a horrible place: everything tipped over, man and gun and mast and bulwark. The air was full of smoke, but near me I could see a topsail of the enemy. Balls were now plunging in the water alongside, the spray drenching our deck. Some poor man lying low among the dead caught me by the boot-leg with an appealing gesture. I took hold of his collar, dragging him to the cockpit. The surgeon had just finished with D'ri. His arm was now in sling and bandages. He was lying on his back, the good arm over his face. There was a lull in the cannonading. I went quickly to his side.

"How are you feeling?" I asked, giving his hand a good grip.

"Nuthin' t' brag uv," he answered. "never see nobody git hell rose with 'em s' quick es we did—never."

Just then we heard the voice of Perry. He stood on the stairs calling into the cockpit.

"Can any wounded man below there pull a rope?" he shouted.

D'ri was on his feet in a jiffy, and we were both clambering to the deck as another scud of junk went over us. Perry was trying with block and tackle to mount a carronade. A handful of men were helping him. D'ri rushed to the ropes, I following, and we both pulled with a will. A sailor who had been hit in the legs hobbled up, asking for room on the rope. I told him he could be of no use, but he spat an oath, and pointing at my leg, which was now bleeding, swore he was sounder than I, and put up his fists to prove it. I have seen no better show of pluck in all my fighting, nor any that ever gave me a greater pride of my own people and my country. War is a great evil, I begin to think, but there is nothing finer than the sight of a man who, forgetting himself, rushes into the shadow of death for the sake of something that is better. At every heave on the rope our blood came out of us, until a ball shattered a pulley, and the gun fell. Perry had then a fierce look, but his words were cool, his manner dauntless. He peered through lifting clouds of smoke at our line. He stood near me, and his head was here

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark.
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

DOCTOR A VICTIM OF PLOT TO KILL

COLORED BOY SLEW HIS MASTER BY MISTAKE.

HE WAS EXPECTED TO WATCH FOR BURGLARS

A Missouri Physician Was in Fear of Thieves and Told Boy to Shoot Anyone Approaching a Window.

Webb City, Mo.—Behind the death of Dr. J. P. Willett from a gunshot wound inflicted by Claude Price, a 16-year-old boy, is some mystery.

The peculiar circumstances of his death have led many to believe that the tragedy may have been contemplated. These circumstances are that, within less than five minutes after he had told the boy to watch a certain window and shoot anyone appearing before it, he left the house in his stocking feet and appeared in front of that window.

Coroner Eames, in conversation with Mrs. Willett and the lad who fired the shot, satisfied himself that there was no criminal intent on the part of Price. The widow said:

"I am sure, if my husband could speak, he would hold him innocent."

It was the belief of young Price when he fired the shot that he was shooting at a burglar. He was simply following the command of Dr. Willett, who had told him a short time before to shoot the first man whom he saw around the premises. When he saw some one pass a window that he had been directed to watch the boy took aim and fired. An instant afterward he was horrified when he heard the doctor exclaim:

"My God, Claude, you have shot me."

"Why, is that you, doc.?" responded the lad.

All that Dr. Willett could say in response was the single word, "yes."

Then, staggering from in front of the window to the porch, he fell, and within 20 minutes was dead.

"YOU HAVE KILLED ME!"

The belief is general among the doctor's acquaintances that his almost hysterical belief that burglars were haunting his house was a hallucination. He had just moved into a new house on the outskirts of the city, and young Price was hired to stay with him.

The doctor had for several nights insisted upon both the lad and Mrs. Willett remaining awake at all hours to assist him in watching for thieves.

He had seen midnight marauders, so he said, in the barn, around the house and even in the basement. He told a policeman that a group of them was gathered in the basement, that he shot at them through the kitchen floor and was sure he had wounded one.

These vagaries are believed to have been the result of the use of drugs. For years Dr. Willett, it is alleged, had used drugs and also drank considerable liquor.

Domestic troubles and divorce, with estrangement from his children, followed. But soon after the divorce he reformed and for two years had been leading a different life. He had regained his practice, had married again and was considered as in a fair way of regaining all he had lost. Then a few weeks ago, the police say, he began to fall back to his old habits.

Indian Cocaine Fiends.

Within the last few months it has developed that a great number of full-blood Cherokee Indians are becoming cocaine fiends. A little investigation shows that druggists are disposing of a great deal of this drug, but what is more startling still is that there are a lot of persons who have been going into the country and selling cocaine to the Indians. It is a new vice for the Indians, but it is wonderful how it is taking hold on them. It is said that the drug is being bootlegged, as it has been the custom to bring in liquor. The authorities will start an investigation.

Stays Asleep Two Weeks.

Bloomington, Ill.—James Burns, of Gardner, has been asleep two weeks. He went to church two weeks ago, walked part of the way up the aisle, stopped, and after staring into vacancy for a few minutes, retraced his steps, and, going to the hotel, lay down on a sofa in the office and fell asleep. He has slept continuously since, despite numerous efforts to rouse him.

Killed by Hiccoughing.

Does It Cost You

TIME to read through the daily and weekly newspapers, the magazines and reviews, and the special journals that constantly clamor for attention? Can you find time to read enough of them to keep posted even on the important topics of human interest at home and abroad? Does the time demanded by so many periodicals leave you time enough for books?

DOES IT COST YOU—

MONEY to buy even a fairly representative list of papers and magazines? Can you afford to subscribe for as many as would be necessary to give you a complete survey of the world's politics, art, religion, industrial affairs, literature. etc.? Even if you had the time to read them, would you be able to buy several thousand periodicals, domestic and foreign?

DOES IT COST YOU—

WORRY to sift out the conflicting rumors concerning the Japan-Russia war, and to try to follow its progress? Or to get at the true state of the Presidential campaign, the chances of the several candidates, the tendencies in the various states, and the probabilities as to the platforms? Does it worry or weary you to "keep posted" in this busy, hustling age when there are so few moments for quiet reading and so many demands for your money.

Why Not Take This Tip—

"THE LITERARY DIGEST is a time-saver, a money-saver, and a worry-saver," says Edwin Markham, author of "The Man with the Hoe." PLEA OF SOMERSET'S GRAND JURY TO RAISE BOROUGH'S LICENSE FEE

Recommendation to County Court That Liquor Regulations in North Plainfield Be Made Similar to Those in Plainfield.

SUGGEST THOUSAND DOLLAR LICENSE RATE

REPRESENTATIVE BODY OF MEN COMPOSING GRAND JURY BRING THE PECULIAR EXCISE CONDITIONS TO THE ATTENTION OF JUDGE SCHENCK.

Unanimously Advocate That the Borough Liquor Places Be Compelled to Close at the Same Hour As in This City—Approval of North Plainfield Council's Efforts to Obtain Needed Relief.

Prompted by the riotous scene which occurred in North Plainfield on Saturday night, the Somerset County Grand Jury, composed of representative men, before it concluded its labors yesterday unanimously adopted a recommendation to the county court that the liquor license fee in North Plainfield be made uniform with the rate required in this city and that the saloons and other places where liquor is sold in the borough be compelled to close at the hour required here. The grand jury was a unit in the conviction that the frequent disturbances in the borough are due as a rule to the existing excise conditions. Thomas S. Armstrong, of North Plainfield, presented the resolution adopted and when the grand jury appeared before Judge Schenck in court, the petition or recommendation was handed to his honor by the foreman, Robert Clark, Jr., also of North Plainfield.

This action of the grand jury stamps with approval the efforts of the North Plainfield Council to obtain the needed relief from the Somerset county court. For a long time endeavors have been made to show the court the wisdom of making the excise requirements in North Plainfield similar to those in this city, it being pointed out that the borough and city are practically one community. The state of affairs now existing regarding the liquor traffic and its effects was one of the strong points advanced a short time ago by those who favor the consolidation of city and borough as a means of relief from the unfortunate and peculiar situations brought about by the maintainance of independent municipalities.

It is expected that the Somerset county court will examine the subject more thoroughly now and at an early date carry out the recommendations suggested. This body was composed of a set of men of a calibre seldom serving in that capacity at one time. Robert Clark, Jr., the foreman, is a former councilman and an influential citizen of the borough, who is in the manufacturing business in Newark. William L. Saunders is a former mayor of North Plainfield and has taken more interest probably in its advancement than any other man in the borough with the single exception of the present mayor. He is president of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company, one of the largest and most widely known manufacturing concerns in the East. Richard Moldenke, of North Plainfield township, is a metallurgist and a man of exceptional ability. Charles F. Squibb is a wealthy medicine man residing in Bernardsville, and Clement Clawson is widely known as the inventor of slot machines. Calvin D. McMurtry and W. H. H. Wyckoff are both former sheriffs and Irving Hoagland is the present assemblyman. The other members are mostly prosperous farmers.

The grand jury's recommendation goes much further than the borough Council dared, the latter only asking that the fee be increased to $600 while the grand jury asks that it be made $1,000, exactly what it is in Plainfield. In full the recommendation made is as follows:

To the Honorable Judges of the Court of Oyer and Terminer:

In connection with the recent disorders in North Plainfield, to which your Honor has specially called attention when instructing this Grand Jury, we desire to say that in addition to the indictments which we have presented, we feel it our duty to call attention to the peculiar condition of affairs in North Plainfield which may have a bearing on the case. The evidence showed that this was a drunken brawl, resulting in bloodshed and narrowly escaping murder; that it occurred after 11 o'clock on Christmas eve, and that the guilty parties live in Plainfield and not North Plainfield. The saloons of Plainfield are required by ordinance to close at 11 o'clock, while those in the borough are not closed until midnight on Saturday nights, and may be open all night on every other night except Sunday.

The license fee in Plainfield is $1,000, while in North Plainfield it is only $350. Now, as the two places are geographically one the result is that disorderly persons seek North Plainfield after 11 o'clock at night, life and property are thereby endangered and this county put to expense. This court fixes the license fee in North Plainfield and as the custom is to take population into consideration when so doing, it would seem reasonable to consider the fact that after 11 o'clock at night the population under saloon influence in the borough is that of Plainfield and North Plainfield combined, and that good would result from the equalization of the license fees. Furthermore, as this Court grants the licenses, we beg to suggest that as such license is granted—the licensee be required by the Court to incur the obligation to close his place at 11 o'clock at night or at the same time as that fixed by the city of Plainfield.

Respectfully submitted on behalf of the Grand Jury,

Robert Clark, Jr.,
Foreman.

CELEBRATE MARRIAGE OF FIFTY

MR. AND MRS. C. H. BUCKLELEW HAVE A GOLDEN WEDDING PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bucklelew, of West Fifth street, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day Tuesday evening. The affair was arranged by the son, Charles W. Bucklelew, and although some friends were unable to attend on account of the weather, the host and hostess received many congratulations and valuable presents.

Thirty years ago Mr. and Mrs. Bucklelew came to this city, where they have since resided in the house they now occupy. Friends from Washington, New York, Brooklyn, Newark, New Haven and points on Long Island were among those present.

Masquerade Party.

In honor of her brother, Arthur L. Denton, who has recently returned from Brown University for the Christmas holidays, Miss Pauline Denton gave a reception and dance last night to about thirty of their friends. The affair was a sheet and pillow case masquerade, and the young people spent a pleasant evening dancing in such costumes.

How They Do It in New Brunswick.

Answering a fire-alarm in New Brunswick Wednesday afternoon, the fire department was unable to use horses on all the apparatus owing to the bad condition of the streets from snow. The street urchin was the "ever useful," and pulled on the drag with good effect, reaching the fire in quick time.

Miss Valiant, of Myrtle avenue, gave a luncheon on Wednesday, in honor of Miss Belle Milne, of the borough. There were about twenty guests.

GOV. UTTER PRESENT

Superintendent of Public Schools and His Wife Hold Reception Attended by Many Friends.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, of West Seventh street, gave a reception at their home last night, to which were invited a large number of their intimate friends. The affair was in observance of the silver wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. Maxson and was intended as a surprise to their friends. On the contrary their friends surprised them by bringing gifts appropriate to the occasion.

Governor-elect George H. Utter, of Westerly, R. I., who was present with Mrs. Utter, made a few remarks in which he congratulated Dr. and Mrs. Maxson upon the completion of a quarter of a century of married life and wished them many more happy years. A pleasing feature was the presentation of fifty silver dollars to the celebrants. Orra S. Rogers, as superintendent of the Sabbath-school at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, made the presentation and Dr. Maxson responded happily for Mrs. Maxson and himself.

Mr. and Mrs. Utter were best man and bridesmaid, respectively, at the wedding of Dr. and Mrs. Maxson twenty-five years ago at their home in Westerly, R. I., Rev. L. Platts officiating, and there was considerable pleasure in having them present last night.

Mrs. Maxson was formerly Miss Henrietta Lewis, daughter of Dr. Edwin Lewis, of Westerly, R. I., and both she and Dr. Maxson are natives of that place. For several years Prof. Maxson was superintendent of the Public Schools at Pawtucket, R. I., and he came to Plainfield from there about ten years ago to take charge of the Plainfield schools. By their union one daughter was born to them—Miss Ruth Maxson, who is now a senior at Smith College.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Irving Maxson, of Westerly, R. I., the former being a brother of Dr. Maxson, were among those present last night.

FIERCE FIGHT IN BOROUGH

One of the Four Combatants Knocks Another Down Cellar With Butt of Revolver.

THEN OPENS FIRE

Baker's Employes in Serious Row Early This Morning When Police Arrived—All Arrested—Trials to Take Place Tonight.

Somerset street, in North Plainfield, was the scene of another exciting affair at 4:30 this morning when four bakers in the employ of Henry Voehl engaged in a fight during which one of them discharged a pistol at another and which ended in the arrest of the quartette. Everett Frazier, who did the shooting, and his supposed brother, John Frazier, were arrested at once and the former afterward preferred charges against William Dorn and William Schleyer, citing the use of profane and indecent language and disorderly conduct. All four were released for appearance this evening by depositing $20 each with Recorder Dend.

Ill-feeling has existed between the Fraziers and Schleyer for the past week or more and several times last night while all were at work, there were squabbles between the three. Early this morning as Schleyer was carrying bread from the bakeshop to the store, Everett Frazier followed him up the front stairs and renewed the quarreling. They were standing at the head of the steps on the sidewalk when, according to Dorn, Frazier struck Schleyer on the head with the butt of a pistol and knocked him down into the basement. He was caught by Dorn and thus saved from serious injury. Dorn then ran up stairs after Frazier and he retreated along Somerset street as far as Arnold's grocery when he again drew a revolver and fired. The bullet went wide and it is supposed that it was only done as a scare.

The pistol report brought out Marshals Pope, Smalley and Blaich who were in police headquarters directly opposite and at the request of Mr. Voehl, both Fraziers were arrested. Up to the time that Schleyer was knocked downstairs, Dorn had nothing to do with the quarrel but he was included in Everett Frazier's complaint.

MRS. GASTON'S TEA.

In Honor of Miss Dugall, of Milton, Pa., Yesterday Afternoon.

Mrs. Walter Gaston, of 224 East Seventh street, gave a charming tea yesterday afternoon for her guest, Miss Dugall, of Milton, Pa.

Mrs. Gaston was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Benjamin Arrowsmith Hegeman and Mrs George Wharton Edwards. Those assisting in the dining room were the Misses Holly, Miss May Rodman, Miss Otterson and Miss Moore.

Following this affair of yesterday, Mrs. Gaston will give a dinner on Monday night before the assembly at the Casino, for Miss Dugall.

DELIGHTFUL DANCE.

Given by Mrs. Frederick G. Mead at East Front Street Home.

Among the delightful social events of the week was the dance given last night by Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, of East Front street, for her daughter, Miss Frederica Mead, and her son, Lawrence Mead.

In addition to the one hundred guests, there was a house-party of friends of Miss Mead and Lawrence Mead, including Miss Helen Cauldwell, of Morristown; Miss Hetty Marshall, Miss Marion Richards, Henry Richards, Ruthven Wodell and Thomas Blakeman, of New York.

Entertained Euchre Club.

The Friday Night Euchre Club was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hummer, of East Fifth street, last evening. The prizes were won by Mrs. Phillip Kirch and Mrs. W. Thomas; Edward Laing and Thomas Hanna. At the conclusion of play a social period was enjoyed.

NEGROES ARE INDICTED

Assault With Intent to Kill, Charge Against Them.

JUSTICE'S REMARKS

Five Men Are Held for Attacking North Plainfield Policemen on Saturday Night.

The negroes who participated in the murderous assault on three policemen on Somerset street Saturday night were indicted for assault with intent to kill by the Somerset County grand jury for the December term yesterday. Justice Garretson, in his charge to the grand jury, said he was informed that the negroes had gone to North Plainfield with the intent of attacking police.

"If this information is correct," said Justice Garretson, "not only the negroes who did the cutting, but those who accompanied them are guilty of attempted murder."

The negroes indicted are "Whit" Tunstall, Thomas C. Henderson, James Toms, Samuel Henderson and Lee Wells. They are represented by William G DeMesa, Esq.

The grand jury returned fourteen true bills of indictment. Jacob Flemerfelt, whose quarrel with his brother-in-law, Constable Frank D. Cramer, of North Branch, resulted in the latter's death, was indicted for manslaughter.

PARENTS SEARCHING FOR THEIR MISSING SON

POLICE AIDING IN HUNT FOR ANDREW JACKSON, OF GROVE STREET.

The local police have sent out a general alarm for Andrew Jackson, a twenty-two-year-old young man, who disappeared from this city, Monday afternoon. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jackson, of Grove street, and came here on a visit from Brooklyn, where he has been working, last Sunday. He went out Monday afternoon to visit friends and nothing has been seen or heard of him since. Chief Kiely has received word from the Brooklyn authorities that he has not returned to his boarding place and his employers are also at a loss to account for his absence.

Jackson is described as being of medium height, smooth face and light complexion. He has temperate habits and to all appearances was as well as usual when he left his father's home.

New Year's Boys' Meeting.

The annual New Year's special song service, conducted by the members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., will be held on Sunday afternoon at the association and will be one of unusual interest. There will be special music, both vocal and instrumental, and the meeting will be entirely in charge of the boys. Harry Thompson, one of the leaders among the boys will preside at the meeting, which will be addressed by William Flanders and Harold Robins.

The Lights Went Out.

The Christmas entertainment at Warren chapel, Wednesday evening, took place under rather trying circumstances. It had hardly gotten under way when a fuse located in the electric circuit, blew out, plunging the place into darkness. It was nearly an hour afterward before the trouble could be attended to and during that time lamps and candles were pressed into service to furnish the necessary illumination.

Pallbearers All Nephews.

Six nephews bore the remains of Mrs. Patrick Geary who died Tuesday, from St. Mary's church yesterday after solemn requiem high mass. Father Boone officiated. The body was interred in St. Mary's cemetery. These were the pallbearers, all of whom were nephews of the dead woman. Phillip Maguire, Patrick Maguire, John Maguire, William Barry, Hugh Higgins and Michael Higgins.

Health Board Prepares Report.

There was a special meeting of the Board of Health yesterday chiefly for the purpose of discussing the annual report which will be presented to the new Common Council on Monday night. No other business was considered. The regular meeting of the board will be held on Tuesday afternoon, January 3.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Sadie M. Garretson, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Garretson, of East Millstone, and Peter S. Clark, of Bound Brook. Both are well known here.

DAMAGES AS A BALM

Watson Emery Wins His Suit Against David Taylor.

VERDICT IS $3,000

Trial at Newark in Which Former Plainfielder Obtained Damages From Lincoln Hotelkeeper.

Mrs. Rebecca Emery was called as a witness by the defense in the Supreme Court Circuit at Newark yesterday, in the trial of suit brought by her husband, Watson C. Emery, of Irvington, and formerly of this city, against David Taylor, a saloon-keeper of Lincoln, to recover $10,000 damages for the alleged alienation of his wife's affections, and later $3,000 and costs was awarded her husband.

Mrs. Emery said she first met Taylor in West Dunellen, about eight years ago, when her husband brought him to their house. She declared that when Mrs. Taylor was alive she frequently went to call on her, and when Mrs. Taylor was taken ill witness tended her with the consent of Mr. Emery. Mrs. Taylor died in February, 1901, and in September of 1901 Mrs. Emery declared she left her husband because he confessed to wrongdoing, and said his conscience troubled him. She said he told her she could go away and earn her own living, and she told him she would never forgive him.

"After leaving my husband the first time," added the witness, "I desired a position somewhere and applied to Mr. Taylor for help. He said he needed a housekeeper and I went to his house for $20 a month."

Witness said that during March of 1903 she returned to her husband in Irvington, and stayed there until September. Then she went on a visit to relatives in New York. She stayed longer than she intended, but when she returned found her husband had gone away with his daughter Myrtle. She hunted him up and was told by Emery, she said, that she could never see Myrtle again until she confessed to various offenses. She refused to acknowledge a falsehood, she said.

In 1903, Mrs. Emery asserted, she left her husband because of abuse and went to Newark, where she resided for a time on Clinton place. Taylor came there once, she added.

"Do you remember Mr. Emery making any criminal charge against you and Taylor before Judge Lambert in court?" asked Winfield S. Angleman, of this city, counsel for Taylor.

"Yes," returned Mrs. Emery, "and nothing came of it, for there was no evidence."

Mrs. Emery added that in this city, at a later time, she had her husband bound over to keep the peace. From a letter written, it is alleged, by Emery to his wife after the first separation, her counsel read portions. It was addressed "My own darling lovey," and said in part: "God directs me, my dear, to cling to you. He gives me strength and comfort to write to you. I would give my life for you. O, you have suffered so much for me. Signed by your flesh and blood and your husband."

In another letter offered in evidence Emery wrote that he attributed his bad luck to losing their wedding ring and said he intended to buy another.

On cross-examination Mrs. Emery said her reason for going away was because her husband was overbearing and compelled her to take boarders to get money with which to clothe the children, and she also went out nursing, she said. Twice he choked her, she declared. Mrs. Emery admitted that she was still housekeeper for Taylor. She denied that the latter had ever tried to induce her to leave her home.

To give evidence against their mother the two little sons of Mrs. Emery were called yesterday afternoon.

After Grover Cleveland Emery, aged twelve years, had been sworn, he was asked by Taylor's counsel if he understood the nature of the oath he had just taken.

"Yes, sir," responded the youthful witness. "It means I am to tell the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

"And what will happen if you do not tell the truth?"

"Why, I shall be punished while I am living and be punished after I am dead."

"Good!" said Robert M. Clark, counsel for Emery, in an undertone.

"Did anybody teach you that answer?" questioned Mr. Angleman.

"My father," answered the boy. "He told me what it meant to say what I have."

"I submit this child is not a proper witness," said Mr. Angleman, ad-

CELEBRATIONS CONTINUE

Christmas Appropriately Observed by Sunday-Schools.

LITTLE ONES HAPPY

Exercises at Trinity Reformed, First Baptist, First M. E. and Other Churches in City.

Characterized by the usual successful features, the Christmas festivals of the Trinity Reformed Sunday-school yesterday afternoon and evening were attractive and entertaining. In the afternoon the celebration of the primary department took place. Mrs. Jessie M. Tier was in charge of this feature. This was the programme of events:

Piano selection by Ernest Stevens; recitation, "Santa Claus," by Helen Woolley; informal recitations by Elsie Tier, Gretchen VanZandt, Helen Leitheusser, Adelaide Cole, Ralph Martin and Harold Leech, comprised the programme. At the conclusion of this part of the entertainment, the Christmas presents were distributed and each person received a gift. There was no tree this year. The affair was in charge of Mrs. J. M. Tier, assisted by teachers in the primary and junior departments.

In the evening a large crowd which filled the Sunday-school room to the doors, gave a hearty welcome to the Sagamore Musical Club, of this city, and to Loraine, an able entertainer from New York. The club played several selections in its usual apt style. The rendition of four popular airs brought an encore each time, to which the club responded generously. The following are the members of the club: Mandolins, Chester Briggs, leader, Monroe Long and Theodore Gavett; banjos, William Briggs and Garth Williams; violins, William Gaston and Herbert Smith.

Mr. Loraine, as an entertainer, was a whole show in himself. His impersonations of animals, humorous recitations and dialogue songs kept the audience in constant laughter. He was also well received in his whistling solos and hand bell exhibitions. Mr. Loraine's song accompanied on the banjo "If I Only Had a Dollar of My Own" was one of the best numbers on the programme.

The entertainment was in charge of a committee composed of C. M. Dellver, chairman, Mrs. H. F. Crawford, Miss Anna Searing, W. F. Oliver and Edgar F. Sheppard.

An entertainment, which delighted an audience of colored children, was given at the Grace church yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Colored Mission of the church. The entertainment was in the interest of the Colored Industrial School which the church supports, and was in every respect a success. Games of all kinds kept the children busy, and every effort was extended to make the affair one of pleasure and help to those who attended it.

The Christmas season was observed by a tree, handsomely decorated, from which gifts were distributed among the children. The affair was under the direct control of Mrs. J. Gilmore Drayton, who is at the head of the Industrial School, and under her management the entertainment yesterday was made a great success.

Recitations, singing and an address by the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, were some of the features of the Christmas entertainment given for the primary department of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. J. A. Powlison, superintendent, was in charge of the exercises.

The programme opened with a piano solo by Miriam Hall, singing by the school, prayer, responsive reading, a Christmas carol, Scripture reading by Mrs. Dudley Miller, a welcome address by Elmer French, and after another carol, Dr. Chambliss gave the little folks a pleasing talk, relating several appropriate stories.

A novel feature was the singing of the cradle song and welcoming of "Little Mary," an infant child of Mah Myan, a native of Burmah, who is supported by the Sunday-school.

Then followed a recitation by Lawrence French, a song by Dorothy Hall, Emeline Manning and Elsie Moore, a song by the school and the distribution of gifts to members of the department including the cradle roll.

"Santa Claus' Visit to Mother Goose," was the name of a Christmas exercise given under the auspices of the Sunday-school of the First M. E. church in Vincent chapel, last night. The affair was an arrangement by Miss Addie Parker Jackson, of this city, and it introduced some of the familiar characters of Mother Goose.

No charge will be made for consultation at Dr. Atwood's, one of Plainfield's best dentists. It is better to have your teeth attended to immediately if there is anything the matter with them. Atwood is reasonable in his charges.

Putnam & DeGraw, the West Front street dry goods merchants, would like to show you the fine stock of goods at their store. In addition to keeping goods for the women a well-stocked men's furnishing goods' department is maintained.

If you need a new set of furniture in any of your rooms, whether it be a dining, library or parlor set, Powlison & Jones will have the proper thing. Call at their rooms on East Front street, and inspect the stock of handsome furniture of all kinds.

During the holiday season there are numerous occasions when you can use ice cream to good advantage. If it's Tier's in each instance you're guests are sure to be pleased because it is absolutely pure and delicious. Orders may be sent in by telephone.

Electric lights, electric bells and electric alarms of all kinds need careful wiring and Allen B. Laing declares that he has men in his employ who are thoroughly experienced in each instance. Ask him for estimates if anything in this line is needed.

When in doubt as to where or what to eat drop into Timbo's famous restaurant on North avenue and the question will be solved. The menu is so varied, the food and the service so good and the price so reasonable that there is nothing left to be desired.

During the week before Christmas, Dobbins, the Park avenue cigar man, sold many hundreds of boxes of Nickle Yara cigars. The reason is plain—the Plainfield people know the genuine article. The Nickle Yara is made only by Dobbins from pure selected leaf.

To those who received Christmas presents of jewels or gold and silver novelties, L. Morallee & Son, of Park avenue, suggest that their appearance can be improved by engraving the owner's initials upon them. They make a specialty of this line of work.

Income and expense is a simple matter if you have a bank account. Bank accounts never grow on bushes but it will surprise to note how one will grow when once the start has been made. The City National Bank invites accounts and pays interest on satisfactory balances.

DRUMELZIER WRECK

Steamer Abandoned to Her Fate on Fire Island Sands.

ENTIRE CREW TAKEN OFF IN SAFETY

Vessel Has Four Feet of Water In Hold—Boilers Broken Away—Bulwarks Stove In—Little Hope of Salvage.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Captain Frost, Captain Doxsee and Captain Baker, with their crews, have just returned to Oak island, bringing thirteen members of the crew of the steamer Drumelzier.

They had a hard time getting to the stranded vessel and back, but landed at Oak island safely.

The steamship has been entirely abandoned by her captain and crew.

Soon after sixteen of the men had been taken off by the Sandy Hook life savers the remaining thirteen members of the Drumelzier's company, including Captain Nicholsop, were rescued by the life saving crew of Oak island. This accounts for the twenty-nine members of the Drumelzier's company.

There is four feet of water in the Drumelzier's hold, her engines and boilers are loosened, and her bulwarks and bulkheads are stove in.

When the position of the stranded British freighter crew had become desperate Captain Nicholson hoisted the signal "Send lifeboats to save crew."

The Oak island and the Fire island life saving crews at once tried to put off from the shore through the breakers, and boats were also hastily lowered from the three Merritt-Chapman wrecking tugs which had been standing by the steamer since morning. Earlier in the day the Drumelzier hoisted three signals—"S. Q. Z." ("In bad condition"), "K. D. R." ("Crooked and bent") and "Q. Z. R." ("Laboring very badly").

The Drumelzier's bow is now afloat and has swung to the southeast. Her stern, however, is still buried in the bottom. As the sands off Fire Island are continually shifting, they may themselves relieve the stern. So variable are these sands that the lighthouse, which was formerly on the point of the long strip known as Fire island beach, is now three or four miles from the point.

Lying there glistening in the sunlight, the Drumelzier looks like a fairy ship fashioned out of silver, while the spray dashing over her might be showers of confetti.

All the rescued men were well, but showed plainly the effects of the exhaustion and exposure which they had undergone during the 100 hours since the vessel struck. The men rescued by the Moran were brought to this city, while the remainder were made comfortable for the night at Oak island.

The Drumelzier will be a total loss, although it is believed part of her cargo can be saved if the weather holds good owing to the fact that the hull is firmly imbedded in the sand. The steamer's back is broken directly under her boiler room, and this has raised her engine about six feet. Every strain threatened to cause her to break completely in two. There are six feet of water in the steamer's hold, and she is so strained that the bolts are being sheared off by the plates.

When asked the cause of the disaster Captain Nicholson said:

"All I can say is that in a blinding snowstorm we got out of our reckoning, and the first thing I knew we hauled up on the bar while running twelve knots an hour."

When asked whether his compass had been affected by the 2,000 tons of steel billets that formed a portion of the cargo the captain replied, "It might have been so," and declined to discuss the matter further.

NORTHEASTERN A TOTAL WRECK

Oil Steamer Fast on Hatteras Shoals. Crew Taken Off.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 30.—After being imprisoned on the wrecked oil steamer Northeastern, nine miles off Cape Hatteras, for thirty-six hours Captain Wilder and his crew of twenty-one men have been taken ashore by the crews of Kinnakeet, Creeds Hill and Hatteras life saving stations.

The big steamer is pounding Diamond shoals under a terrific sea, and the crew say it will be a total loss.

In a bewildering fog on Tuesday night the Northeastern, on her way up the coast from Port Arthur, Tex., to New York with a cargo of crude petroleum, shoved her prow into the deadly sands off Hatteras and was fast in the clutches of the graveyard of shipping before her crew realized what had happened.

This was at 11 o'clock, and before day had come the gale that swept over the country from the middle west had struck the sea and waves were crashing over the helpless vessel incessantly.

The force of the wind and tide threw her on her port beam, and the flood of water extinguished her fires before her inflammable cargo could become ignited. Had this not been the case the twenty-two men aboard the Northeastern would have met a horrible fate.

To Honor Governor Bates.

BOSTON, Dec. 30.—A company of prominent Republicans, headed by former Governor John D. Long, called upon Governor John L. Bates for the purpose of inviting him to attend a complimentary dinner to be tendered him in recognition of his services to the commonwealth. The invitation was signed by about 200 representative men, including all the living former governors of the state.

ONE STEP CLOSER.

Japs Lose a Thousand Men to Get Rihlung Position.

WALL BREACHED BY DYNAMITE.

Capture Cuts Off Russian Retreat From Golden Hill Forts Except by Subways Said to Have Been Constructed.

TOKYO, Dec. 30.—Army headquarters has published a list of casualties at Port Arthur, showing that forty-nine officers, from the rank of colonel downward, were killed and that fifty-eight, from colonel downward, were wounded in the attack on the Rihlung mountain position.

A newspaper correspondent telegraphs an account of an interview which he had with General Kuropatkin near Mukden. He declares the commander in chief is in fine physical condition, always sanguine and now absolutely convinced of ultimate victory. Kuropatkin looks and acts as he did before Plevna.

"Let them send me good soldiers," the general is quoted as saying, "and I will accomplish the task."

A report from the headquarters of the Japanese army before Port Arthur says that Rihlung fort was captured at 3 o'clock in the morning with 1,000 Japanese casualties.

Seven dynamite mines, exploded before the assault, made breaches in the front wall, through which a large body of Japanese troops charged under cover of a tremendous bombardment and captured the first line of light guns.

A bitter fight resulted in the capture of the fort. The garrison, numbering 500 men, escaped.

The captured fort on Rihlung mountain forms part of the inner circle of the chain of forts defending Port Arthur and is situated two miles from the outskirts of the town of Port Arthur, from which it bears due northeast.

After months of fighting, sapping and mining the Japanese have thus occupied Rihlung mountain.

Following the capture of Two Hundred and Three Meter hill of the western forts little is known of the exact positions occupied by the Japanese, but it would seem that the inner circle of forts is now cut in three pieces, and that Two Hundred and Three Meter hill prohibits communication with the Liaoti forts, just as possession of Rihlung and Keekwan cuts off communication with the Golden hill forts, except by the many underground ways which are said to exist in various parts of the fortress.

From Rihlung mountain, which is nearly opposite Two Hundred and Three Meter hill, it would appear that the Japanese fire will be able to reach anything in the harbor and town which the Japanese heavy guns on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill are unable to hit, thus making it apparently impossible for the Russian second Pacific squadron to make any use of Port Arthur.

A Mukden dispatch says that Cossacks have brought in the body of Captain Eridaroff, a noted scout, who was killed in an attack on the village of Tifanty.

Advices from St. Petersburg say that the itinerary of the czar's journey to Minsk and the Don Caucasus, upon which he set out, includes stops at Kharkov and Odessa. The report last night of an explosion at Minsk has had no effect upon the emperor's plans. It is stated that the explosion was a small affair and not of revolutionary origin, but similar to a recent criminal attempt to collect insurance covering a package in the mails.

Problem Up to Russians.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Dec. 30.—The last of a shipment of a million pounds of barreled beef has been started from a packing plant here to the besieged Russians at Port Arthur. The problem of getting the meat to the besieged army is left to the Russians to solve.

Russians Flee From Army Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 30.—Of the 705 steerage passengers brought over on the steamer Merion more than 550 were Russians. Most of these were ablebodied men between the age of twenty and thirty years and liable for duty in the army.

Bail For Mrs. Chadwick Is Ready.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 30.—It was reliably stated here last night that Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick will be released on bail within a few days. At least an effort will be made in that direction. Mrs. Chadwick herself has expressed her desire to terminate her residence in the county's bastile, and, according to her attorney, Jay P. Dawley, she alone has the deciding vote in the bail question.

A Gretna Green For Quakers.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Binghamton has long been known as the Gretna Green for Pennsylvania people who wish to avoid taking out a marriage license in that state and come "across the line" to be married. But this year's record breaks all former ones. Out of a total of 851 marriages reported in this city this year 105 have been those of Pennsylvania people.

Scientists Meet at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 30.—Diet as a factor in the prevention and cure of consumption, the negro race problem, child labor question in southern mills and a number of other themes of equal interest formed the basis of some of the many papers read before the second day's session of the American Association For the Advancement of Science.

VICTORY FOR DEPEW

Odell Favors Re-election of New York Senator.

EX-GOVERNOR BLACK IS IN LINE.

Writes Depew and Withdraws Name From Further Consideration as a Duty to Republican Party. His Sentiments Coincide.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—The following statement was given out last night at Republican state headquarters in regard to the United States senatorship by Governor Odell:

"As chairman of the Republican state committee of New York, after a long series of inquiries extending all over the state, I have reached the conclusion that party harmony will be best subserved by the re-election of Senator Depew.

"In the position which I occupy I am frequently called on to pass upon the claims of friends and, while my sympathy may be, as was the case in the present senatorial contest, with one stronger than the other, yet one must recognize the fact that personal interests must always be subservient to party success.

"A month ago my knowledge of the situation in the state was not as complete as it is at present, and those of my friends who thought that a change might be desirable for party reasons must now recognize the sentiment which has manifested itself all over the state so strongly for the return of Senator Depew. Such being the case, it would have been the worst kind of party generalship to have run counter to this expressed public opinion."

Chauncey Mitchell Depew of New York will therefore succeed himself for a term of six years as United States senator from the state of New York, continuing as the colleague of the senior senator, Thomas C. Platt, who has still four years to serve.

The practical purport of the announcement is that the candidacy of former Governor Frank S. Black of Troy, which has been warmly pressed by his friends during the past fortnight or more, is to be withdrawn and that the name of Senator Depew will be the only one presented to the caucus of Republican legislators which will select the party's candidate for senator.

A letter has been addressed by Mr. Black himself to Senator Depew, in which the former governor withdraws his name from further consideration for the senatorship and declares that in this course his duty as a Republican and his private sentiments coincide, for he protests that his private interests and personal tastes have both been "distinctly against entering a contest or even accepting public office, even if it came without controversy."

In a graceful letter of reply Senator Depew thanked Mr. Black for his cordial sentiments and declared that the former governor's action places the party under great obligation to him.

Checker Match For High Stakes.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Two cautious Scotchmen are playing a checker match in the detention room for immigrants on Ellis Island for admission to the United States. Between them they have $25 and have been told that if either one had that amount he would be admitted; otherwise both would be refused admission. They are members of a party of fifteen converts to the missionaries of the Holy Ghost and Us society, and they came from Glasgow, bound for Shiloh Hill, Mo., the headquarters of the sect.

Perdicaris Sounds an Alarm.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Ion Perdicaris, the American who, with his son-in-law, Cromwell Varley, a British subject, was kidnaped and held prisoner for ransom by Raisuli, the Moroccan bandit, in May of this year, in a signed dispatch says: "The present situation in Morocco is most serious. The sultan's life is endangered, and those who now direct affairs in the Moorish court are liable at any moment to go en bloc to the insurgent leader, who claims the throne as the elder brother of the present sultan."

Chinese Pavilion to Be Permanent.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 30.—Wong Kai Kah, imperial vice commissioner general from China to the world's fair, has announced that his government had presented the Chinese world's fair pavilion, which was erected at a cost of $135,000, to David R. Francis, president of the exposition company. Mr. Wong also stated that President Francis had accepted the gift and assured him that the pavilion would be placed on a permanent site.

Wife Held on Suspicion.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—Bruce Metcalf, a photographer, was shot and killed here in a room which he was occupying with his wife. Mrs. Metcalf, who was arrested on suspicion of having murdered her husband, told a story to the police that implicates Edward Pierce Keeley, a structural iron worker. The woman had filed an application for divorce.

Chicago Is Not Liable.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—Almost to a day on the anniversary of the Iroquois theater fire Judge Charles M. Walker decided that the city of Chicago is not liable for damages growing out of the loss of life in connection with the famous theater fire.

Four Blocks Burned.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Dec. 30.—Fire has destroyed four blocks of business houses and residences in the town of Hartford, twelve miles from here, entailing a loss estimated at $125,000, partially insured.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 30, 1904

Coming as a surprise to North Plainfield, which had about abandoned hope of any relief from the court, the action of the Somerset County grand jury yesterday in recommending to Judge Schenck that the excise regulations in North Plainfield be made more compatible with those of this city is, to say the least, very timely. The midnight brawls and hilarious scenes in the borough can be attributed largely to one fact and that is that the saloon men have greater liberties than the same class in Plainfield. Think of the deplorable situation—one from which the court refused relief. Plainfield and North Plainfield—independent municipalities—to the eye but one community; to the law two distinct jurisdictions. Plainfield governs its own saloons, but according to the statutes, North Plainfield must be bound by the decisions of a court miles away. Here the saloons close promptly at 11 o'clock. In North Plainfield they are allowed to keep pouring out rum all night. Plainfield has increased its license fee to $1,000. North Plainfield, or rather the Somerset County court charges for North Plainfield, but $350. Bearing in mind that the two places are separated only by an imaginary geographical line, who, in the name of common sense, in the name of common decency, could refuse to make the excise regulations uniform?

MRS. EMERY'S DEFENSE

dressing the court. "He has plainly been taught by his parents to say these things."

"Who do you think should be a more proper person to teach a child the difference between right and wrong than his parent?" asked the Chief Justice. "Don't you think it right that a parent should morally instruct his own child?"

"Yes; that's good enough," returned Mr. Angleman, "but I think this child should not be allowed to testify in view of the fact that he has been told what to say. It isn't his own testimony."

The court refused to entertain the suggestion and said the point was too fine in distinction to be argued at that time, and directed that the examination of the witness proceed. The boy could not remember what year he had first seen Taylor and Mrs. Emery together, but said it was a long time ago. His mother, he declared, had on various occasions told him and his brother to rake up the lawn and eradicate evidences of Taylor having driven up to the house before Mr. Emery came home.

Clifford Emery, aged fourteen years, said he had seen Taylor at their home about twenty times.

"He used to give me and Grover money," he added, "and we would spend it for candy. He used to stay all day, and when it came toward night he would say, 'Well, I had better go now before Mr. Emery comes.'"

The witness added that sometimes after Taylor had been at the house his mother would shake her fist in his face.

"She would say," he continued, "'If you ever tell your father a word I will kill you.' One time she told us that if we ever told anything she would mash us under her feet.'"

"But you did tell?"

"Oh, yes; we told pop about it afterward," said the boy.

Wesley Blaine, for ten years a resident of Dunellen, and Pauline Hall, of Dunellen, testified to having seen Taylor and Mrs. Emery driving together. Harry H. Leeds, an inspector for the State Board of Pharmacy, said that in July last he was engaged by Mr. Emery to get evidence against the latter's wife. He made friends with Taylor, he testified, by pretending he wished to buy land for factory sites, and the hotel-keeper showed him about the place without reserve.

"Once I saw Taylor kiss Mrs. Emery," he said, "and on the second visit I was shown her room which Taylor called 'Mrs. Emery's room.' She came to the door while I was there."

Witness said Taylor had alluded to her on one occasion by saying, "She may be the second Mrs. Taylor." On a third visit, he declared, the couple went out driving and did not return while he was at the hotel. Mr. Leeds said he was paid $5 a day by Emery and all expenses to secure evidence.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Christmas exercises of the New Market Baptist Sunday-school were held in the church last evening. The speaking and singing was very interesting, as was the address by Rev. Frank Fletcher, who spoke on the Christ Child. After the speaking and singing, came the distribution of presents, which were taken from a large Christmas tree, which was very prettily decorated with lighted candles.

Most of the exercises were of an attractive character and there were some dialogues. All were in costume and the entertainment was a delight to all. James R. Joy, as superintendent of the Sunday-school, was in charge.

The participants in the exercise and the characters they represented were as follows: "Little Bo-Peep," Catherine Bingaman; fiddlers, Eddie Bingaman, Walter Kennedy and Frank Sharp; "Mother Goose," Dorothy Welsh; "Jack and Gill," Leslie Leland and Helen Joy; "Old King Cole," Elden Miller; "Santa Claus," George Rittenhouse, Jr.; "Little Boy Blue," Arthur Slade; "Jack Horner," Harold Willard; "Red Riding Hood," Nellie Creager.

An amusing part was after the entertainment when Santa Claus displayed a huge stocking ten feet long and several feet around. Into this was placed a large number of useful articles of clothing, shoes, hats and dresses which will be sent to poor families in the East Side of New York. These articles were contributed by the various classes of the school, each class being called upon to provide for at least one family. There was a generous response from all.

This way of giving was adopted this year instead of presenting gifts to the pupils, although each one received the usual box of candy.

Councilman Clarence L. Murphy yesterday afternoon appeared at the Christmas festival in Vincent chapel and entertained the little folks in the primary department of the Sunday-school. He made his entrance to the main room from the gallery, attired in genuine Santa Claus fashion and for nearly an hour had the little children in a high statement of excitement as he distributed gifts to them.

The first part of the entertainment was devoted to a short programme, including the singing of Christmas carols, recitations by Carol Dunavan, Cora Bender, John Bolsterle, Alice Joy, Douglass Stewart, Ruth Lucas, Howard Hiile and songs by Manilla Symons, Blanche McVoy, Edward Crone, Ruth Lynn and Ruth Carver.

After the programme the pupils were feasted on ice cream, cake and candy. The beginners' class was seated at one table, while the older members of the primary department occupied another class-room. Hot chocolate was served to the visitors present. Those in charge of the affair were Miss Elsie Horne, Mrs. Arthur Crone and Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, assisted by other teachers in the primary department.

Nelson A. Miller led the singing and Miss Gertrude Sharp accompanied on the piano, while Robert W. Davis assisted with cornet. In addition to the regular programme, Carolyn Lambert recited and Mrs. S. H. Tugwell contributed a vocal solo.

The superintendent announced the gifts of the Sunday-school: A handsome desk of oak for Miss Gertrude Sharp and a sum of money to Isaac Kennedy, the sexton. Instead of the senior members of the school receiving boxes of candy, they received souvenir cards, bearing a beautifully illuminated passage from the writings of Bishop John H. Vincent.

The committee in charge composed of S. H. Tugwell, chairman; Miss Elsie Horne, Mrs. S. H. Tugwell, Mrs. Stewart, R. F. Fenno, Miss French, entertainment; L. V. Wilson, Mr. Dodge, Mr. Symons, Mr. Steiner, Mr. Schuss, decorations; Nelson A. Miller, Miss Gertrude Sharp, music; Mrs. Work, Miss Geiswein, Mrs. Thomas MacDonald and Mrs. Arthur Crone, Sunday programme.

Among the gifts sent to New York were coats, cloaks, jackets, shawls and overcoats, underwear, stockings, shoes, mittens, hats and caps, waists, skirts, suit of clothes, dresses, rubbers, baby clothes, a strip of bacon, towels, bedding, ties and ribbons, an ear trumpet, to which was added nearly $40 in cash to be spent for shoes, coal and food. The aggregate value of the gifts was not less than $300.

The annual Christmas entertainment at the First Baptist church Sunday-school last night was a little different from those in previous years. Several professional entertainers were engaged and for nearly two hours they delighted both young and old. Harold Serrell was chairman of the committee in charge, and after a shortaddress by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, the pastor, in which he spoke of the significance of the occasion and referred to the gifts of the members of the school who brought postees and apples for the Children's Home, the programme opened with humorous stories by J. W. Armour. He also sang a popular selection. Winans and Cassler, musical artists, then entertained with selections on various kinds of instruments, interspering them with witticisms.

Prof. C. Howard Scheck was introduced as "The man who mystified Keilar," and he performed a number of clever tricks. He was followed by George H. Rowe, who gave several excellent dialect stories. The programme concluded with additional musical numbers by Winans and Cassler, after which there was a distribution of candy to members of the Sunday-school.

There were several barrels of potatoes and apples received for the Children's Home and they will be delivered today.

During the performance given by Prof. C. Howard Scheck, George H. Batcheler, superintendent of the school, was presented with a pair of gold link cuff buttons.

The First Presbyterian church was well filled last night on the occasion of the annual school entertainment, which was one of the best which the school has had in many years. In the afternoon the primary celebration took place, while for the main school, the entertainment was held in the evening.

The members of the primary department were entertained in the afternoon by an informal programme of music and recitation. Dolls and toys were distributed among the pupils by Santa Claus who was impersonated by Miss Jessie Pruden. The senior department assembled in the evening when an interesting programme of music, recitations and humor pleased a large audience. In addition to an entertainer, Professor Spedan, of New York, several numbers were rendered by the school and Miss Raybert won much applause by two readings. This was the programme: Opening anthem by the school, "The Christ Comes to Earth;" reading, "Signs of Christmas," Miss Etta Raybert; entertainment, Professor Spedan; recitation, "Ges' for Christmas," Miss Raybert; fifteen minutes with Professor Spedan; song by the school, "Sing the Beautiful Christmas Story."

The programme and arrangements for the entertainment last night were in charge of Frank O. Dunning, assisted by a committee.

Christmas at the Church of the Heavenly Rest was appropriately celebrated Wednesday evening by a song service in the early evening, and later by an entertainment in the parish house. A brilliantly lighted Christmas tree occupied a prominent place in the room, and each member of the school was presented with a box of candy and a gift. William Moore, the superintendent of the Sunday-school, had charge of this feature of the programme. He was in charge of the entertainment, assisted by a committee of teachers and young people.

Christmas was celebrated at the Mount Olive Baptist church last night by the Sunday-school. Rev. M. E. Jackson spoke of the part which the white friends of the church have had in assuring the success of the Sunday-school during the last year.

The exercises at Bethel chapel were unusually brief, the distribution of gifts being the only feature. Superintendent S. A. Ginna was in charge and several carols were sung. The Christmas committee was composed of Abraham Brown, chairman, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, Benjamin Sutton, Mrs. Nixon and Miss Euphemia Dorsey.

GOWNS TELL LOVE OR HATE

Dresses Symbolical of Emotions Is an Idea Bred of the Ancient Times.

"Psychological gowns," said a milliner to a Newark News man, "were worn by an actress in a piece that recently fell flat. The gowns were called psychological because they symbolized things, and the idea of such symbolical gowns was thought to be quite new. It is, however, as old as dress itself. The actress in her play, to symbolize viciousness, attired herself in scarlet. She wore a delicious sky blue in a love scene to symbolize virtuous happiness between sweethearts. But her garb was yellow when she mixed the poison to extinguish her unfaithful lover. All this was considered new and clever. What, though, could have been older? Consider the bride as she approaches the altar. Doesn't her white gown symbolize innocence and her white veil maiden modesty? Consider the widow in black. Aren't her inky and lugubrious robes symbols of her desolation? Consider the maid in white who is about to take the veil. Does not her snowy robe symbolize the purity of her heart? Dress, in fact, has always been symbolical. The South Sea island women wear their shells and feather with much psychological significance. The women of the Congo arrange their scanty draperies and ornaments in ways that mean: 'I desire a husband,' 'I am rich' and twenty other things. All these forms of dress may truthfully be called psychological forms. Hence I don't understand why this actress with her varied gowns gave an idea of novelty."

EVOLUTION IN HOUSE-HEAT

From Bonfires in the Main Living Rooms to the Dangerous Suction Draft.

In the primitive fireplace the smoke was supposed to pass through an opening in the roof, but failing in this, says Country Life in America, it escaped, with the occupants, through the handiest side opeing. The middle ages set the hearth against the wall and built a projecting hod of brick or stone above it to carry off the smoke. Gradually the fireplace was built with two flanking jambs, which supported it, and thus the present form of fireplace was evolved. As the armorial bearing was a prominent feature of decoration in these times, its embodiment in the treatment of the fireplace became common and the already important fireplace became the central feature of the room. At a later period the fireplace was let into the wall, as is the common form to-day. At first the fireplace opening was of small dimension, but, on the theory that the larger opening meant an increase of heat, it was enlarged to great size. Then, when the tendency to draw children and furniture up the chimney or let in all the outside cold through the enormous opening found little hindrance in the iron doors employed to remedy the defect, they went back to the smaller opening as a relief.

MANY FISHING ON SUNDAY.

People of City Island Know the Day Under Peculiar Name—Early Comers Happy.

There is a certain Sunday in May that the people of City Island know as "Fisherman's Sunday," but it is not marked with red letters on the calendar, and to a plain everyday citizen of New York who happens up that way any Sunday in May or June, or July even, it would seem that he had come on Fisherman's Sunday, says Bertha Smith, in Four-Track News. To be most sure of it he must start not later than six o'clock in the morning, for it is not only the early bird that gets the worm, but it's the early worm that gets the fish, and the early man that gets the boat to cast out the worm that gets the fish. Six o'clock is none too early in May, and it is almost too late from June to September to find a sun that is not ready to pelt you with hot rays; and so, for the few minutes between that hour and the time when the first train for Bartow pulls out of the uptown station, every street car, and every elevated train contributes its mite—a man, or two, or a half-dozen—to the line at the ticket window. Later in the autumn a later start can be made.

Society Euchre.

Mrs. John Valiant, of Myrtle avenue, gave a delightful euchre party at her home yesterday afternoon. There were six tables and prizes were won by Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen and Mrs. Augustus V. Healy. Refreshments were served after the play.

ROBERTS' WARNING NOTE.

Head of British Army Reads Nation a Lecture on Modern Warfare.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—"The Army as It Was and as It Is to Be" is the text under which Field Marshal Earl Roberts reads Britons a noteworthy lecture on the duty of all classes if Great Britain would meet the demands of modern warefare. After frankly pointing out existing deficiencies Earl Roberts states:

"A terrible lesson awaits the nation whose soldiers find themselves opposed by equally brave but better trained opponents on the field of battle. No amount of money, no national sacrifices, will then avail, for modern warfare moves fast, and time lost in peace can never be made up during the stress of a campaign. I hold this view very strongly and would urge my fellow countrymen with all the force at my command to look the plain facts in the face."

Earl Roberts does not advocate compulsory service "because it is distasteful to the nation and incompatible with the conditions of an army which has a large proportion of units in foreign service," but maintains that Great Britain must have a large reserve force, and "if the citizens of so great and prosperous a nation as ours are to remain exempt from compulsory service in time of peace without the safety of the empire being endangered the right class of men must be attracted to the regular army by good conditions of pay and pension, and it is the bounded duty of the state to see that every ablebodied man in this country, no matter to what grade of society he may belong, undergoes some kind of military training in youth sufficient to enable him to shoot straight and carry out simple orders if ever his services are required for national defense."

VAN FRANCHOT NAMED.

Governor Elect Higgins Appoints Superintendent of Public Works.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Governor Elect Higgins has announced the appointment of Nicholas Van Vranken Franchot of Olean as state superintendent of public works to succeed Charles S. Boyd.

In announcing this appointment Mr. Higgins said:

"The incumbent of the office of superintendent of public works holds it at the pleasure of the governor. It is therefore in the nature of a personal appointment on the part of the governor, and I have so considered it.

"I have known Mr. Franchot for the past twenty years and have been associated with him in a number of business enterprises and am fully aware of his excellent qualifications to administer this important department of the state government."

The position of superintendent of public works is particularly important at this time because he has charge of the award of contracts for the 1,000 ton barge canal. The salary is $6,000 a year.

Killed His Mother-in-law.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Dec. 30.—After killing his mother-in-law, Mrs. W. H. Barrow is lying in the City hospital in a precarious condition, closely guarded by officers. He is an engineer on the Atlantic Coast line, thirty-eight years old and had been married only two years. Domestic infelicity is given as the cause of the tragedy.

Noddle Island Tunnel Opened.

The tunnel was opened for public traffic this morning, and last night the final trips of inspection by state and city officials were made. "Wildcat" Insurance Men Jailed.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—S. W. Jacobs and Charles J. Van Anden were sentenced to imprisonment on charges of using the mails to promote "wildcat" insurance deals. Jacobs was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and fined $1,000, while Van Anden, because of his age and on account of some extenuating circumstances brought out during the trial, was sentenced to the house of correction for one year and fined $500.

Police Not Properly Handled.

BOSTON, Dec. 30.—The board of police commissioners after a three weeks' investigation of the riot at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which followed a political parade of students last October, finds that the highest officers in charge of the patrolmen sent to preserve order were guilty of neglect of duty in not properly restraining the patrolmen under them.

Want Sunday Sale of Liquor.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 30.—A bill will be presented in the coming session of the general assembly by the Hotel Keepers' association of Connecticut to permit of the sale of liquors on Sunday in reputable hotels. It is claimed that many interests besides the hotel men will support the bill and that it will conflict in no way with the present excise law.

Britain and Italy In Somaliland.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—A report from Rome says that Great Britain and Italy have agreed to offer to the Somaliland mollah an assignment of a settled sphere, together with grazing rights in certain parts of British and Italian territory, in return for which the mollah is to bind himself to keep the peace.

KAZNAKOFF RECALLED.

Russian Member of North Sea Commission Ordered Home From Paris.

PARIS, Dec. 30.—The members of the international commission on the North sea incident were surprised to hear that Admiral Kaznakoff, the Russian member, has been recalled, as no intimation that a change was contemplated had been communicated to the commission. The dispatch from St. Petersburg announcing the change was laid before Admiral Kaznakoff last night with a request for a statement. The admiral returned the answer that he must decline to discuss the matter. The members of his suit also refused to discuss the subject.

The retirement of Admiral Kaznakoff causes much comment here. It is conjectured that it is due to renewed naval activity in Russia in connection with the possible dispatch of a third squadron to the far east, as Kaznakoff ranks as a full admiral and therefore has seniority over Skrydloff and Rojestvensky, commanders of the first and second Pacific squadrons. It is also suggested that Great Britain and other governments having sent vice or rear admirals to sit on the commission Russia deems it not necessary that she should be represented by an officer of the highest rank.

DEADLOCK IN LEGISLATURE.

Delaware Lawmakers Cannot Effect Permanent Organization.

DOVER, Del., Dec. 30.—After spending the entire day in fruitless balloting the new Delaware legislature, which convened in extra session, has adjourned without having effected a permanent organization. The house elected Representative Baggs (Union Republican) temporary chairman.

The house adjourned after taking a dozen ballots, but the senate continued until thirty ballots had been taken. All the ballots were alike, showing seven Union Republicans, seven Democrats and three regular Republicans, all holding to their respective factional nominees. Then all the balloting in the senate was declared illegal and expunged from the journal.

J. Edward Addicks, who is a candidate for United States senator, was an interested spectator in the crowded lobby of the senate.

Want Roosevelt at Mobile.

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 30.—Jones L. Withers camp, No. 675, United Confederate Veterans, forwarded to President Roosevelt an invitation to visit Mobile, assuring him of a hospitable southern welcome from well known Confederates and citizens at large.

Jolly Tars at Valparaiso.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Dec. 30.—Some American bluejackets who came ashore here last night became intoxicated and created a disturbance. The trouble was not serious.

IN FASHION'S REALM.

White a Second Color Favorite. Chiffon Capes.

The modish fur neck pieces this season are small scarfs. They are not knotted in four-in-hand style, as they were last year, but are simply looped over, one end hanging down directly in front and the other thrown over the shoulder and adorning the back.

These neck pieces are all made up plain without heads or tails as trimmings. They are lined with satin and are spatulate at the ends.

The muffs belonging to the most expensive sets are plain and smaller than they were last winter. In shape they are oblong and sharply curved at the upper edge.

All white is second favorite this season. Silver gray, mauve, scarlet, rose pink and German blue are the predominating colors.

Panama is a cloth that is meeting with approval for walking gowns. It comes in plain colors and is a desirable substitute for the more expensive broadcloths. The Panama cloth is fifty inches wide and costs $1.50 a yard.

At the opera and theater dainty capes of chiffon are in evidence. These soft and filmy coverings have warmth as well as beauty and are a decided protection from the drafts of the foyer. The smartest capes have hoods which are thrown becomingly over the head.

The frock illustrated is of pastel green cloth. On each side of the front width are panels of white cloth strapped with black braid finished with buttons. The sleeves and jacket are trimmed in the same fashion. About the shoulder cape and vest of white cloth are bands of brown fur.

MODES IN FURS.

Muffs of Many Shapes—Stunning Styles In Fur Lined Coats.

Muffs are many and varied as to shape, though everything is a variation of the flat muff. Square muffs, carriage muffs and "tea cozy" muffs are equally good style. But perhaps the quaintest of them all are the "Peggy from Paris" muffs that pull up on heavy silk cords or ribbons like a bag.

Cloth coats, either made quite to the ground or of the three-quarter length, lined with fur, are taking the world by storm. They are loose, baggy affairs of brown, blue or gray cloth, lined with white squirrel. Their usefulness is of the all round order, reaching from automobiling to evening wear.

Ermine, which has had such a vogue since the coronation, is still as popular as ever. The newest fur fad is for eastern mink, which is of the natural color, rather lighter than the "blend."

In furs children's sets, ranging from those worn by tiny tots up, are of gray or brown squirrel, white or brown fox, Angora and lamb's wool, and a favored few are of ermine. These sets are built after the grownup shapes and are quite as smart in their way.

Rust red cloth is the material from which the pretty waist herewith illustrated is constructed. The fronts are in a series of tucks scalloped at the bust and trimmed with red silk ornaments. The leg of mutton sleeves have up the center a scalloped piece of cloth adorned with the braid trimming.

D'ri and I

By Irving Bacheller

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Co.)

me crossed the littered deck, his battle-flag and broad pennant that an orderly had brought him trailing from his shoulder. He halted by a boat swung at the davits on the port side—the only one that had not gone to splinters. There he called a crew about him, and all got aboard the boat—seven besides the younger brother of Captain Perry—and lowered it. Word flew that he was leaving to take command of the sister brig, the Niagara, which lay a quarter of a mile or so from where we stood. We all wished to go, but he would have only sound men; there were not a dozen on the ship who had all their blood in them. As they pulled away, Perry standing in the stern, D'ri lifted a bloody, tattered flag, and leaning from the bulwarks, shook it over them, cheering loudly.

"Give 'em hell!" he shouted. "We 'll tek care o' the ol' brig."

We were all crying, we poor devils that were left behind. One, a mere boy, stood near me swinging his hat above his head, cheering. Hat and hand fell to the deck as I turned to him. He was reeling, when D'ri caught him quickly with his good arm and bore him to the cockpit.

The little boat was barely a length off when a heavy shot fell splashing in her wake. Soon they were dropping all around her. One crossed her bow, ripping a long furrow in the sea. A chip flew off her stern; a lift of splinters from an oar scattered behind her. Plunging missiles marked her course with a plait of foam, but she rode on bravely. We saw her groping under the smoke clouds; we saw her nearing the other brig, and were all on tiptoe. The air cleared a little, and we could see them ship oars and go up the side. Then we set our blood dripping with cheers again, we who were wounded on the deck of the Lawrence. Lieut. Yarnell ordered her one flag down. As it sank fluttering, we groaned. Our dismay went quickly from man to man. Presently we could hear the cries of the wounded there below. A man came staggering out of the cockpit, and fell to his hands and knees, creeping toward us and protesting fiercely, the blood dripping from his mouth between curses.

"Another shot would sink her," Yarnell shouted.

"Let 'er sink, d—n 'er," said D'ri. "Wish t' God I c'ud put my foot through 'er bottom. When the flag goes down I wan' t' go tew."

The British turned their guns; we were no longer in the smoky paths of thundering canister. The Niagara was now under fire. We could see the dogs of war rushing at her in leashes of flame and smoke. Our little gunboats, urged by oar and sweep, were hastening to the battle front. We could see their men, waist-high above the bulwarks, firing as they came. The Detroit and the Queen Charlotte, two heavy brigs of the British line, had run afoul of each other. The Niagara, signalling for close action, bore down upon them. Crossing the bow of one ship and the stern of the other, she raked them with broadsides. We saw braces fly and masts fall in the volley. The Niagara sheered off, pouring shoals of metal on a British schooner, stripping her bare. Our little boats had come up, and were boring into the brigs. In a brief time—it was then near three o'clock—a white flag, at the end of a boarding-pike, fluttered over a British deck. D'ri, who had been sitting awhile, was now up and cheering as he waved his crownless hat. He had lent his flag, and, in the flurry, some one dropped it overboard. D'ri saw it fall, and before we could stop him he had leaped into the sea. I hastened to his help, tossing a rope's end as he came up, swimming with one arm, the flag in his teeth. I towed him to the landing-stair and helped him over. Leaning on my shoulder, he shook out the tattered flag, its white laced with his own blood.

"Ready t' jump in hell fer thet ol' rag any day," said he, as we all cheered him.

Each grabbed a tatter of the good flag, pressing hard upon D'ri and put it to his lips and kissed it proudly. Then we marched up and down, D'ri waving it above us—a bloody squad as ever walked, shouting loudly. D'ri had begun to weaken with loss of blood, so I coaxed him to go below with me.

The battle was over; a Yankee band was playing near by.

"Perry is coming! Perry is coming!" we heard them shouting above.

A feeble cry that had in it pride and joy and inextinguishable devotion passed many a fevered lip in the cockpit.

There were those near who had won a better peace, and they lay as a man that listens to what were now the merest mockery.

Perry came, when the sun was low, with a number of British officers, and received their surrender on his own bloody deck. I remember, as they stood by the ruined bulwarks and looked down upon tokens of wreck and slaughter, a dog began howling dismally in the cockpit.

CHAPTER XVIII.

It was a lucky and a stubborn sea-fight. More blood to the number I never saw than fell on the Lawrence; 83 of our 102 men having been killed or laid up for repair. One has to search a bit for record of a more wicked fire. But we deserve not all the glory some histories have bestowed, for we had a larger fleet and better, if fewer, guns. It was, however, a thing to be proud of, that victory of the young captain. Our men, of whom many were raw recruits—farmers and woodsmen—stood to their work with splendid valor, and, for us in the north, it came near being decisive. D'ri and I were so put out of business that no part of the glory was ours, albeit we were praised in orders for valor under fire. But for both I say we had never less pride of ourselves in any affair we had had to do with. Well, as I have said before, we were at our best with a saber, and big guns were out of our line.

We went into hospital awhile, D'ri having caught cold and gone out of his head with fever. We had need of a spell on our backs for what with all our steeplechasing over yawning graves—that is the way I always think of it—we were somewhat out of breath. No news had reached me of the count or the young ladies, and I took some worry to bed with me, but was up in a week and ready for more trouble. I had to sit with D'ri awhile before he could mount a horse.

September was nearing its last day when we got off a brig at the Harbor. We were no sooner at the dock than some one began to tell us of a new plan for the invasion of Canada. I knew Brown had had no part in it, for he said in my hearing once that it was too big a chunk to bite off.

There were letters from the count and Therese, his daughter. They had news for me, and would I not ride over as soon as I returned? My mother—dearest and best of mothers—had written me, and her tenderness cut me like a sword for the way I had neglected her. Well, it is ever so with a young man whose heart has found a new queen. I took the missive with wet eyes to our good farmer-general of the north. He read it, and spoke with feeling of his own mother gone to her long rest.

"Bell," said he, "you are worn out. After mess in the morning mount your horses, you and the corporal, and go and visit them. Report here for duty on October 16."

Then, as ever after a kindness, he renewed his quid of tobacco, turning quickly to the littered desk at headquarters.

We mounted our own horses a fine, frosty morning. The white earth glimmered in the first touch of sunlight. All the fairy lanterns of the frost king, hanging in the stubble and the dead grass, glowed a brief time, flickered faintly, and went out. Then the brown sward lay bare, save in the shadows of rock or hill or forest that were still white. A great glory had fallen over the far-reaching woods. Looking down a long valley, we could see towers of evergreen, terraces of red and brown, golden steeple-tops, gilded domes minareted with lavender and purple and draped with scarlet banners. It seemed as if the trees were shriving after all the green riot of summer, and making ready for sackcloth and ashes. Some stood trembling, and as if drenched in their own blood. Now and then a head was bare and bent, and naked arms were lifted high, as if to implore mercy.

"Fine air," said I, breathing deep as we rode on slowly.

"'T is sart'n," said D'ri. "Mother used t' say 'at the frost wus only the breath o' angels, an' when it melted it gin us a leetle o' the the air o' heaven."

Of earth or heaven, it quickened us all with new life. The horses fretted for their heads, and went off at a gallop, needing no cluck or spur. We pulled up at the chateau well before the luncheon hour. D'ri took the horses, and I was shown to the library, where the count came shortly, to give me hearty welcome.

"And what of the captives?" I inquired, our greeting over.

"Alas! it is terrible; they have not returned," said he, "and I am in great trouble, for I have not written to France of their peril. Dieu! I hoped they would be soon released. They are well and now we have good news. Eh bien, we hope to see them soon. But of that Therese shall tell you. And you have had a terrible time on Lake Erie?"

He had read of the battle, but wanted my view of it. I told the story of the Lawrence and Perry; of what D'ri and I had hoped to do, and of what had been done to us. My account of D'ri—his droll comment, his valor, his misfortune—touched and tickled the count. He laughed, he clapped his hands, he shed tears of enthusiasm; then he rang a bell.

"The M'sieur D'ri—bring him here," said he to a servant.

D'ri came soon with a worried look, his trousers caught on his boot-tops, an old felt hat in his hand. Somehow he and the hat were as king and coronal in their mutual fitness; if he lost one, he swapped for another of about the same shade and shape. His brows were lifted, his eyes wide open with watchful timidity. The count had opened a leather case and taken out of it a shiny disk of silver. He stepped to D'ri, and fastened it upon his waistcoat.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

FOREMASTER WON.

Gregor K. the One Upset on New Orleans Card.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 30.—Nothing finer in the shape of racing weather could be desired than that dealt out here. The air was cold and bracing and a trifle sharp for those who sat in the grand stand, but such weather is a joy in New Orleans.

It was reported about the track Jockey Munro had been suspended indefinitely for his ride on Joe Lesser, but no official notice has been given out. Summary:

First Race.—Pawtucket, first; James H. Reed, second; Harpoon, third.

Second Race.—Gravina, first; Bengal, second; Homestead, third.

Third Race.—Foremaster, first; Gregor K., second; Court Maid, third.

Fourth Race.—Au Revoir, first; Vestry, second; Gus Heidorn, third.

Fifth Race.—Triple Silver, first; Oriskaney, second; Baywood, third.

Sixth Race.—Moorish Damsel, first; Antimony, second; Midge, third.

All Favorites Bowled Over.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 30.—The eighteen books at Ascot had an easy time of it, as every favorite was bowled over with regularity. There were no features except the winning of Red Damsel, at 10 to 1, in the first race. Hildebrand was fined $100 for crowding and cutting off Cerro Santa with Interlude in the second race. McDaniel took all the riding honors, winning with three mounts and finishing second and third in two others.

Baseball Men Fail to Agree.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 30.—Isador Mautner of Fort Wayne, acting for himself and John Heenan of Terre Haute and John Ganzel, and his partner, Philip Arnold of Louisville, have failed to agree on a purchase price for the Grand Rapids Central league franchise. It is understood that there was about $1,000 between the final figures offered by each side.

Three Favorites Won.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—The card at Oakland had no special features. Three favorites finished first. Adirondack, at 10 to 1, won easily from Barney Dreyfus and Batidor.

SIX CONVICTS FREE.

Deputy Sheriff Purnell Injured by Escaping Prisoners.

GEORGETOWN, Del., Dec. 30.—Six prisoners escaped from the county jail here last night, and during the melee Deputy Sheriff Charles T. Purnell was seriously injured. Purnell had gone to give the prisoners their supper and lock them up for the night. Suddenly one of them felled him with a club, rendering him unconscious.

The prisoners then dashed out of the jail, and all succeeded in making good their escape. A posse of officers are searching for the men. The prisoners who escaped are: Delaney Maddox, serving a life sentence for murder; Nathaniel Lingle, two years for larceny; Irving Wiltbank, five years for assault, and Gless Purnell, William Burton and Lee Ackwood, awaiting trial for minor offenses. It is feared Purnell will lose the sight of an eye.

Want Chinese Coolies.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—In his annual report to the secretary of the interior Hon. G. R. Carter, governor of Hawaii, urges in strong language the amendment of the Chinese exclusion law so as to permit the utilization of Chinese laborers in the Hawaiian island and the modification of the immigration laws so as to authorize the giving of assistance to Portuguese workmen who may desire to immigrate to Hawaii.

Suspect Surrendered to Police.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 30.—Lewis Jones, colored, who is wanted in Coffeyville, Kan., on a murder charge, gave himself up to the police here and will be taken back to that place to stand trial. Jones said that the murder was committed in March, 1903, and he fled for fear of being lynched. Jones was locked up. A dispatch from Coffeyville confirmed the story that he is wanted there on a murder charge.

Prisoner Shot Dead.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 30.—One hundred and fifty convicts at the Folsom state prison made a break for liberty while they were being brought from work at a rock crusher, and in the fight which followed one prisoner was shot dead and Guard Jolly shot through the cheek. Jolly is believed to have been shot by one of the guards by mistake, as none of the prisoners had a firearm.

A Biography of Hanna.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 30.—Elmer Dover, private secretary to the late Senator Marcus A. Hanna, is collecting data to be used in the official biography of the statesman. Mr. Dover has undertaken the work at the request of the Hanna family. Hundreds of letters from famous public men have been found, and some of them will probably be incorporated in the work.

British Commodore Offers Aid.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 30.—The United States gunboat Wasp while proceeding down the harbor, bound for Colon, grounded on a mud bank. She is still aground, but it is thought she will float at high tide. The British commodore at Port Royal has volunteered his services.

HOCKEY.

David Pond, of Princeton '05, will captain a temporary reorganized Camp Bowser hockey team, which will play several practice games with local teams while the vacation lasts.

Hyde's pond, the favorite hockey battle field, will be used this season both by the High School and by the Leal's teams. The High School team has the option on the pond this year, but there is no doubt that an amicable agreement will be made in favor of Leal's.

Now that there is ice on the local ponds, and the chances of a good skating season seem favorable, there is much talk of hockey among the candidates for the teams in the various schools. Leal's will probably get together in the near future, and an attempt will be made to get up a scrub team of the alumni who are home for their vacations. There will be an attempt also to get the High School squad on the ice, and if possible the boys will have regular practice before school reopens. North Plainfield High School has not definitely decided with regard to the probability of putting a hockey team on the ice, but the contest for championship between the other two schools, if the weather permits, will be an interesting and a hot one.

These bills have been paid and will be burned tomorrow night.

The Congregational Church Loan and Building Society has a first mortgage of $900, which is to be paid in nine annual installments, $100 a year. The programme for the evening will include selections on stringed instruments, solos by Mrs. L. T. Lindholm, reading and address by the pastor. There will be refreshments and a social hour. STREET WORK DURING '04

Annual Report of Council's Committee is Interesting.

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED

Lengthy Statements on Brick Pavements, Macadamizing, Slag Roads, Sewers and Other Matters.

The annual report of the committee on streets and sewers presented at the annual meeting of the Common Council last night contains much of interest to property owners especially. One or two subjects of lesser importance are omitted, on account of lack of space in this issue, in the report herewith reproduced:

"To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

"We submit herewith our annual report of work done and moneys received and expended on streets and sewers during the year 1904:

PERMANENT PAVEMENT.

"The block on Watchung avenue between North avenue and East Second street has been paved with vitrified brick on a concrete base, as proposed in the report for 1903. Being the block used as the main trolley station, it seemed to the committee the one on which a clean pavement would be most appreciated. In the future, on streets where there are no tracks, the concrete foundation may be replaced by a good macadam pavement, finished off five inches below grade; on this foundation the sand cushion and brick would be laid, making a substantial and more rapid, but less expensive construction than with a concrete foundation.

"The cost of the pavement on Watchung avenue, $2,712.50, was much increased by the interruptions caused by the cars, amounting to more than one third of the total time. The old stone from Watchung avenue where the brick pavement was laid was used in ballasting the new track in that block, also in repairing parts of Watchung and Central avenues and East Fifth street. The feeling seems general among the property owners and merchants that a section of brick pavement should be constructed in the business section of the city each year, using as much of the street appropriation as can be spared for this purpose. It would undoubtedly be of great benefit to the city to have all the business streets paved with something more durable than macadam; while the latter is quite satisfactory for most of the streets in the city, the excessive wear on the heavily traveled business streets causes them to be unpleasantly muddy in wet weather.

NEW MACADAMIZING.

"The contract for macadamizing let to C. M. Meeker in October, 1903, has been completed, with the exception of cerain repairs which cannot be made during freezing weather; it is proposed to have the cost of this work referred to commissioners early in 1905. The street committee has paid to the city treasurer $2,880, on account, in anticipation of the city's proportion of the assessments, and there will remain about $2,000 to be paid on this contract from the street appropriation for 1905; the exact amount cannot be ascertained until the commissioners have made their report.

"On October 20, 1904, another contract, embracing three miles of macadamizing, was awarded to Mr. Meeker, but only a small part of the work was done before the cold weather set in. The cost of this improvement will probably be assessed next year, and the city's proportion be paid out of the street appropriation, in addition to the amount above mentioned still due on the previous contract. We think it well to call the attention of the committee for 1905 to this fact in order that they may have it in mind in planning further macadamizing.

MACADAM STREETS RESURFACED.

"The following streets have been re-surfaced during the year: East Second street, east of Richmond street; East Seventh street, east of Watchung avenue; Watchung avenue, from the railroad to East Fifth street, west half; Belvidere avenue, from South avenue to Denmark road; Terrill road, from South avenue to Cushing road; the township and borough of Fanwood assume charge of the remainder of this street; Central avenue, from West Front street to West Fifth street; not finished; Plainfield avenue, south of Stelle avenue, part; Madison avenue, from West Second street to West Fourth street; West Eighth street, parts; West Sixth street, from Grant avenue to Monroe avenue; West Front street, mostly west of Grant avenue; Grant avenue, from West Front street

ANOTHER BIG BUILDING

Report That Christian Gloekler Will Erect Structure.

FRONT AND SOMERSET

Purchases Present Frame Structure From J. A. Blatz—Consideration $35,000.

Another large and important realty deal in business property is reported in which Christian Gloekler, who conducts a saloon at the corner of West Front and Somerset streets, has purchased that property of Joseph A. Blatz. The consideration is said to be approximately $35,000 and the new owner proposes early next year to tear down the old buildings on the corner and erect in their place a handsome modern structure, the first floor for cafe purposes and the upper floors to be used for flats.

This property has been sought after by several persons. Before the First National Bank built on its present site, an effort was made to get this corner, but the price jumped several times and the plan was given up. At one time the Y. M. C. A. tried to purchase the property before its building was erected at the corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue. Still later The Plainfield Trust Company made an effort to secure the property, but this deal went through. For many years the property has been occupied by a saloon, Charles Smith being the proprietor. He was succeeded by Joseph A. Blatz and then Christian Gloekler obtained possession. If the new building is erected, Toney Lusardi, who, for years has conducted a fruit stand on the corner, will have to move.

REAL ESTATE DEAL CARRIED TO COURT

F. P. AND HORACE CODDINGTON SUE JAMES TRIMMER.

The suit of Franklin P. Codington and Horace Codington against James Trimmer, to recover $178 claimed as rent from the defendant, was tried before Justice Mosher and a jury yesterday afternoon. Horace Codington, Esq., represented the plaintiffs, and L. A. Clement, Esq., represented the defendant. Before the case was concluded Mr. Clement raised the question that Justice Mosher had no jurisdiction in the matter which involves a real estate transaction, and the Justice dismissed the proceedings.

The plaintiffs claimed to own property on West Front street formerly occupied by the defendant and they declared they gave the deed for it in exchange for a twelve-acre farm at Washingtonville and demanded $178 as rent. Mr. Trimmer's defence was that the plaintiffs had never given him the deed for the farm, thereby failing in the agreement. These persons served on the jury: George Dean, Thomas Lyon, John Smith, Isaac Shrager, Thomas Gray, Henry Drake, Herbert VanFleet, Charles Case, Frank Dunham, Frank L. Swackhamer, Christopher Huff and John Crouse.

The case will now be taken to the Circuit Court.

FOR A THIRD FIRE HOUSE

Chief Doane Recommends Better Protection for East End.

WANTS MORE FIREMEN

Annual Report to Common Council Contains Many Valuable Suggestions.

Chief of the Fire Department T. O. Doane presented his annual report at the adjourned meeting of Common Council last night. The main features of the report follow:

"To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

"I submit for your attention this my seventeenth annual report of the condition of the fire department under your control with the number of fires and alarms, the cause and the amount of insurance, and losses as near as could be ascertained.

ENGINE HOUSES.

"The engine houses occupied by the department are owned by the city, and are in good order except that a portion of the floor in headquarters may need repairing during the year, and new door places on No. 1 engine house. The apparatus of the department is all in good order with the exception of the hook and ladder truck. The aerial ladder of the apparatus was strained at the Babcock fire and has never been repaired; this should be done, and the iron tires replaced with rubber tires.

CAUSES OF FIRES.

"Chimneys and defective flues, 21; unknown, 18; grass, 8; locomotive sparks, 6; stoves, 6; lamps, 4; fireworks, 3; gas stoves, 3; smoke, 3; ashes, 2; gas get, 2; lightning, 2; debris in cellar, 2; oil stove, 1; plumber, 1; smoking in bed, 1; escaping steam, 1; waste, 1; false alarm, 1; out of city, 1; cleaning clothing, 1; gas taper, 1; benzene, 1; woods, 2; oil and rags, 1; bonfire, 1; gasolene explosion, 1; spontaneous combustion, 1; candle, 1; freight car, 1; kerosene engine, 1; Match, 1; boy and match, 1. Total, 101.

INSURANCE AND LOSSES.

"Buildings, $127,600; loss, $5,388.59. Contents — Insurance, $55,400; loss, $4,153.50. Total amount of insurance, $183,000; total amount collected, $8,462.09; loss on buildings and contents, $9,542.09; not insured loss (included), $1,080.

PROPERTY VALUE.

"Real estate, $180,610; personal, $80,485.

AMOUNT OF DUTY PERFORMED BY DEPARTMENT.

"No duty, 39; fires put out with hydrant streams, 18; fires put out with small extinguishers, 15; fires put out with chemical engine, 7; fires put out with chemical and hydrants, 7; fires put out with chemical and small extinguishers, 6; fires put out with pails of water, 4; fires put out with small extinguishers and pails of water, 2; fires put out by being thrown out, 2; fires put out by being beat out, 1. Total, 101.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

"The only improvement made in the department this year was the placing of a new boiler in No. 1 engine house to replace the old one that was worn out; the purchase of 2,000 feet of hose, and the purchase of a team of horses. In my reports of 1902 and 1903 I called your attention to the fact that more hydrants were needed for the central or business portion of the city, and pointed out the places where they should be located. I hope your Honorable Body will take this matter up during the coming year before Front street is paved. The buildings in the section I have indicated are not only high and compact, but are filled with valuable goods, and in case of fire in this district we would need a number of lines of hose, and the shorter the lines the better the service. While our water pressure is all that the water company agreed to give us, and at an ordinary fire, during certain hours of the day, is all that we need, there are times when we need more pressure. I think the matter should be taken up by the Council. I again renew my request of last year that five more permanent men be appointed, they are very much needed. As soon as the financial condition of the city will permit, there should be an engine house built in the eastern end of the city and equipped with a steamer and combination chemical and hose wagon. I recommended that deluge set, and a ladder pipe to equip our aerial ladder as a water tower, be purchased. In conclusion, I tender my thanks to His Honor the Mayor, and to your Honorable Body, for the interest you have taken in the department, and I hope for a continuance of the same. I also wish to thank all the officers and members of the department for their good behavior and the good work they have done during the year."

FOUR BOYS ARRESTED FOR ANNOYING JANITOR

MISCHIEVOUS BOROUGH LADS TO APPEAR BEFORE RECORDER.

A gang of boys who had been annoying the members of Warren chapel Sunday-school at the entertainment Wednesday night, set upon Janitor Theodore Martin as he was leaving the place after the affair was concluded. He was pelted with snowballs in which stones had been packed and three of his upper teeth were knocked out and others loosened. The matter was reported to Chief Weise and today he arrested Chris Mobus, Clarence Coddington, Sherman Haberle and William Rutledge. Two others are to be arrested this afternoon and all six will be arraigned before Recorder Dond tonight.

POLICEMEN'S ASSAILANTS HAD PLANNED AN ESCAPE

STARTLING INFORMATION GIVEN LOCAL AUTHORITIES BY A PRISONER.

Arraigned in the city court this morning on a charge of begging, Christopher Gorman, a farmhand from Martinsville, startled the local police by declaring that the four negroes arrested in North Plainfield after they had murderously assaulted two policemen, had plans on foot for an escape from the Somerville jail. Questioned by Chief Kiely, Gorman stated he had been confined in the jail awaiting the action of the Grand Jury and that being near the colored men he heard them plotting to gain their freedom before they were brought to trial. A "third degree" process failed to shake Gorman's statements and the chief became impressed that he was telling the truth. He immediately called up the Somerville authorities and notified them of what he had learned. As a result the men have been separated and a close watch will be kept upon them until their case is disposed of.

Gorman was sent to the Somerville jail through a charge made that he had committed larceny. The Grand Jury failed to indict him and released yesterday, he came to this city. He was picked up on Crescent avenue by Roundsman Flynn, who had watched him going from house to house and stopping pedestrians. Judge Runyon committed him for twenty days.

The prizes were won by Miss Mary Duvier, Miss Emma Duvier and Benjamin Duvier, George McVoy, Herbert McVoy and Arthur McVoy. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of play and an hour was spent informally.

Deputy Registrar Resigns.

BLDG. INSPECTION REFORM

Former Mayor Shows Flaws in "Spite House" Report.

LENGTHY REVIEW

A Leading Citizen Writes Pertinent Letter on Municipal Matter of Grave Importance.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, president of New York Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange, whose beautiful estate on East Front street has been greatly depreciated in value by the erection of a shack in the immediate neighborhood, favors The Daily Press with his first and exclusive communication relative to the important subject of "spite houses." It may be said to Mr. Randolph's credit that his efforts in this matter, in which he has been supported by former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the Market and Fulton Bank of New York, and other influential citizens, will ultimately redound to the benefit of the entire municipality. The communication follows:

To the Editor of The Daily Press:

Dear Sir: For the first time to-day I put myself in direct communication with a newspaper on what has been known as the "Spite House" question. I do so now because a period of about three months has elapsed since I addressed the Common Council on this subject, and because it seems likely that the present Council is not likely to take any further action, and because, with all due respect to the Fire and Building Committee, their report seems sadly deficient.

I attach here excerpts from the Committee's report, as printed in the Daily Press, and place them in parallel lines, not for the purpose of demonstrating that the report is inconsistent with itself or with anything, but in order that, at a glance, it may be plainly seen how certain phases of the subject have been dealt with in different paragraphs, and how the whole report is void of result.

The building inspector having grounds, we believe, for surmising the character of the building which it was purposed to erect upon the premises, could have referred the plans and application to the Fire and Building Committee, before granting the permit, and the committee would have advised with him gladly in reference thereto. However, your committee is strongly of the opinion that under the existing building ordinance the duty of passing upon plans devolves wholly upon the inspector, so that in the case under consideration, had the plans been submitted, the committee could have acted in an advisory capacity only.

Your committee has examined the plans and specifications embodied in the application for the permit to erect the building in question, and find that such application was in the usual form and provided for the erection of a structure permitted by the ordinance, save perhaps in respect to the roof, which was of a material permitted to be used within the fire limits, and as the ordinance has been universally construed, elsewhere as well, but by strange anomaly not permitted in outlying districts.

Mr. Randolph's strong stand in this entire matter, as also against the grossly improper conduct and demeanor of the tenants of the building (which conduct and demeanor seems to your committee to be the fundamental reasons for complaint) is praiseworthy and greatly beneficial to the interests of the city at large.

Your committee has carefully reviewed these features of the case and finds no evidence to substantiate suggestions of incompetence or connivance on the part of the building inspector.

Mr. Doane inspected the building at various times while it was in course of construction, made suggestions to the man in charge of the work and stated to your committee that he found no violation of the ordinance.

The inspector had no knowledge, other than the sworn statement of Marra, as to the title of the land upon which it was proposed to erect the building, and the committee does not consider that the inspector was derelict in this regard, as it was not within his line of duty to ascertain the ownership by other means than the sworn statement of the applicant.

Your committee has examined with care the existing ordinance, and believing that a revision of the same would be advantageous to the city, had hoped with this report to submit a draft revision of the ordinance, collating in an orderly way provisions relating to buildings within and without the fire limits, and to buildings of wood and of stone construction and embracing the specific provisions in reference to the duties of the building inspector.

It is true that the committee have referred in a commendatory way to the communication from ex-Mayor Gilbert. Upon reference to Mr. Gilbert's communication to the Common Council on this subject, I find opinions of his set forth in the following language:

"The erection of 'spite houses,' or to call them by a more appropriate name 'blackmail houses,' should be an utter impossibility in Plainfield. * * * Our building ordinance should be broad enough to protect our citizens against damage to property from such a case. Buildings of the character referred to are not only a damage to property in their immediate neighborhood, but to the growth and development of the city as well. A dozen or more of such buildings scattered through the city in well improved neighborhoods would operate as a severe check to the growth of the city. Who would buy property or build in the neighborhood of a spite house?

* * * * * * *

"In the discharge of this duty one would suppose that he (the Building Inspector) would consider all the circum-

CITY FATHERS' REPORTS

Plainfield Council Winds Up Business for 1904.

ONLY ROUTINE WORK

President of the Body Receives Acknowledgment of Valued Service From His Probable Successor.

Routine business including the presentation of annual reports and the winding up of the city's business for the year, occupied the attention of the Common Council at its final meeting for the year held last night. There was a kindly expression of appreciation of the uniform courtesy and skill of Councilman Ralph I. Tolles, the retiring president, in a few words by Councilman Leslie M. Daniel and a motion to thank him for his services was carried unanimously. Mr. Tolles made brief acknowledgement.

The annual reports of Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, the committee on streets and sewers were presented. They are reproduced in this issue of The Daily Press.

Two electric lights petitioned for on Terrill road, between East Front and Second streets, were granted on a motion offered by Mr. Murphy.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of nine permits during December and in his annual report the granting of 188 permits.

Mr. Garrigues, chairman of the alms committee, gave a brief annual report showing the expenditures in the various departments out of the total of $6,633.91 appropriated to the care of the poor. There are now eleven males and seven females in the Industrial Home and during the year 294 persons outside have received assistance.

The reports of the Chief of Police, city treasurer and city judge will be found in other columns of this issue.

Mr. Daniel reported back the bond of Constable John Conroy and moved it be filed in the county clerk's office. Regarding Constable Peter V. Weaver's bond, he moved it be returned for correction. A. H. Lawson's petition for an adjustment of taxes and the communication from the Board of Assessors for an increase in salaries were referred to the 1905 committees on Mr. Daniel's motion.

Mr. Murphy reported favorably on a petition from G. A. Chapman and others for two electric lights on Field avenue, between Eighth street and Stelle avenue, and the same was granted.

Mr. Murphy also presented an annual report as chairman of the committee on lights and trees. This showed the sixteen new lights were located during the year, making a total of 850 for which the city pays $15.50 each a year. He referred to the new arc light granted and which is to be located at the corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue about January 1. He also mentioned the fact that four incandescent lights near the corner will be cut out, unless good reasons are offered why they should be continued. By discontinuing these four lights the city is saved $68 and the new arc light will cost an additional $32. Reference was made to the poor quality of the street light and it was suggested that the new committee investigate this. The report concluded by expressing appreciation of the fairness of the Public Service Corporation during the year and three light petitions were referred to the new committee.

Mr. Daniel moved that the bill for Mayor Jenkin's' salary be approved and the amount paid, which was so ordered. The Common Council then adjourned sine die.

After the meeting the members held a conference to talk over matters that will come up early in the new year.

527 POLICE COURT CASES

City Judge Runyon's Annual Report Presented.

City Judge William N. Runyon's annual report showed that 527 cases were before him, 114 of which were fined, 330 sentence suspended, fifty-five committed, five held for the juvenile court, twenty-two complains dismissed.

The city court has received $730, of which amount $135 was given to the Board of Health and $210.05 was the total of Chief Kiely's expenses. There was $519.95 turned over to the city treasurer.

Reporters on Vacation.

Thomas M. Muir, of The Daily Press staff, leaves tonight for a visit with relatives at Woodstock, Ont., Canada. Archibald Hacquer, of The Courier-News staff, leaves Monday for Lake Maccasaw, N. C., where he will spend a week on A. I. Smalley's plantation.

STREET WORK DURING '04

to West Fourth street, part.

REPAIR WORK.

"Ordinary repair work has been done on the following streets: Ravine road, South avenue, Woodland avenue, Arlington avenue, south of Ninth street and East Fifth street. In repairing the damage done by storms, work was done on Richmond street, Putnam avenue, Rahway road, North avenue, east of Richmond street, West Third street, west of Monroe avenue and Dunellen avenue. Netherwood avenue, north of Second street, and Leland avenue between North and South avenue, have been improved with gravel.

SLAG ROADS.

"Repairs have been made with slag on the following streets: Spooner avenue, from West Second street to West Third street, Prescott place at West Fifth street, Evona avenue, (not completed) and West End avenue. In the new contract for macadamizing, the specifications call for some streets to have two inches of trap rock on a six inch foundation of slag, the material to be obtained free of cost from the Pond Machine Tool Company. The price for macadamizing a street of this type, 30 feet wide, is 90 cents per lineal foot, while the price for an all-macadam street of the same width under the previous contract was $1.25 per lineal foot, the depth of trap rock being six inches at the centre and four inches at the sides if a sufficient quantity of the slag can be obtained of suitable quality, a considerable saving can be made by its use in improving the streets at the west end of the city.

STORM-SEWERS.

"The most important storm-sewer work accomplished this year was the repair of the 24-inch pipe in Rock avenue. This sewer drains a very large area, in fact carries a small brook. During the heavy storm of September the sewer broke, and the work of replacing the broken section, and bedding it in concrete was slow and difficult, the material being mostly quick-sand. The old course of the brook along Front street, in the Industrial Home property, was opened up, the pipe cleaned and new pipe was laid where needed. When the Rock avenue sewer is overloaded in the future, the water will rise in the swamp at the corner of Rock avenue and Front street and most of the surplus will flow off through the old abandoned channel. The old culvert near DeKalb avenue through which this brook crosses Front street, caved in early last spring and was replaced by 24-inch pipe. A new inlet was put in on West Front street at Washington avenue, and the inlets on Sycamore avenue near the brook were rebuilt.

FLAGGING AND CURBING.

"Not as much flagging was ordered in 1904 as in previous years, but the city has finished all that was left undone by the property owners, except in two cases where delay has been caused by legal formalities. 3,640 feet of flagging have been laid and 845 feet of curbing set.

BROOK OVERFLOWS.

"On December 5 this committee submitted its special report on the causes of the overflows of Green brook. We hope that some, at least, of the recommendations found in this report may be carried out by the Council of 1905, in order to abate the loss and inconvenience occasioned by these floods. We also recommend that further efforts be made to secure the consent of the property owners for the deepening and widening of Cedar brook, and in case of failure to secure all of them, we suggest that condemnation proceedings be instituted to secure the remaining right of way; when it is remembered that the proposed improvement would first of all benefit those adjacent to the brook it would seem that they should be the most anxious to have the work done.

"The removal of gravel and rubbish from the bed of Cedar brook and other small streams into which the storm sewers empty is now in progress. In order to make a larger water-way under the bridges, it is proposed to have the sewer and water pipes which now cross above the bed of Cedar brook lowered; the sewers would have manholes at each end of the 'inverted syphons,' for the purpose of inspection, and cleaning if necessary.

STREET WIDENING AND EXTENSION.

"Petitions for the extension of Stebbins place from its present terminus to West Fourth street, and for the extension of Kensington avenue from Prospect avenue to Park avenue, were referred to this committee, and we believe that both extensions are desired improvements.

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY.

"The Street Railway Company has done a large amount of work on its tracks this year. On Watchung avenue the company has put in new ties and rails for the brick pavement; on West Front street, west of Clinton avenue, the track was ballasted with a liberal amount of trap rock; and on East Fifth street, East Second street and others, new ties have been put in and the track has been ballasted and surfaced. The Company has paid for removing snow, for repairs to streets and for new work $1,985.93; there is now due from the company for removing snow from December 1 to December 20, $61.05, and for the macadamizing of Woodland avenue, $1,005.83; the latter amount, when received, will be credited to the bond account.

STREET SPRINKLING.

"Two new sprinkling wagons were purchased last spring, making eight in all. They were operated, as in the previous year, under a contract with John E. Keely, for $667 per month; the charge for water was $160 per month and the total cost for the year was $5,899.69, which includes the cost of the two new wagons, $670. While some improvement might be made in the service, we believe that our citizens would be unwilling to have municipal street sprinkling discontinued.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Work has been continued on the grading of Jackson avenue between East Front and East Second streets, and further excavation will be required to bring the street to the proper grade. A start has been made on the grading of Myrtle avenue (the extension of Dunellen avenue) to enable the ash-carters to drive in and make the fill across the low land. As the proceedings for laying out and opening this avenue were completed with practically no expense to the city, we recommend that the 200 feet of excavation required be completed as fast as the force can be spared from other work. The September gale, similar to that of the previous year, filled the streets with uprooted trees and broken tree limbs; these were promptly removed by the regular street force at a cost of $52.43. The ten ton Buffalo Pitts steam roller has been used four years with very little expense for repairs, but some of the parts now need renewing and it is being overhauled at the Pond Tool Work. Forty-eight street signs have been ordered to replace those which are badly damaged; our street signs are the best that can be obtained, but it is found necessary to replace some of them every year.

"The cost of sprinkling the streets has been a heavy draft on the appropriation for street work, and improvements planned by your committee are necessarily postponed for lack of funds. Among these are the much needed repair of Belleview avenue, South avenue, parts of Grant and Central avenues and others; also the extension to Fourth street of the storm sewers in Watchung, Park and Plainfield avenues, which would obviate the stoppage of the culverts where the street railway tracks cross them.

SEWERS—DISPOSAL WORKS.

"We quote the following from the report of Mr. Joseph O. Osgood, consulting engineer, to this committe when the present sewage disposal works were planned by him in December, 1900:

"'Judging from the experience in other places it may be said with confidence that the tank capacity is more than sufficient for the present flow and will probably prove sufficient for a flow of at least 900,000 gallons per day or double the present average. Whenever found inadequate, additional tanks can readily be constructed to work in connection with those planned and with no more expense than if erected now.

"'The double contact beds, if worked at the rate proposed for Manchester, will handle an average flow of 800,000 gallons per day and will probably prove ample for 1,200,000 gallons per day. * * * When not overworked the beds are not likely to be clogged or have their efficiency much reduced so long as the septic tanks do their work thoroughly.'

"There have been over 8½ miles of new sewers constructed since Mr. Osgood made this report, 663 additional house connections have been made and the flow of sewage has increased from about 450,000 gallons to over 900,000 gallons per day. 315 of the 663 sewer connections have been made during the year 1904, this large number being due mainly to the action of the Board of Health in ordering sewer connections through the thickly settled portions of the city, though most of the property owners along the line of the new sewers have been ready to connect with the sewers as fast as they were completed.

"It is evident from the foregoing facts that the time has arrived for enlarging the plant and we recommend that steps be taken early in 1905 for enlarging the works to about double their present capacity, and that the stone in the upper contact beds be cleaned. Mr. Osgood has kindly consented to consult with your committee, without charge, on the general problems connected with the extension of the works. We repeat the recommendation made by the committee of 1903 that a plain building be erected at the works to serve as a dwelling for the day operator; this to be built in connection with the enlargement of the disposal works, on land owned by the city.

SEWERS—PIPE SYSTEM.

"Considerable injury was done by the severe weather last winter to the flush tank water connections, and it was necessary to have several of them dug up and replaced by new pipe. In June of this year a contract was let to Stone, Grossart & Co., of Philadelphia, for the construction of 2 12-100 miles of new sewers and the work was completed in a satisfactory manner. The resolution referring the cost of these sewers to the assessment commissioners is herewith presented for transmission to the Council at 1905. The cost of sewers constructed in 1901 and 1903 was referred to the commissioners in February of this year, but they have not yet made their report to the Common Council. Street Commissioner Gavett's detailed statement of receipts and disbursements is as follows:

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS.

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

NOTICE Fire Sale NOTICE

The recent big fire at Elizabethport partly destroyed a building known as the Alcyone Club, used by the McManus Bros. as a storage house for their duplicate and surplus stocks of Furniture.

The fire damaged the upper portion of the building, but the lower part in which the McManus Bros. had their goods was only touched by water, and a great deal of the stock even escaped the water.

The Insurance Companies having adjusted their losses with the McManus Bros. the firm is enabled to offer the public the whole of this immense stock at which means a saving of 75c on every dollar. The goods being but slightly injured, offer such tempting bargains that no one who needs or may need Furniture, can afford to overlook this remarkable chance.

25c on the Dollar

Notice of sale will appear at an early date in this and other papers.

HAS UPJOHN LETTER

Bishop Talbot Will Produce Famous Document at Trial.

COUNTER CHARGE OF FORGERY MADE

Wife of Bishop at Bethlehem Would Have Him Speak Out as to Entire Case and Give Public True Version of Matter.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 31.—That Bishop Ethelbert Talbot has in his possession letters and papers of a sensational character which will be made public in his defense against the charges brought by the friends of Dr. I. W. N. Irvine has been positively stated by Mrs. Talbot, his wife.

That the bishop has thus far refrained from making these documents public is through no fault of his wife, according to her own statement.

"The bishop," said Mrs. Talbot, "is keeping silent, awaiting what he regards as the proper time to speak. In this we by no means agree, as I have repeatedly urged him to tell of the entire case from beginning to end—to make public the letters of Dr. Irvine and give the public the true version of the matter.

"This true version is so different from the things that have been printed regarding it as to be surprising. I dreamed that I had taken the matter into my own hands and made public the letters. I awoke, however, to find them just as they were when I retired. I have to content myself with bearing everything as well as possible with Christian fortitude, in the full knowledge and belief that all will come right after awhile.

"The bishop will produce these letters at the proper time, but I agree with many of his friends that things have now gone so far that he should wait no longer, but should make public every detail of the case."

Mrs. Talbot, who shows about her eyes the strain to which she has been subjected, is in appearance no less distinguished than her husband. She is a well preserved woman of fifty years, with clear blue eyes and white hair. Her face is young looking, her bearing what her speech suggests, that of the southern gentlewoman.

It was learned here that the original of the now famous Upjohn letter, on which the charges are based, has not been destroyed, as was supposed, but is in the possession of Bishop Talbot locked in a safe in his residence here on Delaware avenue.

An intimate friend of the accused man said the original letter will be produced at the forthcoming trial.

It was also declared here by an intimate friend of the bishop and a relative of one of the clerical presenters that his (the clerical presenter's name) had been secured to the presentment by misrepresentation and that when the real condition of affairs is explained this name and possibly others will be removed from the document.

Following the charges that Bishop Talbot is guilty of criminal libel, conduct unbecoming a bishop, falsifying and misrepresenting in writing the now famous Upjohn letter making charges against the Rev. Dr. Ingram N. W. Irvine, the sensational counter charge is made here that forgery or trickery was employed in getting the names of some of the men to sign the presentment against the bishop.

Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, the bishop of central Pennsylvania, against whom the Rev. Ingram N. W. Irvine of Philadelphia is about to make a presentment, is absent from the city.

According to his friends, he is on a regular tour of visitation among the parishes of his diocese, which has taken him to the neighborhood of White Haven, in the Lehigh valley. They do not know when he will return to Bishopsrhue, as he calls the seehouse in South Bethlehem.

To the few newspaper men who have been able to find him he has declined to answer any of the charges to be lodged against him or to enter into the controversy now going on.

"Wait until everything comes out," he is quoted as saying. "I am more anxious than any one else to have this investigation and settle for all time these false rumors and charges."

Strikers Parade in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—Hundreds of women and men who compose the forces of striking garment workers marched through the streets here in a parade devised to show the strength of the union whose members walked out of twenty-four shops of the National Tailors' association Nov. 17. Bearing banners and transparencies inscribed with words of contempt for nonunionists who took their places in the clothing manufactories, the procession filed past the strike affected shops.

OUR AMBASSADORS.

President In Conference Arranges Diplomatic Changes.

WHITELAW REID SUCCEEDS CHOATE

Porter, to Retire, May Be Replaced by Meyer From Rome—Clayton, In Mexico, to Be Followed by Conger, Now Minister to China.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—President Roosevelt is devoting some time at present to consideration of important appointments in the diplomatic and consular service of the government which are to be made formally by him at the beginning of the new administration next March. Secretary Hay had a conference with the president prior to the meeting of the cabinet, and it is understood that the matter of appointments in the diplomatic service was one of the subjects discussed.

While no official announcement of the president's intention as to any of the important diplomatic posts yet has been made, it is known that he has decided upon several changes. Joseph H. Choate, ambassador to the court of St. James, has indicated that he does not desire longer to continue as the representative of this government in Great Britain and that he expects when relieved to return to America to look after his personal interests here. He will be succeeded by Whitelaw Reid, proprietor of the New York Tribune, who was one time minister to France.

General Horace Porter, American ambassador to France, will retire from that post soon after the 4th of March. He was appointed by the late President McKinley and with the expiration of his present term will have served the United States at the French capital eight years. The president has decided on General Porter's successor, but at this time no announcement of his decision can be made.

Charlemagne Tower, American ambassador to Germany, and Robert S. McCormick, American ambassador to Russia, will continue at their respective posts. Strong influences have been brought to bear in behalf of both Ambassadors Tower and McCormick. In addition their services have been satisfactory to the government. The president finds it a pleasure, therefore, to reappoint them.

Bellamy Storer, ambassador to Austria-Hungary, will continue as the American representative to the court of Vienna unless the president should decide to transfer him to another post in the diplomatic service.

As to the ambassadorship to Italy, nothing of a definite nature can be said now. It has been rumored that Ambassador George V. L. Meyer is to succeed General Porter at Paris, but it can be said that such a change is not certain. The probabilities are that Ambassador Meyer will remain at Rome.

General Powell Clayton having decided to relinquish his post as ambassador to Mexico at the end of the present administration, he will be succeeded by Edwin H. Conger, now United States minister to China. It is not expected that Mr. Conger will continue long at the Mexican capital, as it is understood he intends to return to his home state of Iowa to be a candidate for governor in succession to Governor Cummins. When he leaves the City of Mexico he will be succeeded by David E. Thompson of Nebraska, who at present is American minister to Brazil. Mr. Thompson accepted the appointment to Brazil with the understanding that he would be appointed to a higher place in the diplomatic service as soon as opportunity offered. Minister Conger will be succeeded at the court of Peking by William W. Rockhill, at present director of the bureau of American republics, who is recognized as an authority on all subjects pertaining to China and the Chinese.

John K. Gowdy, who was appointed by President McKinley as American consul general at Paris, will be succeeded by Frank H. Mason, who is now consul general to Berlin. In succession to Mr. Mason John Lewis Griffiths of Indianapolis will be named.

It is expected that other changes will be made in the corps of American ministers, but at this time they are not obtainable for publication.

Three Convicts In the Morgue.

FOLSOM, Cal., Dec. 31.—But for the fact that the hospital here contained several wounded men and that three convicts are laid out in the morgue there is no indication at the state prison of the bold dash for liberty made by nine convicts late Wednesday. The condition of Charles Jolly, the guard, and Captain R. J. Murphy, who were wounded, are unchanged. Jolly, who was shot through the face, will recover if blood poisoning does not set in. Murphy is wounded in the leg and has two knife wounds in the back.

Shot Himself In Head.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 31.—Frank McCarty, aged fifty years, a retired commission merchant, committed suicide at his home in this city by shooting himself in the head. McCarthy was in prosperous circumstances, and no cause can be assigned for his self destruction.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 31.—The Catholic priests of Paradise and Zuniga have been expelled from the church by Bishop Blenk and ordered to leave Porto Rico.

TWENTY-TWO RESCUED.

Life Savers at Diamond Shoals Braved Surf For Eighteen Miles.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 31.—Captain W. J. Linch and the crew of the steamship Northeastern, which was wrecked Tuesday night on Inner Diamond shoals, were brought safely ashore through nine miles of rough sea by life savers. The ship is a total loss.

James W. Ellwell, New York agent for the ship, has been advised that the Northeastern is going to pieces. Her backbone has broken and the oil in her tanks has run out. Everything belonging to the ship and crew is lost, including the ship's papers and log book.

The rescue of the twenty-two men from the Northeastern by the United States life savers of Hatteras and Kennakeet under Captains Etheridge and Poel is a record breaker in the annals of the Virginia-Carolina coast. The life savers pulled their surfboats over the eighteen miles to and from the wreck without the loss of a man, and each boat carried twenty men on the return trip.

Commend Brave Surf Life Savers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Official commendation of the services rendered the men aboard the British steamer Drumelzier, which stranded off Fire island last Monday, by the crews of three life saving stations in that vicinity is made in letters dispatched by Secretary Shaw to Keeper T. H. Patterson and men at the Sandy Hook station, Keeper Edgar Frost and men at Oak island station and Keeper Doxsee and men at Fire island. The letters call attention to the perilous work of the men and their gallant, courageous and faithful performance of duty.

OPTIONAL AT NEW ORLEANS.

Feature of Crescent City Track—A Close Finish In the Third.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 31.—There was nothing particularly attractive about the card at the Crescent City course. Outside of the six furlong sprint, which had a shade more quality than the other events, the races afforded good mediums for speculation and good contests.

The weather was fine, though a bit cool, and the track was lightning fast.

E. R. Thomas has left for Florida. He made no contracts for next season either with Watkins or Jockey Nicol. Summary:

First Race.—Escutcheon, first; Florentine, second; Jade, third.

Second Race.—Mary Glenn, first; Miladi Love, second; Fitzbrillar, third.

Third Race.—Optional, first; Foxmead, second; Dick Bernard, third.

Fourth Race.—Cataline, first; Bengal, second; Midshipman, third.

Fifth Race.—Hand Spinner, first; Beaucaire, second; Frank Rice, third.

Sixth Race.—Dallas, first; Belle of Portland, second; Tootsey Mack, third.

Two Favorites Won.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 31.—At Ascot Whitestone upset all calculations by winning the first race at 40 to 1 from Sandstone, the favorite. The winner opened at 15 to 1, but drifted back to 40 to 1. The steeplechase went to the favorite, Mrs. Grannan. Ballantyne fell at the first jump, and Jockey McBride had a narrow escape, as the horse turned a complete somersault. Two favorites won.

Favorite Blew Up at Stretch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—Three favorites won at Oakland. Glendene won at 15 to 1 in the first race, and in the fourth race Bard Burns, the favorite, blew up at the stretch, finishing a bad fourth.

Pope Receives Canadian Baroness.

ROME, Dec. 31.—The pope has received in private audience in his study Baroness Macdonald, widow of the late Canadian premier, Sir John A. Macdonald. The pontiff on this occasion spoke in French for perhaps the first time in a private audience. He asked Lady Macdonald to sit next to him, saying her visit was an honor for him. The pope said he knew how fairly her late husband treated the Canadian Catholics and presented the baroness with a medal bearing the pope's head on one side and his arms on the other side.

Paper on Price of Beef.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 31. — The members of the American Association For the Advancement of Science, in convention here, listened to an interesting paper read by Frederick C. Croxton of the United States bureau of labor, in which he accounted for the advance in the price of beef during the past ten years. He presented statistics in support of this theory, giving the ratio of the supply to the demand during the period covered by his paper. He said in part, "The retail price of fresh beef at the present time is about 120 per cent above the average for the period from 1890 to 1899."

Berth For Huntley.

ALBANY N. Y., Dec. 31.—Governor Odell appointed Charles L. Huntley of Buffalo a member of the state commission to the Lewis and Clark exposition. The governor has reappointed Henry W. Baldwin of Flushing a member of the board of visitation of the Long Island hospital.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Announcement is made that Arthur E. Newbold of Philadelphia becomes a member of the banking house of Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia and J. P. Morgan & Co. of this city on Jan. 1, 1905. George C. Thomas retires from these firms today.

Japanese Capital Welcomes Home Their Naval Hero.

KAMIMURA SHARES IN THE ACCLAIM

Emperor's Carriage Awaited Commanders, While Triumphal Arches, Waving Flags and Cheering Crowds Testified Gratitude.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—Advices from Tokyo say that Admiral Togo and Vice Admiral Kamimura, with their staffs, arrived at the Shimbassi station, Tokyo, yesterday. Their journey from Kure to Tokyo was a continuous ovation. At an early hour the streets of the capital were filled, and the city was gayly decorated with flags, lanterns and New Year's decorations. Representatives of the emperor and empress, Prince Fushimi, Jr.; elder statesmen, ministers, prominent Japanese and thousands of school children greeted the arrival of the naval heroes at the station. The presidents of both houses of the diet presented them with the resolutions of commendation passed by their respective branches of parliament.

The quiet, gray bearded Admiral Togo, in a blue service uniform, seemed embarrassed at the noisy ovation. Rear Admiral Shimamura, chief of staff, laughingly elbowed forward Vice Admiral Kamimura. The junior officers tried to clear the way, but the crowd closed in on Admiral Togo, and they were frequently forced to push the crowd backward in an endeavor to clear the reaching hands.

Finally Admiral Togo and Vice Admiral Kamimura were freed from their enthusiastic admirers, and, surrounded by officers, they reached the carriage sent by the emperor to the station to convey the distinguished party to the palace.

As Admiral Togo appeared a great shout arose, hats were thrown in the air, arms were raised, and "Banzai" followed "Banzai."

Preceded by gendarmes, the party drove under triumphal arches, waving flags and discharging fireworks, through the cheering crowds to the navy department, where a brief stop was made, during which the congratulations of the ministers were received and future victories were toasted.

Admiral Togo and Vice Admiral Kamimura then proceeded to the palace to report to the emperor. They will probably remain in Tokyo about one week for the purpose of consulting with the general staff and perfecting plans for future operations.

The headquarters of the army besieging Port Arthur telegraphs that after the occupation of Rihlung fort a small body of Russians still offered resistance in the passage between the siege gun line and the gorge.

At 3 o'clock in the morning they were dislodged entirely, and the occupation of the fort became secure.

According to the statement of three prisoners, the defenders of Fort Rihlung numbered about 500 besides some sailors. A majority of the defenders were killed.

The trophies captured with Fort Rihlung are fifty guns, including four large caliber guns, seven small caliber guns, thirty-seven millimeter guns and two machine guns and much property as yet unenumerated.

A Siapanta dispatch says that Russian artillery engaged in an action against the Japanese south of Shakhe and near the railroad bridge, the firing continuing till six o'clock in the evening. The bombardment of the Japanese position was effective. The Japanese replied very slowly with shrapnel and Shimose shells and did very little damage.

The navy department at Tokyo has published a letter written by an officer of the battleship Sevastopol which had fallen into the hands of the Japanese. The writer despairs of relief of the fortress and tells of the destruction wrought by Japanese shells. He says the Russians are resigned to their fate and are determined to fight to a finish rather than suffer the shame of surrender.

A dispatch from Port Arthur states that the Japanese have mounted eight guns commanding positions north of the Etse forts. The Russians have abandoned the new town, but the Japanese have been unable to occupy it because of fear that it has been mined.

May Have a Long Wait.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 31.—Several American, Canadian and Newfoundland fishing vessels procuring cargoes of frozen herring in Bay of Islands, on the west coast of this province, are frozen fast in an ice floe there through the unusual cold spell prevailing. It is hoped that a costal steamer will be able to cut them out, failing which they will have to remain there until next spring.

Italy May Bar Excavations.

ROME, Dec. 31.—An official communication is published regarding the statement by Professor Waldstein of the University of Cambridge, England, with reference to excavations at Herculaneum. It is announced that in no case will Italy consent to any infringement upon her rights to archaeological excavations in her territory. It is denied that the government has agreed to the projected excavations.

Haxer Got Life Sentence.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 31. — Louis Haxer was convicted of attempted murder and sentenced to the state prison at Jackson for life. In attempting to kill his wife in a local bakery on Dec. 3 he shot two women and later shot a policeman who arrested him and a bystander. All his victims recovered.

Happy New Year!

As Monday will be a holiday, there will be no issue of The Daily Press.

If there is an unusual disturbance in the office of The Commoner, at Lincoln, Neb., tomorrow, you may depend upon it that W. J. Bryan is celebrating the retirement of D. B. Hill.

Thomas Lawson was in the game until he believed that smarter ones were getting the lion's share and now he wishes the dear public to believe that his revelations are published solely in their interest.

Plainfield's Republican politicians will visit the home of United States Senator Kean at Elizabeth on Monday to assure him of their loyalty. Before coming home, they will tell Representative Fowler the same story. Oh, this is a great world.

Some things we hope for in 1905:
Ordinance to prevent spite houses.
Establishment of municipal collection of garbage.
Federal appropriation for a new postoffice building.
Increase of liquor license fee in North Plainfield.
Considerable addition to the police force.

In the annual reports of the various departments submitted to Common Council last night, are many suggestions for improvements in the several branches of municipal work which can not fail to interest those who have the welfare of the city at heart. For this reason we publish today the text of some of the reports and propose to reproduce others in the next issue. Chief Kiely asks for more patrolmen and points out why they are needed. No one will gainsay the fact that the numerical strength of the police department is not what it should be. The department is efficiently conducted and the city fathers will no doubt see the wisdom of following the suggestions made by the head of the force. Interesting throughout is the report of the street committee which shows the vast amount of work accomplished under the direction of the energetic and able commissioner, Andrew J. Gavett, the most modest and hardworking official of the city. Particular attention is called to the committee's reference to the new vitrified brick pavement on Watchung avenue, of the street sprinkling system. Both are regarded as successful experiments. As for the report of Chief Doane, of the fire department, its salient feature is the urgent recommendation for a fire house in the East End. The public will no doubt concur with the Chief that the Netherwood section of the city should be better protected than it is at the present time, and we believe that the Common Council will seriously consider the recommendation made. Unfortunately the report of the Board of Health was not ready for presentation last night. When it does appear we hope to find that the health authorities ask for the immediate establishment of the proposed system of garbage collection and disposal.

AMUSEMENTS.

The success of Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan Company at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, in "Leah Kleschna," C. M. S. McLellan's ingenious and powerful drama, is the greatest yet recorded in New York this season, if not the greatest in several years. The unanimous and enthusiastic verdict of the New York press in favor of this production has been indorsed by a public enthusiasm quite as notable, and the Manhattan Theatre, even in the ante-holiday season—the worst period that the theatre experiences during the year—has been and is crowded nightly. There is no doubt that "Leah Kleschna" will run to full patronage throughout the season at the Manhattan, or that even that the end of the season it will be a play to conjure with. Aside from the prime merits of the play itself—its highly original and dramatic story and its strongly contrasting array, of characters—"Leah Kleschna" in the acting is the most satisfying drama seen in years.

TENANTS RECEIVE NOTICE TO VACATE PROPERTY

PRELIMINARY STEPS TAKEN IN IMPROVEMENT ON PARK AVENUE.

Charles W. McCutcheon, owner of the business property on Park avenue, extending from the property at the corner of Park avenue and Second street, occupied by Mefford Giles, to the cigar store conducted by M. C. Dobbins, and including these tenants J William Randolph, barber; Andrew W. Johnson and A. H. Enander, plumber and tinner; Charles Schantz, saloon; Thomas Walsh, fruit dealer, and a colored barber, has given the required three months' notice to the tenants that they must vacate the premises by April 1, 1905, it being the intention of the owner to erect a modern building on this property.

As yet the tenants have no definite plans as to where they will go, although all of them are looking for places. Perhaps the greatest difficulty will be experienced by Charles Schantz, the saloon keeper, although he may be able to locate somewhere near the vicinity of his present place of business. There is at present a scarcity of stores in the business section of the city and for some time the demand has been greater than the supply.

POLICE CHIEF SUGGESTS ADDITIONAL PATROLMEN

IN ANNUAL REPORT, HE ASKS FOR A LARGE FORCE OF MEN.

Chief Patrick S. Kiely's annual report presented at the Common Council's meeting last night showed 569 arrests during the year, a slight increase over last year. He made special mention of the Gamewell police system in use and the introduction of sleeping apartments at police headquarters, which he said has become now a necessity.

Chief Kiely recommended the appointment of additional patrolmen so that each ward in the city can have a policeman in the day time and the business section three men. With the present force he claimed that the beats are so long it is impossible to cover them properly. He expressed his appreciation for the general help and assistance given by the Mayor and Common Council and every member of the department and in conclusion reported that out of the $18,040 appropriated to the department $6 90 was still in the city treasury.

Sunday Papers Ground Up.

An empty westbound coal train wrought considerable damage to a large bundle of papers, supplements to the New York Sunday newspapers, at the North Avenue station, yesterday morning, about 10 o'clock. The bundle had carelessly been left on the westbound track and the train coming along picked it up in lively fashion, first grinding the papers up and then scattering them along the tracks as far as the Madison avenue bridge. The papers belonged to Laing & Stout. The engineer by blowing his whistle gave plenty of warning for the removal of the bundle, but no heed was paid to it.

PLANS FOR BUILDING OF VANZANT & VOORHEES

CONCRETE BRICK TO BE USED IN STRUCTURE TO BE ERECTED.

Ground will be broken Monday morning for the new building to be erected by VanZandt & Voorhees on Park avenue, adjoining the railroad, and it is hoped to have the structure completed by April 1. The firm will buy the material for its building and then employ local contractors to do the work, with the exception of the building of the grain elevators. These will be erected by Contractor Rapp, of Darby, Pa.

The new building will be as near fire-proof as possible and will be unique in that it will be constructed almost entirely of concrete brick furnished by the Lawrence Cement Company, of which Ernest R. Ackerman is the president. The company has been making these bricks about a year and the building will be the first in this vicinity to be so constructed. The bricks are much larger than the ordinary size brick and are considered fire-proof.

The main building will be three stories 30x60 and directly back of it will be a one story building, 30x50, for the storage of hay. The second and third floors will be used for the storage of grain and feed and the elevators. It will be so arranged that grain can be unloaded from cars and sent to the grain bins direct. The main floor will be used for offices and the storage of general goods for delivery. The front of the building will be attractive, yet substantial, and an improvement to the business section. Ten feet on the side will be left for a driveway along the entire length of the building and in the rear there is a width of seventy feet, sufficient to turn around with large trucks.

William Tallamy, of West Front street, has the contract for the mason work.

Clarkson Mundy, of West Third street, janiter of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Clinton avenue, was the recipient today of a sum of money as a New Year's gift from his old schoolmate, John Tingley, of Dunellen.

D'ri and I

By Irving Bacheller

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Co.)

"'Pour la valeur eprouvee—de l'empereur,'" said he, reading the inscription as he clapped him on the shoulder. "It was given to a soldier for bravery at Austerlitz by the great Napoleon," said he. "And, God rest him! the soldier he died of his wounds. And to me he left the medal in trust for some man, the most brave, intrepid, honorable. M'sieur D'ri, I have the pleasure to put it where it belongs."

D'ri shifted his weight, looking down at the medal and blushing like a boy.

"Much obleeged," he said presently. "Dunno but mebbe I better put it 'n my wallet. 'Fraid I 'll lose it off o' there."

He threw at me a glance of inquiry.

"No," said I, "do not bury your honors in a wallet."

He bowed stifly, and, as he looked down at the medal, went away, spurs clattering.

Therese came in presently, her face full of vivacity and color.

"M'sieur le Capitaine," said she, "we are going for a little ride, the marquis and I. Will you come with us? You shall have the best horse in the stable."

"And you my best thanks for the honor," I said.

Our horses came up presently, and we all made off at a quick gallop. The forest avenues were now aglow and filled with hazy sunlight as with a flood, through which yellow leaves were slowly sinking. Our horses went to their fetlocks in the golden drift. The marquis rode on at a rapid pace, but soon Therese pulled rein, I keeping abreast of her.

"You have news for me, ma'm'selle?" I remarked.

"Indeed, I have much news," said she, as always, in French. "I was afraid you were not coming in time, m'sieur."

She took a dainty letter from her bosom, passing it to me.

My old passion flashed up as I took the perfumed sheets. I felt my heart quicken, my face burn with it. I was to have good news at last of those I loved better than my life, those I had not forgotten a moment in all the peril of war. I saw the handwriting of Louison and then a vision of her—the large eyes, the supple, splendid figure, the queenly bearing. It read:—

My Dear Therese: At last they promise to return us to you on the 12th of October. You are to send two men for us—not more—to the head of Eagle island, off Ste. Roche, in the St. Lawrence, with canoes, at ten o'clock in the evening of that day. They will find a lantern hanging on a tree at the place we are to meet them. We may be delayed a little, but they are to wait for us there. And, as you love me, see that one is my brave captain—I do not care about the other who comes. First of all I wish to see my emperor, my love, the tall, handsome and gallant youngster who has won me. What a finish for this odd romance if he only comes! And then I do wish to see you, the count, and the others. I read your note with such a pleasure! You are sure that he loves me? And that he does not know that I love him? I do not wish him to know, to suspect, until he has asked me to be his queen—until he has a right to know. Once he has my secret, love is robbed of his best treasure. Mon Dieu! I wish to tell him myself, some time, if he ever has the courage to take command of me. I warn you, Therese, if I think he knows—when I see him—I shall be cruel to him; I shall make him hate me. So you see I will not be cheated of my wooing, and I know you would not endanger my life's happiness. I have written a little song—for him. Well, some day I shall sing it to him, and will he not be glad to know I could do it? Here are the first lines to give you the idea:

My emperor! my emperor!
Thy face is fair to see;
Thy house is old, thy heart is gold,
Oh, take command of me!

O emperor! my emperor!
Thy sceptre is of God;
Through all my days I'll sing thy praise,
And tremble at thy nod.

But, Dear Therese, you ought to hear the music; I have quite surprised myself. Indeed, love is a grand thing; it has made me nobler and stronger. They really say I am not selfish any more. But I am weary of waiting here, and so eager to get home. You are in love, and you have been through this counting of the hours. We are very comfortable here, and they let us go and come as we like inside the high walls. I have told you there is a big, big grove and garden.

We saw nothing of 'his lordship' for weeks until three days ago, when they brought him here wounded. That is the reason we could not send you a letter before now. You know he has to see them all and arrange for their delivery. Well, he sent for Louise that day he came. She went to him badly frightened, poor thing! as, indeed, we all were. He lay in bed helpless, and wept when he saw her. She came back crying, and would not tell what he had said. I do think he loves her very dearly, and somehow we are all beginning to think better of him. Surely no one could be more courteous and gallant. Louise went to help nurse him yesterday, dear, sweet little mother! Then he told her the good news of our coming release, where your men would meet us, and all as I have written. He is up in his chair to-day, the maid tells me. I joked Louise about him this morning, and she began to cry at once, and said her heart was not hers to give. The sly thing! I wonder whom she loves; but she would say no more, and has had a long face all day. She is so stubborn! I have sworn I will never tell her another of my secrets. You are to answer quickly, sending your note by courier to the Indian dockman at Elizabethport, addressed Robin Adair, Box 40, St. Hillere, Canada. And the love of all to all. Adieu.

Your loving LOUISON.

P. S. Can you tell me, is the captain of noble birth? I have never had any doubt of it, he is so splendid.

It filled me with a great happiness and a bitter pang. I was never in such a conflict of emotion.

"Well," said Therese, "do you see my trouble? Having shown you the first letter, I had also to show you the second. I fear I have done wrong. My soul—"

"Be blessed for the good tidings," I interrupted.

"Thanks. I was going to say it accuses me. Louison is a proud girl; she must never know. She can never know unless—"

"You tell her," said I, quickly. "And of course you will."

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"That every secret that must not be told is the same as published if—if—"

"If what?"

"If—if it tells a pretty story with some love in it," I said, with a quick sense of caution. "Ah, ma'm'selle, do I not know what has made your lips so red?"

"What may it be?"

"The attrition of many secrets—burning secrets," I said, laughing.

"Mordieu! what charming impudence!" she said, her large eyes glowing thoughtfully, with some look of surprise. "You do not know me, m'sieur. I have kept many secrets and know the trick."

"Ah, then I shall ask of you a great favor," said I—"that you keep my secret also, that you do not tell her of my love."

She wheeled her horse with a merry peal of laughter, hiding her face, now red as her glove.

"It is too late," said she. "I have written her."

We rode on, laughing. In spite of the serious character of her words, I fell a-quaking from crown to stirrup. I was now engaged to Louison, or as good as that, and, being a man of honor, I must think no more of her sister.

"I wrote her of your confession," said she, "for I knew it would make her so happy; but, you know, I did not tell of—of the circumstances."

"Well, it will make it all the easier for me," I said. "Ma'm'selle, I assure you—I am not sorry."

"And, my friend, you are lucky: she is so magnificent."

"Her face will be a study when I tell her."

"The splendor of it!" said she.

"And the surprise," I added, laughing.

"Ah, m'sieur, she will play her part well. She is clever. That moment when the true love comes and claims her it is the sweetest in a woman's life."

A thought came flying through my brain with the sting of an arrow.

"She must not be deceived. I have not any noble blood in me. I am only the son of a soldier-farmer and have my fortune to make," said I, quickly.

"That is only a little folly," she answered, laughing. "Whether you be rich or poor, prince or peasant, she cares not a snap of her finger. Ciel! is she not a republican, has she not money enough?"

"Nevertheless, I beg you to say, in your letter, that I have nothing but my word and my honor."

As we rode along I noted in my book the place and time we were to meet the captives. The marquis joined us at the Hermitage, where a stable-boy watered our horses. Three servants were still there, the others being now in the count's service.

If any place give me a day's happiness it is dear to me, and the where I find love is forever sacred. I like to stand where I stood thinking of it, and there I see that those dear moments are as much a part of me as of history. So while Therese and the marquis got off their horses for a little parley with the gardener, I cantered up the north trail to where I sat awhile that delightful summer day with Louise. The grotto had now a lattice roofing of bare branches. Leaves, as red as her blush, as golden as my memories, came rattling through it, falling with a faint rustle. The big woods were as a gloomy and deserted mansion, with the lonely cry of the wind above and a ghostly rustle within where had been love and song and laughter and all delight.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Bright Outlook For New Year.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Holiday week brought customary quiet conditions in the business world, inventories and preparations for annual settlements monopolizing attention, except in some branches of manufacture where immediate deliveries were required. Severe storms also interrupted communication and transportation, particularly at the west, but on the whole the elements were helpful, for drought was broken in the Pittsburg region.

Annual reviews indicate that the year has made a much better showing than seemed possible at the outset, the second half comparing very favorably with the first six months, and the amount of business on the books in the leading industries promises still further improvement in 1905.

Traffic returns for December indicate that gross earnings of the railways were 7.2 per cent larger than in the previous year, and foreign commerce for the last week at this port shows an increase of $1,543,163 in exports and a very large gain of $3,819,245 in imports as compared with 1903.

Continued exports of gold did not produce any stringency in the money market, the associated banks closing the year with ample surplus reserves. Bank exchanges at New York for the week were 22 per cent larger than a year ago, and at other leading cities there was a gain of 12.07 per cent.

Buoyant sentiments prevail in the iron and steel industry, an exceptional condition at the close of the year, and the outlook is bright for a continuation of activity.

Official reports of grain harvests indicate that the farmers received much more for their crops than in preceding years, even wheat rising above half a billion dollars despite the fact that the quantity was less than in any recent year. Returns were especially encouraging as to wheat, corn, oats, hay and potatoes. Failures for the week numbered 252 in the United States against 232 last year and 11 in Canada compared with 17 a year ago.

SHOT BY HIS WIFE.

Wealthy Georgia Man Shot In Attack Accidentally.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Dec. 31.—In Chattahoochee county, eleven miles east of Columbus, William K. Schley, a prominent planter and late representative to the legislature, was shot at the Schley home about six o'clock yesterday by his wife with a 32 caliber revolver. He had attacked her with a chair. Unless internal hemorrhages begin Schley may recover.

It is said that Mr. Schley of late has been drinking, but that his wife did not intend to shoot him. Seeing a revolver lying on the table she seized it to frighten him, and it went off accidentally. She is prostrated over the affair.

Schley is one of the wealthiest men in the county.

TALKED OF LYNCHING.

George Hutchings Held at Port Chester For Assault.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 31.—A crime that has roused every man and woman in this town came to light when John Hutchings, twenty-one years old, confessed that he had attacked a little girl of seven years at East Port Chester.

Public feeling is so intense that a great crowd surrounded the jail, and lynching was freely talked of. The guards were doubled and every precaution taken to protect the prisoner.

Julia Scofield, the little victim, is the daughter of Daniel Scofield of East Port Chester. Doctors say she cannot live.

The man under arrest is a son of George Hutchings of West William street, this place. The Scofield and Hutchings families are related.

Hutchings went to East Port Chester and visited Mrs. Scofield. After dinner Mrs. Scofield asked Hutchings to go on an errand to a woman friend's house in Port Chester. Not knowing whether he would be able to find the house, he asked little Julia to go with him. About three hours later Hutchings returned to Mrs. Scofield's house, half dragging, half carrying the little girl. The child was unable to walk and was in a dazed, semiconscious condition.

Hutchings said that the child had slipped and fallen on the ice and in that way cut her face. She soon recovered consciousness and complained of great pain. Mrs. Scofield summoned Dr. Raphael R. Guidon, who ordered the child immediately removed to the Ladies' hospital in this place, as there was a possible chance her life could be saved.

Later Hutchings was arrested, and when first questioned at the station house he denied any crime. But he soon broke down and admitted his guilt. He gave full details of the crime, telling what occurred in a box car at the local freight yards.

The crowds that had been hunting the assailant collected about the station house, as it was noised about town that the man had made a confession. Every moment the crowd was augmented, and there was talk of lynching.

OFFICIALS ARRESTED.

Charges of Fraud Against President and Cashier of Conneaut Bank.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 31.—Cashier O. C. Lillie and President C. M. Traver of the First National bank of Conneaut, O., were placed under arrest last night at Conneaut by United States Marshal Chandler upon a warrant charging the bankers with a violation of the national banking laws, the specific charge in Mr. Lillie's case being the making of a false entry in the books of the bank, changing the sum of $233,605 to read $223,605. Mr. Traver is charged in the warrant with being an accomplice of the cashier in the alleged falsification.

Deputy United States marshals brought Cashier Lillie to the federal courtroom in this city, where he waived preliminary examination and gave bail in the sum of $10,000 for his appearance in court early next February. He was accompanied to court by his wife and four-year-old daughter.

President Traver, in charge of a deputy marshal, arrived late last night and will probably be brought before the United States officials immediately. The First National bank of Conneaut closed its doors nearly two weeks ago after a run upon it the preceding day. The bank has a capital stock of $50,000.

The cause of the run, the bankers said at the time, was that the report had gained currency that Mrs. Chadwick had succeeded in securing large loans from it. The bank officials deny holding any Chadwick papers.

Insanity Her Line of Defense.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 31.—Bertillon measurements have been taken of Mrs. Chadwick by a government secret service expert. The purpose of the system is the identification of criminals. When Mme. Devere was arrested in Lucas county fifteen years ago she was subjected to the measurements, and those records are on file. The present measurements will be compared with the Devere record. Several other matters have developed in the Chadwick case that seem to indicate insanity as her almost certain line of defense.

Small Boat With Small People.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—A small power boat with a party of four aboard grounded off Little Fire island and signaled for assistance. Captain Doxsee of the Fire island crew started out to her relief, but the boat floated off the shoal just before he reached her and proceeded down the channel toward the inlet. The life savers, who had broken through half a mile of ice and were worn out by their exertions, asked to be taken in tow, but their request was refused.

McCotter Arrested at Norfolk.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 31.—Armed with requisition papers signed by the governors of North Carolina and Virginia, Sheriff Richard O. Riddick of Gates county, N. C., has arrested J. E. McCotter, wanted in Gates county for the alleged murder of James Russell, who died about two years ago as a result, it is claimed, of a blow on the head which he received at the hands of McCotter about a year prior to that time.

Hospital Gets $50,000.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 31.—The Syracuse Hospital of the Good Shepherd was made the recipient of a New Year's gift of $50,000, the donor being William B. Cogswell, general manager of the Solvay Process company of this city, who has previously contributed large sums for its support.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS HOLD CHRISTMAS EXERCISES

FESTIVALS AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH AND FAITH CHAPEL.

Witnessed by a gathering that occupied every available seat in the structure, the Sunday-school department of Grace M. E. church conducted its annual Christmas entertainment last evening. It was furnished by members of the school and was elaborate in many respects, the features being two tableaux, "Under the Mistletoe Boughs," with reading and music accompaniment, and "The Children's Christmas Party," with music accompaniment. The first told the story of the Christmas eve bride who in a playful mood, hid from the groom and guests in a strong chest and was smothered to death. Pretty costumes were worn by those taking part and colored lights were thrown on the groupings by William Soberb.

The respective parts were taken as follows: Bride, Miss Ada VanHorn; bridegroom, Benjamin Schuck; bridesmaids, the Misses Adelaide Marsh, Tina Voehl, Minnie Marsh, Grace Clark, Adelaide Carney and Belle De Mott; groom's attendants, Russell Hardin, H. C. Brokaw, Raymond Miller, Arthur Austin and Frank Merritt. The children assisting were Blanche Stout, Bessie Tayor, Gladys Brokaw, Helen Nelson, Evelyn Nelson, Eva Tayner, Elizabeth Voorhees, Kenneth Giddes, Roy Taynor, George Patterson and Russel Story. Dyckman Winckler played the violin accompaniments while the readings were given by Mrs. Winckler. At the conclusion of the programme, gifts were distributed to teachers and pupils by Santa Claus in the person of Benjamin Schuck.

The committee which had the affair in charge consisted of Mrs. Anna Most, Mrs. George Nelson, Miss Mary Steiner and Miss Delia Voehl.

The annual Christmas entertainment for the Sunday-school of Faith chapel, last night, attracted a large number of members and friends of the school. L. W. Randolph, superintendent, was in charge of the programme. The decorations were attractive. There was an illuminated "Christmas welcome," red Christmas bells, greens and a tree.

There was an orchestra of eight pieces, assisting in the rendition of Christmas carols by the school. After the Scripture reading and prayer by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson, there was a welcome address by Lillian Handte; a vocal solo by Christine Viebrock; cornet solo by Whitney Frasee; recitation by Hazel Grant; vocal solo by Miss Florence Bennett; recitations by Henry Rapp and Lizzie Frank. Charles Thompson, the "handkerchief king," then entertained all with clever sleight-of-hand tricks.

Then followed the distribution of gifts. L. W. Randolph received a gold fountain pen, with his initials inscribed thereon, and Mr. Musson was presented with a set, twelve volumes of Meier's works, a handsome jacket. Mrs. Musson received an ebony comb, brush and mirror and W. A. Conger an ebony clothes and nat brush. The girls received wrist bags and dolls, and the boys pocket knives and balls and there was a general distribution of oranges and candy.

BLDG. INSPECTION REFORM

stances connected with every application, and ascertain before granting any permit whether plans and specifications complied with the ordinance, and if any other reason existed why the application should be denied. If he could clearly determine, before granting a permit, that the applicant proposed erecting a spite house, or any building, the character of which would be detrimental to the welfare of the city, it would clearly be his duty to refuse the permit."

The consideration of these lines from Mr. Gilbert's communication naturally brings us to the question of the committee's dealings with the actual performances of the Building Inspector.

To sum up in the fewest words what the committee has brought in on this subject, we might call it a verdict of Not Guilty, with an admonition not to do it again. If anything greatly different from this can be made out of the committee's entire report I should be pleased to have somebody point it out.

Upon reading their report it will be seen that the committee believe that the Building Inspector had reasons for surmising the character of the "Spite House" prior to its erection; and the committee state that the Building Inspector could have referred these plans, with the application, to certain authorities for advice. It appears however that such a plan as this did not suit the Inspector. At the examination before the committee, President Tolles of the Council, who was present, said: "You admit, Mr. Doane, that you could have refused the permit and referred it to the committee."

Mr. Doane: "No, sir."

Mr. Tolles: "It did not occur to you to do that?"

Mr. Doane: "No, sir."

It will be seen therefore, that, so far as the past is concerned, the Inspector has not even entertained the idea of taking anyone's advice. If he, the Inspector, saw the way to give a permit for any kind of a building, spite house or other, he would do it and nothing could stop him. The committee itself says that the power was with the Inspector, and that they could only have advised him; but in various ways it has been made clear that no advice was on his part wanted. It is true that he has now graciously consented that in case he has hereafter reasons to suspect improper intention, he will take advice; but who shall know or say when, if ever, he will admit that he considers that any reasons for suspicion exist? After our recent experiences, such a reference of the entire subject and discretion to his inner consciousness is nothing short of an absurdity.

These facts remain, and were clearly shown at the examination. Between the erection of one objectionable building on Hillside avenue and the giving of a permit for another, a period of some months had elapsed. Meantime surely the Inspector knew the character of the building which was to be put up in the second instance, if he had not known it in the first instance. He went on and gave the permit for the second building and in connection with that business he did make the suggestions to Mr. Opdyke referred to in my communication to the Council, indicating the lawyer who, according to his advice, could "fix the thing up."

He did know, prior to the erection of the objectionable building on East Front street, what kind of a building it was to be, and for what purpose. He had an interview with Mr. Huntsman on this subject (and he has not denied that interview) in which it came out that the Inspector knew the purpose of the movement prior to the giving of the permit. All this (and much more to the same effect that could now be brought out from the actual testimony taken) shows that Doane gave the permits for these objectionable buildings with his eyes wide open, and gave them without taking advice from anybody, and without soliciting advice, and not only gave a permit for one objectionable building on East Front street, but gave permits, or a permit, for two at once.

Now I do not care to apply a title to such conduct. It may bear various entitlements, and some of them perhaps might suitably have a note of severity in them. I am willing that each citizen shall characterize it in his own way. But to this sort of thing we have been subjected, and to it we are still subject, so long as we have this party for Inspector. It will be seen that this position of Inspector involves something of a public trust. The public have had these certain and definite doses of administration in his office. Does it want more of them? Does the Council insist, or does anybody insist, that this kind of administration shall be imposed upon the public, whether it wants it or not? And shall anyone, intrusted with the power of appointment, force upon property-holders and tax-payers such an appointment? I can hardly believe that the new Mayor and the new Council will insist on this against all the facts and against all reason and good conscience.

It is quite true that there is no point at which I have charged Mr. Doane with being in collusion with anybody. I do not know anything about the facts of his private relations with various parties. At the examination he openly stated that he had a right to have interest in building propostions if he chose to do so. I might, for one, be disposed to question the right of an Inspector to be interested in building propositions whilst he is Inspector; but that is not, so much as some others, the point now under review. The point is that such administration of that office as we have been subject to is an injury to private and to public interests, and I insist upon fair consideration for that point and that the public be relieved of the apprehension growing out of such "inspection."

I have no particular wish to criticise at length the committee before whom, after a delay of some weeks, I was permitted to appear. No doubt "they, are all honorable men;" and I do not like to call in question the consciousness of their examination or of their report. At the only meeting of the committee which I was permitted to attend, there were, I think, but three members of the committee present, one of whom has, since then, retired from the Council. The report of the committee is signed simply by the new chairman.

It was my understanding that the whole subject would be taken up broadly by the committee when I attended; but I was speedily given to understand that this was not the case. The committee would hear nothing from me except as to Mr. Doane's behavior; and the chairman even ruled out the statement given by Mr. Opdyke as to Doane's behavior, holding that the committee had met only to consider Front street questions, and could not take up facts concerning Hillside avenue. Mr. Opdyke's remarks were entierly omitted from the stenographer's report of the committee proceedings, though afterwards, (and after Mr. Opdyke had definitely retired from the meeting and with something of an expression of honest indignation on his part) other statements, made by Mr. Doane and his friends concerning Hillside avenue, were freely admitted.

I had in advance advised the chairman of the committee that I would like to ask some questions of Mr. Doane. A few questions put by me were answered; the most of those that I proposed were ruled out by the chairman of the committee; and the chairman and other members of the committee from time to time advised Mr. Doane not to answer various questions. Amongst the questions so ruled out were these:

"Is there anything in the Building Ordinance, or in any of the ordinances of the City of Plainfield, compelling the issuance of such a permit for such a building?"

"As a practical builder yourself, can you see any advantage or legitimate business profits either to the city or to the owner of the property in the construction of such a building on such a property?"

"If there is an absence of probability of any advantage, or honest profit, in a proposition to construct such a building, is it not true that the character of the building itself is such as to put the Inspector on inquiry as to its ulterior design or purpose?"

"This permit reads that it is a permit to erect a building with 'walls to be supported on piers in cellar.' Is there any cellar to the building in question?"

"Did not Marra swear in applying for permit that the building was to be so erected, that is, with 'walls to be supported on piers in cellar?'"

"This permit gives authority to roof the building with paper. Is there any authority in any part of the Building Ordinance justifying a roofing of any dwelling to be built within the city limits of paper?"

"Is it not true that there is a distinction clearly drawn in the ordinance between dwelling houses and lodging houses?"

"In relation to the building under consideration, have you seen to it that exact compliance was made with the ordinance, namely that such a building should not be erected within three feet of line or adjoining lot-owner?"

"Referring to the fact that one name appears in the middle of the application, and quite another name as the signature, at the end, are you in the habit of having applications filled in and signed in this loose way?"

In my communication to the Council I pointed out that in various and numerous respects the so-called "Spite House" had been erected contrary to the ordinance and contrary even to the permit itself. I will not encumber this letter by going over these grounds again, but will name here two particular respects, in one of which the building is contrary to the ordinance, and in the other it is contrary to the permit;—and in the last case, contrary also to Mr. Doane's testimony and statement to the committee.

According to Mr. Van Emburg's survey the building stands precisely where such a building has no right to stand, namely, within less than three feet of the property line.

The permit was for a building to be twenty-five feet in height. When Mr. Doane was asked by me before the committee, "What is the actual height of the building?" he answered, "About 24½ feet." When he made this answer he must have known better. In fact the building is several feet short of this in height, including the "piers" upon which it stands. Anybody not an inspector and not a builder can see this by simply looking at it, and it has been measured, and the ascertainment is as above stated. A building 25 feet high is a wholly different proposition from a much lower one; one might be a house—the other a shanty; and yet Doane states that he faithfully inspected it. Queer inspection this!

These two facts alone would justify the Mayor and Common Council in taking immediate measures to remove the building.

But there is more to be said on this point. The one thing that the Common Council has done is to exercise dominion over the particular situation complained of. It has annulled the permit given by Inspector Doane for the second building of the same character. The Common Council has admitted its right and acted in part upon its duty to deal directly and positively with this unlawful building erection. That it should at once go forward and perform the rest of its duty is as clear as law and logic and the requirements of the public interest, all combined, can make it.

Citizens and tax-payers do not attempt to dictate how the building shall be removed—whether by being torn down by the Building Inspector, or otherwise. The manner and means are with the city authorities. Scores of Italians engaged on the city's works have for months defiled the property and made it a nuisance. The city is morally and legally accountable for this injury. The city has through its Inspector given two permits for things harmful and unlawful. Through its Common Council it has righteously and lawfully annulled one permit. It should undo the damage done by the other. Its Inspector, who has constantly sought to justify himself for both permits—the one resulting in damage and the other annulled by Council—is still in office receiving salary and giving out permits. Do the city authorities intend to ignore all the requests and petitions which have been laid before them on this subject? Do they seriously propose to wear out our patience whilst property values are dissipated? Or do they intend to force law-abiding citizens and prompt tax-payers either to sue the city to obtain their rights, or else to suffer perpetual loss and injury under such administration? And does the City of Plainfield propose to double-knot and double-rivet its moral and legal responsibility to the injured property-holders by approving or condoning the acts of Doane? I am wholly unwilling to believe it—and this, notwithstanding the fact that three months have already gone since reasonable complaint was made. I prefer to believe, and for the present shall, despite discouragements, cling to the belief that the incoming administration will take efficient measures to remove the unlawful building, to give us a new and reliable Building Inspector and to attend to the reform of the law as well as of the inspection, so that whoever may hereafter appear as sponsor, or promoter, or occupant, or lawyer, or capitalist, for so-called spite house schemes, they will no longer be permitted to mar and disgrace our fair city.

Dorn and Schleyer, the other two men arrested, will be given a hearing tonight. It is asserted by the police that these two were pursuing the Frasiers along Somerset street with an axe and a shovel when the pistol was discharged. Dorn and Schleyer have retained Isaac P. Runyon to defend them.
